Before rendering a decision not to open the doors of certain departments of the Columbian fair on Sundays the managers might well make a careful investigation of the Milwaukee experiment and of any other of the same kind they can hear of. If it can be made successful among a population so largely foreign in origin and ideas, certainly no fair minded student of our people would venture to claim that quite as favorable results might not be expected from our native population.

"Nolan," a wonderfully fine ballad by a daughter of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe opens the November Wide Awake; it is the tragic story of the bearer of Raglan's dispatch which Lord Lucan of the Light Brigade misunderstood when he ordered the famous "charge;" "Nolan" is suited to become a favorite with boys for Declamation Day. Another noteworthy feature is the richly illustrated article by Mrs. Richard Manning of Salem upon "The Boyhood of Hawthorne;" the first portrait ever painted of Hawthorne is reproduced for this article. still another notable feature is the closing chapters of the famous Peppers serial—in a great sunburst of happiness. "Marietta's Good Times," and "Miss Matilda Archambeau Van Dorn," also are ended, and next month, for Christmas gift, the new serials begin. Margaret Spencer has a capital Hallowe'en story, "Gladys McLean's Hallowe'en Party;" Mrs. Kate Upson Clark has a Thanksgiving tale, "Mistress Esteem Elliott's Molasses Cake;" and Emilie Poulsson a poem for the occasion, "Mima's Thanksgiving." Another good story is by a southern writer, Elizabeth Bellamy, and entitled "A Lesson for Life." "Old Adams, the Bear Tamer" is a bit of western biography by Charles Howard Shinn. William Zachary Gladwin has a good story of a plucky boy, called "Johnny O'Dowd's Chance." "Men and Things" is rich in annecdote, and readable poems and articles are contributed by Mrs. S. M. B. Platt, Amanda B. Harris, "M. E. B.," Mrs. William Claflin, Clara Doty Bates, Caroline Hunt Rimmer, Mary Felicia Butts, J. L. Harbour, Nena Thomas Medairy, A. S. W. Selfridge and L. S. Bridgman.

Wide Awake is $2.40 a year. D. Lothrop Company, Boston.

Chinese Missions To American Heathen.

A returned missionary, while trying to induce some of the pious students of a Virginia college to go to China as missionaries to the almond eyed heathen illustrated their heathenism and produced what he thought a clinching argument as to their benighted condition by exhibiting a tiny shoe which a grown Chinese woman had been able to wear on her foot as the result of a lacing process which must have begun when first her little yellow toes were poked over the edge of the cradle. As this is the age of reciprocity and as the postal subsidy bill is to increase the direct steam communication facilities across the Pacific, we need not be surprised if some enterprising Mott streeter, after duly exploring Fifth and Madison avenues and studying the cotumes of his Sunday school teacher, should go back to the Flowery Kingdom and start a movement for Chinese missionaries to American heathen.

What an instructive object, for instance, a corset would be to the students of a Buddhist or Confucian theological seminary! The high heel in the middle of the sole of a fashionable young lady's shoe might be construed as proof of an approach to common sense Chinese methods of torturing the feet. But the bustle! A whole shipload of Chinese missionaries to America might be moved with pity at that species of cosrumic insanity. And as for the United States man who wears a thick, heavy, stiff derby hat on his head in the summer time, he might be regarded by the Chinese missionaries as too degraded a votary of the god Fa Shun to be hopefully pursued.

The Grafton Record's Park River correspondent says : "C. D. Lord, our popular banker, had quite a loss last Saturday and Sunday. On last Friday his hired man turned his band of sheep out in a stubble field, in which threshing had just been finished, and on Saturday nearly every sheep in the flock showed signs of bloating, which resulted in the death of about 175, and on Sunday morning Mr. Holbrook's pasture, where the sheep are kept, presented a view which very much resembled a battle field ; the entire ground being covered with sheep dead or dying. There are at this writing about 850 sheep which will probably recover. There is no question but what the sickness was caused by the sheep over-feeding on new wheat, but to satisfy himself, Mr. Lord has telegraphed the State veterinary surgeon, who will be up Monday night.

The Hopkins-Searles Will Case.

The contestants of the will of Mrs. Mark Hopkins-Searles closed their case without putting the chief contestant, Timothy Nolan-Hopkins on the stand. His lawyers may know what is best for their client from the legal standpoint, but public opinion will place its own interpretation upon the action of an adopted son who is willing to traduce the memory of his benefactress in court but lacks the courage to submit his version of the relations between himself and the woman who adopted him to searching scrutiny on the witness stand. So far as the public is concerned young Hopkins has lost his case in this one act. The victory which Mr. Searles won in court will undoubtedly be sustained by the general opinion.

November Discoveries.

This is a somewhat remarkable month for discoveries beneficial to mankind, and the influence of which continues widening for good. November 21st, 1302, the use and benefit of the ship's compass was discovered, and as without it safe ocean navigation would have been impossible, it may be called the parent of all geographical discoveries that have been made since that time. November 18th, 1497, the Cape of Good Hope was discovered, and then was opened to European commerce a water-way to the treasures of the Orient. Previous to that time, trade between the East and the West was done by the slow and often painful progress of the caravan. November 26th, 1778, the Sandwich Islands were discovered, and this has been a boon to Pacific ocean navigators, as a coaling and provisioning station. It ought to belong to the United States, and may some day be annexed by Uncle Sam. Thanksgiving Day, too, was discovered in New England during this month, some two hundred years ago, and the people of the Northwest have discovered that to make a quick, safe and pleasant journey home on Thanksgiving—or any other day—"The Burlington" is the route to take. Tickets and any other information can be obtained from local agents, or by addressing W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, C. B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

S. A. Wallace has been fixing up his store somewhat. Has taken out his side doors, moved the partition and fixed up generally.

The snow storm of Monday interfered with threshing somewhat by filling the stacks with snow. Some machines got at it again on Tuesday.

"Oh, no," said Uncle John Ross, on Monday afternoon, "this is not winter, you will see this snow all disappear and an open spell yet."

The first sleigh of the season appeared upon our streets Monday afternoon. It slipped along all the same like winter time.

Comrade Snyder commenced to thresh on Wednesday. He has 300 acres of nice wheat that ought to yield at least 20 bushels per acre.

J. S. Nichols, one of the leading farmers in the town of Liberty has put up a wind mill to grind his feed with. J. S is a live progressive farmer.

P. J. McGuire arrived from Superior last week. He has accepted a position as clerk in the Land office and entered upon the discharge of his duties.

Ladies, you cannot afford to miss seeing my new fall styles of millinery. The novelties of the season are rare and beautiful. Call and see them. MRS. E. E. BANGS.

The slight reminder of winter on Saturday set everybody to thinking about winter. It made pretty lively business for the drays to supply hitherto neglected woodpiles.

Lots of freight trains on both roads indicate a rushing business on the lines. more wheat is going out than ever before and more goods coming in. This looks like business.

Monday was a field day for subscriptions for us. Notwithstanding the storm many of our friends dropped in to set that little subscription ahead a year. Thanks, come again.

City Engineer Geo. A. Ralph has just completed and delivered to the county commissioners the most complete map of the county ever made. Such a map would be handy in every business office.

Dedication of "Hauges Minde Bedehus" next Sunday Nov. 8. A number of clergymen of Hauges Synod will be present. Services begin at 10:30 o'clock a.m. You are cordially invited to come.

The brickwork on the new block is nearly completed and soon the inside work will be. When fully completed the new block will be an elegant structure a credit to Second street and the city.

If this really means winter there will be lots of threshing to be done next spring, as there are hundreds of acres in stack. Less plowing has been done this fall than ever before owing to excessive rains.

As announced in last issue Miss Minnie McKinnon was married on Wednesday evening to conductor Henry Murray. The happy couple will be at home to their friends in this city after November 1st.

Dr. M. LeGuee received a telegram from McIntosh on Monday stating that the company horse he went out to see last week was dead. This will prove quite a serious loss as the animal cost between $2000 and $3000.

The delay in the arrival of the mail on Thursday last was caused by a collision at Nelson, in Douglas Co., which wrecked an engine, shook up the passengers but fortunately no lives were lost. The company will investigate.

Monday was the shortest day for fuel we ever saw in the city. Everybody wanted wood and coal and wanted it right then. Had there been five or six car loads of wood on track in the morning it would all have been taken before night.

If you want a good farm of 315 acres ready for crop in the spring, with good, substantial buildings, good fences, artesian water and a fine grove call at THE JOURNAL office. We know of just such a place near this city that can be had cheap.

Thompson does not find that dog yet but thinks he has a clue to him. It would not be healthy for the party who has him if he has had any intention of keeping him, as G. T. says he will know that dog ten years from now just as easy as now.

The Temple of Fame will be built at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening, Nov. 10th, when all of the notable characters of history will be present. Go and see it and help the ladies in their laudable purpose to do good with the proceeds.

New York Tribune:—Miss Agusta Ohrstrom, the Swedish soprano, who made her American debut at the festival last evening, scored a pleasing success. She divided the sole honors evenly with Madam Fursch-Madi and Myron W. Whitney.

The funniest show that has been seen here for some time is promised at the Grand Opera House on Friday night, when E. D. Stair's superb company of players will give for the first time here that laughable skit, Little Trixie. The performance like others of its class abounds in music, specialties, dances and all the good things that so satisfactorily entertain an audience. The Providence Daily Journal speaks in the following terms of the company: "It is a pleasure to see an audience so pleased and so satisfactorily entertained as was the one that was present at the Grang Opera House last night to witness the second production here of that successful comedy, Little Trixie. The attraction is always welcome here and will never fail to draw a large houses."

A grand bazaar will be held in Gentilly on Nov. 15th, 16th and 17th. Sunday evening, tragedy with concert. All are cordially invited.

The dedication services of the Norwegian Lutheran church will be held on Sunday next, at 11 o'clock. The Rev. H. A. Pra us, of the Synod, or the Rev, V. Karn is expected. The services in the evening will be conducted in the English language.

We wish to thank those of our friends who have so kindly remembered us on subscription during the past week and also those who have written us that they would soon have the money ready for us. Such things tend to cheer us in our work and in every case helps us out wonderfully.

All the drays seem to be busy as nailers these days. Simmons worked until 10 o'clock Saturday night and then had to quit before his day's work was completed. This state of things indicates one of two things—either we have not many drays or else the city is doing lots of business and we have lots of drays.

We have to compliment the small boys for the universal good order that prevailed on All-Hallowe'en. Heretofore the morning of November 1st has witnessed a scene of devastation and wreck utterly discouraging but the boys were very good this time—or was it the cold weather that upset their calculations?

Rev. R. H. Battey speaks at the Congregational church next Sunday. Morning subject—"Moses' Greatest Prayer." Evening, 6th lecture on Character. Subject—"Faith and Character." A hearty welcome for all. Sunday school at noon. Y. P. S. C. E. at 6:30 p. m. All young people are invited to these services.

Fisher Bulletin:—Information was received from St. Paul this week to the effect that Capt. De Mers, lately a resident of Fisher, was rapidly declining in health and intelect and that his demise may be looked for in the near future. Mr. Morrison, father of Mrs. DeMers, was in Fisher this week looking after her business interests.

Ed. George returned on Monday morning from a visit to Rochester. His wife has been convalescent for a week or so but not doing as well as he would like so he took her back to Rochester on Monday night where she will remain a month or so until she is better. Ed, after seeing her comfortably located will return in a few days ready for business.

The Ray L. Royce Co. presented "Tom's Vacation" to a good audience on Monday evening. Mr. Royce has lost none of his vivacity since his first visit to this city, in fact he seems to improve with age. The piece is one well calculated to keep the audience in good humor and was exceedingly well played The company is a good one.

There is a greater demand this fall than ever before for good houses to rant. If some of our real estate owners would improve desirable lots by putting up good building they would not only do a good thing for the city but would also make a good interest on their investment. Houses are in great demand—and the better the house the better the demand.

Two loads of millet came on the market on Monday morning. The owner was asking $10 per ton for it and when we last saw it in the afternoon it was still unsold. It is worth twice as much as prairie hay to feed to milch cows and yet owners of cows seem to prefer to pay $8 and even $10 per ton for prairie hay rather than buy that millet and it was choice millet too.

Grand Forks Plaindealer:—Those who attended the entertainment given Saturday evening by Augusta Ohrstrom and her company of artists enjoyed a treat. Miss Ohrstrom's voice is clear and and strong and of great compass. The singing of Messrs. Baalfe and Abdill was also most excellent. Miss Violet Phelps was the life of the program, and with each number she was compelled to respond to double enchores.

James Greenhalgh Jr. was caught shivering on the street corner in Monday's snow-storm and said to THE JOURNAL man: "This reminds one of the days in the early seventies when it was 'cat-fish or no breakfast for us.' I would not be surprised if this was the beginning of winter and if it is look out for an old fashioned one. It sets in just as they used to. I have to trudge out home on foot to-night, but I had rather do that than to drive out."

Ship your wheat to O. Tharaldson, general agent of the Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association, at Duluth, and make from 4 to 7 cents a bushel. For further particulars as to membership, &c., inquire of L. K. Hassell, Grand Forks, N. D. [25-tf]

The Temple of Fame.

This beautiful entertainment consists in the summoning by the "Goddess of Fame" of men and women famous in the world's history in art, literature, music, fiction and the humanities, each pleading what they have personally accomplished as the reason why they should receive the "Wreath of Fame."

ORDER OF PROGRAM.

1. Entrance of the Goddess of Fame attended by her maids of honor and pages.
2. Chorus by the children who bear the wreath of the Goddess.
3. Summons by the Goddess.

Albert Oehler came in from Dugdale on Monday evening and dropped in to leave us a bit of encouragment in shape of a paid up subscription. Says wheat in his neighborhood is generally secure but some flax is yet in shock. He harvested 1700 bushels of good wheat, 1150 bushels of excellent oats, 500 bushels of barley and a 9½ pound baby boy which last crop was cradled on October 27th. Mother and child doing nicely.

Comrade A. Burnam stopped on the street in the storm on Monday long enough to say to THE JOURNAL man: "I have been just as busy as I could be all the fall trying to get my fall plowing done and my potatoes dug but I must say if this is winter I am caught bad, as I have to build shelter for my stock yet —and that reminds me I have some colts at home out in this storm and I must hurry home and take care of them."

The average small boy was in clover on Monday afternoon when, at four o'clock, at close of school he came out into one of the jolliest snow-storms he has seen in a long time, but we opine he was about the only one, as all the boys of older growth were speculating as to the results to the unthreshed wheat and wondering if "winter had really set in." After all, your small boy is your true philosopher, for he takes life as he finds it and tries to extract all the comfort he can out of it as he goes along.

Much of the immense success that attends the Little Trixie engagements everywhere is due to the always excellent company of players secured to interpret the comedy. With the view of securing a reputation that would last a lifetime the management has this season engaged for Little Trixie the best company available and is putting on the play better than ever before. In addition to this the Imperial Quartette, who are a whole show in themselves, has been brought over from Europe to appear nightly in conjunction with the acting company. Besides being skilled vocalists they play many musical instruments, most of which have never been seen before in America. Little Trizie will be seen at the Grand Opera House Friday night.

A little ripple of excitement was caused by the decision of Inspector Childs that a new vault must be built for the post-office and an effort made by parties interested in Second street property to secure the office for the new block. Bids were called for and submitted and the bid of McKinnon brothers was $75 per month and that of the owners of the new block $125 per month. this did not suit the Second street fellows who called for a new deal and then went to work among themselves to raise the amount necessary to secure the office. Robert street soon caught on and did the same and when the new bids came in McKinnon Bros. were still $10 in the lead. Their bid was accepted and the office is located where it is for five years.

"More Squibs."

WE MIGHT state that the advertising corner of our brain is still an aching void, but that's evident to all.

WE MIGHT spring a bargain list, viz:

☞ Best Prints..........5c a yd
☞ Ice Wool..........20c a box
☞ Ladies all-wool Underwear...75c each.
☞ Eider Down..........45c a yd
☞ Plush Cloaks..........$12.50 each and all that sort of thing, but we won't do it this time.

WE MIGHT tell you all our competitors are frauds, and that we are the only people on earth, but we wont do that either, because it ain't so.

WE MIGHT warn you against paying more money for inferior goods than you can buy the best for at our store, but we won't do that either, as we have done it over and over again at an expense of from $10 to $15 per "warn."

WE MIGHT say, as a significant fact, that only the establishments which sell large quantities of goods, and which turn their stock quite often, are the people who can show you all the NEW GOODS, but you all know that.

WE MIGHT reiterate the fact that "volume" of business to a store means precisely the same as circulation to a newspaper. The advantages offered by a large stock are as obviously greater than those of smaller stocks as the advantages of a big newspaper are greater than those a little one can offer; but you all know that, too.

Jacob Scott came down from Fosston on Monday night and dropped in to cheer the printer's heart on Tuesday morning. His wheat averaged 20 bushels and was secured in good shape without injury to the grade. He has a fine farm near Fosston and is making a fair thing this year. Says the yield has been good in his neighborhood and nearly all grading either No. 1 Hard or 1 Northern. He says that Hoch & Larson, who have been running a threshing machine near Devils Lake came in on Monday night and say that wheat there has been turning out from 30 to 33 bushels der acre; that there is yet a great deal of wheat in the shock. Scott is one Polk County farmer who has made money this year. Last spring he rented his farm for three years and bought another on which he raised a big crop of wheat, oats and barley, and then sold for $1,000 more than he paid last spring and he has the crop clear.

The military company are not discouraged by their loss on that "original" Rebellion business and have secured one of the finest musical treats ever brought to this city, being nothing less than the celebrated Swedish singers, M'lle Augusta Ohrstrom, supported by J. C. Abdill, dramatic tenor, who was formerly with Emma Abbott, N. Basil Ptetson, formerly with the Bostonians, Miss Alice Watson, pianist and accompanist, Violet Phelps, impersonator and violinist. The boys deserve a good house not only for their pluck and perseverance but also on the merits of the troupe.

If you want a good cow come and see what we can do for you. We have a few more left that we will sell you right. Call early for choice.

Edward Lanctot was in from his farm during the storm on Monday and to a JOURNAL man he said: "If this is winter I can tell you one thing and that is that potatoes will be worth big money before next spring. I have 900 bushels in my cellar, but I know of plenty of farmers who havn't a potato dug yet and have no doubt that there are not to exceed from one-third to one-half the potatoes in the county dug. I hardly think winter has set in, in real earnest, but if it has it will fix the potato crop and make that vegetable extremely scarce.

Crookston Ball.

Grand Forks Daily News:—Mr. and Mrs. Sattler, Miss Duggan, May and Lizzie McGoey, Dollie Green Eliza Martin and Lizzie and Annie Sullivan were over at Crookston to participate in the pleasures of the Firemen's ball. They returned much pleased with the affair which they say was attended by about 150 couples. The belles of Crookston were there in all their beauty, glory and witchery, as they always are at every social assembly.

The "Temple of Fame" at the Grand on Tuesday evening, Nov. 10th.

Joseph Leicht, of the Winona Herold, is in the city this week. Mr. L. says Crookston is making rapid improvements.

It would seem that after all Fred Rauch was giving us the straight tip when he said that he bought that house and lot on Sampson's Addition for a residence for his mother and father. The old people arrived from their old home at Buffalo, Wis., last Thursday, and at once took possession of Fred's cottage.

Rev. R. H. Battey's morning sermon at the Congregational church was a review of the work of the year and showed cause for encouragment. While the church has not increased in numbers as rapidly as could be wished the interest has and the prospects are better than ever before. Mr. B urged upon the members the importance and helpfulness of a regular and prompt attendance and right here we wish to call attention to one point which, to our mind, may be a stumbling block in the path of some and that is the habit of neglecting to attend church because there may be some one connected with it against whom we hold a personal grudge. If perfection was the only qualification what human being would be qualified to join? And who of us is so perfect as to infallibly judge between himself and his neighbor as to fitness? It is because of man's weakness and need of help that churches are necessary and they are but training schools to fit one for a better life. If each member is doing all he can to regulate his own individual growth spiritually he will probably have all that he ought to do without sitting in judgment upon his erring brother and the church would come as near fulfilling its mission as is possible. We are speaking of no one particular case and hope there are none who can make a personal application of these remarks.

The Return of Jim.

Have you noticed that there's something circulating in the air
That is bracing, and displacing all the microbes of despair?
Have you noticed in the trade reports, so lately very slow,
That the figure now is bigger than it was a month ago?
Have you noticed that the Stars and Stripes the autumn breezes crack
Somewhat louder and much prouder
Now that Jim's got back?

Have you noticed out in Kansas how the boys are falling in?
How the growlers' and the howlers' ranks are growing very thin?
Have you noticed how the Kansas porkers proudly curl their tails,
As though to try to give the lie to demagogic wails?
Have you noticed how the wheat and corn and fodder in the stack,
Are what you term extremely firm
Since Jim's got back?

Have you noticed down in Chili that they're lying very low;
That his skinny nibs Rudini plays in pianissimo?
Have you seen the brown plush muffle on the British lion's roar?
Though soft as seal, it is not real, and hides an ugly sore,
But you'll notice that your Uncle Sam's not taking any slack
From any one-horse power throne
Since Jim's got back.

Republicans and Democrats rejoice to see old Jim;
He has a way, you can't gainsay; we are all proud of him.
The Massachusetts Yankee and the planter "down Mobile"
In old Jim Blaine are joined again and royal glory feel
In living in a nation that can give the world a whack;
For Uncle Sam won't care a cent
Since Jim's got back.
—Kansas City Journal.

Times: "Somebody must have pulled the gong on Halvor Steenerson. He hasn't been interviewed in the St. Paul papers or given the Alliance a good send-off in several weeks. Can it be that the St. Paul reporters have become tired of being worked?"

The chestnut bell has been rung repeatedly on your attacks on Steenerson, but you don't seem to have sense enough to tumble. You always kick when Steenerson is interviewed and now you kick because he is not—and this time gratuitously, as he has not been in St. Paul within the time you mention and the St. Paul papers seldom send reporters this far to interview local celebrities.

If the assurances we have received this fall of early settlements on subscription are all carried out we shall be able to collect our list up nearly in full, enough to enable us to carry out in part the addition of needed material to our office. The past week we have received more than ever these promises by letter and verbally and these assurances are indeed encouraging, situated as we are at this time. We have enough outstanding upon our subscription books to lighten the burden caused by the loss of a magnificent crop and while THE JOURNAL does not ask, nor would it accept money for the sake of charity it does ask and expect all who are in arrears to do their best for us this fall so that we can discharge our just debts and have the means at command to purchase needed material for the office. The assurances we have received lead us to the belief that this will be done in every case. Of course we do not expect any who have last their crops, as we did, by hail to distress themselves on our account—they have had it hard enough already, but even some of these have said they in tended to do something for us this fall.

Geo. Vine, of the Robert street meat market, informs us that his trade is excellent this summer. He purchases nothing but the choicest beeves and well understands the art of cutting up nto nice choice steaks. Try Vine once

A BRAVE LAD.

On Monday of last week the eleven year old son of G. Fontaine, of Gentilly, went out with his dog and gun to shoot prairie chickens. The dog started a bear and the boy pluckily took after him and when within a few feet of him the bear rose up on his hind feet and the boy gave him a charge of bird shot right in the neck at close range. This dropped the bear and the boy reloaded. By this time the bear was up again rea[illegible] for business and was running away with the dog in hot pursuit. The boy joined the pursuit and soon came up when the bear again rose up and got another charge of bird shot which dropped him but did not kill him quite and the boy closed in and killed him with the gun, breaking the gun over the bear's head. We call that a plucky boy.

BELTRAMI ITEMS.

"A Vocal Artist of the Very First Rank." Boston Herald.

Miss Ohrstrom is a vocal artist of the very first rank, and a singer who commands the attention of the most critical in whatever she is heard. Such artists are heard all to seldom on the concert stage, and when heard are quickly appreciated. Such was most certainly the result last evening, for Miss Ohrstrom's success was instantaneous and most pronounced, and her audience gave her a most enthusiastic recognition of her grand abilities. She is first a musician and then a singer, and in her vocal work she displays with faultless taste and consummate skill the result of these combined qualifications for the concert stage. Her voice has the brilliancy of the true soprano, with the richness of the mezzo soprano, and it has been most thoroughly and artistically trained, exhibiting the true method in the use and giving genuine satisfaction in every way. She sang with great the old but always enjoyable "Sicilian Vespers," aria by Verdi, and an encore number "Jamie Dear," was given with equal success. The Spanish bolero, "La Veritable Manola," was sung with splendid dash and spirit and gained the singer another enthusiastic recall, to which she responded by singing a bright Norwegian folk-song to her own accompaniment.

FARM FOR SALE.

The undersigned offers for sale that valuable property, the N½ Section 34, township of Rome, range 48, consisting of 320 acres, over 200 under cultivation, 35 acres pasture and over 10 acres planted timber, good buildings, excellent water. Will be sold in whole or in part on easy terms. This would be a good chance for a Norwegian as it is in the midst of a Scandinavian settlement. Will be sold cheap as the owner wishes to leave the country.

For further particulars apply on the premises to

"Enough to Draw a Full House."

New Orleans Correspondence of American Musician:—Miss Ohrstrom's magnificent soprano alone—so rich, pure, fresh and soulful—was enough to draw a full house. Of course it is not everyone who loves to listen to good music who understands anything about it, but appreciation is welcome even from the ignorant, and such fell to Miss Ohrstrom. A person who heard her was going into ecstacies over her voice, and remarked to another: "You said her voice was a soprano, but you are wrong; it is a prima-donna voice." You can imagine the laugh this brought forth.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

We have received the last issue of the "World's Columbian Exposition Illustrated." It is only established organ of the great Fair. The object of this publication is to give complete authentic historical record of the Columbian Exposition. It contains 32 pages of official proceedings and gives photographic illustrations, of all the Exhibits, Building, and attractions of the great fair. As a work of Art, containing the most interesting information, it is invaluable to all who wish to keep up with the times and learn of the great International Enterprise. It is published in English and German. Subscriptions taken at this office, where a sample copy may be seen or address, J. B Campbell, Editor and Pub., 218 La Salle Street, Chicago, Ills.

"She Can Execute Trills and Cadenzas and Roulandes Like Patti."

Saratoga Union:—Miss Ohrstrom's manner is winning, her stage presence charming, her singing delicious. Her clear, pure soprano is equally satisfying in the exacting jewel song from "Faust," or the simple folk-songs of her native Sweden. She can sing with marvellous power and volume; she can execute trills and cadenzas and roulandes like Patti, but her best is a faint, sweet strain; the echo of a silver bell, a fairy's melody made perfect by the expression of a human soul.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Nov. 5th, 1891.]
Last publication Dec. 17th, 1891.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and twenty-two 40-100 ($122.40-100) dollars, interest which became due on the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1891, which default has continued to the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Andrew G. Hanson, a widower, mortgagor to J. E. Boily, mortgagee, bearing date the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1890, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 24th day of July, A. D. 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 49 of mortgages, on page 143.

And whereas, the said J. E. Boily, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of sixteen hundred and twenty-two 40-100 ($1,622.40 100) dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of eight per cent. per annum from the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1891, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: All that tract or parcel of land described as the southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-four (34), Township one hundred and fifty-one (151), Range forty-four (44), according to the government survey thereof, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

MONDAY, THE 21st DAY OF DECEMBER,

1891, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of sixteen hundred and twenty-two 40-100 dollars, and interest and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated November, 2d, A. D. 1891.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs' nice fall and winter display of millinery is the admiration of all the ladies who have called at her fashionable millinery parlors on Second street, and the prices are extremely low this fall.

Dunc Morris will take great pleasure in showing to JOURNAL readers his stock of jewelry, watches, clocks, &c., &c. He is an experienced jeweller and knows all about how good work is done. Call and see Dunc.

Doctor M. LeGuee was called to McIntosh to see a fine Percheron stallion owned by a company there, on Friday. Mike found a very sick horse and spent the time between trains trying to alleviate his sufferings but expressed his fears as to the result as the horse appeared to be beyond help when he arrived.

The business men of Duluth have been talking up an excursion to the Red River valley some time this fall and have finally arranged to start on Tuesday, November 10th. Crookston will, no doubt, arrange to properly entertain her guests during their stay in this city. The party will be composed of the representative business men of Duluth.

The sheriff will take command at the jail personally until he can obtain the services of a competent jailer. He don't propose to stand any more nonsense and if the prisoners try to leave him before the proper time somebody is going to get hurt.

The Ninth Annual Ball of the Crookston Fire Department, held at McKinnon Hall on Thursday evening of last week, was one of the biggest of its kind ever before seen in this city. The spacious hall was crowded to its fullest extent from 9 o'clock till nearly daylight, and everybody seemed to enjoy themselves to the fullest extent. The receipts must have been very encouraging.

Butter is scarce in this market and good butter readily sells at 25 cents per pound. It looks very much like it would go very much higher before spring. A few good milch cows on the farm would make a good paying business. The outlook for beef cattle for next year is that they will command a big price, as they are already beginning to be scarce. The wise farmer is quietly buying up at present prices.

Writing from Superior, Wis., to set that subscription ahead a notch, A. M. Stewart says: "Things are beginning to boom. There is talk of the Woods' Binder people locating here. Our four large factories are running and when they get to going in full blast they alone will employ 1,550 men, and there are more coming; more factories, more railroads more everything. I can see a great future for Superior. It has been very quiet this summer but is not getting very lively. We don't hear anything about the vicissitudes of crops, no long range accounts to carry, but we can do a clean cash business. I am going to Merrill, Wis., for the winter, but shall return in the spring.

Wheat is being marketed here very slowly this fall—not over a hundred bushel coming in daily. It looks now as if very little would be marketed until after it freezes up, as the roads are still in a very bad condition.

We certainly have considerable of a kick coming from the Great Northern for the train they are sending up here at present. It is far from pleasant for ladies and others to have to ride in a combined first-class car, smoking car, baggage, express and mail car. We should think that the company could at least afford a dilapidated caboose for a smoking car.

Hung Himself.

Geo. Vine's butcher, Frank Henning, met with a singular accident one day last week by which he came near furnishing a coroner's case by involuntary suicide. He was alone at the slaughter house and in some way managed to get impaled upon a meat hook but by great good luck he was enabled to extricate himself from his perilous position, but he was laid up on the dry docks for repairs several days.

Dunc Morris has his show window filled with an elegant display of jewelry of all kinds, and invites our readers to call and inspect. Dunc is prepared to furnish anything you need in that line, and all you have to do, if you don't see what you want, is to name it and you can have it.

And Scotty Paid the Freight.

Conductor Scott, Jr., went on a bit of a tear in St. Paul last week, i. e. he got to playing with a dog in a crockery shop and the result was $13 worth of broken crockery. The proprietor sent the bill to Conductor Scott, who promptly sent his check. The practice which some store-keepers have of putting fragile ware where it is liable to be broken and then charging their customers for accidents, is reprehensible.

A Chance to be Taken.

Crookston is to be visited by the greatest of photographic novelties, the Haynes Palace Studio Car. This handsome affair is arranged for the production of artistic portrait photography—a perfect gallery on wheels—and every one has a golden opportunity to have his picture taken when it is in the city, from the 16th to 20th of November. Cabinets, Boudoirs, Paris Panels, Imperials, Crayons, Water-colors, Pastels and oil paintings—the finest in the west, any style you want, and made in the most approved modern manner. Visit the car when in the city. Located at Northern Pacific Depot.

Reclining Chair Cars.

If you intend going East or South via St. Paul and Chicago, why not take "The Burlington" day train from St. Paul and Minneapolis, and enjoy the beautiful scenery of the Upper Mississippi? This train has one feature not afforded by any other line between the Twin Cities and Chicago; it carries elegant reclining chair cars, which make the journey delightful, easy and comfortable, and no extra charge is made to those occupying seats in them. Insist on the agent giving you tickets via "The Burlington"—C., B. & N. R. R.—and take no others.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss District Court.

Steenerson Bros., plaintiffs, vs. Rachel Johnson and Nils P. Johnson, defendants.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of an execution to me directed and delivered, and now in my hands, issued out of the District Court, 14th Judicial District, State of Minnesota, in and for the County of Polk, upon a judgment rendered in a justice's court in the said county, a transcript of which judgment has been duly filed in the District Court aforesaid, said judgment being rendered in favor of Steenerson Bros and against Rachel Johnson and Nils P. Johnson, I have levied upon the following described real estate of said defendants, to-wit: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of the northeast quarter (ne¼) and the east half of the northwest quarter (e½nw¼) of Section thirty-three (33); also southeast quarter (se¼) of the southwest quarter (sw¼) and lot six (6) of Section twenty-eight, all in Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range forty-seven (47) west. And that I shall, on Friday, the 13th day of November, A. D. 1891, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, proceed to sell all the right, title and interest of the above named Rachel Johnson and Nils P. Johnson in and to the above described property to satisfy said judgment and costs, amounting to fifty-seven dollars and 29 cents, together with all accruing costs of sale, and interest on the same from the 3d day of March, 1890, at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash.

Dated Crookston, Minn., Sept. 29th, 1891.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication Oct. 15th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, ANDREAS HAGBERG, an unmarried man, of Polk County, and State of Minnesota, as mortgagor, did, on the 15th day of December, A. D. 1888, duly execute and deliver to Eleanor E. Wilmerding of the County of Suffolk, State of New York, his mortgage bearing date of December 15th, A. D. 1888, whereby he mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The northeast quarter of Section 26, Township 148, Range 45 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagor to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 17th day of December, A. D. 1888, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 186; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of fifty dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-eight dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagor, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, her heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagor or any other party; and

Whereas, the said mortgagee, Eleanor E. Wilmerding, has exercised her option to consider and declare and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable and;

Whereas there is now due, and claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred thirty-four and 32-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court-house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 28th day of November, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash; to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty Dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated, Oct. 12th, A. D. 1891.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

A REPUBLICAN.

A Young Minneapolis Man Gives His Reasons for the For the Faith That is in Him.

Farmers' Tribune.

"Why are you a Republican?" This question is hooted at the young man who shouts for the G. O. P. till he's hoarse, but is unable to give reasons why he stands politically in the shoes of his father. Listen to some. The Republican party sprang into existence to save a union of states. It didn't believe in forty or fifty separate, independent, jealous government? It vetoed the secession of South Carolina and by its veto accomplished two things: A united union and a freed slave. Since the time it came into existence to deliver and to save, it has proved itself more competent to manage our national affairs.

"Why are you a Republican?"

You believe in the party because it has subdued the rebellion; because it has freed the slave? No, Democracy did not do this. Some Democrats stood in the ranks and fought like heroes that this might be accomplished but the emancipation proclamation was the product of the great Republican brain of Abraham Lincoln, and the terrible battle of union was fought and won under Republican rule.

You believe in the Republican party because it has constructed great public ways; because it has improved our rivers and harbors and advanced our commerce; because it is the parent of our benificent homestead law and the inaugurator of our national banking system; because it has and honored in every nation; because it re-established our public credit and restored sound currency and has always advocated an honest dollar; because it has given us treaties protecting our naturalized cities abroad and has paid our national debt at a rate unprecedented in the history of the world; because it has given the American a secure and happy home and advocates an honest ballot and is the protector of the free and public school. To say otherwise is to contradict the pages of public record.

Take the work of our last congress if you please, with the administration of our present executive. What was done? a bill was passed against trusts, and the first person stung by the new law was a Democratic leader. The gigantic system of robbing the poor, the Louisiana State Lottery, received a blow from which it can never recover. There were 606 house and 275 senate bills for the relief of old soldiers; four bills were passed in the interest of the laboring man, bringing hope and relief to thousands of honest workers; steps were taken to make the dry and thirsty lands of the west more productive by irrigation; appropriations were made to improve our rivers and harbors and to build up our navy; and a wise tariff law was enacted. The Democrats hissed the McKinley bill, but it has proven a godsend to our country. Prices have come down.

A word as to how the farmer has been effected. Our agricultural products amount to over $3,000,000,000 per year; and 92 per cent. of this is disposed of in a home market. The market which our Democratic friends desire to give the farmer, but which his free trade trade hobby would never do, is for the other 8 per cent. of his product. It is a distant and uncertain market, dependent on the harvest abroad and open to competition. Look at it for a minute. The wheat crops of the world, if my recollection is correct, amounts to about 2,100,000,000 bushels. Of this 1,100,000,000 bushels are grown in Europe; 450,000,000 bushels in the United States; 287,000,000 in India. Eastern Europe, the United States all raise a surplus. In Western Europe alone there is a deficiency, and the United States, India, Eastern Europe, Australia and Canada and competitors for supplying this shortage. This is the wonderful market claimed for the farmer should he vote free trade in this country. We have been paying $57,000,000 a year on the articles of food we import. The McKinley bill by raising the barrier of duty on farm products stops this, and the $57,000,000 must go into the

POCKET OF OUR FARMERS.

We import $2,500,000 worth of vegetables from Scotland, Canada and Nova Scotia; we import $1,000,000 worth of hay and nearly $8,000,000 worth of breadstuffs and over 16,000,000 dozen eggs. Has not our farmer sense enough to know that it is money in his pocket to keep this out?

And to give up protection, most that the free trade could give him should it do what he contends it will, would be an uncertain market for 8 per cent. of his products. If under a high tariff foreign countries send to us and sell here on our shores all these agricultural products, how much more would they import and sell but for the levy of the duty they must pay! Take away the duty and our farmers' home market is put in jeopardy. A Canadian farmer imports butter here to sell but before he can place it in competition with our farmers' butter he must go to our custom house and pay the duty. Do you, Mr. American farmer, pay that duty, or the Canadian farmer from whom the collector received it? The McKinley bill increased the tariff on farm products. It has given impetus and life to everything except the cause of Democracy. New industries have sprung into existence. It is doing exactly what honest Republicanism said it would do.

It is proposed by the leaders of the Democratic party to have a free and unlimited coinage of silver. Smart men, these! able financiers! What does the free and unlimited coinage of silver mean? 412½ grains of silver are in our present silver dollar; 412½ grains of silver can be bought in any market for 76 cents. Under this new Democratic idea of free and unlimited coinage, the silver producer would bring this 412½ grains of silver to the government exchequer and the government at its own expense would make it a dollar which the farmer and every other man for 100 cents. Of course the miner of silver smiles at this possibility of becoming a favorite of the government to the extent of 24 cents on the dollar.

Now a word as to the Democratic party. It is the party of tissue ballots. No? Ask South Carolina. It is the accomplice of the White League and Ku Klux. No? Ask Louisiana and Mississippi. It is the party of fraudulent naturalization papers. No? Ask New York. It stands by the whipping post. No? Ask Delaware. It has robbed the government of thousands of dollars. No? Ask Stevenson, Archer, E. A. Burke, E. T. Noland, James W. Tate, Thomas J. Churchill, who have held the trusted positions of state treasurer of the respective states of Maryland, Louisiana, Missouri, Kentucky, Arkansas, and who have stolen respectively sums of $132,401.25, $793,600, $32,745.69, $229,009.21, $323,616.89 of the state's money.

You believe in Republicanism because it is right; because its principles have been advocated and maintained by the great men of these United States; because in its ranks you find Lincoln, the liberator of the slave, Grant the preserver of the union and father of reciprocity, Harrison the true friend of labor, whose present wise administration has given dignity to our nation and made every country on the globe honor us, and the great protectionist who has taught Europe law with respect to America, James G. Blaine. You believe in the Republican party because by its works you have known it and found it competent and fit.

The Toledo Weekly Blade Free.

The proprietors of the Toledo Blade, the best known political weekly of the United States, are making preparations to create a sensation this winter by sending a million specimen copies to as many readers in all parts of the United States, who do not now take that paper. To that end they invite everybody to send the addresses of as many people as they care to, by postal card or letter. Send one name, ten, twenty, one hundred or a thousand. As many as you have time to write, only take care to send correct addresses of people that you know appreciate good reading. It will cost but a little trouble, and the thousands who receive sample copies will feel grateful. Send all the names and addresses you please to The Blade, Toledo, Ohio.

Chili's Mistake.

New York Press.

The course pursued by the administration in the Chilian affair has been most praiseworthy. It has been marked by sagacity, moderation and firmness. The treatment which has been accorded to Chili has eminently befitted the dealings of a great, highly civilized power with a small nation in a backward stage of civilization. When the facts regarding the brutal outrage upon United States seamen in the streets of Valparaiso were made known to this government by Captain Schley and Minister Egan, the gravity of the offence was fully appreciated.

But the communication which the administration addressed to the Chilian Junta on the subject was studiously courteous and temperate. There was in it not the slightest hint of bluster or threatening. The request for investigation and redress was made in the friendliest tone, and it was assumed that Chili upon examination of the circumstances would of her own accord make the amends which justice and the law of nations required.

Apparently the Junta made the blunder of mistaking moderation for weakness and irresolution. The tone of gratuitous insolence which was apparent in their reply, and the fact that the authorities of Valparaiso have refused to extend protection to the market boats of the Baltimore, show the intensity of the arrogant hostility with which the leaders of the successful insurgents regard the United States. It has also transpired that the Chilian municipal and government officials compelled the American seamen who were confined in the Valparaiso prison for the crime of defending themselves against the murderous mob, to sign a statement in Spanish exonerating their captors for all responsibility for their arrest. It is announced that the Chilians made the release of their prisoners conditional upon the signing of this document.

The Chilians will find, however, that they have reckoned without their host. Their insulting and offensive course since the first outrage has put them more completely in the wrong than ever in the eyes of civilized nations, while the position of the United States has been strengthened accordingly. Undoubtedly the Junta has been encouraged to withhold an admission that reparation was due to the United States by its reliance on the British influence, which has so nearly made Chili a commercial dependency of the British Empire. The Chilians will speedily discover that the supposed British protection will not shield them in the least. Great Britain is not likely to go so far as to interfere with the United States in a matter of this sort. If she should venture to do so it would only intensify ten fold the determination of the American Government and people to exact ample reparation for the murder of our seamen and the gross affront to our flag.

The United States Government has acted deliberately in the matter, but it will insist on full amends from Chili. Chilian brag or bluster count for nothing. The potential naval and military resources of the United States outweigh those of Chili a hundred times. They will be exerted to the utmost rather than to allow the wrong to our flag to go unpunished. Force will not be resorted to unless it is necessary. But if force is imperative, it will be exerted in a manner that will forever remove all South American illusions in regard to the might of the United States.

The Calendar.

How many men who have a calendar of the year hanging beside their desks—how many of the people who can't keep house without an almanac—know that about three hundred years ago a very important change was made in our reckoning of time? Up to the time of Julius Cæsar, the Romans divided the year into ten months, of very unequal lengths. One of the chief purposes of a calendar is to mark a fixed date at the beginning of a year, and to do this it should be always at the same distance from the spring and fall equinoxes. In the time of Cæsar the science of astronomy was not very exact and the small error of eleven minutes in the length of a year was made. In the sixteenth century the churchmen, who had a great many religious festivals, found that whereas the equinox was on March 25th when the Julian calendar was made, in 1582 it had fallen back to March 11th. The great festival of the church, Easter, was thus getting back into the winter. Pope Gregory XIII, came to the rescue, and after consultation with the learned of the day, issued in October, 1582, a brief by which the date was arbitrarily advanced ten days—and that is our present calendar. Russia, under the Greek church, did not follow this, and still keeps the old style. To always have the correct date in your home or the office get one of the calendars issued by "The Burlington," and to meet your engagements in other places, buy your railroad tickets over that line. All further information will be given by agents, or can be had by applying to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

Waste On the Farm.

Northwestern Agriculturist.

Though not a farmer, I have always lived with farmers as a "looker-on" have noticed how seldom the maxim—"A penny saved is worth two gained, and a penny well spent is best"—is thoroughly applied. This is an age of saving in most of the industries. Every great enterprise in manufacture—sawmill, factory, railroad, steamship—is making its profits from saving the little wastes. The great sawmills save even the slabs and saw dust. But farmers, giving the most striking examples of necessary economy, are still the greatest wasters in the line of production. The spigots of waste are found in careless seeding, by which only a portion of the field is occupied, though all must be plowed, cultivated and harvested at a cost as great as if the full stand were secured; in the slack culture by which weeds are left to sap fertility and moisture from the struggling corn stalk, and to fill the land with millions of seed to be fought in future years; in thriftless breeding, by which a sorry sire of scrubby stock is used for cheapness, although every farmer knows that like produces like, and generations of blocky beef cattle insure a continuance of such stock, doubling the value of his increase; in shiftless feeding; in neglected feed lot with poorest facilities for handling stock or feed, and in thoughtless marketing, with careless loss of multitudes of little products that might sell for a goodly sum in the year, if means were provided for sending from a whole neighborhood; in decay attacking stored crops, machines and buildings, discovered too late for saving; in broken tools and dull tools and lost tools, forgotten till needed, and hindering a day's work till repairs or recovery or purchase can make ready. These spigots of waste, too familiar to be dwelt upon, are illustrated by the story of a farmer who drew his load of hay twelve miles to market upon a wagon whose neglected tires came off and left the felloes to crush, and showed by his handling of the load that "gumption" was wanting, when for a day and night himself and son were kept at work in marketing a $3 load of hay, with three broken wheels to repair and the borrowed wheels to return to add to the wrong side of his bargain. Great waste is evident in lack of contrivance to save the multitude of steps that make up chores by having convenient arrangement of house, well, barn, sheds, lanes and fields; to save friction in machines and tools, harness, wagons, gates, doors and windows; to save health in protection from wet, cold and wind, hunger, thirst and exposure; to save temper by easing the burdens of the day through foresight; to save the scraps of knowledge that count so much in the practical wisdom of daily life; to save the odds and ends of temptation that make for good or ill the character of the home. A still greater waste is found in the lack of consistent planning. When the plans of a business man are as indefinite as those of the average farmer, he fails before he is recognized as a business man. The factory that lacks consistent plans lies idle. So, in a measure, does the farm, unless there is constant, careful planning—planning for the daily routine which will accomplish most in the least time; for the season's work, so that every day, be it wet, cold, windy or fair, may have its appropriate tasks; for such a rotation of crops as to gain a full use of the soil, sunshine, showers, and manure that make our mine of wealth; for adjustment of stock to crops, so that every straw, as well as every bushel of grain, be turned into the most profitable form of produce for market; for safe storage of produce until ready for market; for development of skill in a business where every year's experience ought to count for surer results. Instead of being most subject to a change of all producers, the farmer should be the most careful of planners for a life devoted to his own line of business. Instead of flying from wheat to flax and from flax to corn; from pigs to sheep and from beef to dairy cattle, he should save the waste of capital and skill in careful study of his own situation and careful experiment in changes to suit his condition. The waste in our farms in shifting crops and stock at a mere popular whim cannot be estimated. A famous new York farmer gave as a maxim of his success in sheep, "Buy when your neighbors sell, and sell when they buy." Finally, the chief waste of life on a farm is in false purposes. The farm should be looked upon, not as a mere machine for speculation, not as a mere means of living, but as the home of generations, where children or children's children may find the truest development of life. The home acres should be deeper rather than broader. "More land, more corn, more hogs," leads nowhere but to greater hoggishness. Better land, better crops, better stock, insures better men and women, better homes with each generation. Wealth is good for use, and every farm of true progress gives better use of wealth for the larger life of the farm home. Here, in the farm home, the best part of the world's workers in every calling must grow to manhood and womanhood, and here the true beginning of an eternity of progress must be found. The farmer who saves for his children a home of good influences, in true thoughtfulness, true usefulness, true affections and a wholesome life, and builds for himself an immortal monument.—(President Fairchild.

The Toledo Weekly Blade and Campaign of 1892.

The Toledo Weekly Blade, the most prominent Republican weekly published is the only political weekly newspaper in the United States that is edited with special reference to circulation in every part of the Union. It has subscribers in every State, territory and nearly every county of the United States. It has always above 100,000 subscribers, and during a late Presidential campaign 200,000 subscribers. People of all political parties take it. Aside from politics it is a favorite family paper, having more and better departments than can be afforded by papers of small circulation. Serial and short stories, wit and humor, poetry, camp-fire (soldiers), farm, Sunday school lessons, Talmadge sermons, young folks, poultry, puzzles, household, (best in the world), answers to correspondents, etc., etc. Only one dollar a year. Send postal to The Blade, Toledo, Ohio, for a free specimen copy. Ask, also, for confidential terms to agents if you want to easily earn a few dollars cash.

Grand Forks Plaindealer:—New tracks are being laid so frequently in the Great Northern yards that the train crews can hardly "kap track" of them. the boys had a good one on conductor Casper Sands the other day. He mistook a new track near the depot for an old one and was just a little bit scared, thinking the switchman had run the train backwards on the wrong track and were sending it into the round house at a lively gait. Casper found out he was all right—after the train stopped.

Charlie Misner went up to Warren last Thursday to make some calls. THE JOURNAL is "onto" Charlie but we are saying nothing.

Ole Christianson and wife came up from Fertile to spend the Sabbath with their sons, C. O. and O. O., returning on Monday evening.

A grand bazaar will be held in Gentilly on Nov. 15th, 16th and 17th. Sunday evening, tragedy with concert. All are cordially invited.

Uncle Joe Netzer completed the Kistenmacher residence in good shape last week and Sam Rosenthal has taken possession thereof.

O. C. Bergland is hauling in potatoes. Says he can see a profit in potatoes at 20 to 25 cents per bushel. He has 700 bushels of choice tubers.

If you want a good cow come and see what we can do for you. We have a few more left that we will sell you right. Call early for choice.

THE JOURNAL learns that friend Moe, of the firm of Moe & Buhn, at Mentor, is building a neat and comfortable cottage at that place. That looks suspicious.

Ladies, you cannot afford to miss seeing my new fall styles of millinery. The novelties of the season are rare and beautiful. Call and see them. MRS. E. E. BANGS.

Comrade Snyder was obliged to quit threshing on Monday owing to soft ground, and will finish after the freeze up. Meanwhile he will finish his fall plowing.

Dr. J. H. Warninger arrived on Monday with those trotters. In addition to the horses he brought along a fine thoroughbred mare that has a good record as a trotter.

Ex-mayor E. C. Davis talks of taking a trip to the coast. Mr. Davis thinks he has put in good solid work enough in this country to entitle him to an outing for a few months.

Engineer Fred Chapin, wife and babe came over last week to enjoy a visit with grandpa and grandma Hunt. Fred is on the sick list a bit and is taking a lay-off for a few days.

Umph! We find that our early education was entirely at fault in Greek—we thought Xantippe was—hold on there, let go of that back hair—we wasn't sayin' of nuthin'.

Iver Krohn is prepared to supply all calls for bulk oysters as he receives large shipments every week.

J. E. Mitton, the jolly landlord of Wahpeton, was in the city this week looking after his property interests here. Mr. M. was formerly a resident of this city where he has many friends.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs' nice fall and winter display of millinery is the admiration of all the ladies who have called at her fashionable millinery parlors on Second street, and the prices are extremely low this fall.

Comrade Jim Kelley came down from Badger on Monday. Says his wheat was of excellent quality this year though not such an enormous yield. Jim thinks it was too wet out there for an extra crop.

A. Holmboe and J. H. Locken returned this week from a trip east for goods for their new store in the Opera block and will soon be ready to show their friends a nice stock of general merchandise.

Chas. Jofston says he don't believe Eli Steenerson's wheat story of a 52 bushel yield. Says his own wheat was as good as any in that vicinity and only yielded 26 bushels. His yield, as an average, was good enough.

County Commissioner C. P. DeMers showed up smiling on Monday evening C. P. is possessed of the stuff what you make heroes of—he never gets discouraged by untoward circumstances but always makes the best of them as they come.

A number of our young people went out to Chris. Houston's on Saturday evening where they met some of the neighbors and enjoyed a social dance until 11:30, when they all departed, vowing that Chris' new home was a good place to visit.

Dr. J. H. Warninger, brother of Mrs. Max Ericsson, has concluded to locate in this city and his family arrived last week. The doctor is a veterinary surgeon. He will bring along with him three thoroughbred trotting stallions when he comes.

The banks inform THE JOURNAL that collections are excellent this fall and improving. Very seldom a man walks in and asks for extension these days, but he puts down the money and takes up that note with a feeling of independence which is good to see.

Wm. Wylis was in from Black River on Tuesday and called to cheer our spirits with visions of future wealth on that subscription. William is one of the most promising men we know and he also has a faculty of getting there which some don't seem to possess.

Somebody had a stock of millinery for sale in the opera block this week. Perhaps we are not a judge but to our mind the stocks of our home dealers look very much nicer—and then, if you buy of our home dealers and are not suited you have somebody to jaw about it.

Judge Woodruff, of Grand Forks, was in the city last week. The judge has but recently returned from an extended trip and says he is glad to get home again. Says the wet weather seriously interfered with some collections he had to make but everything seems to be setting in his way again.

Pete Cornelius' cows came home missing one day last week and upon diligent search he found them on Chris. Houston's place up to their knees in feed that had grown up since the hailstorm threshed out the grain. These hailed crops make magnificent pasturage but rather expensive.

Prof. D. N. Harper passed through the city on Saturday evening on his way home from Hallock where he has been examining samples of Ladoga wheat to ascertain its milling value. He also examined samples of the so-called frosted wheat and some samples of bleached wheat. After a thorough test he will report.

C. W. Palmer left for his home in Troy N. Y., this week well satisfied with the way his business is panning out in Polk County. C. W. shows his faith in this country by quietly picking up every bargain that he sees in real estate in the county and in city property. He will return next spring prepared for larger deals.

Everything indicates a late closing up this fall which would be a grand good thing for farmers as it would enable them to catch up with their belated plowing, which was caused by an extraordinary good crop and rainy weather in threshing time. Many have finished threshing and are driving the plow for all there is in it.

Comrade A. Burnam and his son started on Monday for a trip through the Red Lake Reservation with a view to ascertaining the facts in relation to the pine up there. Thinks a good pine claim up there would supplement a prairie farm to perfection. They expect to take plenty of time to make their examinations.

Eli Steenerson comes to the front with a story of the largest yield of wheat we have heard of yet. He says that M. Falasche, who lives near Fisher, threshed 780 bushels of wheat from 14 acres. That would be a trifle over 52 bushels per acre. Eli says that he will stake his life, his fortune and his sacred honor upon the truth of the statement.

Geo. Vine, of the Robert street meat market, informs us that his trade is excellent this summer. He purchases nothing but the choicest beeves and well understands the art of cutting up into nice choice steaks. Try Vine once

Geo. Robards, a prominent citizen of Alexandria, was drowned near that village one day last week. When last seen he was out in a boat shooting ducks. Later on the boat was found, capsized, and upon dragging the lake the body was recovered. Mr. Robards was highly respected by all who knew him and he had many acquaintances throughout the State.

THE JOURNAL job office has been driven to its utmost capacity for the past week to keep up with the work which shows a healthy state of business in the city. When business is good business men always require lots of printing—and they are getting lots of it now. We are always prepared to turn out first-class work neatly and promptly. Send in your orders.

Our city has been supplied with butter from the St. Hilaire creamery of late and we have been having a fine article too. We have heard many speak very highly of it, and we don't wonder, for it was made by Jimmy Fulton and Jimmy is a son of the old man. They used to say, when Fulton Sr. ran our creamery that he could beat the world making butter, and if Jim can do half as well he is all right.

The Wilson Theatre Company will appear at the Opera House Nov. 16th in an entirely new repertoire of plays. The company is larger and stronger than ever. Mr. Wilson has surrounded himself with a company this year capable of playing any large city and producing the strongest dramas and comedies. New scenery, new plays and a new company will surely prove a drawing attraction.

Joseph Laframboise says that he finds big profits in farming this year. Has sold $2,500 worth of wheat and can hardly see the hole in his granary yet. He has some choice cows and intends to be ready for a 35 or 40 cent butter market before spring. He says he believes that next year wheat will be a bonanza to all who have it for sale owing to decreased acreage here and the shortage in winter wheat.

Mr. Wilson's motto is to furnish a A 1 entertainment for a very moderate price, and therein he is solid with the people. People often pay 75 cents and $1.00 to see shows not half as good as the Wilson Comedy Company, but Wilson never disappoints you. He furnishes first-class entertainments at a very moderate price and when he appears at a town or city for the second time the people all remember him.

Horace Locken left last week for Ashby, in Grant County, where he has purchased a large flouring mill. He writes that the prospects are good for a large business as everybody asks him when he is going to start up. Mr. C. S. White, who has been in the employ of Lee & Herrick will take a working interest in the concern. Mrs. Locken left this week to join her husband in their new home. THE JOURNAL wishes them abundant success.

N. H. Mosher, a contractor and builder from Superior, has bought the lot from C. H. Jefferson, on Main street, upon which the Van Dyke drug store building was put, and will engage in the manufacture of artificial stone. Comrade Jefferson is an old-time friend of Comrade Mosher they having been in partnership in the years that have gone by. Mr. M. will be a valuable acquisition to our city and we heartily extend a welcome.

Charles Lofston was up from Fisher this week renewing old acquaintance and dropped in to say that he could not get along without THE JOURNAL. Charlie was one of the original subscribers to THE JOURNAL, commencing in 1877 with the first number. A year ago or so, times being a little hard Charlie thought he could get along without THE JOURNAL but after a trial he confesses his mistake and returns to the fold and will now be happy again.

On Friday last, uncle Joe Netzer bought a fine saddle of venison, and thinking it rather fresh for immediate use, hung it up in the ice-house, saying unto himself "Dot makes me von very fine roaster on Sunday all the times." So he told the powers that be in the culinary department of the Germania not to order any meats for Sunday as there was that venison to roast. So it came to pass that on Sunday morning the cook went out for the venison and lo, no venison was there. Summoning uncle Joe, the discovery was made that not only had the venison disappeared but the stew-kettle had vanished also. Uncle Joe's only remark was: "Yell, dot dramp was a smart von. He dakes mine venison and mine kettle to cook him in, don't it!" Then he sallied forth in quest of meat for the Sunday dinner.

Go to hear Mr. Battey speak on "The Disturbing Races" next Sunday morning.

Farmer E. Roberts, who lives a few miles east of the city is a bit under the weather this week—threatened with pleurisy.

W. M Campbell, of Ada, was in the city on Wednesday calling on old friends. This is Mr. Campbell's first visit in several years and he finds many improvements.

Next Sabbath Rev. R. H. Battey will preach at the Congregational church. Morning subject, "Three Disturbing Races—Negro, Indian and Chinaman," (A. M. A.) Evening, "Duty."

The ladies of the Congregational church society desire to extend their thanks to all who so effectively aided to build a Temple of Fame that will always be famous in the history of Crookston.

A meeting will be held at the Baptist church Friday evening for the purpose of taking preliminary steps toward the organization of a musical society whose object will be to drill in vocal music. Let all lovers of music attend.

John C. Wells left last night for his home in Fond du Lac, Wis. Mr. Wells expresses great dissatisfaction with the way his wheat was handled in Minneapolis this fall and says he did very much better on that he sent to Duluth.

The youngest child of Rev. and Mrs. Battey received a severe injury on Sunday by the falling of a window upon its hand. At first it was feared that its little fingers were crushed but the latest reports seem more favorable for the child though the hand is so badly swollen that the full extent of the injury is not yet ascertained.

A. D. Stephens received a letter from Austin Corbin last week saying that that moose had arrived all right. A. D. had written him that he could get him one that was broken to drive and that could beat Sunol should Mr. Corbin desire, but that gentleman replied that though he had had plenty of experience with bronchos and other wild horses he did not feel adequate to tackling a live moose on the track—was much obliged but must decline.

Geo. Duquette, of Lake Linden, Mich., sends cash for THE JOURNAL one year. He has been figuring on city property here for some time and had the refusal of the two McLean lots on Broadway for two weeks at $700. At the end of the two weeks as he had not closed the deal the lots were sold at $1,000 cash we are told. City property has been at a low ebb for several months but is now looking up and in some localities will double before spring. Now is the time to invest.

"Little Trixie" was presented to a very good house on Tuesday evening. It is possible that the company is a good one and that they could have played the piece very well but owing to a desire to get away on an early train they cut the piece down considerably and played what they left so hurriedly as to spoil the whole business. The management of the Opera House should insist upon every troupe giving the best they have in the shop in the best possible manner, regardless of trains.

Charlie Kops was working up business in pianos and organs on Tuesday for Kops Bros., of Grand Forks. Charlie sold four pianos in one day recently, and their sales this year will reach close to three hundred pianos, besides organs and stacks of other musical goods. The reason the boys make such big sales is a simple one. They handle only the best instruments, buy for cash and sell at bottom figures and there you have it in a nutshell. If you need an instrument it will pay you to find out what they can do for you.

That Duluth excursion has at last set a definite time when we may expect to see them and have arranged to arrive here on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock and remain until 12. The lateness of the hour will prevent the ride about the city that had been planned. A committee to arrange a program has been appointed who will probably arrange for a banquet and a public reception at some hall. Our city may be relied upon to entertain her guests in a becoming manner.

The Wilson Comedy Company that opens for the week in the Grand Opera House next Monday evening is well known in this city. On their first appearance in Crookston they filled the old opera house every night during the week and their audiences were highly delighted. They will appear in a new repretoire. The company has been thoroughly re-organized, the best of the old being retained, the balance being made up of the best material to be found. We are promised a rare treat next week.

Pat Connery was up from Edna on Wednesday to go before the board for examination for pension. Pat is one of those boys who did good service for Uncle Sam, who always think of themselves last, and now, with old age coming on, and crippled with rheumatism of several years standing he naturally looks to Uncle Sam to pay back some of the debt incurred in the stormy period of long ago. He is a man who takes the papers and that he reads them to some good purpose was shown in the intelligent manner in which he discussed the Chilian question and other living topics of the day in a pleasant visit to THE JOURNAL office. Such men are creditable to this great American nation.

The Temple of Fame

Was presented at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening to the largest house of the season. It must have been truly gratifying to those ladies who have worked so hard to make a success of the undertaking to see a crowded house, notwithstanding the rain which no doubt kept many away. Time and space forbid a personal mention and criticism of each character, though each deserves special mention. The little folks entered into the spirit of the thing and carried out their parts admirably, the little fairies, Morrie Rosenthal and little Love Braley deserving especial mention. A few of the older ones might have improved a little by speaking louder, but as a whole the characters were intelligently conceived and well executed, and we have no fault to find, as the poorest was better than we could have done it. At the very last moment Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, (Mrs. Fred Hall,) was taken very ill and Mrs. W. D. Scott took that part nicely, considering that she had had no opportunity for drill. At the hour of going to press we are unable to get the exact receipts which must have been in the neighborhood of $200.

A POPULAR FAMILY.

JENNIE: "How is it, Kate, that you always seem to 'catch on' to the last new thing? Do what I may, you always seem to get ahead of me."

KATE: "I don't know: I certainly do not make any exertion in that direction."

JENNIE: "Well, during the last few months, for example, you have taken up painting, without any teacher; you came to the rescue when Miss Lafargo deserted her Delsarte class so suddenly, and certainly we are all improving in grace under your instruction; I heard you telling Tommy Eames last evening how his club made mistakes in playing baseball; you seem to be up on all the latest 'fads,' and know just what to do under all circumstances; you entertain beautifully; and in the last month you have improved so in health, owing, you tell me, to your physical culture exercises. Where do you get all of your information from in this little out-of-the way place?—for you never go to the city."

KATE: "Why, Jennie, you will make me vain. I have only one source of information, but it is surprising how it meets all wants. I very seldom hear of anything new but what the next few days bring me full information on the subject. Magic? No! Magazine! And a great treasure it is to us all, for it really furnishes the reading for the whole household: father has given up his magazine that he has taken for years, as he says this one gives more and better information on the subjects of the day; and mother says that it is that that makes her such a famous housekeeper. In fact, we all agree that it is the only really FAMILY magazine published, as we have sent for samples of all of them, and find that one is all for men, another all for women, and another for children only, while this one suits every one of us; so we only need to take one instead of several, and that is where the economy comes in, for it is only $2.00 a year. Perhaps you think I am too lavish in my praise; but I will let you see ours, or, better still, send 10 cents to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a sample copy, and I shall always consider that I have done you a great favor; and may be you will be cutting us out, as you say we have the reputation of being the best informed family in town. If that be so, it is Demorest's Family Magazine that does it."

The result of the election in New York was a decided blow to bossism. The people will not tolerate bossism or dictation.

The democrats are doing a great deal of blowing in these days over their great victories this fall. It is true they have managed to elect a few governors but what good will that do them without the legislatures to back him up? The republicans have the legislatures if the dems did get a governor or two.

Council Proceedings.

Proceedings of a special meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston held in the City Hall on Monday evening, November 9th, 1891.

Meeting called to order by Vice-President Steenerson.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present — Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Marshall, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Steenerson, Walker.

Aldermen absent—Jerome, Cromb.

The call of the Mayor was as follows:

You are hereby notified that there will be a special meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston in the city hall of the said city Monday Nov. 9th, 1891, at 8 o'clock p.m., for the purpose of considering ways and means of entertaining a delegation of citizens from the city of Duluth who are to visit our city Thursday the 12th day of November 1891, also to appoint such committees in connection with the same as your honorable body may deem best in the premises.

Yours very respectfully,
ALEX. MCKINNON,
Mayor.

Communications which had passed between the Mayor and the Duluth committee were read to the council.

The mayor arose and stated his opinion regarding the entertaining of the delegation.

The president of the council requested any of the citizens who were present and wished to speak on the subject, to do so.

Remarks were heard from L. Ellington, C. E. Sawyer, H. Nolan, J. E. O'Brien and others all of whom were in favor of entertaining the visitors.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Marlette that a committee of 15 consisting of members of the council and of the citizens of Crookston be appointed to take charge of the entertainment.

Alderman Jennings moved to amend (seconded by Alderman Walker) that the council appoint a committee of of three, and the chamber of commerce appoint a committee of three to act as an executive committee and they to appoint other committees as they see fit, and that they take charge of the entertainment.

The amendment declared carried.

The vote on the original motion, as amended, was then taken and declared carried.

The chair appointed as the committee Aldermen Marshall, Schmidt and Jennings.

Alderman Marshall being unable to serve, was excused, and Alderman Walker appointed in his place.

On motion of Alderman Jennings, Alderman Steenerson was appointed to take Alderman Jenning's place on the committee.

The president of the chamber of commerce presented a communication appointing L. Ellington, C. E. Sawyer, A. D. Stephens as the committee from that body.

The citizens appointed H. Mason, H. Thompson and W. B. Dawley as their committee.

On motion the Mayor was elected chairman of the executive committee.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.

Council Proceedings.

Proceedings of a regular meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston held in the city hall on Tuesday evening November 10th, 1891.

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present — Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Steenerson, Walker, Cromb.

Alderman absent—Marshall.

F. E. Hertz being present asked for the privilege of numbering houses for free delivery purposes:

Moved by Alderman Buhn, seconded by Alderman Marlette, that the request be granted, providing the price shall not exceed 25 cents per number. Carried.

Alderman Jerome was excused.

Reading of minutes of the previous meeting.

Moved by Alderman Steenerson, seconded by Alderman Walker, that the reading of the minutes be dispensed with and that they be approved. Carried.

Report of the city engineer of the grading of Hulbut street was read.

The finance committee reported favorably upon the following bills:

J. V. E. Wyatt, coffin and sexton fees	$ 8 00
O. Hinds, grading Hurlbut street	232 00
D. F. McDonald, labor in First ward	17 50
D. F. McDonaldt labor in Second ward	18 50
D. F. McDonald, labor in Third ward	22 50
D. F. McDonald, labor in Fourth ward	85 50
D. F. McDonald, labor in Fifth ward	33 00
Dr. M. Watts, medical attendance	11 50

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman McGlogan, that the report be accepted and that the bills be paid through the ordinary channels. Carried.

At a regular meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 10th day of November 1891, Alderman John Cromb offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman E. D. Childs.

Resolved by the city council of the city of Crookston that there be and hereby is assessed upon and against the lots or parcels of land hereinafter named and in the city of Crookston, county of Polk and state of Minnesota, the respective amounts set opposite the separate lots or parcels of land all of said lots being in blocks Two (2) and Three (3) of Hurlbut's Addition to the said city of Crookston:

Lots 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15 of said block	$ 6 85 each
Lots 1 and two of said block	6 85 each
Lot 3 of said block	7 40
Lot 4 "	11 64
Lot 5 "	10 96
Lot 6 "	8 22
Lot 1 of block 2	10 27
Lots 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14 of block 2	6 85 each

What's the Matter With You?

The Duluth Weekly News for November 7th, has this startling item of News: "The snow has stopped all threshing and plowing at Crookston." On Friday, Oct. 30th, we had a flurry of snow, leaving perhaps an inch upon the ground, which did not interfere with plowing in the slightest and stopped the threshing only while the storm lasted—a few hours. Plowing was not interfered with and threshing was resumed on Saturday. The threshing machines and plows were putting in good time all last week and yet the News informs its readers that all farm work has come to a complete stand-still up here. Fortunately for us there is not a word of truth in the report, still it is very annoying to see such reports in circulation.

Notice of Assignment.

Notice is hereby given, that Hans E. Peterson, of the city of Crookston, in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of October, A. D. 1891, assigned all his property to the undersigned for the benefit of his creditors.

All persons holding claims against the said Hans E. Peterson are hereby notified to present their claims against him to the undersigned, within twenty days from the date of this notice.

Dated at Crookston, Minn., November 2d, 1891.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

Ole Narveson has opened a new hardware store at Erskine.

The train on the Great Northern road was two hours late on Thursday.

We have a few choice young cows or sale at reasonable figures. Call early for choice.

J. D. Knudson came down from McIntosh on Thursday and attended the opera in the evening.

Jim Greenhalgh has sold his threshing rig to Mr. Hooper, who will whoop'er up with Bill Weaver for the balance of the fall.

Dept. Postmaster, Geo. McLean, went to St. Paul last week. Said he didn't get time to go to Yankton to see about that divorce.

The Duluth crowd will be here on Friday. All who have a rig that they will contribute to show our guests about the city should advise Mayor McKinnon at once.

L. C. McKnight was up from Fisher on Thursday. L. C. recently sold his farm near that place for $8,000 cash. Such sales as this indicate a solidity to Polk County real estate that is encouraging.

John C. Wells was up from his farm at Edna on Thursday. He has 700 acres of his fall plowing done and hopes to be able to finish. He will return to his home in Fon du Lac in about ten days.

A public meeting is hereby called for all those who are interested in the Taylor contracts, which meeting will be held on Saturday next at the city hall in the city of Crookston, at 2 o'clock p. m. By order of committee.

CHRIS. HOUSTON, Chairman.

"I'll bet that I have seen something this year that you have not," said J. E. Morrisey to our reporter on Thursday evening last. "Like enough, what was it," we replied. "I saw snow two feet deep at Polk Centre this week," said he, and to our look of incredulity he said: "It was a snow bank, many rods long and in some places two feet deep," and with a smile on him that was child-like and bland he melted.

Sam Cunningham says the Red River Valley beats 'em all for crops. To say nothing about a magnificent crop of wheat that he harvested the little one that he cradled with the old-fashioned cradle, takes the cake—in fact the whole bakery. Sam felt so exceedingly good that he invested in a bran new threshing machine right away quick.

County Commissioner, M. E. Kirsch, went up to Erskine on Thursday last to look after some business near there and traveled six miles in the mud between trains. Says he saw a great many stacks of wheat but no wheat in the shock. Erskine is having quite a growth this fall. In addition to Narveson's new hardware, a general store will soon be built, the intending merchant came down on Thursday evening for lumber with which to build it. From 40 to 50 loads of wheat daily comes to Erskine, which is also a big wood market.

F. J. Haynes gave a fine exhibition of views in the National Park and Alaska at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday evening of last week. These views are of his own make and are excellent ones, some of them being beautifully colored. The entertainment was highly enjoyed by all and was almost as good as a trip to those places. Mr. H. will have his car in this city on Nov. 16th to remain for a few days, and as he is one of the best artists in the State, this will be a rare opportunity for any desiring this class of work done. The car they have is perfect in every respect and was built especially for his use at a cost of $18,000. The proceeds of Wednesday's entertainment will be devoted by the ladies to the benefit of the poor of our city.

Geo. Vine received some very nice saddles of venison last week. We have not missed dear meat at any time during the summer.

Bring on your job work. We are prepared to do anything in job printing in the latest styles of the art, promptly and at as reasonable rates as first-class work can be done. Give us a trial.

If you want a good farm of 315 acres ready for crop in the spring, with good, substantial buildings, good fences, artesian water and a fine grove call at THE JOURNAL office. We know of just such a place near this city that can be had cheap.

Speaking of selling farm lands our reporter asked Jim Bain if he would sell his farm? "Yes, sir," said Jim, promptly, "when some chap comes along and offers me $8,000 in cash I will sell my quarter. The quarter next to me was recently sold for that and mine is worth as much."

THE JOURNAL man begs to return thanks to Bro. Smith, of the Leader, for a complimentary to the Marshall County fair, and is sorry that circumstances are such that we could not attend. We hope next year to be able to return the courtesy by sending Bro. Smith a comp. to a Polk County fair.

Will Himmelsback went into Heidrich's hotel on Thursday for dinner, leaving his fur overcoat in the cloak room. When he came out he found no coat, some sneak thief having made off with it. Though he spent the afternoon in the search he failed to come up with it. The coat was a fine coon-skin costing $50 when new, and it was far from being old yet. It is thought that the coat left town on an afternoon freight.

Jim Bain was up from Fisher Thursday airing that broken rib and cautioning his friends not to shake too hard. You see Jim had occasion to fix a refractory piece of furniture, climbed up on a chair to do it; took a tumble unto himself and broke his rib. Jim says he was so mad to see how easily and foolishly it was done that he forgot to let it pain him but an occasional stitch in the side reminds him of it now and then.

It is said that Commissioner Kirsch went out to Erskine on Thursday to meet W. G. Hunt, of the McIntosh News, to arrange a compromise, if possible, so that W. G. will consent to bury the ensanguined tommy-hatckit, and support Mike in his district for re-election. Probably Mike would consent to "let in some of them bills." Mike would feel more sanguine of getting Hunt's support all right if Frank Gravel was not all the time egging Hunt on to oppose him.

Mr. G. L. Read, after superintending his harvesting and fall-plowing, left for his home in Chicago last week. Mr. Read owns one of the finest farms in the town of Andover which he rents, and which, he tells us, pays him over 10 per cent. on the investment. Mr. R. is 71 years of age and is as active as many a man of 45 or 50. Says if both live until January his wife and himself will have lived together 50 years, and, said he, I have never had occasion to go into a divorce court in my life, though I do live in Chicago. His residence in Chicago is only one and one-half miles from the World's Fair site and he anticipates that Chicago will see big crowds in those days. He has great faith in the future of this country and expects to see his property here constantly appreciate in value.

The young and talented prima-donna soprano, Miss Agusta Ohrstrom supported by a company of eminent artists appeared at the opera house on Thursday evening of last week. Miss Ohrstrom has a clear sweet voice of wonderful power and the audience kept her busy, calling her back repeatedly and she good naturedly responded, singing three or four pieces for every number for which she was down. Her support was excellent, consisting mostly of members of some of the most noted operatic companies ever on the American stage. While the entertainment was excellent, and highly enjoyed by all, the attendance was light and the militia company, for whose benefit it was given did not realize a cent from it. the company have gotten up these entertainments for the purpose of getting uniforms, but at the rate they are going on—$40 out in the first case and nothing in on this, by spring they would not only get any new uniforms but they would lose the clothes they now have.

S. L. Collins is patting himself on the back and feeling good all over at the way he prevented somebody stealing one of his horses. One day last week a farmer came to him and wanted to hire a team to help finish his stacking and finally S. L. let him have one of the best in the barn. The farmer then went out and got two or three men whom he found on the street and went out to his farm. The next day, when S. L. came down from dinner he saw a horse that looked a good deal like his, hitched to a buggy near the M. & N. elevator; going up to see about it he found it was sure enough one of the horses he had rented to the farmer so he quietly took the horse and buggy and put them in his barn. Not long thereafter along came the farmer in great haste, with the startling information that one of the men he had taken had stolen his buggy and harness and Collins' horse and lit out. It was a very much relieved farmer who left the barn soon after Collins told him that the horse and buggy was safe in the stables. The thief, it is needless to say, did not return to claim the rig.

PHILOSOPHIES.

WHAT A DISCIPLE OF UNCLE JOSH THINKS AND SAYS ON VARIOUS THINGS.

If I was lookin' for a sucker I'd hunt for the feller whot's allus braggin' that he's nobody's fool.

It has allus seemed to me to be mighty thin consolation fur a poor man to declare that riches don't make happiness.

Somehow or other we don't appear to extract as much comfort out of this life as we really orter. Perhaps it's because my naybur hain't the man he should be.

The feller who mortgages his farm to buy a pianer fur his house has got to try awful hard to find any music in the strings.

I believe in lovin' my naybur as myself until he begins to kill off my hens. Then I'm goin' to buy lace curtains and upholstered cheers to make him feel as bad as he possibly can.

I like to have a man plumb up and down with me even to callin' me a liar. An onsartin man is like a pimple on yer arm: you've got to keep waiting to see what it will develop.

Even if we never say a word to him about it, it is only human natur' to feel sort o' tickled to know that our naybur's fence is two feet over on our line and that we can raise a row any time we want to.

I never yit went to a man and asked him to gimme his advice without I had my mind made up to believe him a fool if he didn't think as I did about it. If he was a lawyer, however, and charged me $10, why that altered the case.

I've heard men talk about luck in my time, and so fur as I have been able to keep track of individuals, those who was hoein' corn at a dollar a day instead of talkin' on the grocery steps have got ahead the fastest.

Now and then you meet a man who has soured on the world and can't see no good in nuthin' nor nobody. In such cases jest size him up and you'll find a chap so all fired mean that a yaller dog wouldn't foller him.

I 'spose it's all right and jest as it should be, but I never see a dog humpin' a rabbit along at a gait of twenty miles an hour without wonderin' why some things is all one sided. What's the rabbit goin' to hump to get even?

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, Oct. 29th, 1891.

In the matter of the estate of Ella Teal, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of J. S. Chapin, executor of the estate of Ella Teal, deceased, representing among other things that he has fully administered said estate, and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of his administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered, that said account be examined, and petition heard, by this Court, on Wednesday, the 25th day of November, A. D. 1891, at 2 o'clock p. m., at the Probate Office in the city of Crookston, in said county.

And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 29th day of Oct., A. D. 1891.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

(First publication October 1st, 1891.)

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. District Court,

Steenerson Bros., plaintiffs, vs. Rachel Johnson and Nils P. Johnson, defendants.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of an execution to me directed and delivered, and now in my hands, issued out of the District Court, 14th Judicial District, State of Minnesota, in and for the County of Polk, upon a judgment rendered in a justice's court in the said county, a transcript of which judgment has been duly filed in the District Court aforesaid, said judgment being rendered in favor of Steenerson Bros and against Rachel Johnson and Nils P. Johnson, I have levied upon the following described real estate of said defendants, to-wit: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of the northeast quarter (ne¼) and the east half of the northwest quarter (e½nw¼) of Section thirty-three (33); also southeast quarter (se¼) of the southwest quarter (sw¼) and lot six (6) of Section twenty-eight, all in Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range forty-seven (47) west. And that I shall on Friday, the 13th day of November, A. D. 1891, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, proceed to sell all the right, title and interest of the above named Rachel Johnson and Nils P. Johnson in and to the above described property to satisfy said judgment and costs, amounting to fifty-seven dollars and 29 cents, together with all accruing costs of sale, and interest on the same from the 3d day of March, 1890, at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash.

Dated Crookston, Minn., Sept. 29th, 1891.

ARNY GRUNDYSEN,
Sheriff of Polk County, Minn.
P. J. RUSSELL,
Plaintiff's Attorney. [24-30]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication Oct. 15th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, ANDREAS HAGBERG, an unmarried man, of Polk County, and State of Minnesota, as mortgagor, did, on the 15th day of December, A. D. 1888, duly execute and deliver to Eleanor E. Wilmerding of the County of Suffolk, State of New York, his mortgage bearing date of December 15th, A. D. 1888, whereby he mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The northeast quarter of Section 26, Township 148, Range 45 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagor to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 17th day of December, A. D. 1888, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 186; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of fifty dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-eight dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagor, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, her heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagor or any other party; and

Whereas, the said mortgagee, Eleanor E. Wilmerding, has exercised her option to consider and declare and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable and;

Whereas there is now due, and claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred thirty-four and 32-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court-house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 28th day of November, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash: to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty Dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Some people come to their senses late in the day. A prominent politician from the Red River Valley is credited with having said recently in St. Paul: "Knute Nelson should be nominated for Governor and that would effectually settle all this wrangling and discussion." The rank and file of the Republicans of Polk County were in favor of Knute Nelson for Governor a year ago last summer, but some of the leading politicians conspired to defeat the will of the people and you see what happened. Knute Nelson should have been nominated last time, but whether his nomination next time would heal the breach is very problematical. It is our opinion that Moses E. Clapp would draw better in this neck of the woods than any other man in the State just at present.

Cows vs. Railroads.

The Supreme Court of Indiana has affirmed a point of railroad law that is importantin all agricultural communitief. A farmer's cow strayed on the railroad track and was killed by a train. He sued the company for the value of his cow, and the company sued him for damages to the locomotive. The suit has gone through all the courts until now the Supreme Court of the state has decided, in effect, that it is as much the farmer's business to keep his cows off the railroad track as it was the business of the railroad company to keep its locomotive out of his cow pasture, and that if either strayed on the property of the other the owner was liable for the damage so caused. Consequently the farmer pays for the damage to the locomotive, and the company does not pay for the cow.

A Billion-Dollar Country.

A recent census bulletin shows that the valuation of real and personal property in the United States aggregates $62,610,000,000. This is more than $2,000 per capita.

The increase in the wealth of this country during the decade from 1880 to 1890 was over $7,000,000,000, an amount which is more than the entire wealth of the country as reported by the census of 1850.

The census shows that this nation is worth $1,000 per capita now, while in 1880 it was $870, in 1870 it was $780 and in 1860 only $514 per capita.

The increase in the average actual value of the crops in this country during the past year was over $1,000,000,000 In a country as large as this, the greatest republic in the world, supporting over 60,000,000 people in comfort and happiness, $1,000,000,000 is not a terrifying amount. We earn it quickly and sometimes spend it easily, but we can afford to.

This is indeed a billion-dollar country.

The Toledo Weekly Blade and Campaign of 1892.

The Toledo Weekly Blade, the most prominent Republican weekly published is the only political weekly newspaper in the United States that is edited with special reference to circulation in every part of the Union. It has subscribers in every State, territory and nearly every county of the United States. It has always above 100,000 subscribers, and during a late Presidential campaign 200,000 subscribers. People of all political parties take it. Aside from politics it is a favorite family paper, having more and better departments than can be afforded by papers of small circulation. Serial and short stories, wit and humor, poetry, camp-fire (soldiers), farm, Sunday school lessons, Talmadge sermons, young folks, poultry, puzzles, household, (best in the world), answers to correspondents, etc., etc. Only one dollar a year. Send postal to The Blade, Toledo, Ohio, for a free specimen copy. Ask, also, for confidential terms to agents if you want to easily earn a few dollars cash.

New York Press.

Governor-elect William McKinley, Jr. of Ohio, is here. He reached the city from Canton yesterday morning. He was accompanied by Mrs. McKinley, and was met at the railway station by his brother Abner. Apartments had been reserved for the Buckeye statesman at the Hamilton, Fifth avenue and Forty-second street, and these he and his wife will occupy while they tarry in town. The Major spent a very quiet Sunday. He received very few calls besides those from newspaper men, scarcely any one being aware of his presence. The Press representative met the great tariff leader after his return from a drive through Central Park. His cheeks were rosy, and there was the same snap in the eye and he had the same vigor of expression as there used to be when he was in the midst of a legislative combat in the House of Representatives. Between puffs from a fragrant Havana the Major said cheerily:

THE STORY OF OHIO'S CAMPAIGN.

"I came on here for a rest, but as we had a very interesting campaign in our State it is natural, I suppose, that I should be questioned about it. It is, of course, an exceedingly pleasant thought to me that we have won in a battle throughout which the candidates, while they fought stubbornly for the principles at stake, had no occasion for and did not indulge in any personalities. My opponent, Governor Campbell, is a manly, courageous fellow, and our relations throughout the contest were of the friendliest character."

"You regard your victory of national significance?"

"The fight was made exclusively upon national issues. So far as the Republicans were concerned, the protective tariff and hard money were driven home with as much force as we possessed. We sought to explain what the new tariff law really meant. Not within twenty years have such tremendous crowds gathered to listen to political discussions. I visited nearly every county in the State and traveled many thousands of miles. Everywhere was I met with interrogations as to what this or that Democratic criticism of the so-called McKinley bill signified. I hope that the majority for the Republican ticket can be adduced as evidence that the voters learned and acted in accordance with their understanding."

"Do you think the Democratic party, as a result of the defeat in Ohio, is likely to abandon in any degree the crusade for so-called tariff reform?"

THE MILLS BILL MAY BE TRIED AGAIN.

"I am not in the confidence of the leaders of that party, so perhaps my answer cannot be regarded authoritive. I should say, however, that the Democrats will not abate one whit their attacks upon the protective tariff. I expect to see a bill introduced in the next House, and perhaps passed, which will contain many, if not all, the features of the Mills measure. The Senate and the President are Republican and therefore the sole effect of the action of the Democratic House will in all probability be a reaffirmation of principles presented at the last Democratic National Convention. Upon these Grover Cleveland was defeated; but to assume that the Democracy would do otherwise than I have indicated would amount to an accusation of insincerity, you know." The Major smiled quite broadly as he uttered this remark.

"Then you regard the Republican success in Ohio as a triumph for protection?"

"It would be difficult to draw any other inference, wouldn't it? We made the fight for, and the Democrats against a protective tariff, and won."

"To what extent did the silver question figure in the campaign?"

"You will recall the fact that the platform adopted by the Democratic State Convention contained a free silver plank. Ours declared unequivocally for hard money. At the beginning of the canvass we talked a great deal about silver, and sought to demonstrate the disastrous effects of a policy outlined and advocated by our antagonists. The Democratic orators declined to discuss silver, but devoted themselves to arguments in favor of their pet tariff theory. Governor Campbell absolutely ignored the silver question in his speeches. Neither Mills, nor Carlisle, nor McMillan, nor any other of the Democrats on the stump discussed it in spite of the fact that their platform was pronounced for free coinage. Congressman Harter went so far as to assert that silver was in no way an issue. Perhaps Mr. Campbell's friends were afraid to maintain this principle of their platform. At any rate they failed to meet us in a discussion of it, but concentrated all their energies upon the tariff instead. We were perfectly willing to and did discuss both the tariff and silver. And the people voted that we were right."

THE ISSUES FOR THE NATIONAL FIGHT.

"What of the issues in the next Presidential campaign?"

"The Democrats seem disposed to make the tariff again an issue, so far as I am concerned, I know of no reason why we should not accommodate them. The Republican party at its nationa convention must itself decide upon what lines the battle is to be fought. The Democrats of the South and West, I anticipate, will insist on a free silver plank in the national platform. We can meet them with honest money with as flattering success as we have in Ohio. I see no disposition on the part of the Republicans to yield in the slightest degree in their opposition to all plans for the repeal of the tariff and reciprocity acts and the degredation of the American dollar. There are efforts to make the Democratic successes in New York, Iowa and Massachusetts appear of national significance. As I understand it, the canvass in these three commonwealths were conducted upon State issues. Boise' election in Iowa was certainly due to local causes. So was that of Russell in Massachusetts. That State is surely Republican in a national contest. And New York has been carried by us for the Presidency, except on two occasions, since 1860. In Ohio our appeals were made on national issues alone, and we were victorious."

PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES.

"Your name has been suggested as a Vice Presidential possibility, with Mr. Blaine as the candidate for President. What about it?"

"I have been the Governor elect of Ohio barely five days. I hope my friends will give me time to qualify. That opportunity will not be offered me until January. I must decline to discuss Presidential questions. These will take care of themselves, or rather the national convention will take care of them for the party."

"What of the Senatorial race now on in your State?"

"I know very little about it except what I have read in the newspapers. Both Senator Sherman and Governor Foraker did magnificent work in my behalf in the campaign just ended. I have expressed no preferences. The Legislature is, I am happy to say, Republican by about two-thirds. Besides electing a United States Senator it will have a chance to obliterate the outrageous gerrymander which made it possible for the Democrats to capture fifteen of the twenty-one members of Congress from Ohio. The new census will be taken as a basis, and I think you may safely say the reapportionment will be made fairly, and not to satisfy political or partisan greed."

Major McKinley intends remaining here for a week or two. Just before Congress reconvenes he may run over to Washington and watch, as a spectator, the Democratic scramble for the Speakership and other fruits of last fall's Republican reverses. "I shall be simply an onlooker, not a participant, as I was two years ago," said the Ohioan in concluding the interview.

One of the finest among the December magazines is our old friend Peterson. Its general make-up is very attractive, with its beautiful engravings, colored fashion plates and work-table designs, and any number of fine illustrations. When examining its contents one is struck by the excellence and variety thereof. It is one of the best magazines published for ladies and the household and furnishes a large amount of useful and interesting reading matter. Its contributors have always been among the most popular writers of America, and for 1892 quite a number of other noted writers are added, among thnm Julian Hawthorne, Octave Thanet, Kate Wallace Clements, etc. We cannot too warmly recommended such of our readers as are not already subscribers to take Peterson next year. The price is but $2.00 per year, and much lower when taken in clubs. Many useful and valuable premiums are offered to those who will get up clubs. Send for a sample copy with club terms and premium offers. Address, Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

Asbury Park, in New Jersey, is the only summer resort that has this season shown a tendency toward modesty and reform. A policeman was kept stationed on the beach to prevent men, women and children from appearing in regulation bathing suits without wrappers.

WAR! WAR! WAR!

Alarming Echoes of Active Preparation From Many Different Sections.

Chief of the Chinese Revolutionists Arrested. Torture Ordered.

Revolt Against President Fonseca, of Brazil, Spreading in the Interior.

Anxiety in New York.

Press News Association.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 11.—Intense excitement prevails here. The course of events are tending toward a war. Foreign residents in China are in extreme peril. The cheaf of the great secret society of the Kalas Hui has been arrested in the French concession at Shanghai. The Viceroy at Nankin has ordered him to be tortured, hoping that he will betray his accomplices; if not, he is to be beheaded.

The whole province of Hunan is in a state of seige and open revolutionary and seditious placards are posted everywhere. The European Ministers at Pekin are seemingly indifferent. The Chinese Ministers and officials fraternize with them, call them friends, banquet them and get up fetes for them every week.

As a result of this the foreign residents in China are furious. Their indignation is beyond expression because of the meanness of those "diplomatists" who are forgetting their duty to their own countrymen.

The trial of Mason, who had attempted to pass arms and dynamite to the rebels, has now some point to it, and Mason's act is explained by the foregoing.

BRAZIL.

Three Important Provinces Join the Rebellion.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Reports received here are to the effect that the Provinces of Pernambuco and Graopana have followed the example of Rio Grande de Sul in declaring independence of Brazil, and also that it is probable the province of bahia will take similar action.

The province of Rio Grande de Sul, which has taken the initiative in opposition to President de Fonseca, is one of the largest and most prosperous in the country, the master element in which are Germans, or descendents of that nation. This element is said to be organizing its armed forces on the plan of the Dutch settlers of South Africa, are fairly well supplied with munitions of war, have able and experienced leaders and are determined to maintain the independence of their new state.

The report that President de Fonseca has already ordered an armed movement against Rio Grand de Sul is not generally credited, and it is understood that he and his most trusted advisers are averse to doing anything that shall provoke an actual conflict so long as it can be averted without seriously imperiling the safety of the government.

Feeling in New York.

Press News Association.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Considerable uneasiness prevails among the houses here having South American interests, over cables announcing that a revolt has broken out in the province of Rio Grande de Sul, Brazil, where it is said the local government refuses to accept President de Fonseca's dictatorship.

Only "business" despatches have been received here to-day. At the office of the Brazilian consul it was thought the situation was serious, and the news of the revolt was probably true, though no official despatches have been received.

Among business men here it is said despatches to Brazil must be confined to commercial affairs only on account of the strict sensorship of cables now prevailing there.

Ecuador Unsettled, Too.

GUYAQUIL, Ecuador, Nov. 11.—Municipal elections were commenced in this city on Nov. 7 and have been attended by bitter political feuds which have caused intense excitement and at length led to bloodshed.

The voting in the different districts was accompanied by great disturbances on the part of the contending factions. Street fights were frequent, but as the people were unarmed, no serious results followed until the police took part in the row.

Without warning they opened fire upon the populace, seriously wounding several persons. The action of the police created great indignation and further trouble is expected. Business has been entirely suspended.

Only three more nights of Wilson. Everybody should improve the opportunity to hear a first-class troupe at such reasonable figures.

Well this does begin to look a little bit like winter for a fact. Everybody was thinking about the coal-bin and the wood-pile on Monday.

The Crookston Cornet Band will give a grand hop on Thanksgiving evening at McKinnon's hall. Excellent music will be furnished and a grand good time is assured.

Capt. P. J. Russell says of THE JOURNAL: "It is getting better every issue. Your last issue was a daisy—a local hummer!" Thanks, awfully, Cap., you're another!

Frank Steelman was in from Mentor Monday night to see "Little Dot" at the opera house and he also called to cheer up the printer a bit. Verily he went about doing good this trip.

Miss Amanda Elliott, one of the handsomest of Polk County's handsome school-ma'ams, was married at Blaine, Washington, on November 7th, to Mr. Charles E. Flint, a leading citizen of that place. THE JOURNAL adds its blessing.

H. W. Cleveland, of Mentor, dropped in on Monday to pay us an encouraging visit. Reports that his brother A. H. was quite seriously injured in a runaway scrape last Saturday but is getting along favorably and will no doubt be able to be about again soon.

Hon. J. J. Furlong is up from Austin this week looking after the interests of the Austin hail insurance company and visiting his alliance friends. The Austin company this year is paying their losses in full having done a large business and met with comparatively few losses.

A thresher engine exploded at St. Hilaire last Thursday seriously injuring several men. The report was at first circulated that Ezra Pierce and Lucius Ames were killed by the explosion but that report has since been contradicted and it is now thought that the injured men will all recover.

Walter Morris, of Tilden, dropped in last week to order THE JOURNAL sent to his address. Says now that the markets have been so as to leave a little surplus in his hands he feels as though he must have all the news there is going. Mr. M. had a fine crop of wheat and expects to realize well out of it.

That Irish setter that T. G. Thompson lost a few weeks since was returned to him on Saturday evening. T. G. had put his detective qualities at work and soon located the dog, pulled the string and lo! the dog appeared as natural as though nothing unusual had occurred—but there had.

Jake Ide showed our reporter a magnificent gold watch one day last week and said. "That looks as though there was something in farming this year, dont it? I just bought that watch and the cases alone cost $78." Jake has always managed to get good crops and this year he is getting something near like its worth out of it.

I. K. Messelt was down from Winger Saturday. He complains that he does not get any Crookston mail within 10 days of the time it is sent from here and this is because it is not properly sent. He says it should be sent to Fertile from which point they get mail three times per week. Mail sent via Fosston goes on to White Earth, thence to Detroit, thence to Fertile and from thence to Winger. It seems this change is a recent one.

Duluth Business Men, to the Extent of a Hundred or So.

Attempt to Capture the City and Are Captured.

OUR GUESTS.

On Friday evening a special, bearing a number of the representative business men of Duluth, members of the Chamber of Commerce, of the Board of Trade, of the Jobbers' Union and of the City Council, arrived at the Great Northern depot at 5 o'clock where they were met and welcomed by the Mayor and reception committee, and preceded by the Crookston Cornet Band and their own band, marched up Robert street to Main, along Main to Second, up Second to Broadway, along Broadway to Robert, down Robert to Main and to the Opera House when, after they were comfortably seated, Mayor McKinnon made the following speech of greeting:

"Upon me devolves the honor and pleasant duty of extending to you, our friends, a hearty welcome to our city. It is useless for me to attemt to convince you of the extent of the welcome which we offer you. It is co-extensive with the limits of our city, and of such fervor as in my humble language I cannot describe or measure in any other manner than to say that the best of what we have is yours. I hope and trust that when you return to your rising and prosperous city that it will be with a warm place in your hearts for Crookston and its people."

The audience then dispersed to mingle with and make the acquaintance of our business men who had turned out to greet them, until the time for assembling in the banquet hall at 8:30.

McKinnon Hall was replendent with flags and various decorations and three long tables ran the entire length of the hall, with one across the west end, when the guests and many of our citizens assembled for the banquet, and the hall fairly rang with the music of the Duluth Cornet Band. A. D. Stephens acted as master of ceremonies and right royally did he discharge his duties. After a brief address by Mayor McKinnon the time was pleasantly passed discussing the various viands upon the bountiful board, and then the master of ceremonies introduced M. R. Baldwin, of Duluth, who, in a few neatly chosen words acknowledged the compliments which had been so freely given and in the name of the citizens of Duluth, returned his hearty thanks. A. D. Stephens, in arsing to answer the first toast of the evening, said that when he arrived at the depot to greet our guests he at first thought the crowd was some of our returning prodigals from West Superior, but soon saw by their bright, business-like appearance that he was mistaken. Announced the first toast of the evening; "Our Guests," and called upon Judge R. J. Montague, who said:

"FRIENDS: My pleasant associations with you this evening, the kindly smile beaming from each one and the agreeable surroundings make me almost too full for utterance. To say that you are welcome, that we are pleased to have you with us, is but feebly stating the case. To say that we will treasure up this visit of yours to our city as one of the most pleasing events of the season.

Since we pitched our homes in this fertile valley, in this beautiful city, encircled by the river, fringed by forest trees, we have agitated, in season and out of season, closer trade relations with Duluth.

We want to buy from you. We want to sell to you. We want to help you build up a great city. We want to ship to you our wheat, oats, cattle, butter, potatoes, cabbage and bananas, which we raise in vast quantities. We want you to eat all you can of these, and ship the rest over your great unsalted sea to other marts of trade beyond.

We want to buy from you. We want to see your wholesale houses increase. We want to see your drummers on our streets oftener. In a word, we want trade to follow its natural channels. We don't want goods from the far East, to come to us by Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis. We want our goods to come by Duluth. We want to help you to get all the money you can from the United States to improve your harbors, to open and deepen canals, so that the largest vessels may safely float from Duluth to the Atlantic. We don.t want to pay tribute to Chicago nor its railroads. Our motto is: "Millions for improvements, but not one cent for tribute."

L. F. Menage,

14-39] Minneapolis, Minn.

Nature intended Duluth to be a great emporium of trade. If gathered around this festive board to-night, we can in spirit commune with the first man who conceived the idea of building a great city at the head of Lake Superior; we can imagine him standing on the rocky shore where Duluth now stands, gazing over that vast expanse of water, at the rising of the sun and at its sitting, and again in the stillness of the night, when star after star shone on the placid waters of that lake, and again when the storm lashed its waters, gazing in rapture at the sublimity of the scene, enthralled as the ancients on beholding the goddess Aphrodite in jeweled brightness, clothed in grandeur, a sublime apparation appearing from ocean's foam and dashing billows to assert her beauty, power and majesty.

This dreamer, if you so call him, his mind and soul raised in contemplating the mighty possibilities of the future, knowing the buried riches of your mines, and having explored the forests to the west, and knowing that these prairies where we now stand were teeming with the essentials of luxuriant growth and vast wealth, and having knowledge of the vast country beyond, standing there on that rocky shore seeing this great inland sea, extending into the centre of the continent, scooped out by the Mighty Architect who laid the foundations of the mountains, in secret yet solemn grandeur, knowing that this lake was connected with other lakes to the east and all connected by a great river with the Atlantic, he might truly say, that a part of the Great Architect's plan was that a great mart of trade should be established on that spot and that there should rise in beauty one of the greatest cities of modern times.

And thus, Duluth was built and is building, and may her fondest hopes be realized, is our earnest desire to-night. And you, our guests, who have laid the foundations of Duluth and built it to its present greatness, we honor to-night.

Get all the canals necessary to enable the lakes to be utilized to the fullest extent, made, opened, deepened and improved. The people will be amply repaid for the expenditure. Do not hesitate to ask for appropriations; if you have any trouble about it, speak to Kittel Halvorson.

This government is rich, it is ready and willing to spend more money in settling up a little row in Chili than is needed to open half a dozen canals. Yes, President Harrison and Jim Blaine are ready, if necessary, to spend tens of millions of dollars in teaching Spaniards and Englishmen that they can't tread on the tail of Pat Egan's coat.

We regret that you did not get here at an earlier hour, so that you could have an opportunity to see more of our city, and to see some of the beautiful country in this vicinity. We have many things which we wish you to see. Our city has not been built up with that rapidity and energy which some would desire. We are more conservative, we build with our own money; we believe that we can point out to you more buildings in this city that have never been mortgaged, than any new city of its size in the west can boast. We trust that even the short time of your staying with us will be sufficient to enable you to form general ideas of our manufacturing and commercial enterprises.

We would not wish that your ideas in these respects should be vague and indefinite, as was the witness recently in an Iowa court. This witness was a drayman and had a few days prior to giving his testimony delivered a barrel of whiskey to a man who was charged with selling intoxicating liquors in violation of the law. The drayman when asked by the attorney for the prosecution if he had not delivered a barrel of whiskey to the accused, stated that he had delivered to him a barrel but that he didn't know what was in it. When called on to explain, the witness stated that one end of the barrel was marked "whiskey" and on the other end "Pat Duffy," and he didn't know which it was, whiskey or Pat Duffy that was in the barrel. We want you to be sure before you leave the city which it is, Pat Duffy or whiskey in the barrel.

During the last couple of years a few of our citizens left us, and moved to Duluth, and some others left us, and went to West Superior. We have reason to believe that those who went to West Superior had more affection for their friends in this city than those who went to Duluth, and for this we have a very high regard for them. Those who went to Duluth stayed there, while those who went to West Superior, all returned to us, and each one on his return asked us to kill the prodigal because the calf had come home.

In conclusion, we recognize the fact that the objects of your visits and your travels through Northern Minnesota and Northern Dakota are for high and noble purposes. That your desire is to become acquainted with the people, to extend the commerce and trade of your city, to confer upon your city and upon the people of Northern Minnesota and Northern Dakota advantages and opportunities which they have not heretofore enjoyed. Trade and commerce have been and will continue to be the potent agencies for the civilization of mankind, for the upbuilding of the nations, for conferring happiness upon mankind. Enlightenment and civilization follow in the path of commerce. Commerce and trade make different people and nations dependent upon each other, thus creating a mutual dependence, breaking down the barriers of class hatreds and jealousies and promoting peace and unity. Go on in your mission till you connect by the bonds of self-interest all the people of Northern Minnesota and Northern Dakota with Duluth and teach them that in your prosperity they will prosper, and you will find that your success in making your city the great distributing point for this western country will give pleasure to the citizens of Crookston."

After this speech a song, "Steal Away," was sung by a male quartette, and the toast: "The Highway of Commerce," was responded to by Mr. S. A. Johnson, Secretary of Duluth Chamber of Commerce, who prefaced his remarks by saying that he desired to first return thanks for the magnificent treatment they had received at the hands of the citizens of Crookston. His remarks went to show how that Duluth was on the national highway of commerce, and hence direct communication was essential to our progress. President J. J. Hill is a far-sighted man and he has recently rearranged his plans so that St. Paul is no longer his base of operations, but Duluth. We have just been down to see the farmers of Manitoba who will, in the near future, send their wheat to Liverpool cheaper than the farmers on the American side of the line, unless we can change that by deeper water in the canals and direct communication with Duluth. Soon we hope to be united to this fair young city with bands of steel.

A. N. Hixson was called upon to respond to the toast, "Agriculture." He said Polk County contained 2,000,000 acres of land with enough under cultivation to produce 5,000,000 bushels of No. 1 Hard wheat, and not one-third of its area under cultivation. Duluth is to the Northwest what New York is to the Middle States. I expect to live to see the day when she shall have a million inhabitants. The Duluth band here entertained the audience for a brief space, and then Judge Morris, of Duluth responded to the toast: "The New Commercial Revolution," spoke of the vast resources of the Northwest with her immense wheat-fields, her great mineral deposits and vast pine forests, all as yet almost undeveloped and predicted the new commercial revolution as soon as direct communication is had with the head of the great lakes. Said that the County of Polk could better afford to vote a generous bonus to a railroad than to go without the road. To the toast "Crookston, the Gem City of the Northwest," the Hon. Halvor Steenerson responded, giving many statistics in support of its claim. Crookston was founded in 1872, is at the real head of navigation of the Red River, a fact demonstrated when the steamer Dakota in that year brought the lumber for the first frame house in the city, but it dates its real prosperity from 1880, the time when my friend, Judge Montague, and I came. He gave an extended report of the amount of business done here, enumerating our manufactures and other industries; of the saw mill, he said it employs 150 men during the open months, cut 2,000,000 feet of lumber and paid out for help $65,000 this season. Although we have 13 hotels we need one large one. One hotel alone had 12,000 transient guests and another 10,820 during the past year. The band here came to the front with a choice selection, and C. A. Long was called upon to respond to the toast "Duluth," which he did in an able manner. Those Duluth men never tire of talking of their city. "Where is my wandering boy to-night" by a male quartette, the chorus joined in by all present. John M. Martin responded to the toast "Our absent sons, while they are not with us to-night, we love them still." Mr. Martin reviewed in a pleasant and humorous vein his ten years' residence in the Valley and his residence since in Duluth. Did not know why he left here unless it was for the good of this country; thought the only reason why he was elected mayor of West Duluth was as a sort of compliment to this country and wound up by extending a cordial invitation to all present to come down and see him at Duluth. When Mr. Martin finished, loud calls were made for Fred Reynolds, but Fred had skipped and Dr. Fred Basset responded to the toast "What are we here for, anyhow?" in a very humorous little speech that kept the company in an uproar of laughter. Complimented the Great Northern road and hoped it would build to Duluth, but said that Mr. Hill would have to get a move on him pretty soon or he would build a road himself; could do it very easy as he was editor of a country newspaper and they are all rich enough to build railroads and run them; anyhow, they could ride on 'em if they could obtain advertising mileage.

Rev. Geo. H. Kemp responded to the toast "The Shepherd" and paid a high tribute to the members of the Duluth party with whom he had been the rounds so far on the excursion. "Reciprocal Trade as Seen from the Farmer's Standpoint" was responded to by Mr E. D. Childs, who said:

It is with great pleasure that I rise in behalf of the agricultural interests of this community to welcome the guests of the evening and not only to welcome but to congratulate them as well.

I welcome you because I sincerely believe that in all this empire of the Red River Valley there is no hamlet so remote, no cabin so humble that the prosperity of its inhabitants is not directly and intimately connected with, and affected by, the development of the commerce of that great natural highway to which the city of Duluth is, and by nature was intended to be the entry-port and outlet. I congratulate you, because, reversing the proposition, I sincerely believe that in this empire of the Red River Valley there is no hamlet so remote or cabin so humble but what the prosperity of the city of Duluth is affected in a greater or less degree by the prosperity of its inhabitants; and accepting this twofold proposition as a fact, it becomes apparent that any event which brings our people together, and gives us a better understanding of each other, of our environment and of our possibilsties is a fit occasion for congratulation and good fellowship.

Be it ours then this evening to consider carefully and candidly the lines along which we may labor together for our own mutual advantage and advancement.

Stretching westward from this end of Lake Superior is a region of vast and varied resources. First, a region immensely rich in timber and the iron ores; then the fertile acres of this valley, which have this year with less than 20 per cent. of its area under very indifferent cultivation produced upwards of 50,000,000 bushels of wheat, and untold millions of bushels of barley, oats, potatoes and other products; while upon our western borders graze countless herds of cattle and sheep, sufficient in quantity for our home consumption, and to constitute a very important factor in our supply to the people of other countries; while still beyond lies the priceless and but little developed mines of silver and of gold which form the medium of exchange in all civilized countries. To all this vast section filled with these illimitable resources, Duluth is the natural tool gate, the key to which an all wise Providence has placed in your care and keeping, and thus made it possible for you to greatly encourage or largely retard the growth and development of its industries. And let us hope that under the pressure of this tremendous responsibility you will not be found incompetent or unwilling. But may it be yours to so broaden and deepen the channels of your commerce that all, producer, middleman and consumer, may be largely benefitted thereby. Under the conditions of modern civilization two things are prerequisite to a successful development and transaction of business, especially where heavy commodities form the bulk of the transactions, viz., "rapid transit" and the utmost possible convenience in storing and handling the commodities to be transported.

Then that we may cultivate the most closely and profitably the business relations which should naturally exist between us, it is necessary that we be connected by the shortest lines of railway communication, and that these lines be independent of all outside influence and of all entangling alliances which bind them to time tables and tariff schedules formulated by other but not parallel lines which have their centre of operations in St. Paul or Chicago; and with their profits and solvency depending wholly upon the traffic they are able to control between these centres.

Such a system of railway communication direct and independent, would be for Duluth and for this valley what the St. Paul and Duluth Railway has been for Duluth and the Twin Cities, a leveler and arbiter of rates and promoter of mutual prosperity. Should such an one seek entrance to your city see to it with jealous care that no heartless speculator in his greed for personal gain throttle it with exhorbitant demands for "right of way," lest some rival sitting at your right or left, see its opportunity in your blindness, and by reaching out a helping hand to your illy appreciated ally snatch from your grasp much if not all the benefits which would inevitably have been yours to enjoy, and a sister state profit from your mistake.

With a shortening of the line of railway communication by some eighty miles (as a direct line would) must come a vast increase in the amount of grain seeking its market at your port, and next in importance to means of communication comes the elevatof system which shall handle this vast volume of business.

Whether justly or not the impression has for the past few years prevailed with our farmers, that if our local elevator systems, controlled as they nearly all are from Minneapolis, are not the joint property of the millers and the railway officials (in their individual capacity), that at least these same railway officials have friends and relatives whom they know to be largely interested in them and whose welfare they are more careful to cherish than that of a whole community at a distance of hundreds of miles from their offices. And the fact that while these same roads have found it highly profitable to transport their wheat three hundred miles for 10½ cents per bushel, the elevators have found it convenient to levy a tax of form four to six cents a bushel for their services, has given color to the impression, and been largely instrumental in converting the old Fifth District into a stronghold of alliance principles. Speaking in behalf of my brothers of the plow, I entreat you gentlemen to see that when this direct and independent railroad of which we have before spoken is built, that its elevator system shall be free to all at the lowest possible rates consistent with good business policy, and that its side tracks be open to all who wish to load cars upon them, and that every competing road they cross be compelled to connect with their track, that the freedom of traffic be not impaired.

Equal in importance with the local elevator whose province it is to bulk the products of the farm from the wagon to the car lot, is the terminal elevator whose province it is to convert the car lots into the cargo. And in touching upon these, I feel that I am treading upon delicate ground. We all recognize their absolute necessity, their great helpfulness when properly administered and we all regret that any apparent necessity should have arisen for the state to make official enquiry into their affairs, and we entreat you gentleman, should any of you in the future have control of any of these institutions, to see to it that the cars when unloaded are carefully swept and the total amount credited to the consignor, that your delivery spouts are carefully lined to guard against insiduous leaks into "pocket bins," and that your "screenings" are shipped by daylight under proper billing. Again, gentlemen, do not forget that this chain of great lakes was intended by the Creator to be the public highway of a great people, and that it is unnatural and foreign to a wise public policy, that two or three great corporations should control its facilities for handling any of its staples of commerce to the exclusion of others who wish to engage in the same business, and should any movement arise for the building of independent outlets to be controlled by those directly interested, do not fail to give your united and hearty support; the result will be largely to your benefit.

Next to transportation and handling facilities comes the question of determining the value of the product.

Notwithstanding the stoutly maintained assertion of many of our older farmers that the only possible way to secure to them the full value of their grain is to have in each local market as many competing buyers as possible, who shall surround each individual load of wheat as it arrives and the driver strikes it off to the highest bidder, we believe "the world advances and in time outgrows the things that in our fathers' days were best," and that the time has gone by when this method of inspection and transfer is either practical or desirable; it is an age of large transactions and of speedy transfers, and we think it was necessary that some disinterested party should take this matter in hand for the good of all, and that the move to place it in the hands of the state was both wise and timely. But on the other hand it is not desirable that the department created for this purpose should be a part of any political party machine, or that the test of fitness for the office of chief inspector should be his ability to conduct ward caucusses in adjoining cities and voting precincts. Should this ever occur we think the farmers of the state can safely be counted on to rebuke the responsible party at the next general election, even, if need be, in the face of the oft repepeated assertion of the Pioneer Press, that they are so ignorant and imbecile that the crack of the party whip has more influence over them than the necessity for their own self protection.

Let us then, gentlemen, labor to take this matter of inspection out of politics and place it in the hands of competent and disinterested men.

Much more might be said upon other points in connection with this question but largely in the same direction, and we think it apparent to the most casual observer that all past development of your business with us has been but the overflow and surplus remaining after the "Twin Cities" have had their fill. That the commerce of this section is and has been forced by artificial agencies out of its regular route, and that if Duluth ever assumes the proud position assigned her in the natural order of events, she must refuse to "stand in" with her overshadowing rivals, and cease to allow that rival to dictate her lines of policy and cultivate more friendly relations directly with us.

In short we believe that nature has placed at your disposal every prerequisite for vast and varied commercial enterprises, and in our hands unlimited opportunities for agricultural development. And that our true policy is one of friendly co-operation along the lines of a joint and liberal policy toward each other. May this event be in some degree instrumental in securing such co-operation, and may this excursion ever remain a green spot in your memory.

These remarks were followed by a song by Rev. J. C. Carman, and Hon. E. M. Stanton responded to the toast "The ladies" in a brief but eloquent manner and then the toast-master arose and said that county attorney A. R. Holston would respond to the toast "The Alliance with our farmers, not our farmers' alliance. In getting down from his chair Mr. Stephens in some way tipped it over so that he fell heavily to the floor; rising as soon as possible he said: "Well, that is not the first time I got floored trying to monkey with the alliance," and amid roars of laughter Mr. Holston took the floor. As the hour was late he was very brief and the crowd soon dispersed, the Duluth party to their train, where at 3 o'clock a. m. they left for St. Vincent. They arrived in this city from that trip at 2 o'clock on Saturday and departed for their homes in Duluth more than pleased with their trip and more than ever convinced of the grand resources of this Red River Valley as an adjunct to the future prosperity of Duluth.

See Mrs. E. E. Bangs millinery ad. elsewhere in this issue. The ladies will do well to take heed thereunto.

Carlos Clough, a Crookston old-timer was down from the Thirteen Towns last week. Mr. C. is coining wealth out there.

Maj. Camp, the local weather prophet of Minneapolis, predicts a long severe winter. We can tell more about it next spring.

E. O. Wilson, of the Wilson Theatre Company, started for Chicago on Monday night. Expects to be back on Friday morning.

Only three more nights of Wilson. Everybody should improve the opportunity to hear a first-class troupe at such reasonable figures.

Well this does begin to look a little bit like winter for a fact. Everybody was thinking about the coal-bin and the wood-pile on Monday.

The Crookston Cornet Band will give a grand hop on Thanksgiving evening at McKinnon's hall. Excellent music will be furnished and a grand good time is assured.

Capt. P. J. Russell says of THE JOURNAL: "It is getting better every issue. Your last issue was a daisy—a local hummer!" Thanks, awfully, Cap., you're another!

Frank Steelman was in from Mentor Monday night to see "Little Dot" at the opera house and he also called to cheer up the printer a bit. Verily he went about doing good this trip.

Miss Amanda Elliott, one of the handsomest of Polk County's handsome school-ma'ams, was married at Blaine, Washington, on November 7th, to Mr. Charles E. Flint, a leading citizen of that place. THE JOURNAL adds its blessing.

H. W. Cleveland, of Mentor, dropped in on Monday to pay us an encouraging visit. Reports that his brother A. H. was quite seriously injured in a runaway scrape last Saturday but is getting along favorably and will no doubt be able to be about again soon.

Hon. J. J. Furlong is up from Austin this week looking after the interests of the Austin hail insurance company and visiting his alliance friends. The Austin company this year is paying their losses in full having done a large business and met with comparatively few losses.

A thresher engine exploded at St. Hilaire last Thursday seriously injuring several men. The report was at first circulated that Ezra Pierce and Lucius Ames were killed by the explosion but that report has since been contradicted and it is now thought that the injured men will all recover.

Walter Morris, of Tilden, dropped in last week to order THE JOURNAL sent to his address. Says now that the markets have been so as to leave a little surplus in his hands he feels as though he must have all the news there is going. Mr. M. had a fine crop of wheat and expects to realize well out of it.

That Irish setter that T. G. Thompson lost a few weeks since was returned to him on Saturday evening. T. G. had put his detective qualities at work and soon located the dog, pulled the string and lo! the dog appeared as natural as though nothing unusual had occurred—but there had.

Jake Ide showed our reporter a magnificent gold watch one day last week and said, "That looks as though there was something in farming this year, dont it? I just bought that watch and the cases alone cost $78." Jake has always managed to get good crops and this year he is getting something near like its worth out of it.

I. K. Mesell was down from Winger Saturday. He complains that he does not get any Crookston mail within 10 days of the time it is sent from here and this is because it is not properly sent. He says it should be sent to Fertile from which point they get mail three times per week. Mail sent via Crookston goes on to White Earth thence to Detroit thence to Fertile and from thence to Winger. It seems this change [illegible].

Duluth Business Men, to the Extent of a Hundred or So,

Attempt to Capture the City and Are Captured.

OUR GUESTS.

On Friday evening a special, bearing a number of the representative business men of Duluth, members of the Chamber of Commerce, of the Board of Trade, of the Jobbers' Union and of the City Council, arrived at the Great Northern depot at 5 o'clock where they were met and welcomed by the Mayor and reception committee, and preceded by the Crookston Cornet Band and their own band, marched up Robert street to Main, along Main to Second, up Second to Broadway, along Broadway to Robert, down Robert to Main and to the Opera House when, after they were comfortably seated, Mayor McKinnon made the following speech of greeting:

"Upon me devolves the honor and pleasant duty of extending to you, our friends, a hearty welcome to our city. It is useless for me to attemt to convince you of the extent of the welcome which we offer you. It is co-extensive with the limits of our city, and of such fervor as in my humble language I cannot describe or measure in any other manner than to say that the best of what we have is yours. I hope and trust that when you return to your rising and prosperous city that it will be with a warm place in your hearts for Crookston and its people."

The audience then dispersed to mingle with and make the acquaintance of our business men who had turned out to greet them, until the time for assembling in the banquet hall at 8:30.

Mr. White, Cloquet.

McKinnon Hall was replendent with flags and various decorations and three long tables ran the entire length of the hall, with one across the west end, when the guests and many of our citizens assembled for the banquet, and the hall fairly rang with the music of the Duluth Cornet Band. A. D. Stephens acted as master of ceremonies and right royally did he discharge his duties. After a brief address by Mayor McKinnon the time was pleasantly passed discussing the various viands upon the bountiful board, and then the master of ceremonies introduced M. R. Baldwin, of Duluth, who, in a few neatly chosen words acknowledged the compliments which had been so freely given and in the name of the citizens of Duluth, returned his hearty thanks. A. D. Stephens, in arising to answer the first toast of the evening, said that when he arrived at the depot to greet our guests he at first thought the crowd was some of our returning prodigals from West Superior, but soon saw by their bright, business-like appearance that he was mistaken. Announced the first toast of the evening, "Our Guests," and called upon Judge R. J. Montague, who said:

"FRIENDS:—My pleasant associations with you this evening, the kindly smile beaming from each one and the agreeable surroundings make me almost too full for utterance. To say that you are welcome, that we are pleased to have you with us, is but feebly stating the case. To say that we will treasure up this visit of yours to our city as one of the most pleasing events of the season.

Since we pitched our homes in this fertile valley, in this beautiful city, encircled by the river, fringed by forest trees, we have agitated, in season and out of season, closer trade relations with Duluth. [illegible] We want to buy from you. We want to sell to you. We want to help you build up a great city. We want to ship to you our wheat, oats, cattle, butter, potatoes, cabbage and bananas, which we raise in vast quantities. We want you to eat all you can of these and ship the rest over your great unsalted sea to other marts of trade beyond. We want to buy from you. We want to see your wholesale houses increase. We want to see your drummers on our streets oftener. In a word, we want trade to follow its natural channels. We don't want goods from the far East to come to us by Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis. We want our goods to come by Duluth. We want to help you to get all the money you can from the United States to improve your harbor and deepen canals so that the largest vessels may safely float from Duluth to the Atlantic. We don.t want to pay tribute to Chicago nor its railroads. Our motto is: "Millions for improvements, but not one cent for tribute."

Nature intended Duluth to be a great emporium of trade. If gathered around this festive board to-night, we can in spirit commune with the first man who conceived the idea of building a great city at the head of Lake Superior; we can imagine him standing on the rocky shore where Duluth now stands, gazing over that vast expanse of water, at the rising of the sun and at its sitting, and again in the stillness of the night, when star after star shone on the placid waters of that lake, and again when the storm lashed its waters, gazing in rapture at the sublimity of the scene, enthralled as the ancients on beholding the goddess Aphrodite in jeweled brightness, clothed in grandeur, a sublime apparation appearing from ocean's foam and dashing billows to assert her beauty, power and majesty.

This dreamer, if you so call him, his mind and soul raised in contemplating the mighty possibilities of the future, knowing the buried riches of your mines, and having explored the forests to the west, and knowing that these prairies where we now stand were teeming with the essentials of luxuriant growth and vast wealth, and having knowledge of the vast country beyond, standing there on that rocky shore, seeing this great inland sea, extending into the centre of the continent, scooped out by the Mighty Architect who laid the foundations of the mountains, in secret yet solemn grandeur, knowing that this lake was connected with other lakes to the east, and all connected by a great river with the Atlantic, he might truly say, that a part of the Great Architect's plan was that a great mart of trade should be established on that spot and that there should rise in beauty one of the greatest cities of modern times.

And thus, Duluth was built, and is building, and may her fondest hopes be realized, is our earnest desire to-night. And you, our guests, who have laid the foundations of Duluth and built it to its present greatness, we honor to-night.

Get all the canals necessary to enable the lakes to be utilized to the fullest extent, made, opened, deepened and improved. The people will be amply repaid for the expenditure. Do not hesitate to ask for appropriations; if you have any trouble about it, speak to Kittel Halvorson.

This government is rich, it is ready and willing to spend more money in settling up a little row in Chili than is needed to open half a dozen canals. Yes, President Harrison and Jim Blaine are ready, if necessary, to spend tens of millions of dollars in teaching Spaniards and Englishmen that they can't tread on the tail of Pat Egan's coat.

We regret that you did not get here at an earlier hour, so that you could have an opportunity to see more of our city, and to see some of the beautiful country in this vicinity. We have many things which we wish you to see. Our city has not been built up with that rapidity and energy which some would desire. We are more conservative, we build with our own money; we believe that we can point out to you more buildings in this city that have never been mortgaged, than any new city of its size in the west can boast. We trust that even the short time of your staying with us will be sufficient to enable you to form general ideas of our manufacturing and commercial enterprises.

We would not wish that your ideas in these respects should be vague and indefinite, as was the witness recently in an Iowa court. This witness was a drayman and had a few days prior to giving his testimony delivered a barrel of whiskey to a man who was charged with selling intoxicating liquors in violation of the law. The drayman when asked by the attorney for the prosecution if he had not delivered a barrel of whiskey to the accused, stated that he had delivered to him a barrel but that he didn't know what was in it. When called on to explain, the witness stated that one end of the barrel was marked "whiskey" and on the other end "Pat Duffy," and he didn't know which it was, whiskey or Pat Duffy, that was in the barrel. We want you to be sure before you leave the city which it is, Pat Duffy or whiskey in the barrel.

During the last couple of years a few of our citizens left us, and moved to Duluth, and some others left us, and went to West Superior. We have reason to believe that those who went to West Superior had more affection for their friends in this city than those who went to Duluth, and for this we have a very high regard for them. Those who went to Duluth stayed there, while those who went to West Superior all returned to us, and each one on his return asked us to kill the prodigal because the calf had come home.

In conclusion, we recognize the fact that the objects of your visit and your travels through Northern Minnesota and Northern Dakota are for high and noble purposes. That your desire is to become acquainted with the people, to extend the commerce and trade of your city, to confer upon your city and upon the people of Northern Minnesota and Northern Dakota advantages and opportunities which they have not heretofore enjoyed. Trade and commerce have been and will continue to be the potent agencies for the civilization of mankind, for the upbuilding of the nations, for conferring happiness upon mankind. Enlightenment and civilization follow in the paths of commerce. Commerce and trade make different people and nations dependent upon each other, thus creating a mutual dependence, breaking down the barriers of class hatred and jealousies and promoting peace and unity. Go on in your mission until you connect by the bonds of mutual interest all the people of Northern Minnesota and Northern Dakota with Duluth and teach them that in your prosperity they will prosper, and you will find that your success in making your city the great distributing point for this western country will give pleasure to the citizens of Crookston."

After this speech a song, "Steal Away," was sung by a male quartette, and the toast "The Highway of Commerce," was responded to by Mr. S. A. Johnson, Secretary of Duluth Chamber of Commerce, who prefaced his remarks by saying that he desired to first return thanks for the magnificent treatment they had received at the hands of the citizens of Crookston. His remarks went to show how that Duluth was on the national highway of commerce, and hence direct communication was essential to our progress. President J. J. Hill is a far-sighted man and he has recently rearranged his plans so that St. Paul is no longer his base of operations, but Duluth. We have just been down to see the farmers of Manitoba who will, in the near future, send their wheat to Liverpool cheaper than the farmers on the American side of the line, unless we can change that by deeper water in the canals and direct communication with Duluth. Soon we hope to be united to this fair young city with bands of steel.

A. N. Hixson was called upon to respond to the toast, "Agriculture." He said Polk County contained 2,000,000 acres of land with enough under cultivation to produce 5,000,000 bushels of No. 1 Hard wheat, and not one-third of its area under cultivation. Duluth is to the Northwest what New York is to the Middle States. I expect to live to see the day when she shall have a million inhabitants. The Duluth band here entertained the audience for a brief space, and then Judge Morris, of Duluth responded to the toast: "The New Commercial Revolution," spoke of the vast resources of the Northwest with her immense wheat-fields, her great mineral deposits and vast pine forests, all as yet almost undeveloped and predicted the new commercial revolution as soon as direct communication is had with the head of the great lakes. Said that the County of Polk could better afford to vote a generous bonus to a railroad than to go without the road. To the toast "Crookston, the Gem City of the Northwest," the Hon. Halvor Steenerson responded, giving many statistics in support of its claim. Crookston was founded in 1872, is at the real head of navigation of the Red River, a fact demonstrated when the steamer Dakota in that year brought the lumber for the first frame house in the city, but it dates its real prosperity from 1880, the time when my friend, Judge Montague, and I came. He gave an extended report of the amount of business done here, enumerating our manufactures and other industries; of the saw mill, he said it employs 150 men during the open months, cut 2,000,000 feet of lumber and paid out for help $65,000 this season. Although we have 13 hotels we need one large one. One hotel alone had 12,000 transient guests and another 10,820 during the past year. The band here came to the front with a choice selection, and C. A. Long was called upon to respond to the toast "Duluth," which he did in an able manner. Those Duluth men never tire of talking of their city. "Where is my wandering boy to-night" by a male quartette, the chorus joined in by all present. John M. Martin responded to the toast "Our absent sons, while they are not with us to-night, we love them still." Mr. Martin reviewed in a pleasant and humorous vein his ten years' residence in the Valley and his residence since in Duluth. Did not know why he left here unless it was for the good of this country; thought the only reason why he was elected mayor of West Duluth was as a sort of compliment to this country and wound up by extending a cordial invitation to all present to come down and see him at Duluth. When Mr. Martin finished, loud calls were made for Fred Reynolds, but Fred had skipped and Dr. Fred Basset responded to the toast "What are we here for, anyhow?" in a very humorous little speech that kept the company in an uproar of laughter. Complimented the Great Northern road and hoped it would build to Duluth, but said that Mr. Hill would have to get a move on him pretty soon or he would build a road himself, could do it very easy as he was editor of a country newspaper, and they are all rich enough to build railroads and run them; anyhow they could ride on 'em if they could obtain advertising mileage.

Rev. Geo. H. Kemp responded to the toast "The Shepherd" and paid a high tribute to the members of the Duluth party with whom he had been the rounds so far on the excursion. "Reciprocal Trade as Seen from the Farmer's Standpoint," was responded to by Mr. E. D. Childs who said:

"It is with great pleasure that I rise in behalf of the agricultural interests of this community to welcome the guests of the evening and not only to welcome but to congratulate them as well.

"I welcome you because I sincerely believe that in all this empire of the Red River Valley there is no hamlet so remote, no cabin so humble that the prosperity of its inhabitants is not directly and intimately connected with and affected by the development of the commerce of that great natural highway to which the city of Duluth is and by nature was intended to be the entry port and outlet. I congratulate you because reversing the proposition I sincerely believe that in this empire of the Red River Valley there is no hamlet so remote or cabin so humble but what the prosperity of the city of Duluth is affected in a greater or less degree by the prosperity of its inhabitants, and accepting this twofold proposition as a fact, it becomes apparent that any event which brings our people together, and gives us a better understanding of each other, of our environment and of our possibilities is a fit occasion for congratulation and good fellowship.

Be it ours then this evening to consider carefully and candidly the lines along which we may labor together for our own mutual advantage and advancement.

Stretching westward from this end of Lake Superior is a region of vast and varied resources. First, a region immensely rich in timber and the iron ores; then the fertile acres of this valley, which have this year with less than 20 per cent. of its area under very indifferent cultivation produced upwards of 50,000,000 bushels of wheat, and untold millions of bushels of barley, oats, potatoes and other products; while upon our western borders graze countless herds of cattle and sheep, sufficient in quantity for our home consumption, and to constitute a very important factor in our supply to the people of other countries; while still beyond lies the priceless and but little developed mines of silver and of gold which form the medium of exchange in all civilized countries. To all this vast section filled with these illimitable resources, Duluth is the natural tool gate, the key to which an all wise Providence has placed in your care and keeping, and thus made it possible for you to greatly encourage or largely retard the growth and development of its industries. And let us hope that under the pressure of this tremendous responsibility you will not be found incompetent or unwilling. But may it be yours to so broaden and deepen the channels of your commerce that all, producer, middleman and consumer, may be largely benefitted thereby. Under the conditions of modern civilization two things are prerequisite to a successful development and transaction of business, especially where heavy commodities form the bulk of the transactions, viz., "rapid transit" and the utmost possible convenience in storing and handling the commodities to be transported.

Then that we may cultivate the most closely and profitably the business relations which should naturally exist between us, it is necessary that we be connected by the shortest lines of railway communication, and that these lines be independent of all outside influence and of all entangling alliances which bind them to time tables and tariff schedules formulated by other but not paral el lines which have their centre of operations in St. Paul or Chicago, and with their profits and solvency depending wholly upon the traffic they are able to control between these centres.

Such a system of railway communication direct and independent, would be for Duluth and for this valley what the St. Paul and Duluth Railway has been for Duluth and the Twin Cities, a leveler and arbiter of rates and promoter of mutual prosperity. Should such an one seek entrance to your city see to it with jealous care that no heartless speculator in his greed for personal gain, throttle it with exhorbitant demands for "right of way," lest some rival sitting at your right or left, see its opportunity in your blindness, and by reaching out a helping hand to your illy appreciated ally, snatch from your grasp much if not all the benefits which would inevitably have been yours to enjoy, and a sister state profit from your mistake.

With a shortening of the line of railway communication by some eighty miles (as a direct line would) must come a vast increase in the amount of grain seeking its market at your port, and next in importance to means of communication comes the elevator system which shall handle this vast volume of business.

Whether justly or not the impression has for the past few years prevailed with our farmers, that if our local elevator systems, controlled as they nearly all are from Minneapolis, are not the joint property of the millers and the railway officials (in their individual capacity), that at least these same railway officials have friends and relatives whom they know to be largely interested in them and whose welfare they are more careful to cherish than that of a whole community at a distance of hundreds of miles from their offices. And the fact that while these same roads have found it highly profitable to transport their wheat three hundred miles for 10½ cents per bushel, the elevators have found it convenient to levy a tax of form four to six cents a bushel for their services, has given color to the impression, and been largely instrumental in converting the old Fifth District into a stronghold of alliance principles. Speaking in behalf of my brothers of the plow, I entreat you gentlemen to see that when this direct and independent railroad of which we have before spoken is built, that its elevator system shall be free to all at the lowest possible rates consistent with good business policy, and that its side tracks be open to all who wish to load cars upon them, and that every competing road they cross be compelled to connect with their track, that the freedom of traffic be not impaired.

Equal in importance with the local elevator whose province it is to bulk the products of the farm from the wagon to the car lot, is the terminal elevator whose province it is to convert the car lots into the cargo. And in touching upon these, I feel that I am treading upon delicate ground. We all recognize their absolute necessity, their great helpfulness when properly administered and we all regret that any apparent necessity should have arisen for the state to make official enquiry into their affairs, and we entreat you gentleman, should any of you in the future have control of any of these institutions, to see to it that the cars when unloaded are carefully swept and the total amount credited to the consignor, that your delivery spouts are carefully lined to guard against insidious leaks into "pocket bins," and that your screenings are shipped by daylight under proper billing. Again, gentlemen, do not forget that this chain of great lakes was intended by the Creator to be the public highway of a great people, and that it is unnatural and foreign to a wise public policy, that two or three great corporations should control its facilities for handling any of its staples of commerce to the exclusion of others who wish to engage in the same business, and should any movement arise for the building of independent outlets to be controlled by those directly interested, do not fail to give your united and hearty support, the result will be largely to your benefit.

Next to transportation and handling facilities comes the question of determining the value of the product. Notwithstanding the stoutly maintained assertion of many of our older farmers that the only possible way to secure to them the full value of their grain is to have in each local market as many competing buyers as possible, who shall surround each individual load of wheat as it arrives and the driver strikes it off to the highest bidder, we believe "the world advances and in time outgrows the things that in our fathers' days were best," and that the time has gone by when this method of inspection and transfer is either practical or desirable; it is an age of large transactions and of speedy transfers, and we think it was necessary that some disinterested party should take this matter in hand for the good of all, and that the move to place it in the hands of the state was both wise and timely. But on on the other hand it is not desirable that the department created for this purpose should be a part of any political party machine, or that the test of fitness for the office of chief inspector should be his ability to conduct ward caucusses in adjoining cities and voting precincts. Should this ever occur we think the farmers of the state can safely be counted on to rebuke the responsible party at the next general election, even, if need be, in the face of the oft repepeated assertion of the Pioneer Press, that they are so ignorant and imbecile that the crack of the party whip has more influence over them than the necessity for their own self protection.

Let us then, gentlemen, labor to take this matter of inspection out of politics and place it in the hands of competent and disinterested men.

Much more might be said upon other points in connection with this question but largely in the same direction, and we think it apparent to the most casual observer that all past development of your business with us has been but the overflow and surplus remaining after the "Twin Cities" have had their fill. That the commerce of this section is and has been forced by artificial agencies out of its regular route, and that if Duluth ever assumes the proud position assigned her in the natural order of events, she must refuse to "stand in" with her overshadowing rivals, and cease to allow that rival to dictate her lines of policy and cultivate more friendly relations directly with us.

In short we believe that nature has placed at your disposal every prerequisite for vast and varied commercial enterprises, and in our hands unlimited opportunities for agricultural development. And that our true policy is one of friendly co-operation along the lines of a joint and liberal policy toward each other. May this event be in some degree instrumental in securing such co-operation, and may this excursion ever remain a green spot in your memory."

These remarks were followed by a song by Rev. J. C. Carman, and Hon. E. M. Stanton responded to the toast "The ladies" in a brief but eloquent manner and then the toast-master arose and said that county attorney A. R. Holston would respond to the toast "The Alliance with our farmers," and our farmers' alliance [illegible] in getting down from his chair, Mr. Stephens in some way tipped it over so that he fell heavily to the floor; rising as soon as possible he said: "Well, that is not the first time I got floored trying to monkey with the alliance," and amid roars of laughter Mr. Holston took the floor. As the hour was late he was very brief and the crowd soon dispersed, the Duluth party to their train, where at 3 o'clock a. m. they left for St. Vincent. They arrived in this city from that trip at 2 o'clock on Saturday and departed for their homes in Duluth more than pleased with their trip and more than ever convinced of the grand resources of this Red River Valley as an adjunct to the future prosperity of Duluth.

If you want a good farm of 315 acres ready for crop in the spring, with good substantial buildings, good fences, artesian water and a fine grove call at THE JOURNAL office. We know of just such a place near this city that can be had cheap.

FARM FOR SALE.

On Saturday night, as A. M. Childs' hired man was driving across the track, near T. B. Walker's planing mill, the wagon was struck by a box car and demolished and the man received some ugly cuts about the head. The team escaped uninjured and the man was taken to Dr. Just's office to have his head sewed up and is now doing nicely. A freight train was backing up just as he was crossing and in the darkness he failed to see it until he was struck.

Geo. Tripp was one of the Mentorites who called to cheer us on Tuesday morning. Speaking of the prospects Mr Tripp said that he believes that all who have hung on so far are all right; that our markets in the future would be very much better and as a natural consequence farming lands would find a good market at something like their real value. The present good crops have given the farmers better encouragement than they have had for several years. He says that Polk County is good enough for him yet awhile.

Geo. Vine, of the Robert street meat market, informs us that his trade is excellent this summer. He purchases nothing but the choicest beeves and well understands the art of cutting up nto nice choice steaks. Try Vine once

On Tuesday Nov. 10th, 1891, Joseph Roberton died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Thomas Nesbit, on the Marais, at the age of 47 years. Joe has been a resident of Polk County since 1874 and had amassed considerable property here. A few years since his wife died leaving Joe alone, as they had no children. Though he had been sick for a few days it was not serious enough to occasion alarm, and it was only a very few hours before his demise that he realized that the end was near. Joe was a mason in good standing and had many friends who will regret to hear of his death in the prime of life. He leaves two brothers and one sister.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs' nice fall and winter display of millinery is the admiration of all the ladies who have called at her fashionable millinery parlors on Second street, and the prices are extremely low this fall.

The Wilson Theatre Company opened a week's engagement at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening with "The Ranch King," a new play in this city. The house was well filled to greet the return of this favorite company and the audience was highly pleased throughout. John V. Melton, who appeared in the title role, is a new member of the company and is an excellent actor, while the "Ned McDonald," brother to the Ranch King, as played by Lewis E. Streeter, leaves little to be desired. He is a young man and has a very pleasant stage presence, is easy and affable and at once becomes a favorite. These two characters make a strong team together. "Wilfred Mannering" the villain, was taken by our old friend Percy E. McKidd who is as cold-blooded a villain (on the stage) as ever trod the boards. Off the stage Percey is as gentlemanly and companionable a person as one would wish to meet. "Murphy O'Donovan, of royal blood," was none other than the inimitable Edward O'Connor, who kept the audience in a roar with his quaint Irish witticisms and songs. Wilson had him here on his previous visit, in fact he couldn't well keep house without O'Connor. Mr. Hastings was a double, well taken by Lewis E. Streeter. "Pug," daughter of the villain, and adopted daughter of the Ranch King, was so nicely taken by little Dot Farley, the little eight year old daughter of the advance agent, Mr. E. V. Farley, that she fairly waltzed her way into the affections of the audience almost before they realized what she was up to. It seems that this is the first time she has tried that role as the lady who takes that part had been suddenly summoned home by a death in her family and the way little Dot took the character was a surprise to the company, even. She is a little prodigy and, as is too frequently the case with children, she does not seem to be affected in the least. Too much cannot be said in her praise. "Allie Hastings" was well taken by Miss Jennie McAlpine, while "Kate, the wife of the villain," taken by Mrs. Wilson, (whose stage name is Camille Dahl) was extremely good, of course, as Mrs. Wilson is a very clever actress. This reminds us that we have reviewed the entire play and overlooked one of its strongest features, the "Dan, Ned's darky servant," of W. H. Young. Mr. Young was with the Wilson company on its first appearance and was then as now, a great favorite. Young has a make-up that out-Samboes Sambo himself, and his acting is never overdone. As a whole the troupe is composed of ladies and gentlemen who are well up in their profession, studious, courteous and conscientious, evidently striving to gain success by meriting it. If anything, the company is stronger and better than ever before and we predict for this engagement a big run. It is certainly deserving, as we never get so good a troupe here at the prices 15, 25 and 35 cents. Each holder of a ticket gets a number and on Saturday evening the lucky number will get an elegant bed-room sett.

"Only A Farmer's Daughter," was the play on Tuesday evening. Miss Jennie Alpine showed to excellent advantage as "Justine, the Farmer's Daughter," while the versatile powers of Miss Camille Dahl were called into full play in the dual role of Lizzie Stark and M'me Larent. Miss Alma Farley is a pleasing little actress, her "Mollie" being especially good, while as "Mother Stark, of Poverty Hollow," she only need be a little more careful about the youthful vivacity of her tones to be perfect; her make up and action being excellent. Little Dot takes the part of Nellie perfectly as she does everything else. She is indeed a child wonder, the best little actress of her age ever before a Crookston audience. John V. Melton takes his dual character excellently. Lewis Streeter sustains the character of "Harold Lennoy, the wealthy author," in good form while O'Connor, as Sammy Green, is good—he always is though this part is not calculated to call forth his full powers which show at their best in Irish comedy. Our friend Percy McKidd makes a good butler though his strongest point is tragedy one of the most difficult and unappreciative parts to play. As a double dyed cool-blooded villain but few can beat Mac. The plays for the balance of the week not having been fully decided upon cannot be announced in this issue, suffice it to say they are good ones and calculated to bring out the full powers of this excellent company. All who haven't seen them should avail themselves of the remaining opportunities.

Ladies, you cannot afford to miss seeing my new fall styles of millinery. The novelties of the season are rare and beautiful. Call and see them. Mrs. E. E. Bangs.

HUBBARD ITEMS.

Hubbard, Nov. 10, 1891.

Mr. Andrew Thompson, who took his son to St. Paul for medical treatment, has returned. He informs us that the boy is much better.

School in district No. 17 closed on Friday and in the evening a very pleasant entertainment was given, consisting of speaking, singing and dialogues. Much credit is due the teacher, Miss Matilda Johnson, of Fisher, for her untiring efforts to make it a success. As one of our friends remarked that evening, it is very gratifying to meet an earnest, faithful teacher. Any district might well be proud of her services.

Rev. S. N. Millard, of Glyndon, missionary for the American Sunday School Union, of Philadelphia, and who organized the Sunday school here, spent Sunday with the Hayes Bros. In the evening he conducted divine services in the school house near John J. Ellingson's.

District school teachers' salaries are not so munificent but what they occasionally need "filthy lucre." But those who earn their livlihood by cheating farm machinery companies (Walter Wood Co. is referred to,) and stealing government timber are always well provided for.

Remember that all are invited to the Sunday school. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. The Supt., J. G. Hayes, and the teachers can prove to you that it is for your spiritual welfare to attend.

On Saturday night, as A. M. Childs' hired man was driving across the track, near T. B. Walker's planing mill, the wagon was struck by a box car and demolished and the man received some ugly cuts about the head. The team escaped uninjured and the man was taken to Dr. Just's office to have his head sewed up and is now doing nicely. A freight train was backing up just as he was crossing and in the darkness he failed to see it until he was struck.

Ship your wheat to O. Tharaldson, general agent of the Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association, at Duluth, and make from 4 to 7 cents a bushel. For further particulars as to membership, &c., inquire of L. K. Hassel, Grand Forks, N. D. [25-tf]

Geo. Tripp was one of the Mentorites who called to cheer us on Tuesday morning. Speaking of the prospects Mr Tripp said that he believes that all who have hung on so far are all right; that our markets in the future would be very much better and as a natural consequence farming lands would find a good market at something like their real value. The present good crops have given the farmers better encouragement than they have had for several years. He says that Polk County is good enough for him yet awhile.

Geo. Vine, of the Robert street meat market, informs us that his trade is excellent this summer. He purchases nothing but the choicest beeves and well understands the art of cutting up into nice choice steaks. Try Vine once

On Tuesday Nov. 10th, 1891, Joseph Robertson died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Thomas Nesbit, on the Marais, at the age of 47 years. Joe has been a resident of Polk County since 1874 and had amassed considerable property here. A few years since his wife died leaving Joe alone, as they had no children. Though he had been sick for a few days it was not serious enough to occasion alarm, and it was only a very few hours before his demise that he realized that the end was near. Joe was a mason in good standing and had many friends who will regret to hear of his death in the prime of life. He leaves two brothers and one sister.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs' nice fall and winter display of millinery is the admiration of all the ladies who have called at her fashionable millinery parlors on Second street, and the prices are extremely low this fall.

The Wilson Theatre Company opened a week's engagement at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening with "The Ranch King," a new play in this city. The house was well filled to greet the return of this favorite company and the audience was highly pleased throughout. John V. Melton, who appeared in the title role, is a new member of the company and is an excellent actor, while the "Ned McDonald," brother to the Ranch King, as played by Lewis E. Streeter, leaves little to be desired. He is a young man and has a very pleasant stage presence, is easy and affable and at once becomes a favorite. These two characters make a strong team together. "Wilfred Mannering" the villain, was taken by our old friend Percy E. McKidd who is as cold-blooded a villain (on the stage) as ever trod the boards. Off the stage Percey is as gentlemanly and companionable a person as one would wish to meet. "Murphy O'Donovan, of royal blood," was none other than the inimitable Edward O'Connor, who kept the audience in a roar with his quaint Irish witticisms and songs. Wilson had him here on his previous visit, in fact he couldn't well keep house without O'Connor. Mr. Hastings was a double, well taken by Lewis E. Streeter. "Pug," daughter of the villain, and adopted daughter of the Ranch King, was so nicely taken by little Dot Farley, the little eight year old daughter of the advance agent, Mr. E. V. Farley, that she fairly waltzed her way into the affections of the audience almost before they realized what she was up to. It seems that this is the first time she has tried that role as the lady who takes that part had been suddenly summoned home by a death in her family and the way little Dot took the character was a surprise to the company, even. She is a little prodigy and, as is too frequently the case with children, she does not seem to be affected in the least. Too much cannot be said in her praise. "Allie Hastings" was well taken by Miss Jennie McAlpine, while "Kate, the wife of the villain," taken by Mrs. Wilson, (whose stage name is Camille Dahl) was extremely good, of course, as Mrs. Wilson is a very clever actress. This reminds us that we have reviewed the entire play and overlooked one of its strongest features, the "Dan," Ned's darky servant," of W. H. Young. Mr. Young was with the Wilson company on its first appearance and was then as now, a great favorite. Young has a make-up that out-Samboes Sambo himself, and his acting is never overdone. As a whole the troupe is composed of ladies and gentlemen who are well up in their profession, studious, courteous and conscientious, evidently striving to gain success by meriting it. If anything, the company is stronger and better than ever before and we predict for this engagement a big run. It is certainly deserving, as we never get so good a troupe here at the prices, 15, 25 and 35 cents. Each holder of a ticket gets a number and on Saturday evening the lucky number will get an elegant bed-room set.

Ladies, you cannot afford to miss seeing my new fall styles of millinery. The novelties of the season are rare and beautiful. Call and see them [illegible]

"Only A Farmer's Daughter," was the play on Tuesday evening. Miss Jennie Alpine showed to excellent advantage as "Justine, the Farmer's Daughter," while the versatile powers of Miss Camille Dahl were called into full play in the dual role of Lizzie Stark and M'me Larent. Miss Alma Farley is a pleasing little actress, her "Mollie" being especially good, while as "Mother Stark, of Poverty Hollow," she only need be a little more careful about the youthful vivacity of her tones to be perfect; her make up and action being excellent. Little Dot takes the part of Nellie perfectly as she does everything else. She is indeed a child wonder, the best little actress of her age ever before a Crookston audience. John V. Melton takes his dual character excellently. Lewis Streeter sustains the character of "Harold Lennoy, the wealthy author," in good form while O'Connor, as Sammy Green, is good—he always is though this part is not calculated to call forth his full powers which show at their best in Irish comedy. Our friend Percy McKidd makes a good butler though his strongest point is tragedy one of the most difficult and unappreciative parts to play. As a double dyed cool-blooded villain but few can beat Mac. The plays for the balance of the week not having been fully decided upon cannot be announced in this issue, suffice it to say they are good ones and calculated to bring out the full powers of this excellent company. All who haven't seen them should avail themselves of the remaining opportunities.

HUBBARD ITEMS.

HUBBARD, Nov. 10, 1891.

Mr. Andrew Thompson, who took his son to St. Paul for medical treatment, has returned. He informs us that the boy is much better.

School in district No. 17 closed on Friday and in the evening a very pleasant entertainment was given, consisting of speaking, singing and dialogues. Much credit is due the teacher, Miss Matilda Johnson, of Fisher, for her untiring efforts to make it a success. As one of our friends remarked that evening, it is very gratifying to meet an earnest, faithful teacher. Any district might well be proud of her services.

Rev. S. N. Millard, of Glyndon, missionary for the American Sunday School Union, of Philadelphia, and who organized the Sunday school here, spent Sunday with the Hayes Bros. In the evening he conducted divine services in the school house near John J. Ellingson's.

District school teachers' salaries are not so munificent but what they occasionally need "filthy lucre." But those who earn their livlihood by cheating farm machinery companies (Walter Wood Co. is referred to,) and stealing government timber are always well provided for.

Remember that all are invited to the Sunday school. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. The Supt., J. G. Hayes, and the teachers can prove to you that it is for your spiritual welfare to attend.

Many large flocks of wild geese are in the eastern part of this town.

Wheat here averaged about twenty-eight bushels to the acre.

Any man who allows his cattle to eat other people's grain needs only a few bristles to make a fine hog. He cannot believe in the principles of the political party of which he is a leading member.

Mr. Ball went to Belmont, N. D., last Sunday to hear Rev. Mr. McNamara preach.

Andrew Steenerson made a business trip to St. Hilaire this week.

Weather profits are endeavoring to sum up the coming winter. It is altogether probable, owing to the pleasant summer, that our winter will be very severe or very mild—perhaps an average winter! At any rate it will be expected.

It is a singular thing that the disposition of persons can very often be told from the manner in which they meet the various crises of life. The energetic, hopeful ones strive to drive away perplexity by a display of activity. The mental weaklings sit with folded hands and nurse their grief or bewail their bad luck without making an effort to throw it off or to overcome the evil.

There are some papers making sport of Dr. Keely's cure for drunkenness. Only those ignorant of the great good he is rendering humanity will doubt the bi-chloride of gold treatment of Dr. Keely, whose valuable discovery has caused him to enlarge the sanitarium at Dwight, Ill., several times. Most wretched patients go to him from all parts of the country, and upon quitting his institution are as free from the clutches of alcoholism as a new-born babe. Many sorrowing and rum-wrecked homes have been made happy again by the chloride of gold treatment of inebriates. Even the names of some newspaper men are registered on Dr. Keely's books. The doctor is now in Europe and it is quite probable that he will open an institution in London similar to the one in this country, but on a much larger scale. No doubt he has good material over there to work on.

How very hard it is to convince people sometimes. It is hard to convince people that sending "duns" on postal cards is an offence against the law. It cost a man in Illinois $45 to become satisfactorily posted, while the debt he tried to collect was but five dollars. Nine hundred per cent. is pretty good commission to pay for collecting a debt, especially when, as in this case, the debt was not, after all collected.

In some places there are two branches of the Salvation Army. There was a row in camp and the forces divided. Both branches are diligently working the highways and byways in their endeavor to save souls. The effect will be the opposite however, if they organize the numerous drum corps contemplated at San Francisco, to be composed exclusively of Chinese. The almond-eyed heathen are not intended for missionary work in this country.

Encouraged by the attempts to produce artificial rain, it is now proposed to ward off frosts by bringing the clouds closer to the earth and creating a fog—wrapping the earth in a wet blanket as it were. Phrenological.

Henry Ward Beecher from the phrenological point of view is the opening paper of the Phrenological Journal and Science of Health, and in it we learn how much the great preacher craved for his power to his understanding of human nature. Frederick Bly, the blind phrenologist, well known thirty-five years ago, follows: Lines of Beauty is a classical study in the physiognomical line. Illustrated. The Fifth Prize Essay is by a lady known up in Maine for editorial capacity, and is a very readable sketch of experience and observations that will give the reader much useful information. Identity and Imitation. Practical Mental Science in Education is a well written article for skeptics to ponder. The Toledo Weekly Blade Free.

The proprietors of the Toledo Blade, the best known political weekly of the United States, are making preparations to create a sensation this winter by sending a million specimen copies to as many readers in all parts of the United States, who do not now take that paper. To that end they invite everybody to send the addresses of as many people as they care to, by postal card or letter. Send one name, ten, twenty, one hundred or a thousand. As many as you have time to write, only take care to send correct addresses of people that you know appreciate good reading. It will cost but a little trouble, and the thousands who receive sample copies will feel grateful. Send all the names and addresses you please to The Blade Toledo, Ohio.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

One day last week as Mrs. E. Roberts and Miss Benton were going out home a runaway team collided with their buggy. Mrs. Roberts was thrown out but Miss Benton managed to jump out and catch the team they were driving by the bits thus preventing their running away also. Though bruised somewhat Mrs. Roberts was not seriously injured and was soon feeling as well as ever.

Modern Magicians.

Among the wild tribes of Africa, and equally so among the aborigines of America, the magician, or medicine-man, is looked upon as endowed with spiritual powers. Some are specialists, and among these the most valued and respected are the "rain-makers." Rain being indispensable to the maintenance of either animal or vegetable life, it is not to be wondered at that those supposed to have the power to bring the welcome showers should be reverenced as almost divine benefactors. These are regarded as savage superstitions, but strange to say, "rain makers" have appeared in our day and country. The United States government had a corps of rain makers in Texas last summer, who with a series of teriffic explosions produced rain—with some exceptions. One Melbourne, of Ohio, deluged Cheyenne with water from the clouds, without artillery, baloons, or other visible means. These reports may be exaggerated; they may not be true; and the magicians may be only humbugs. One modern magician, however, has demonstrated a clear title—and he is the inventor of the railroad. Transportation is easy, swift, and even luxuriously comfortable — provided your ticket is bought over "The Burlington," the great scenic and vestibuled line of the Northwest. MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication Oct. 15th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, ANDREAS HAGBERG, an unmarried man, of Polk County, and State of Minnesota, as mortgagor, did, on the 15th day of December, A. D. 1888, duly execute and deliver to Eleanor E. Wilmerding of the County of Suffolk, State of New York, his mortgage bearing date of December 15th, A. D. 1888, whereby he mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The northeast quarter of Section 26, Township 148, Range 45 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagor to said mortgagee, or order; which said mortgage was on the 17th day of December, A. D. 1888, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 186; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of fifty dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-eight dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagor, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, her heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagor or any other party; and

Whereas, the said mortgagee, Eleanor E. Wilmerding, has exercised her option to consider and declare and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable and;

Whereas there is now due, and claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred thirty-four and 82-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court-house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 28th day of November, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash; to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty Dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

D. 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 49 of mortgages, on page 143.

And whereas, the said J. E. Boily, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of sixteen hundred and twenty-two 40-100 ($1,622.40-100) dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of eight per cent. per annum from the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1891, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: All that tract or parcel of land described as the southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-four (34), Township one hundred and fifty-one (151), Range forty-four (44), according to the government survey thereof, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on MONDAY, THE 21st DAY OF DECEMBER, 1891, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of sixteen hundred and twenty-two 40-100 dollars, and interest and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated November, 2d, A. D. 1891.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Manvel Graphic: We have unbounded faith in this great Red River Valley, and it is this faith which stimulates us to endeavor to persuade our eastern friends to visit us and see for themselves what advantages are offered to men possessing brawn and biceps. Young men will find chances here to prosper that no other part of the country offers. Come west, young man, and get rich.

East Grand Forks Courier: Money has commenced to flow quite freely, and scores of farmers in Polk County, where a failure of crop has never been heard of, find themselves this year with more money than they know what to do with. Some of the more fortunate ones are investing in more lands, which even now can be had at cheap prices, though the tendency with most every one having farm lands for sale is to either double the present price, or withdraw their lands from market. Most of the desirable railroad land in this part of the county has been bought up by persons who intend to hold and improve it. Still, there are yet some choice bargains to be had in tracts of 80 to 160 acres. The oldest inhabitant will yet see the day when every quarter section, or at least every half section, will be farmed by one individual. Many of the large farmers, or corporations which control some of the largest farms in the Northwest, are already announcing that a part of their large holdings is for sale. As soon as the few remaining acres of vacant lands are disposed of to actual settlers the price of lands in Polk County will advance at a conservative estimate, 200 per cent. Only a few years ago the railroad lands were offered at $3 per acre, on six years' time, with interests on deferred payments at 7 per cent. To-day the cheapest railroad land to be had is $7 per acre, with a fair prospect that the price will be advanced to $10. A number of tracts which were purchased some few years ago for $3 per acre, have changed hands during the past year at an advance of 300 to 500 per cent, and still as much money can be made to-day by investing in real estate as was realized from investments made a few years ago. To-day all farm lands in the Red River Valley have a standard value, and are sought after by a class of settlers who have come here to stay.

Origin of Thanksgiving Day.

EDNA, Minn., Nov. 23, 1891.

ED. JOURNAL: Thinking that some of your readers may be interested in the origin of Thanksgiving day, I enclose the following:

The first record we have of a Thanksgiving Day is the Feast of the Tabernacles, a day appointed by the Lord himself, and the Jews have always observed it. For a number of days they spend their time eating and drinking and doing no work. Great public ceremonies are held besides the worship and sacrifices of each household. The Greeks and Romans also held a feast after harvest, which occurred in September. They had games and sports in the fields and crowned their household gods with flowers.

The first Thanksgiving Day in the United States was observed by the Puritans, who had suffered from scarcity of food for many months after they came to this country. When they gathered their first harvest, Governor Bradford recommended that they come together for the purpose of prayer and praise, and they concluded to have a feast as well. So great preparations were made and the hunters went to the woods and returned loaded with venison and wild turkeys, and the Puritans with grateful hearts invited Massasoit and some of his warriors to the feast. The year following there was a long dry spell; the crops were in such bad condition that it looked as though they might starve to death. A fast day was appointed and for hours the people prayed without ceasing, and the rain began to fall while they prayed. The crops revived and there was a plentiful harvest. Again a day of Thanksgiving was ordered by Governor Bradford. So, gradually, the custom of appointing a thanksgiving after harvest grew to be established, the governors of the colonies appointing the day. During the revolution a day of national thanksgiving was annually recommended by Congress. After the constitution was adopted, Washington appointed such a day, and several other presidents did the same. In 1863 President Lincoln made a proclamation for national observance, and since then a proclamation has been issued each year, the last Thursday in November being set aside as Thanksgiving Day, and Thursday, Nov. 26th, is the day appointed by President Harrison for its observance. Let us follow the good example of our forefathers and meet together at our places of worship and express our gratitude to Him from whom we receive every good and perfect gift, and while we rejoice over the many known and unknown blessings vouchsafed to us, may we remember those less favored and see that they have at least one day in the year something for which they may be thankful.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Nov. 16.—A very peculiar circumstance is that in the past week three out of the five or six large coal companies doing business at the head of the lakes here have had disastrous fires on their coal docks. A coal dock fire, like a mine fire, is a very hard fire to handle, and is always a very expensive one. Dock fires usually start from spontaneous combustion. With damp coal at the bottom of a pile, and tons upon tons lying on top of it, it is perhaps surprising that there are not more such fires. The damp coal and the pressure together do the business; the fire eats its way slowly at first, and undiscovered, then bursts out at full headway, and its extinction is a matter of days and weeks. If, as has been the case in each of the three fires here, it is in the centre of a dock, the fire is almost inaccessible. A moderate amount of water only augments the flames. A steady and vast volume, enough to drown the fire, must be poured upon it, or it must burn itself out. Usually the coal must be removed. The three fires here have been at the Lehigh docks, Superior, the Pioneer and Northwestern No. 2 docks in Duluth. The first has just been extinguished after two weeks work. The second, after thousands of tons have been carted away from the burning pile and five steamers have been playing on it for several days is nearly extinguished, and the third is burning briskly. To subdue it an alley way is being made across the dock on two sides of the fire, and when the coal inside the alleys is consumed it is expected the flames will be stopped. A half dozen steamers are constantly playing on the fire. This fire has burned through the bottom of the dock and about 10,000 tons of coal have gone into the bay. The total loss will be, on the fires, $200,000. There are few larger coal centres than this, though the nearest mine is 1,000 miles from Duluth. The coal handled here last year amounted to 1,700,000 tons. This year it has amounted to 1,900,000 tons. Possibly will run to 2,000,000 tons. This coal is distributed all over the Northwest. Owing to the freight rates to many points a considerable territory is still supplied by Chicago and Milwaukee which should buy of Duluth. It is a remarkable fact that the average freight rate on coal from Lake Erie points to Duluth is always lower than to Chicago. The soft coal rate from Toledo and Cleveland is usually from 10 to 15 cents more than that on hard coal from Buffalo. This year the average hard coal rate has been 25 cents while it has been 40 to 60 to Chicago. At present the rate to Duluth is only 10 cents—just think of it; 10 cents a ton for a 1,000 mile voyage—while Chicago is paying 70 cents. The price of coal here is slightly above that at Cleveland and Buffalo, for hard. Soft coal is sold at reasonable rates here and so Duluth gets her fuel for manufacturies almost as cheap as Cleveland does here. It adds $1.50 to the price of coal to send it from here to Minneapolis or St. Paul. This is one reason why Duluth can manufacture so much cheaper than any other place in the Northwest. So far as iron and wood manufactures are concerned Duluth's extra cost of fuel over Cleveland, Buffalo or Pittsburg is much more than made up by cheaper raw material, strange as it may seem. The increased supply of coal brought to the head of Lake Superior this year will be all used. There is more money in the Northwest and business will be livelier, so consumers will buy freer. Factories will use much more than last year, while the railroads will probably need twice as much.

The big wheat movement continues without check and the week just closed showed the largest receipts and largest shipments on record. A noteworthy feature of the week is that Duluth receipts were nearly twice as large as those at Minneapolis. This city received 4,881 cars against 1,181 for the same week last year. Minneapolis got 2,881 cars, or just 2,000 less than Duluth. In bushels the receipts were 3,050,000, against the largest previous record of 2,840,000, and shipments were 2,750,000, against 2,358,000 last week. Not as much wheat was shipped as was expected. Prices have gradually worked lower and are now 1½ to 2 cents below last Monday. Duluth prices are still 2 to 2½ cents above Minneapolis.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 24th, 1891.

ED. JOURNAL.—

The Republicans of the North, who have in the past affiliated with the Alliance and actually voted quite a number of their own party friends out of power and put Democrats or Alliance men in their places, ought certainly to understand the position of the so-called Alliance people of the South. The Charleston News and Courier is one of the leading Democratic papers of the South and it says:

> With the exception of Col. Ellison S. Koitt, all of the Alliance leaders in this State who have exhibited a weakness for the third party movement have pledged their sacred honor to stand by the regular Democratic nominations. If Mr. Cleveland shall be nominated they will support him and work for him to the end. There is not a Southern State, unless it be North Carolina—and we are not willing to believe that even Col. Polk's own State is willing to turn its back on the party—that will not vote for the Democratic candidate for President, whoever he may be. The Alliance has met with overwhelming defeat in Mississippi. In Tennessee the Alliance has permitted its charter to die of inanition. In South Carolina the order is not holding its own. In Florida there are evidences of disintegration. In all the Southern States the Alliance men are first of all Democrats."

The last line in that article is undoubtedly true. The Alliance men in the South are first of all Democrats. In Tennessee the Alliance dictated the nomination of Governor Buchanan and he has been as straight a Democrat as there are in any of the other States. In Alabama they had a majority of the legislature and elected an old bourbon democrat, Pugh, to the Senate. In Georgia they had a majority of the legislature and elected still another bourbon, Vance, to the Senate. In South Carolina the Alliance elected its candidate for Governor and the State has been as strongly Democratic as it was before. In Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina a number of members were elected to Congress by Alliance votes and under pledge to Alliance men and they will all go into the Democratic caucus.

On the other hand, in Kansas the Republican Alliance men turned down their Senator, Ingalls, and elected Peffer to the Senate and seven Alliance men to Congress. In Nebraska they elected two Alliance men and caused the election of a Democrat to Congress. In Michigan they united with the Democrats and sent eight out of eleven Congressmen from that State to the Senate and every one of the eight are going into the Democratic caucus. These are facts and it is useless to disguise them. The Alliance is simply a tender to the Democratic party. Only that and nothing more.

The Democrats are having trouble in Washington. There are three classes now in the Democratic party on the silver question. The New England and middle States—that is New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Ohio—have sixty-six Democrats and most of them are opposed to free silver. The States of the Northwest have fifty Democrats and nearly all of these are in favor of free silver or the present law. The Pacific states have only two Democrats and they are free silver men. The South has 109 Democrats and eight Alliance men who will go into the Democratic caucus, making 117 in all who are for free silver almost to a man. If a free silver man of the radical stripe is elected it disgruntles the Democrats of the new England and Middle States. If any man opposed to free silver is selected and organizes his committees to defeat it, the Democrats of the Western and Southern States will be as sullen and surly as were the Brooklyn Democrats when Chapin was defeated for the governorship of New York. It is a very nice muddle and the Republicans can look on and enjoy the fight.

The Red River Valley of Minnesota.

St. Paul Dispatch.

The most northerly county is Kittson, with a population of about 6,000. It is largely prairie, with timber belts along the streams. It contains 1,385,000 acres, less than half of it occupied. The county seat is Hallock, 370 miles from St. Paul and Minneapolis, with which it has direct connection via the Great Northern railway. The other railway market towns are St. Vincent, Humboldt, Kennedy, Northcote and Donaldson.

The second county is Marshall, with a population of nearly 10,000, and an area of over 1,000,000 acres. It is also prairie, with timber along the streams. Warren, the county seat, is on the Great Northern railway, 330 miles from St. Paul, the other railway towns being Argyle and Stephen.

The third county from the north is Polk, with over 30,000 population. The county seat is Crookston, 299 miles from St. Paul. It is the best settled county in the valley, but has room for thousands more people. The Red Lake River, heavily timbered, runs through from east to west, and lumbering is quite an industry. The Great Northern railway has its main line and several branches in the county, with stations at Crookston, Fosston, St. Hilaire, Wiley, Ives, Shirley, Angus, Euclid, McIntosh, Erskine, Mentor, Dugdale, Benoit, Burwell, Carman, Kittson, Russia, Beltrami, Maple Bay, Fisher, Mallory and East Grand Forks.

The fourth county is Norman with a population of nearly 11,000. The county seat, Ada, is 265 miles from St. Paul. The other towns on the Great Northern railway are Halstad, Hendrum, Perley, Sundahl and Rolette. The surface of the county is well divided between prairie and timber.

Clay is the fifth county. It contains about 12,000 population. Moorhead is the county seat, 241 miles from St. Paul. The other towns on the Great Northern railway are Barnesville, Downer, Sabin, Glyndon, Averill, Felton, Borus, Comstock, Elmer, Finkle, Kragnes and Georgetown. Like the others it it a fine agricultural county, with room for more people.

The sixth county, at the upper end of the Red River, is Wilkin. It is largely prairie, and the smallest and least populous, there being about 5,000 inhabitants in the county. Breckenridge, the county seat, is 217 miles from St. Paul, on the Great Northern railway. The other railway towns are Doran, Campbell and Childs.

A POPULAR FAMILY.

JENNIE: "How is it, Kate, that you always seem to 'catch on' to the last new thing? Do what I may, you always seem to get ahead of me."

KATE: "I don't know: I certainly do not make any exertion in that direction."

JENNIE: "Well, during the last few months, for example, you have taken up painting, without any teacher; you came to the rescue when Miss Lafarge deserted her Delsarte class so suddenly, and certainly we are all improving in grace under your instruction; I heard you telling Tommy Eames last evening how his club made mistakes in playing baseball; you seem to be up on all the latest 'fads,' and know just what to do under all circumstances; you entertain beautifully; and in the last month you have improved so in health, owing, you tell me, to your physical culture exercises. Where do you get all of your information from in this little out-of-the way place?—for you never go to the city."

KATE: "Why, Jennie, you will make me vain. I have only one source of information, but it is surprising how it meets all wants. I very seldom hear of anything new but what the next few days bring me full information on the subject. Magic? No! Magazine! And a great treasure it is to us all, for it really furnishes the reading for the whole household: father has given up his magazine that he has taken for years, as he says this one gives more and better information on the subjects of the day; and mother says that it is that that makes her such a famous housekeeper. In fact, we all agree that it is the only really FAMILY magazine published, as we have sent for samples of all of them, and find that one is all for men, another all for women, and another for children only, while this one suits every one of us; so we only need to take one instead of several, and that is where the economy comes in, for it is only $2.00 a year. Perhaps you think I am too lavish in my praise; but I will let you see ours, or, better still, send 10 cents to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a sample copy, and I shall always consider that I have done you a great favor; and may be you will be cutting us out, as you say we have the reputation of being the best informed family in town. If that be so, it is Demorest's Family Magazine that does it."

Good Opinion.

A dispatch from Moorhead says ex-Gov. McGill and ex-Congressman Comstock are of the opinion that the next great boom would be in Minnesota and North Dakota. They thought farming would push to the front as the safest money-making business that could be engaged in, and that the higher prices would be lasting. Mr. Comstock estimates the wheat crop of the Red River Valley this year at 50,000,000 bushels and its cash value at $40,000,000. What a stride is there! Ten or twelve years ago 5,000,000 bushels was looked upon as remarkable. Comstock & White have traveled extensively all over the West this year. It has been their business to watch real estate transactions. While they have great confidence in the development of Montana and Washington and value the stability of their resources, they say there is no part of those or any states that can equal the Red River Valley and the Park Region of Minnesota in productiveness.

If you are an expert shot you will have a good chance to get a Thanksgiving turkey at the turkey shoot this morning on the ice, near the St. Louis hotel. Shot-gun or rifle goes.

A number of our subscribers helped to make us thankful for past subscriptions paid up and renewals. We should be duly thankful to see the whole list collected in by the beginning of the new year.

Miss Maud LeGuee finished a six months' term of school and returned to the city last week. Miss LeGuee has the reputation of being one of the best in Polk County's excellent corps of teachers.

Union Thanksgiving services will be held to-day in the Congregational church at 10 o'clock a. m. The Rev. O. H. Elmer, of the Presbyterian church will preach the sermon. Everybody invited.

Ship your wheat to O. Tharaldson general agent of the Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association, at Duluth, and make from 4 to 7 cents a bushel. For further particulars as to membership, &c., inquire of L. K. Hassel, Grand Forks, N. D. [25-tf]

This item, at this time of the year sounds funny, but it it is a fact that one farmer living near this city just finished his stacking this week. We are told that there is yet a little grain in shock in the county.

St. Hilaire Spectator: Henry Nolan, the Crookston bridge builder, was in town the first of the week with Commissioner DeMers making repairs on the bridge. Mr. Nolan is a competent man for the work.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs' nice fall and winter display of millinery is the admiration of all the ladies who have called at her fashionable millinery parlors on Second street, and the prices are extremely low this fall.

Fisher Bulletin: There was born on Thursday night last to Mr. and Mrs. Uziah Webster, the cutest, cunningest, chin-dimpled little boy that heart could wish for, and as a consequence, friend Uziah is elevated to the highest pinnacle of happiness.

Postmaster General W. B. Dawley informs THE JOURNAL that owing to his great thankfulness of heart on this holiday the general delivery will be open from 8:30 to 10 a. m. instead of 12 as is usual on Sundays and holidays.

Alderman Geo. O. Bubn will be a full-fledged granger next year he having purchased of S. Eliason the southeast quarter section of 10 in Fairfax, with all the teams, machinery, &c., &c. The mayor's example seems to be contagious.

On Thursday last Miss Annie Klinger was married to Mr. Wm. Wagner at the residence of the bride a few miles west of the city, the Rev. G. Harrar officiating. A large number of the friends of the couple were present upon the occasion. THE JOURNAL adds its blessing.

The Wilson company played Little Lord Fauntelroy as a matinee on Saturday afternoon with little Dot Farley in the title role. The little lady took the part better than it was ever played here and won golden opinions from all. Chief Gonyea's little daughter got the prize dolly.

Frank Bivins has sold the river farm to Mr. Desmarais for $25 per acre. He gets $1,000 down and $1,000 on each succeeding 1st day of November until fully paid with interest on unpaid balance at 8 per cent. per annum. There is something over 200 acres in the farm a large portion of it being timber.

On this Thanksgiving Day, if we are disposed to be gloomy in the light of the loss of a crop or anything let us rejoice and be exceedingly thankful that the Minnesota Legislature does not meet this winter to add to the burden of our taxation. Verily, come to think of it the people of Minnesota should rejoice and be exceeding glad.

Ladies, you cannot afford to miss seeing my new fall styles of millinery. The novelties of the season are rare and beautiful. Call and see them. MRS. E. E. BANGS.

Thor Halderson, one of the forehanded farmers of Mentor, dropped in to pay up one year in advance last week. If all who are in arrears on subscription would do likewise it would help us very materially this year. We do not ask impossibilities but we do ask all who can do so to help us out this year either by the cash or by negotiable notes.

On Monday afternoon, at St. Ann's church, Fortuna Benoit was united for life to Miss Mary Gervais, the Rev. Fr. Fayolle officiating. In the evening a large number of friends of the happy couple gathered at the residence of the bride's brother N. S. Gervais where a sumptuous supper awaited and their friendship was attested in a large number of elegant presents. THE JOURNAL adds congratulations and best wishes.

If you want a good farm of 315 acres ready for crop in the spring, with good, substantial buildings, good fences, artesian water and a fine grove call at THE JOURNAL office. We know of just such a place near this city that can be had cheap.

Read our article headed "This Means You," and if you are the one addressed let us hear from you. If you are a hail-sufferer you are not meant. If you lost your crop from any other reason you are not meant. If you have not been able to thresh and do not expect to be able to do so before Jan. 1st '92, a postal card and a minute's time will suffice to give us some idea when you will be able to settle with us and may prevent us making a mistake in your case.

You cannot find more reading matter than we can supply you for $3.00. Take your choice between Demorest and the Review of Reviews at $1.50.

To day is Thanksgiving Day and there is not a dweller in Polk County who has not something to be thankful for. The county as a whole, has reason to be thankful for a bountiful crop, and while it is true that some lost all the crop they had by hail their condition is very much better than it would have been had the disaster been general. We have to be thankful for the most fertile soil on earth in a healthy climate, and, if we will but stop to consider, we shall find that the sum of our blessings exceeds by far the sum of our adversities. Therefore let us rejoice and be thankful while we may.

Geo. Vine, of the Robert street meat market, informs us that his trade is excellent this summer. He purchases nothing but the choicest beeves and well understands the art of cutting up nto nice choice steaks. Try Vine once

The Wilson company finished a week at the Grand on Saturday evening, playing to a full house every evening with standing room only at the last entertainment. The company is exceptionally good, their little baby actress, little Dot Farley, being the best little eight-year-old actress ever before a Crookston audience. As an elocutionist she is hard to beat, and we have heard many an elocutionist of maturer years who could not commence with her recitation of last Wednesday evening. If she lives she will be heard from later. The company promise us a return engagement next spring.

As the state of the weather indicates that beyond a doubt old winter is upon us it will set some farmers to guessing what they are going to do about the wheat crop for next year as the plowing was not half done and spring plowing has never proven to be the best for wheat. Some have decided to put their wheat in on the stubble after a thorough scratching with a spring tooth harrow and in cases where but few weeds went to seed this year we think this plan will work very well, but we believe it will not do as a rule. However, there will be, of necessity, enough of this kind of sowing done next spring to test the question.

This Means You.

If you have been able to pay up that back subscription and have not done so. We have some bills to settle occasioned by our loss of a fine crop of wheat and if everybody who is in arrears on our list will cheerfully do all they can for us at this time we are confident that we shall be able to meet our bills promptly. while some have called and settled and others have written us that they will do so before the time expires that they can settle with us at the rate of $1.50 per year there are yet a few who have paid no attention to our statements whatever. now while it is true that we have never as yet had to make costs for any of our patrons it is a disagreeable (to us) fact that this year we are compelled to make extraordinary efforts to meet our just bills and if we take a different means for collections, with some, it is not that we desire to do it but because we are obliged to show to those whom we owe a disposition to get their money for them, and if after January 1st, we are obliged to place any of these long due accounts in the hands of a lawyer for collection the parties themselves will be to blame for we have given timely warning, many times over and we now repeat that, if, in the case of a few we do not get settlement by Jan. 1st 1892 they will be collected at the full published rates with costs. We shall take this method because we are obliged to do something to collect these past due accounts and we are fully convinced in some cases that the parties whom we refer to are perfectly able to pay the small amount due us. We propose to find out whether they are or not anyhow, unless good reasons are given us why we should not. This article is not written in an unkind nor vindictive spirit nor do we wish it so construed. We mean simply business. We very much need the amounts due us on subscription this fall and we do not believe that we have a dozen names on our list unable to settle with us, if we have we are willing to make every concession in our power in such cases. THE JOURNAL has always advocated the interests of the common people and will always do that as long as it is conducted by the present management. It only asks all who are interested in the welfare of the people to support it and we believe they will.

Writing to renew his subscription to THE JOURNAL, E. F. Smith says:

"Crops were very light through this section this fall—not more than half a yield. We are having quite cold weather, froze up so as to stop all farm work. Business very dull in Spokane; real estate way down but all are hopeful that when the Great Northern reaches here times will be better. President Hill is here now securing right of way through the city."

If you want good cows call and see what we can do for you. We can sell ou one if you want it.

M. Lefebvre has opened a shoemaker shop on Broadway. The old man used to be famous for making fine boots. Time was when it was only necessary to say of a boot "Lefebvre made it" to insure its admission into the best of society and the owner would be the admiration of all of the belles and the envy of all the beaux in the county. Lefebvre's good right hand has lost none of its cunning and he can still put up the nicest work of any of 'em.

In his perambulations after items this week a JOURNAL reporter made the rounds of the various meat markets to see what good things our citizens will have for their Thanksgiving dinner today. Everywhere was to be seen an almost endless display of poultry and what we saw set us to thinking deeply on one great source of revenue for the farmers of this county. Some of the poultry looked plump and fat and was so daintily prepared and tied up ready for roasting that it looked almost good enough to eat right out of hand while some that we saw was so poor and scrawny that it might have sat for one of those pictures of the rooster who was fattened upon a strawstack threshed by Mr. So-and-so's thresher, and it also looked like it might have been run through a threshing machine itself judging by the large pieces of skin that had been knocked off. On the other hand some of the poorest dressed specimens were fat enough but the manner in which they had been prepared for market rendered them almost unsalable. This led us to reflect upon the problem of why a little more care could not just as well have been taken in making them look nice and tempting, especially as this care would add very largely to their marketable value? Choice poultry brings a good price in market while the other kind is a drug.

Got Fired, Probably.

Fisher Bulletin: The editor of the Bulletin was the guest of Mr. Thomas Erwin and his estimmable lady, last Sunday evening, and we were handsomly entertained. Mr. Erwin is a rare and entertining conversationalist, and his better half dishes up viands in the most delicious style. After a two hours' visit and a sumptuous repast, we were COMPELLED to depart.

O. E. Skaar and H. Svenvig have put up a feed mill adjoining the power house and will be prepared to grind feed of every description, commencing to-morrow morning. As they use water-power they can do their work cheaper than any who use steam power.

Rev. Thomas McClary of St. Paul, who is well known here as an interesting speaker will deliver one of his best lectures next Friday evening at the M. E. church. His subject is "The Girl I Left Behind Me." He treats it as follows: Woman; where she came from, where she is going and how she will get there. Lecture to commence at 8 o'clock sharp; admission twenty-five cents. Everybody invited to attend.

St. Hilaire Spectator: Fire was discovered in the rear of the second story of C. G. Rapp's store building last evening about 5 o'clock, but a few pails of water quenched the flames before much damage was done. The fire caught from a defective chimney. Had it not been seen immediately it would have caused a serious fire. It caused considerable excitement as the windows from the south and had the building burned it would have taken the whole block. The chimney was found to be very defective and a new one will be immediately built.

East Grand Forks Courier: Frank J. Cernousek, one of the best informed farmers in Tabor township, and for years past town clerk of the town, as well as postmaster since the post office was established, some years ago, will leave about Dec. 1st for Spillville, Winneshiek County, Iowa, to spend the winter. Mr. Cernousek goes to Iowa for the express purpose of inducing some of his countrymen, now there, to come to the Red River Valley, where a fortune awaits every one who will simply take advantage of the thousand and one opportunities offered. Mr. Cernousek will prove entirely competent to carry his mission to a successful issue.

Harry Wilkins, Esq., in the Chicago Morning News, says: "The President is an amusing play. Many of the incidents are funny. It is better than much of the stuff foisted upon the public as comedy and farce. It is perfectly clean and unobjectionable in dialogue and situations, and the fun is not of the boisterous sort common to the modern farce. Mr. Frank David is an exceptionally good comedian, one who does not depend upon eccentric making up and acrobatic feats to be funny. He is well seconded by Mr. Frank Lane, who plays the part of the easy-going drummer." At the Grand Opera House, Crookston, Tuesday evening, Dec. 1st.

Fisher Bulletin: Dr. Lankester, D. G. M. and Thomas Erwin, P. G., of Fisher Lodge I. O. O. F., went down to St. Hilaire on Monday last to visit Mr. Lucius Ames, who is a member of this lodge. They found Lucius much better than could be expected, and made arrangements to have him removed to Fisher as soon as he was able to make the journey, so that the brothers here could give him better attention. This lodge is determined to carry out the true fraternal relationship of Odd Fellowship, so far as it is possible.

The Breeders' Gazette is one of the best if not the best paper devoted to the interest of farmers and breeders and should be in every farmhouse in Polk County. The Gazette will issue a grand holiday number, which will have a costly lithographed cover, and a large number of magnificent engravings of celebrated animals and will be a valuable number to keep. Send 25 cents to the J. H. Sanders Publishing Co., Chicago, Ill., and secure this valuable number or better yet come in and subscribe for THE JOURNAL one year and get the Gazette for $1.50. The regular price of the Gazette is $2 and THE JOURNAL $2 but you can secure both for $3 paid in advance.

The story of The President is briefly the following: Christopher Crockett, the prospective president of the Deep Down Mining Company, is, with his wife and their sister, stopping at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, en route for Europe. They read in the newspapers a despatch from the West announcing that Mr. Crockett is an embezzler. His wife is frightened and induces her husband to put on the livery of a servant in order to avoid being recognized by the police. Then the usual drummer, who is trying to find Mr. Crockett in order to sell him a bill of goods, is taken for a detective and a detective is taken for a drummer. Finally the drummer is inveigled into announcing that he is Mr. Crockett. He is thereupon promptly arrested, but instead of being taken to jail is allowed to wait about the hotel in the custody of the detective. Mrs. Crockett, in order to keep up the deception, orders dinner. Mr. Jack Innett, the drummer, orders wines and cigars galore, much to the horror of the genuine Mr. Crockett, who disguised as a servant, is obliged to wait on the table. Just as the false Crockett is about to be taken to jail he receives a telegram from his wife announcing the birth of twins. In his joy he betrays himself and the real Crockett is arrested. At this moment another dispatch arrives announcing that there has been no defalcation, but an error in addition. Frank David as "Christopher Crockett," and Frank Jane as "Jack Innett," were both very funny. At the Grand Opera House, Crookston, Tuesday evening, Dec. 1st.

Credit To Whom Credit is Due.

Grand Forks (N. D.) Daily Herald:—The Great Northern Railway officials are entitled to high credit for the interest they are taking in attracting immigration to the Dakotas and Minnesota this year. This company maintains a regular immigration bureau and not only advertises the country extensively through the press and pamphlet literature, but it has sent representatives to all state fairs and expositions with fine displays of farm products. It is also publishing carefully authenticated statements of farm yields this season, which are having a large circulation in the east. If every railway company in the northwest would do as effective advertising work as the Great Northern, an immence influx of desirable settlers would pour into this state in 1892.

A Very Busy Man.

In each of several states of this Union is a village called Woodside—in what state is the one we are about to mention, we leave the reader to guess. How some of them gained the name, whether because they were on the confines of great forests or not, may be conjecured; but that this particular one was named for a man who was a paragon of busy occupation there can be no doubt. As we write we have his card before us: "Rev. —— Wood, editor and proprietor 'Baptist ——;' proprietor Woodside store, Woodside Blacksmith and Carpenter Shop, Woodside Insurance Office, Woodside Stock and Hay Ranch, Woodside Job Printing Office, Woodside Real Estate Office." Only a meat market and hotel need have been added to make him "sole monarch of all"—Woodside. Rev. Wood, all must acknowledge, was a very busy man. In fact this is a country of busy men, this United States; and the western busy man in particular, when he travels, always selects "The Burlington," as the quickest, shortest, and most comfortable line to reach all the chief cities, and if he wants any information about rates of fare, time, or routes, he calls on a ticket agent of this line, or writes to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C., B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

Popular Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

A Dangerous Form of Bribery.

The great commentator, Blackstone, has said that bribery consists in a judge, or other person concerned in the administration of justice, taking any undue reward to influence his behavior in office, or, as stated in an Iowa case, it is giving (and perhaps offering) to another anything of value, or any valuable service intended to influence him in the discharge of a legal duty. The later and broader doctrine is that any attempt to influence an officer in his official conduct, whether in the executive, legislative, or judicial department of the government, by the offer of a reward or pecuniary consideration, is an indictable common law misdemeanor. it will be seen by these definitions that bribery is an act which precedes the act at which it aims, it does not fall within the rule. If I offer a judge to-day a reward to induce him to decide at a future time in my favor, it is bribery; but if he has decided in my favor, and I afterwards present him with a reward, it does not fall strictly within the above definition. And yet this indeed a subtle form of bribery, much more open and evident and base in its effects in this country than bribery according to the definition. Bribery stalks publicly through legislative halls and halls of justice, wearing the thin mask of decency thrown over it in the subtle form which it takes—that of reward after the fact.

Let us see how it works in our courts of justice. In most courts of and dignity there are a certain number of men chosen at the beginning of a term as jurymen. These same men sit upon many cases, not the same twelve on any two cases together, perhaps, but as fast as one case is disposed of the jury is dismissed, and some of the same men at once are called to try the next succeeding case. In most cities it is well known that certain men are chronic jurymen; by some hook or crook they manage to be in the jury box term in and term out. They come to know the judge and the bar personally, forming opinions and prejudices, likes and dislikes, until as fair-minded jurors they are failures. The trial lawyer who is up to the tricks of the forum, is after these men—not to bribe them, of course, but to gain their good will—and how? not by masterly argument, or superior treatment of his case, but by a species of "influence" more powerful than the eloquence or logic of a master advocate. Let us see how it works. Jones is a popular trial lawyer of a certain type familiar enough. Smith is an average juryman. The jury files into the court room agreed on a verdict. Jones proudly hears the word that declares his case triumphant. It takes him about a moment to reach the hand of each juryman as he files out and giving it a hearty grasp, in which is recognized drinks and cigars, the whole company, lawyer and jury, repair to a neighboring resort where the lawyer stands treat. That lawyer is a good fellow. Do you think any of these men are going to allow him a disadvantage in the next case he tries during that term? and some of them will have the chance to give him another decision! The other kind of lawyer is the serious fellow, who wins his case on its merits. The jury decide for him, and, with no other thought in his mind, he nods his thanks to the jury and turns to his next duty, assuming perhaps, that the jury is enjoying sufficient reward in the satisfaction that always comes from doing the right thing. You may say this is an overdrawn picture—that jurymen are not fools nor rogues. The picture is not overdrawn, and is presented to view every day in the year in any city court. All jurymen are not fools and rogues, but there are enough men in any company of twelve susceptible to the influence of men who know how to find the springs of human action, to endanger public justice. Recently a well-known restaurateur ejected a black man from his place and refused him entertainment. The black man sued. The white man won. The jury filed over to the restaurant—the lawyer at the head of the table, the victorious defendant at the other, the jury on both sides. Everything wet and dry "went" on that occasion. The jury then returned to their duties. I am interested to know how many cases that lawyer lost during the balance of that term, with some of these men necessarily on his juries. I have seen juries hang around and wait for the "common courtesies" that have now come to be expected in certain courts. Does the sober and conscientious trial lawyer stand on an even plane with his more genial brother, or has not a species of bribery done its perfect work? Nor is this altogether the fault of the jury system; for judges are not above this sort of influence.

The Ladies Home Journal,

The heart of a woman must be pleased when she sees such a magazine prepared for her special pleasure as is the Christmas Ladies' Home Journal. In every respect is this a model issue. Under a beautiful new cover, printed in a deep red on a background of rich gray, is given a wonderful wealth of good material. Mamie Dickens, the favorite daughter of the great novelist, contributes the first story ever written by her, and this has an interest all its own. Amelia E. Barr has a delightful article on "When I was a Girl;" Mrs. Burton Harrison, author of "The Anglomaniacs," treats at length and most interestingly "Social Life in New York" as only she, as one of Gotham's foremost social leaders, could do; "Christmas on an Old Plantation" is told by Rebecca Cameron, and illustrated by E. W. Kemble; Adelina Patti, Edna Lyall, Mamie Dickens, Lady Mackenzie and Mrs. Kendal write Christmas greetings to American women from 'cross the sea; "The Girl Who Loves to Sing" is told how to train her voice, build it up and preserve it by such eminent singers as Campanini, Clementine De Vere, Minnie Hauk, Maria Roze, Clara Poole and Louise Natali; Hezekiah Butterworth has a long Christmas poem superbly illustrated by W. L. Taylor; The Princess Bismarck is sketched in "Unknown Wives of Well-known Men," while Miss Winnie Davis, daughter of Jefferson Davis, is photographed and sketched under "Clever Daughters of Clever Men;" there is a sweet Christmas story entitled "A Christmas Girl;" Palmer Cox makes his famous "Brownies" have a glorious Christmas tree; Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher continues her glimpses of "Mr. Beecher as I Knew Him," while Dr. Talmage, Maria Parloa, Margaret Bottome, Isabel Nallon and all the sixteen editors of the Journal crowd their departments with the brightest and most readable matter. There is practically no end to the delight in such a magazine as this, and when its price of ten cents is considered, the marvel increases. Twelve such Journals are given for One Dollar a year by The Curtis Publishing Company of Philadelphia.

The opening of the Fort Berthold Indian Reservation in North Dakota to settlement adds about 1,600,000 acres to the public domain. A great deal of this land is very choice and there promises to be quite a rush of settlers, especially to that portion along the Missouri and White Earth Rivers. A new government land office for this district was recently established at Minot, N. D., on the line of the Great Northern Railway. Col. W. C. Plummer, the well known North Dakota editor and orator, is receiver of the office. The Colonel will be pleased to answer inquiries about the country. Address him at Minot, N. D.

Popular Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

A Dangerous Form of Bribery.

The great commentator, Blackstone, has said that bribery consists in a judge, or other person concerned in the administration of justice, taking any undue reward to influence his behavior in office, or, as stated in an Iowa case, it is giving (and perhaps offering) to another anything of value, or any valuable service intended to influence him in the discharge of a legal duty. The later and broader doctrine is that any attempt to influence an officer in his official conduct, whether in the executive, legislative, or judicial department of the government, by the offer of a reward or pecuniary consideration, is an indictable common law misdemeanor. it will be seen by these definitions that bribery is an act which precedes the act at which it aims, it does not fall within the rule. If I offer a judge to-day a reward to induce him to decide at a future time in my favor, it is bribery; but if he has decided in my favor, and I afterwards present him with a reward, it does not fall strictly within the above definition. And yet this indeed a subtle form of bribery, much more open and evident and base in its effects in this country than bribery according to the definition. Bribery stalks publicly through legislative halls and halls of justice, wearing the thin mask of decency thrown over it in the subtle form which it takes—that of reward after the fact.

Let us see how it works in our courts of justice. In most courts of and dignity there are a certain number of men chosen at the beginning of a term as jurymen. These same men sit upon many cases, not the same twelve on any two cases together, perhaps, but as fast as one case is disposed of the jury is dismissed, and some of the same men at once are called to try the next succeeding case. In most cities it is well known that certain men are chronic jurymen; by some hook or crook they manage to be in the jury box term in and term out. They come to know the judge and the bar personally, forming opinions and prejudices, likes and dislikes, until as fair-minded jurors they are failures. The trial lawyer who is up to the tricks of the forum, is after these men—not to bribe them, of course, but to gain their good will—and how? not by masterly argument, or superior treatment of his case, but by a species of "influence" more powerful than the eloquence or logic of a master advocate. Let us see how it works. Jones is a popular trial lawyer of a certain type familiar enough. Smith is an average juryman. The jury files into the court room agreed on a verdict. Jones proudly hears the word that declares his case triumphant. It takes him about a moment to reach the hand of each juryman as he files out and giving it a hearty grasp, in which is recognized drinks and cigars, the whole company, lawyer and jury, repair to a neighboring resort where the lawyer stands treat. That lawyer is a good fellow. Do you think any of these men are going to allow him a disadvantage in the next case he tries during that term? and some of them will have the chance to give him another decision! The other kind of lawyer is the serious fellow, who wins his case on its merits. The jury decide for him, and, with no other thought in his mind, he nods his thanks to the jury and turns to his next duty, assuming perhaps, that the jury is enjoying sufficient reward in the satisfaction that always comes from doing the right thing. You may say this is an overdrawn picture—that jurymen are not fools nor rogues. The picture is not overdrawn, and is presented to view every day in the year in any city court. All jurymen are not fools and rogues, but there are enough men in any company of twelve susceptible to the influence of men who know how to find the springs of human action, to endanger public justice. Recently a well-known restaurateur ejected a black man from his place and refused him entertainment. The black man sued. The white man won. The jury filed over to the restaurant—the lawyer at the head of the table, the victorious defendant at the other, the jury on both sides. Everything wet and dry "went" on that occasion. The jury then returned to their duties. I am interested to know how many cases that lawyer lost during the balance of that term, with some of these men necessarily on his juries. I have seen juries hang around and wait for the "common courtesies" that have now come to be expected in certain courts. Does the sober and conscientious trial lawyer stand on an even plane with his more genial brother, or has not a species of bribery done its perfect work? Nor is this altogether the fault of the jury system, for judges are not above this sort of influence.

The Ladies Home Journal,

The heart of a woman must be pleased when she sees such a magazine prepared for her special pleasure as is the Christmas Ladies' Home Journal. In every respect is this a model issue. Under a beautiful new cover, printed in a deep red on a background of rich gray, is given a wonderful wealth of good material. Mamie Dickens, the favorite daughter of the great novelist, contributes the first story ever written by her, and this has an interest all its own. Amelia E. Barr has a delightful article on "When I was a Girl;" Mrs. Burton Harrison, author of "The Anglomaniacs," treats at length and most interestingly "Social Life in New York" as only she, as one of Gotham's foremost social leaders, could do; "Christmas on an Old Plantation" is told by Rebecca Cameron, and illustrated by E. W. Kemble; Adelina Patti, Edna Lyall, Mamie Dickens, Lady Mackenzie and Mrs. Kendal write Christmas greetings to American women from 'cross the sea; "The Girl Who Loves to Sing" is told how to train her voice, build it up and preserve it by such eminent singers as Campanini, Clementine De Vere, Minnie Hauk, Maria Roze, Clara Poole and Louise Natali; Hezekiah Butterworth has a long Christmas poem superbly illustrated by W. L. Taylor; The Princess Bismarck is sketched in "Unknown Wives of Well-known Men," while Miss Winnie Davis, daughter of Jefferson Davis, is photographed and sketched under "Clever Daughters of Clever Men;" there is a sweet Christmas story entitled "A Christmas Girl;" Palmer Cox makes his famous "Brownies" have a glorious Christmas tree; Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher continues her glimpses of "Mr. Beecher as I Knew Him," while Dr. Talmage, Maria Parloa, Margaret Bottome, Isabel Nallon and all the sixteen editors of the Journal crowd their departments with the brightest and most readable matter. THE DULUTHIANS.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE TRIP AS RELATED BY DR. BARRETT.

Dr. Barrett, in the Duluth News:—What cities struck us as being the most prosperous? Well, that is hard to say. If there were any that bore more outward evidence of prosperity, I should say Grand Forks, Crookston and Hillsboro. The two former are as marvelous in their way as Duluth. Buildings that would do credit to cities of 100,000 inhabitants adorn their streets. And what is better still, when it comes to public matters, they all pull on one rope—and in the same direction. Where were we received the best? Now that is a difficult question to answer. There were places where we had but a few moments to stop, where we were as warmly welcomed as human hearts could desire. We were clearly made to understand that. Where we stopped long enough to give the people an opportunity to spread themselves they simply covered the universe. We gave neither Grand Forks nor Winnipeg the opportunity they desired—but they had opportunity to convince us we had given them enough time. Crookston was reached in time—and there the most elaborate reception was given us. It was a "corker" and no mistake. What was accomplished by the trip? In my judgment every business man in Duluth will realize and recognize that the expedition was eminently profitable and successful. An interchange of opinions upon all points of material interest—suggestions made and received as to the best way to surmount the obstacles that are to be overcome to bring these great natural allies—Duluth and the Red River Valley—into the relationship that is only natural—closer personal knowledge of each other and of the mutual interests and possibilities—all these will bear fruit, and that right speedily. Next to the great crop, and second only to it, is the desire and hope that they may be able to dump it into the lap of Duluth.

CURED OF INTEMPERANCE.

A MILWAUKEE EDITOR MEETS HIS FAMILY IN ST. PAUL, FREED FROM THE CURSE OF STRONG DRINK.

HE GIVES THE REASONS WHY DR. KEELEY REFUSES TO MAKE PUBLIC THE SECRET OF HIS CURE.

St. Paul Pioneer Press.

C. S. Clark, city editor of the Milwaukee Journal, and wife had a happy reunion at the Merchants' yesterday. Mr. Clark had come direct from Dwight, Ill., where he has just received treatment for the use of alcoholic liquors, and his wife arrived on a morning train from Jamestown, N. D., where she has been on a visit to friends. Having been freed from a habit that has cursed his life, he hastened west to meet his loving wife and child, without even stopping off in Milwaukee to greet his many friends who have been waiting to welcome him home. Mr. Clark is a firm believer in the efficacy of the Keeley treatment and tells a wonderful story of his downfall and the marvelous cure which has been wrought in his own case. He said he had been for years trying to break the drink habit, which had so fastened upon him that life had become a burden. He would reform and live a sober life for months, simply to fall again when the temptation was too strong.

His last reformation, he said, had lasted for over a year, but it was a constant fight with his evil spirit. Three weeks ago he attended a banquet, and one glass of wine ended the long struggle. Prior to that he had been championing the Keeley treatment, and when he fell he asked for a leave of absence and left for Dwight. When he arrived there he was under the influence of liquor, but after three days' treatment he voluntarily refused whiskey. Talking of his experience, he said: "On my arrival in Dwight it would have taken me three weeks, in which I would have suffered the agonies of the damned, to have sobered up under the old treatment; but in three days the work of three weeks was accomplished. I was given all the whiskey I desired, but at the end of the third day I refused it. During the remainder of my visit I had liquor on all sides of me, but I had no desire to drink. Before I left home I was never free from a craving for strong drink, but that has left me, and now, on my graduation from the institution, I feel I am a free man.

"While at Dwight I met some of the best known men in the country, and when I left there were 1,000 patients in the institution. There was not a vacant house in the town, and Dr. Keeley, who had lately returned from Europe, telegraphed to Chicago and other large cities that he could not take any more patients. My room-mate was an ex-consul to Europe, and I made the acquaintance of a well known attorney of Stillwater, who has received a cure similar to my own. I am now where I was before I began drinking, but the physicians advise all patients to avoid temptation.

"What do I think of Dr. Keeley? He is a sincere man, and is working for the good of his fellow men. He gave me good reasons why he did not make his discovery known. In speaking on this subject last Thursday he said: "On my arrival in New York from Europe my attention was called by a crowd of reporters to the fact that the doctors were clamoring for a formula of my discovery. I remembered the fate of Dr. Koch and the obscurity into which he had fallen. A premature announcement of his discovery destroyed his reputation. He stood head and shoulders above all other physicians in Germany and now his name is almost forgotten. When he refused to disclose his discovery the cry of "Quack" was was raised, and driven on by the young emperor he was compelled to speak. No sooner had he made known his cure than hundreds of people began to manufacture lymph, which was sold to doctors from all parts of the world. Some that was made became so deteriorated on its way to America that it actually became poison and killed the patients on whom it was tried. Dr. Koch's lymph was a success, but he was held responsible for the effect of the lymph, no matter who manufactured it. To-day his lymph was used with good results all over the world, but Dr. Koch is not "in it." I will not disclose my discovery. It would ruin me and my cure. I will keep it for the wives and mothers of this land. Druggists and doctors have been publishing analyses, but they have not disturbed me. The alleged formulæ have not the first ingredients correct."

Mr. Clark, in a letter published in Saturday's Milwaukee Journal, has the following to say of the death of Col. John F. Miles of New York:

"The death of that eminent man and able writer in New York cast a shadow of deep sorrow in Dwight, but it has not lessened faith here. We all realize with thankful hearts that, although a martyr himself, Col. John F. Mines, by his magazine article, has rescued fully 500 drunkards from sharing his fate, as fully that number came here by reason of his article, and were or are being cured. His was one of the most desparate cases ever taken here, and the only wonder to those who met him and understood his condition is that he stood grandly up for nearly six months. The cause of his final fall was domestic sorrows. He was bordering on paralysis when he reached Dwight."

It has been learned that four or five Duluth gentlemen have purchased from Dr. Keeley the right to use his discovery in New York State. They opened a hospital at White Plains, and it is stated that they are meeting with great success.

Minneapolis Journal:—A brainy grocer in the 5th ward has recently been dunning bad debtors in a decidedly novel way. When a debt is peculiarly aged he sends a little note to the bashful payee, bearing these words and nothing more:

"Tis true

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Oct. 29th, 1891.]
[Last publication Dec. 10th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Rudolph Jacklin and Bertha Jacklin, his wife, to Farmers' Trust Company, bearing date the 11th day of June, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of June, A. D. 1889, at 8:30 o'clock a. m., in book 45 of mortgages, on pages 419, 420, 421, 422, 423.

And whereas the description of the premise in said mortgage contained is as follows: Situate, lying and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The south half of the southeast quarter (s½ se¼), the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter (nw¼ se¼) and the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter (sw¼ ne¼) of Section twenty-nine, (29), in Township one hundred fifty-four (154) north. Range forty-three (43) west.

And whereas the said Farmers' Trust Company, the owner and holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth and represented by the notes therein described upon which default has occurred due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest upon the notes in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to wit: Six hundred thirty-six and 46-100 dollars, ($636.46), and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The south half of the southeast quarter (s½ se¼), the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter (nw¼ se¼), and the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter (sw¼ ne¼) of Section twenty-nine (29) in Township one hundred fifty-four (154) north, Range forty-three (43) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less, according to the United States government survey thereof, in said Polk County and State of Minnesata, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on SATURDAY, THE 12TH DAY OF DECEMBER, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, ANDREAS HAGBERG, an unmarried man, of Polk County, and State of Minnesota, as mortgagor, did, on the 15th day of December, A. D. 1888, duly execute and deliver to Eleanor E. Wilmerding of the County of Suffolk, State of New York, his mortgage bearing date of December 15th, A. D. 1888, whereby he mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The northeast quarter of Section 26, Township 148, Range 45 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagor to said mortgagee or order, which said mortgage was on the 17th day of December, A. D. 1888, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 186; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of fifty dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-eight dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagor, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, her heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagor or any other party; and

Whereas, the said mortgagee, Eleanor E. Wilmerding, has exercised her option to consider and declare and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable and;

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred thirty-four and 82-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court-house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 28th day of November, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash; to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty Dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated, Oct. 12th, A. D. 1891.

Dyrdal, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 9th day of May, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 18th day of May, A. D. 1889, at 9:15 o'clock a. m., in book 45 of mortgages, on pages 174-178; and

Whereas default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $7.37 that became due November 1st, 1889, $7.50 that became due May 1st, 1890, $7.50 that became due November 1st, 1890, and $7.50 that became due May 1st, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Two hundred ninety-five and 42-100 ($295.42) dollars; and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southeast quarter (se¼) of the northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-eight (28), and the southwest quarter (sw¼) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section twenty-seven (27), Township one hundred and forty-nine (149), Range forty-two (42), containing 80 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof. All of said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State on MONDAY, THE 14TH DAY OF DECEMBER, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Marcus E. Stockland, unmarried, mortgagor, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 31st day of May, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 31st day of May, A. D. 1889, at 11:55 o'clock a. m., in book 45 of mortgages, on pages 310-13.

And whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $10.00 that became due November 1st, 1889, $12.00 that became due May 1st, 1890, $12.00 that became due November 1st, 1890, and $12.00 that became due May 1st, 1891. and whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum to-wit: Four hundred fifty-three and 27-100 ($453 27-100) dollars; and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section twenty-four (24), Township one hundred fifty-four (154), Range forty-five (45), containing 159 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises and twenty-five ($25 00) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and twenty-two 40-100 ($122.40-100) dollars, interest which became due on the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1891, which default has continued to the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Andrew G. Hanson, a widower, mortgagor to J. E. Boily, mortgagee, bearing date the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1890, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 24th day of July, A. D. 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 49 of mortgages, on page 148.

And whereas, the said J. E. Boily, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of sixteen hundred and twenty-two 40-100 ($1,622.40-100) dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of eight per cent. per annum from the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1891, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: All that tract or parcel of land described as the southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-four (34), Township one hundred and fifty-one (151), Range forty-four (44), according to the government survey thereof, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on MONDAY, THE 21st DAY OF DECEMBER, 1891, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of sixteen hundred and twenty-two 40-100 dollars, and interest and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 1st, 1891.

ED. JOURNAL.—

For three days a part of the speakership contest was carried to New York, Messrs. Crisp, Mills and Springer having gone to that city to endeavor to secure the votes of the twenty-three New York Democrats and the fourteen New England Democrats. It is said, and presumably with truth, that the New England Democrats with the exception of two had determined to support Mills while the New York Democrats would consolidate under the direction of the Tammany Tiger in favor of Crisp. Mr. Mills denied the report that he had pledged himself against free silver to secure the support of the New England Democracy and Mr. Crisp declared that he had made no arrangements with the Tiger. All three of these gentlemen have been coquetting, however, with the Tiger and with New England. It would be a foregone conclusion that, if any one of these should receive the consolidated vote of the East, he had made pledges which prevented him from organizing a movement in favor of a bill for free coinage. There are but three Democrats in Congress from Pennsylvania and east of there who will not vote against free coinage and out of the fifty-two Democratic members not less than forty-five of them would vote to repeal the present silver law. Outside of these fifty-two there are probably twenty more who will agree with them and the announcement of Cleveland that he was opposed, as heretofore, to free silver has increased the number in the south and west where Cleveland is looked upon as a sort of Democratic demi-god or Chinese Joss. These eastern and middle States gentlemen in the Democratic ranks need not bother themselves on this question. The speaker of the next House of Representatives will make a committee on coinage, weights and measures that will report a free coinage bill and all efforts to the contrary will be futile.

The grand meeting at Indianapolis did not materialize in the strength that was expected. The lowest estimate of the number of people who were to be there was 15,000, and the more enthusiastic of the boomers of this movement made it 70,000. As a matter of fact the attendance did not materially increase the floating population of Indianapolis and the opening address was made in a hall which seats 5,000 people and there were less than 500 present. There was trouble in the camp, too. A part of the Farmers' Alliance members wanted a third party and another portion did not. The Third Party Executive Committee was there and they succeeded in capturing a majority of the delegates to each one of the five organizations present. The result has been the agreement to hold a conference on the 22d of February next and the people's party, the Farmers' Alliance, the Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association, the Federation of Labor and the Knights of Labor will each be represented by 25 delegates with one for each ten thousand members. This conference is authorized to set forth a platform of principles to be submitted to each of the old parties. It is well understood that neither of the old parties will accept this platform and then Jerry Simpson and other third party men declare that they will adopt the declaration as a platform and nominate candidates behind whom there will be more than four million votes. The anti-Subtreasury men in the Alliance attempted to present a protest against the Subtreasury and Land Loan Bill and were severely sat upon, whereupon they withdrew, published a call for a meeting at Memphis, Tennessee, to organize a Farmers' Alliance in opposition to the principles laid down in the Ocala platform, and then sent out a two column article in which they accused McCune, the general secretary, of having wrecked the alliance stores in Texas and made a fortune out of it or of having tried to sell the party out and various other little crimes of like nature. Altogether there seems to have been a very inharmonious time at the meeting in Indianapolis.

So that every one may understand distinctly the condition as to political power in the next House of Representatives, we give the political complexion of the Members from each State, in groups as to locality:

Tennessee	8	0	2

These figures show that, with the eight Alliance votes which will surely go with them, the Southern Democrats will have 117 votes and the Northern Democrats 118. This is the first time in the history of the party that the Democrats of the north have had a majority of the votes in the Democratic caucus of the House of Representatives.

But neither the Democrats from the North nor those from the South are all agreed with each other as to the proper policies to pursue in the incoming Congress.

The Democrats from New England, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania are opposed to the free coinage of silver. These will be reinforced by a few other Democrats from Ohio, other Northwestern States and the South. Some of this wing of the party will even insist that the present law, providing for the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces of silver per month, shall be repealed.

On the other hand, almost every Democrat from the South and West is pledged in favor of a free coinage law. It is doubtful if, with the Republicans uniting with the Eastern and Middle State Democrats, a free coinage law can be passed. This question of free coinage will be a factor of great importance in the selection of the candidate for Speaker. The free coinage men are determined that no one shall be nominated who will not agree to make a coinage committee that will report a free silver bill, whilst on the other hand the Democratic opponents of free coinage will endeavor to secure the nomination of some one who will not appoint such a committee. As, however, there not probably more than 85 out of 235 Democrats who are opposed to free silver, it may be taken as an assured fact that a free coinage speaker will be elected.

Canadian Excursions.

Round trip tickets will be sold by the Great Northern from here to Montreal, and Ontario and Quebec points west of Montreal for $40 on Dec. 1st and 8th, Dec. 15th to 22d inclusive, and Dec. 29th, good for 90 days—15 days going, same returning. Extension of time allowed at small additional cost. Tickets to points east of Montreal in Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia sold at one fare for the round trip from Montreal added to the $40 rate from here. Choice of route and close connection with different lines from St. Paul. A sufficient party can get the use of a tourist sleeping car, the cost of which will be for a double bunk $1 to St. Paul and $2 to Chicago. W. W. FEGAN,

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Dec. 1.—The street car system of Duluth is becoming a very extensive one. There are now on Superior street and on the main line to West Duluth about nine miles of double track electric line, from Superior street to Woodland Park five miles more, of which 1½ are double tracked, making the total of the trackage about 25 miles. The system in use is the trolley wire, and there are no better roads in the country than this. The company has its line equipped with 60 pound steel rails, the finest of cars and gives the best of service. For next year the extensions planned include about three miles to Lakeside, and a mile on Duluth Heights, connecting the chief parts of that division with the elevated cable road which runs up Seventh avenue west, from Superior to Ninth street, a distance of little less than a mile. In addition to this service is the line of the Duluth Belt Line road from West Duluth to Bay View Heights, which is three miles long. In all, Duluth has over 26 miles of road which belongs to her street car system, and this will soon be greatly increased.

The line to West Duluth runs in competition with Short Line trains, and although not yet fully completed it is taking traffic away from them. Eventually it will have nearly all of it. The company finds that to take care of its business it must increase its rolling stock about 50 per cent. It will provide for its West Duluth line cars 35 feet long, with a capacity for 125 passengers. A new line is under construction from Fourth street to a point on Woodland avenue, to give the Woodland Park road a better grade, and so increase the character of its service to that rapidly growing suburb.

The elevated cable road, which was opened Monday for traffic, is one of the finest roads of its kind to be found anywhere. It is built on great columns of solid masonry, so high above the streets as not to interfere with traffic on them. From Superior to Ninth street it is 2,975 feet long, rising in that distance 515 feet. Outside the stone foundation and pillars the work is all iron and steel. At the top is an immense power house, with an engine of 1,000 horse power. There are two cars, run by great wire cables. Their hoisting capacity of 80 tons per car. These cars will carry not only passengers but vehicles of all kinds. It takes but a short time to make the trip to the top. The grade is not nearly so heavy as that on the various Pittsburg planes, but it is much longer than any other road of the kind there or in other cities. In most roads of the kind the greatest care of the engineer is to provide for the safety of the passenger, and the ordinary road has three modes of stopping a car and preventing accidents. This road has five, or more than any other road in the country, and so perfect are they that it can be said to be almost impossible that an accident can occur. The chances are not one in ten thousand. At Ninth street the elevated road touches the terrace drive, of which most visitors to Duluth are acquainted, and also Highland avenue, a new thoroughfare opened through Duluth Heights as far back as the fifth division, and on which will be constructed the electric line spoken of above. This will open up the prettiest and most available tract of the big hill against which Duluth, for a distance, is built, and it is expected will have the effect of stretching out the boundaries of the residence portion of the city.

Until 15 months ago Duluth suffered from poor street car service and little of it. Mules had always been the motive power. Now everything runs by electricity, except the elevated road, and that this new and improved service is playing a most important part in the development of the city is easy to be seen.

The excitement over the proposed purchase by the city of the gas and water works which now belong to a private corporation, is all over. For a while it was very great. For a day or two there were a good many sensational features to the question, one of which was the belief by many of a great over-estimate of the values of the plants by the expert engineer employed by the city. The question of purchase was decided by vote of the people in the negative and by a large majority.

Duluth had another big week in wheat receipts and shipments. Receipts last week were 2,489,490 bu. and shipments 2,169,148. Both were cut down by bad weather. So far this month the receipts have been 8,900,000 bu., and for the entire 30 days will be over 10,000,000, or 1,000,000 more than the champion record of October. From September 1 to Saturday receipts here were 24,638,541 bu. and shipments 20,424,696. Minneapolis for the same time had received 21,880,700 bu., or 4,868,000 bu. less than Duluth. Yesterday and to-day about 1,400,000 bu. have been shipped. The vessel charters run up to December 5th, and the total between now and that time will be 4,000,000 bu. more or about 33,000,000 bu. for the season. This will be 13,000,000 bu. more than Duluth has ever before shipped in one season.

The vessels carrying wheat are making great money now, though they must necessary take great risks. The latest charters were at 9½ cents to Buffalo, or 2 cents advance in the week. The new whaleback barge 117 took as her initial cargo 93,000. At 9½ cents this will bring her in $8,835, and the profits would be in the neighborhood of $8,000. The risks of navigation now are very great. HAYS.

More Peaceful News from Chili.

It is announced that the Chilian Government is now disposed to make the reparation that justice demands for the inhuman murder of United States seamen in the streets of Valparaiso. It is to be hoped that the statement will prove true. The United States has no desire to enter into a contest with Chili or any other South American nation. The Monroe doctrine, which is as vital to-day as at the time of its promulgation, binds the United States to repel by force, if necessary, any attempt of European monarchies to establish a kingly form of government in Latin America. In addition to this moral protectorate, the best interests of this country and South America lie in amicable and reciprocal trade relations.

There is every reason why Chili should be friendly with the United States. It is the wish of this nation to see every South American republic prosperous and independent. The course of our government in the matter has been exceedingly temperate. Nothing like a blustering or bullying tone has been at any time assumed. We have asked only the satisfaction of justice. Nevertheless it has been evident that the moderation of this government arose from no lack of firmness, and that all the resources of the nation would be called upon if they were needed to enforce justice. It is a matter for sincere congratulation if the Chilians have concluded to grant the reasonable demands of the United States.

[30-37] W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

Out in Montana.

S. O. Hinsdale, in Fergus Falls Journal.

I left here some weeks ago over the Great Northern, went through the Devils Lake country and thence to Great Falls, Mont., a town that I am much pleased with. I tell you, great business is there. They are now erecting a bank building, to cost $125,000. What makes the town? Its water power and mining interests. A smelter is here which has already cost $500,000 and will cost $3,000,000 to complete. From Great Falls I went to Armington, in the Neihart and Barker mining country; thence by stage to Lewiston, the county seat; and thence to Maiden, a mining camp. Here I stayed two weeks and inspected the mining interests. I am pleased with the prospects. The mines produce silver, gold, lead, etc. There is a great chance to make money in mining property and real estate in all these places.

Small Farms Pay Best.

An argument in favor of small but well tilled farms is to be found in cases like the following, clipped from the Park River (N. D.) Gazette-Witness: Edward Code, from 7 acres, measured, threshed 414 bushels of wheat, or 57 1-7 bushels per acre, the grain being also measured. This was a small piece of timothy sod, in prime condition for a crop. Benjamin Code, from 12 acres of grass sod, threshed 620 bushels, or nearly 52 bushels per acre. In Rolette County, N.D., according to the Dunseith Herald, John Frost threshed 618 bushels from 12 acres, an average of 51½ bushels. Arthur Scott, in the same county, had 2,846 bushels of oats from 28 acres, an average of 102 bushels. The Manvel (N. D.) Graphic claims the ribbon for Harry Bushaw, of Grand Forks County, who had 132 bushels of wheat from two acres of summer fallow land. Both land and grain measured by doubtful persons.

The Minneapolis Times has discovered that Blaine can call the turn on the presidential nomination. Some people are naturally slow but the Times man breaks the record.

SHIP YOUR WHEAT

While I am using present warehouse and there is room, my contractors can have wheat of their own raising shipped for one cent a bushel including use of sacks to haul the grain there. Others can have same for two cents a bushel. I have a large supply of sacks and will rent them on reasonable terms. Two or more persons can join and fill a car. Four days at least allowed to fill a car at above prices and as much more time as desired, if room is not needed for others.

Something About Winds.

To the Amerian, with his practical views and iconoclastical materialism, wind is simply an agitation of the atmosphere. Before the advent of steam, he ground the meal for his daily bread with the aid of wind; he avails himself of it yet to waft his trading vessels across the sea. If it is gentle, he calls it a breeze; if it comes with a sudden rush, roar and whirl, depositing his house on the next quarter section, his cattle in the next township, and makes him hunt the cellar in a hurry, he names it a cyclone—and proceeds to get himself together again. The ancients, however, with their tendency to "see sermons in stones and books in running brooks," personified all things in nature and named the winds—Boreas, the North wind; Eurus, the East wind; Zephrus, the West wind; and Notus, the South wind. These were the sons of Astræa (the star man) and Eos (the dawn). Just at this time people in the Northwestern states are (some of them) dreading the piercing blasts of Boreas and thinking about a flight to the orange groves of Florida or California. The line for the south bound traveler to take is "The Burlington," which has its own tracks to Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph and Omaha, where close connections are made with the railways leading South, South-West and West. Through tickets and full information can be had from agents of "The Burlington," or by addressing W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, C., B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

A. A. Olds is under the weather this week. Says he has a genuine attack of LaGrippe.

W. O. Wilson has the job of clearing the wreck of the Reckett building on Robert street.

Joseph Hoch went down to Wabasha County last week after a carload of nice corn-fed hogs.

Munson Bros. were up from Fertile on Monday settling with S. L. Collins for machine extras.

Fred Durand folded his tent like the Arabs and made a quiet sneak on the twin cities this week.

W. E. Slocum has taken possession of rooms in the Fournet block as a residence for the winter.

The Journal is informed that A. Danielson recently sold a quarter section of land for $5,000.

If you have some good oats and are behind on subscription, call and see us. We want 1,000 bushels.

A new sidewalk is being laid on the east side of south Main street in front of the Hack & Gallasch lots.

Did you observe that beautiful bright rainbow on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 1st? An event worth remembering.

Rev. R. H. Battey expects to exchange pulpits with the Glyndon Congregational pastor on Sunday next.

They say that doctor M. Leguee can "yump" higher than any actor on the stage. Mike denies this, however.

Martin Lally has gone out to the lumber camps. The company expects to put in a larger cut than ever before.

If you want lots of reading matter for the coming long winter evenings, call in and see what we can do for you.

Fred Teidt was down from Euclid on Monday. Says farmers are improving the fine weather to finish their threshing.

Everybody seemed to be improving the warm spell on Monday, judging by the way the storm porches and windows went up.

Ladies, you cannot afford to miss seeing my new fall styles of millinery. The novelties of the season are rare and beautiful. Call and see them. Mrs. E. E. Bangs.

That was a surprise party, that rain on Tuesday afternoon. Everybody asked his neighbor—"well, what next, I wonder?"

Marshal Barlow brought over another prisoner from East Grand Forks this week to take the place of the one recently escaped.

Comrade J. W. Kelley and wife, of Sletten, came down on Monday evening remaining in the city until Wednesday morning.

Dr. M. Leguee is kept busy attending to the wants of the equine family. He has been so busy that he could not get his threshing done.

I. U. Jennings is daily expecting his new furniture. He is an old experienced hand at the business and knows how to buy as well as how to sell.

If you want a good winter cow, remember the combination auction sale at Brown's old barn on 5th street on Saturday, Dec. 12th, 1891.

Rev. F. C. Whitney and family departed for his new field of labor on Monday evening, accompanied by the best wishes of hosts of friends.

Comrade Snyder talks of a visit to the old home east some time in January if he can get through threshing and have enough left to settle up all around.

I. U. Jennings will open a new furniture store immediately upon the arrival of his new stock now on the way. Expects his goods some time this week.

Geo. Vine is nursing a sore rib caused by a fall by which he cracked one of those useful members. George is right on deck to attend to all orders, just the same.

Mrs. M. Mossefin is reported to be seriously ill.

Mrs. Casper Sands has been quite ill for a few days.

Fred Durand returned on Wednesday morning from the twin cities.

County Attorney Holston took a run over to East Grand Forks this week.

This has been a busy week for The Journal force, thanks to our friends.

Skaar & Svenvig have their feed mill in running order ready to grind out all orders that may be received.

Rev. Gill, of Glyndon will occupy the pulpit at the Congregational church on Sunday next day and evening.

Remember the combination sale of stock and machinery at Brown's old stables on Saturday, Dec. 12th.

Dr. G. G. Henault returned on Wednesday morning looking as bright and fresh as one of dad's new dollars.

On Tuesday evening, Dec. 1st, Mr. Leon Wichterman was united for life to Miss Kate O'Brien, the Rev. R. H. Battey officiating.

If you want a good cow come and see what we can do for you. We have a few more left that we will sell you right. Call early for choice.

Louis Berthiaume reports that the sale held at the residence of Leocadie Fontaine, at Gentilly on Monday last was well attended and everything sold well.

Rumor says that Moe is trying to rent that new house at Mentor. That spoils our calculations and knocks our little prophecy plum out in the first round.

The Red Lake Falls Gazette has suspended publication and the outfit, we are told, will go to Great Falls, Mont., where O. M. Holmes will start another paper.

Rev. W. Becker, pastor of the German Lutheran church in this city, and Miss Emma Laux, were married on Sunday last, Rev. M. J. Westphal officiating.

Johnny Ackermann, of Stephen, Minn., talks of starting a restaurant in Hack & Gallasch's old building on the corner of Main and Second streets, at an early date.

A meeting of the Old Settlers Association of the Red River Valley is to be held at Grand Forks on December 10th. All who came previous to 1880 are eligible to membership.

St. Paul is making heroic efforts to capture the Democratic National Convention. We hope she will succeed as easily as Minneapolis captured the Republican Convention.

Miss Susie McFate, of Mentor, was in the city the guest of Miss Belle Kyle the latter part of last week and left for Grand Forks on Sunday morning to visit with friends in that city.

Geo. Vine, of the Robert street meat market, informs us that his trade is excellent this summer. He purchases nothing but the choicest beeves and well understands the art of cutting up into nice choice steaks. Try Vine once

The Reckett block has been boarded up to enable the workmen to do the finishing work. The heating apparatus is up and in working order and the block will soon be completed.

Rev. J. C. Whitney preached his farewell sermon at the Baptist church on Sabbath day. Mr. Whitney has made many friends while he has lived in this city who will regret to see him go.

The winter term of the district court will commence next week. Capt. Von Bornstadt, the regular court stenographer will be on deck again, having safely returned from his foreign tour.

It keeps W. E. Walker guessing nowadays to provide storm-windows. He managed so keep up with his orders until the glass gave out and then he had to sit still and swea—t until more came.

Now is the time to invest in city property before the coming tide of immigration causes it to double. There is money in our city property at present prices and the wise investor will catch on now.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs' nice fall and winter display of millinery is the admiration of all the ladies who have called at her fashionable millinery parlors on Second street, and the prices are extremely low this fall.

I. U. Jennings is selling a stock of merchandise in the Jacobus block on east Broadway. As it is a stock taken on execution the price of an article cuts no figure in the sale—the only object is to sell the goods.

The Times is a daily visitor at The Journal office since Tuesday evening. Mac thoroughly understands journalistic courtesy and the Times is a bright, spicy little sheet. The Journal extends the right hand of fellowship.

Al. Vine came down from Warren on Monday with a carload of cattle for St. Paul, and told a Journal reporter that he expects to bring back a carload of hogs. Moreover Al said that he intends to come to Crookston to live this winter.

Tom Bjoin commenced threshing a week ago Monday and has had all kinds of luck since having been obliged to quit several times owing to cold weather and breakdowns. He finally got to work again in good earnest on Tuesday.

Persons visiting their old homes in the East this winter should take along printed matter descriptive of their new homes in the Northwest. Take copies of this paper with you and ask agents of the Great Northern Railway for a supply of publications. [33-36]

If you want good cows call and see what we can do for you. We can sell ou one if you want it.

Frank Arnold and Louis Columbus have rented the opera house. The boys take hold like old hands at the business and The Journal wishes them success.

A few English sparrows have evideidently decided to make their home in Crookston. These birds are said to be great nuisances and the proper thing would be to exterminate them before they become too numerous.

Somebody said Dave Robinson was the handsomest policeman on the force, but when the question was referred to Dave that official said he had heard nothing about it. If that was his only qualification he was ready to go on the retired list.

Hoch & Ott do not intend to be left on choice meats with which to supply the growing demand for their trade. They handle nothing but the very choicest animals and invite your patronage. Call and see what the boys can do for you.

Mrs. D. McLennan, after having completed the work on the farm returned to her city residence last week to spend the winter. She raised an average of 28 bushels of wheat per acre which sold for 85 cents per bushel. We call that good farming.

Uncle Bailey says it's no use to nominate Blaine for president as he is too good a man and too strong a man to be elected. Says they should take some man who could be elected. Well, trot out your man, Uncle Bailey; name him and—we'll see.

Anybody wishing to dispose of a cow, a horse or a pig or a sheep or any article of farm machinery can do so by paying a proportionate share of the costs of sale. Be sure to list the same with the secretary or at this office before Thursday, Dec. 10th.

Geo. Vine: "I was wishing all the time I saw that boxing business at Rauch's that I had not a broken rib in my body. I should have liked to step into the ring a minute or two till I surprised that fellow. I believe I could have given him pointers."

Mine host Heidrich, of the Minnesota House, informed a Journal reporter that he proposes to retire from the hotel business and go to farming. Says he makes more clean money on his farm than he can in the hotel business and likes farming better, anyhow.

Monday morning opened out warm and bright and set the threshing machines humming right merrily again. A month of such weather would just about finish up the threshing if the machines all kept at it. Some are tied up for the winter owing to the scarcity of help.

We have received no official notice of the publication of the daily Times but have seen a copy on the streets. Mac starts the thing right by taking the telegraphic franchise—which no daily has ever attempted before in this city and without which no daily can succeed.

"The President," a farcical comedy in three acts, was presented at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening to a fairly good house. It is a play full of comical situations that keeps the audience busy laughing, when well played, and it was well played on Tuesday evening.

Our thanks are due to the many who have called to settle past due subscriptions during the past week, also to those who have called to see about it or written us. Such palpable evidences of appreciation are the true life of a newspaper without which they can in no wise prosper.

N. A. Fulton writes The Journal that the Hawley creamery is still running at full blast and will continue to do so all winter if the supply of cream keeps up. They are rushed with orders for butter at 30 cents per pound which makes the dairy business very profitable for farmers in that vicinity.

It is expected that a large number of horses, colts, cows and heifers, calves, sheep, pigs, hens, turkeys and farm machinery will be offered for sale at the combination auction sale on Saturday December 12th, 1891. There has been a large lot already listed and all who wish can contribute.

Grunde Tollefson, of Sletten, was one of those who called on Tuesday to drop a nickel into the slot to keep The Journal going. Mr. T. says this has been the best year yet for farmers in his neighborhood. He raised 1,000 bushels of good wheat and had it all secured before the big rains set in.

E. E. Abbott was one of the jolly Mentorites who called at our den on Wednesday to see the fighting editor—he being out Abbott paid—his respects to the financial editor. Says he sees noted improvements in our city since his last visit in June last.

Last year the subscriptions to the fund for the current expenses of the Congregational church amounted to a sum sufficient to meet those expenses in full at the end of the year. This is a very encouraging showing under the circumstances and we trust that it will be fully as good next.

Engineer Geo. Ralph was down from the reservation last week and returned this week to finish up. He expects to have his contract finished up by January 1st. Says there is some excellent farming land on the reservation and more of it that isn't. The reservation will be chiefly valuable for pine.

Now is the time to invest in Polk County farms before the coming tide of immigration causes the present prices to double. If you think of buying a farm and wait until next spring before before you do so you will regret it. Now is the time while the land is offered at far less than its actual value.

R. J. Montague:—No, I do not think St. Paul will succeed in capturing the Democratic Convention. If the Democrats are wise they will select Omaha. That is the strategic point. Of course I should like to see St. Paul get it but if I was a Democrat I should look more to the party interests than to any other consideration.

In his weekly issue of Saturday the Times man says: "The Times force wants to give thanks to-morrow as well as the rest of humanity. We all want to rest up, etc." Very proper thing to do, young man; to rest up and give thanks on Sunday but we really can't see the necessity for an apology for doing what everybody naturally expects.

There will be a sociable at the Reading Room next Friday evening, given by the Junior Society of Christian Endeavor. This is the first of a series of social entertainments to be given by the different societies of the Congregational church this winter. Everybody invited old and young. Music, lunch and lots of fun. Don't miss it, now—Next Friday from 6 to 9 p. m., at the Reading Room.

Thanksgiving Day was duly observed in this city. Services were held at the Congregational house, the other churches uniting. The room was appropriately decorated with the fruits of the abundant harvest and grateful hearts acknowledged the bountiful gifts from the Great Giver. Afterward, at the homes the turkeys were duly gobbled with or without the thankful heart as the case might be.

S. A. Barteau Jr., is in the city this week in the interest of the St. Paul Globe. Sidney (everybody used to know Sidney) spent a part of his boyhood days in this city and we naturally claim him as a Crookston boy and are pleased to see him occupying a position of trust upon a great daily. He has been in this position but a short time but is said to be one of the best canvassers on the Globe staff.

"I have got utterly disgusted with that Bill Snort business," said J. A. Crofts to The Journal man on Saturday last, "and I have just been down to the office to stop it and I want The Journal to keep right on coming to my address. The Journal is a good sound paper and I am never fearful of getting any such disgusting doses when I pick it up. Let it come right along as long as it continues to be as good as now."

Comrade A. Burnam and son and Mr. Sebastian returned on Saturday from their trip to the Red Lake Reservation. They left the train at McIntosh and proceeded from there by wagon some 50 or 60 miles. Comrade B. took a severe cold on his return trip which laid him up and we have not seen him but we learn that he was so well pleased with the prospects that he intends to gobble up a section of pine land.

It seems that after A. D. Tice had succeeded in getting a dray to haul his beef up from the depot his trials had only commenced, as, when he went after it he found that it was in a car so situated that he could not get at it. He waited in the city till Monday morning and then took the train for home leaving the beef to be unloaded by the butcher if he could ever get access to the car or to be paid for by the company.

S. M. Dainerd, the St. Hilaire hustler, dropped in to see us on Tuesday and said he really did not see how he could get along without this great family Journal, so we enrolled his name on our list in good shape. Besides dealing extensively in lumber, Mr. Dainerd is a large cattle buyer, buying generally in the fall for the next June market. S. M. is a stalwart Blaine man so he went to the theatre in the evening to see "the President."

A goodly number of new subscribers during the past week serve to encourage us greatly at this time. The Journal has ever striven to advocate the best interests of our common, every-day people, and the success we are having convinces us that we are accomplishing our purpose. The Journal is not owned or controlled by any clique or faction, political or otherwise, but is published in the best interests of the common, every-day people, and when they seem to appreciate us we are happy.

INFALLIABLE!

If we had only been infalliable, we should have foreseen the season would have been against us, and bought close, but not being able to foresee this, we bought on a liberal scale and "got left." Might as well own it up. Therefore we have decided to offer all our

COMBINATION AUCTION SALE!

A number of farmers who lost their crops by hail, and who have a few head each of horses, colts, cows, heifers, steers and calves have been talking of holding a combination auction sale and have decided on holding it on Saturday, December 12th, 1891, at Brown's old sale yard (now run in connection with Lankester & Young's stable) on Fifth street, Crookston, Minn., where will be offered for sale a number of good milch cows, heifers and calves, a number of good work horses, mares and colts, farm machinery, &c., &c., too numerous to mention. All parties who wish to dispose of any animal or any farm machinery can do so by paying their proportion of the costs of sale. All articles to be sold should be listed with the secretary of the sale on or before Thursday, Dec. 10th, or we will list them at The Journal office upon application.

TAKEN UP.

One red and white cow, eight or nine years old, with crumpled horns; also one speckled cow, about five years old; came on my premises on Section 16, town of Fairfax, about Nov. 20th. The owner is requested to prove property, pay charges and take them away.

[33-35] Theo. Greenhalgh.

A Card of Thanks.

I wish to sincerely thank all who have so kindly visited me during my sickness and, in so doing have aided me much both in body and mind. Especially do I wish to express my gratitude to the ministers, whose visits and comforting words have been very helpful to me. Hoping that you will each receive the reward given by the Master of All, I am gratefully yours,

Mrs. Carrie Vetland.

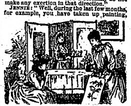
A POPULAR FAMILY.

JENNIE: "How is it, Kate, that you always seem to 'catch on' to the last new thing? Do what I may, you always seem to get ahead of me."

KATE: "I don't know: I certainly do not make any exertion in that direction."



JENNIE: "Well, during the last few months, for example, you have taken up painting, without any teacher; you came to the rescue when Miss Lafarge deserted her Delsarte class so suddenly, and certainly we are all improving in grace under your instruction; I heard you telling Tommy Eames last evening how his club made mistakes in playing baseball; you seem to be up on all the latest 'fads,' and know just what to do under all circumstances; you entertain beautifully; and in the last month you have improved so in health, owing, you tell me, to your physical culture exercises. Where do you get all of your information from in this little out-of-the way place?—for you never go to the city."

KATE: "Why, Jennie, you will make me vain. I have only one source of information, but it is surprising how it meets all wants. I very seldom hear of anything new but what the next few days bring me full information on the subject. Magic? No! Magazine! And a great treasure it is to us all, for it really furnishes the reading for the whole household; father has given up his magazine that he has taken for years, as he says this one gives more and better information on the subjects of the day; and mother says that it is that that makes her such a famous housekeeper. In fact, we all agree that it is the only really FAMILY magazine published, as we have sent for samples of all of them, and find that one is all for men, another all for women, and another for children only, while this one suits every one of us; so we only need to take one instead of several, and that is where the economy comes in, for it is only $2.00 a year. Perhaps you think I am too lavish in my praise; but I will let you see ours, or, better still, send 10 cents to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a sample copy, and I shall always consider that I have done you a great favor; and may be you will be cutting us out, as you say we have the reputation of being the best informed family in town. If that be so, it is Demorest's Family Magazine that does it."

N. F. Woodstrom dropped in on Monday to square up and report progress. Says he has made more money farming this year than ever before, though his threshing cost more than ever. Owing to the condition of the weather he had to pick up a crew three or four times before he got the job completed. He says the price of farming lands is increasing encouragingly, and upon the whole he considers prospects for profitable farming in Polk County as exceedingly good.

If you want a good farm of 315 acres ready for crop in the spring, with good, substantial buildings, good fences, artesian water and a fine grove call at THE JOURNAL office. We know of just such a place near this city that can be had cheap.

Our reporter met Jack McLaren on the street on Monday and noticing an unusually pleased expression on his countenance inquired the cause. "Why," said he, "I have good right to look pleased as my good old mother has come all the way from Dakota to make us a real good visit," and our reporter passed on with the thought that a man of middle age in whose heart the mother still retains so large a share is a good man to tie to. You may bank on that kind of a man every time and never lose.

Bro. D. N. Taylor some time ago said: "Don't you mention it just now, young man, but there is a project on foot to buy up the old opera house for the use of the M. E. church society. I will let you know all about it when the deal is closed;" but "alas for the rarity of christian charity under the sun," the deal was closed and Bro. Taylor said nary a word. However, THE JOURNAL learns that the deal is closed and that institution which was to have been used for pickling hogs will not be used for that purpose now, but will be remodled into a neat church edifice and parsonage.

J. S. Nichols was up from Liberty on Monday. Mr. Nichols is one of the progressive farmers of Polk County and he is one of the few who got their fall plowing all done. He says he had a strong desire to haul and market all his wheat early this fall but, in order to do so, he would be obliged to neglect his plowing and he wisely concluded to keep the plows going anyhow. The result was that he finished his plowing in good time and marketed a good bit of wheat at odd spells besides. Mr. Nichols told our reporter of an air motor which he has that must be a very convenient thing to have on a farm. He says that it will grind feed equal to steam power and he sets his at work pumping and grinding at the same time. He can cut his wood with it or do any other kind of farm work for which power is required.

Mr. E. Lanctot dropped in to see about that sucscription on Tuesday and informed THE JOURNAL that his farming operations had been highly satisfactory this year. If every year could be as prosperous farming in the Valley would be all O. K. Says he is disappointed with the results of the Farmers' Alliance so far as accomplishing any practical good to farmers is concerned. "I can see in it only a general scramble for office and the longest pole knocks the persimmons and I do not favor the idea of running the thing into a People's party. What earthly good will it do us to try to regulate the affairs of the whole world when all we need here is simply justice in our markets? As a business organization for the benefit of the farmers the Alliance is all right but in politics it should aim rather to be a balance of power than to seek to control the whole business. I may be wrong but that's what I think," said he as he planked down $1.50 for THE JOURNAL one more year.

Norman County Herald: S. M. Owen has delivered what he considers as the key note of the farmers movement, Government Control of the Railroads. The Great West on the other hand, has Land Loans and Sub Treasury as the key note. Here is the line of division running throughout the whole country. A mountain that will rend the People's party to atoms. It comes up in every convention and is the occasion of calling opposition conventions. The division is found everywhere. In Norman County such leaders as J. C. Norby, Ole Nygaard, Henry Henderson and others are in opposition to Sub Treasury, as foolish, pernicious and dangerous. Henry Henderson especially, more outspoken, classifying it as the idea of the government being a pawn broker. While J. M. Hetland, N. L. Nelson, O. E. Olson and others are found favorable. How can there be union when there is such determined opposition upon the main issue raised by the new party. Verily it cannot stand the strain.

Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

Something About Court Decisions.

In nearly every issue of the trade journals of the country, and at more or less frequent intervals in many other classes of publications are to be found syllabi or brief statements of recent decisions handed down by Courts of last resort in the various States of the Union. These are, no doubt, published for purposes of instruction, and with a view of keeping the public informed of the changes in the law which are numerous and oftimes perplexing. The question arises, are such publications of any value to the reader and, if so, of what value. In our opinion they are of little if any value, to the non-professional reader, unless he understands the course of law making and interpreting in this country. If any one will take up one of these journals and turn to the department of "Recent Decisions," he will find that the decisions noted are from as many different states as there are decisions and, perhaps, not more than one or two of them are decisions of the Supreme Court of the State in which the reader lives. For instance, we take up a recent copy of a trade journal published at St. Paul, and under the head of "Legal Decisions," a column of Supreme Court decisions, six in all, only one of which is a Minnesota decision, is given; one is a South Carolina decision on stock subscriptions, one an Iowa decision on stock subscriptions, one an Iowa decision on "what is exempt," under the Iowa code, one on the delivery of telegraph messages from a Mississippi Court, one from Iowa on forgery, one from Oregon on riparian rights and, finally, one from Minnesota on the alteration of written instruments. Now this journal is intended for Minnesota readers. Of what value it may be asked are these decisions from far off Mississippi, South Carolina and Oregon. We maintain that to the general reader they are of no value, but, to the contrary are liable to result in much harm. This is sure to result to one who reads and acts upon these decisions unless he thoroughly understands that the decisions of Kansas have no application to any other State, only so far as they establish precedents which may influence the courts of other States to make like decisions under like circumstances. The Supreme Court of South Carolina interprets the law for South Carolina, the Supreme Court of Minnesota for Minnesota. In a certain degree, the decisions of one State influence the decisions of other States, but the degree of influence is slight, and will not warrant one in assuming that because the Supreme Court of Iowa has so stated the law that the Supreme Court of Minnesota will so decide. The danger is not great if one reads these decisions intelligently, but three-fourths of those who read them fail to note the source of the decisions, and failing to do so, are in danger of going out and doing that which has seemed to him, from his reading, to be allowable under the law, but which he afterwards finds is made illegal by statute, or a long line of decisions in his own State. Journals having a circulation and clientage whose business is pretty well confined to one State, should either state, in a few words at the head of their "Recent Decisions," a short word of warning on this point, or should print only decisions which have local significance. Papers with a national circulation may more properly print decisions from many tribunals, but should as above suggested, do so with a word of explanation. "A little law is a dangerous thing," and one who proceeds to do a thing upon the sanction of a single decision, the mere skeleton of which he reads, and without the knowledge of all the circumstances of the case and, especially, when the decision is from a distant State, is putting "a little law" to a severe test.

Canadian Excursions.

TO THE PUBLIC:—

If you intend to visit Canada, "The North-Western Line" offers you the following inducements: The rate is $40.00 to Montreal and return, and to all points west in Quebec and Ontario. The dates of sale are December 1, 8, 15, 20, 21, 22 and 29, from points in Minnesota and North Dakota, north of and including Crookston, Red Lake Falls, Grand Forks, Minnewaukan and Leeds, and December 1, 8, 15, 22 and 29, from points in Manitoba. Tickets will be good going and returning fifteen (15) days, with final return limit of ninety (90) days. If you wish to go to a point east of Montreal, your agent will sell you a ticket at $40.00 plus the one way fare from Montreal. "The North-Western Line," with its double daily train service and magnificent equipment, offers better facilities between St. Paul and Chicago, than any other line, and we want you to give us a trial. Our day Express, with Parlor Car, leaves St. Paul daily, at 7:50 a. m., arriving in Chicago at 9:35 p.m. Vestibule limited (lighted throughout with Pintsch gas) leaves St. Paul at 7:30 p.m., arriving at Chicago 9:00 a. m. Both trains make connections in Chicago with all Canada lines. Ask your agent for ticket via "The North-Western Line," or is any further information is desired, call on or address, M. M. WHEELER, Traveling Passenger Agent, or T. W. TEASDALE, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Jimmy Westoyer is in hot water again. Last week he had a misunderstanding with a hired man about wages and after the evidence was all in and the case duly summed up Jimmy looked as if he had interviewed a sausage grinder. Jim could not stand many such settlements as that.

Elsewhere in this issue we publish a notice of sale of a portion of Rev. S. Currie's Jersey herd which sale occurs on Saturday next at his residence at Euclid. For years Mr. Currie has been building up this herd, saving the choicest, deepest milkers until he now has 96 head—which he thinks is more than he cares to winter through and he tells us that he has decided to give away about half of the herd if there are people enough to appreciate the gift. His herd consists of from 15 to 20 cows now giving milk the balance cows that are soon to be giving milk, some extra fine yearlings and calves and a few choice young bulls. This is a good opportunity for any one who wishes to obtain a family cow to buy a heifer calf and raise it to suit himself or to secure a good winter cow that is already raised and all ready for business. He will offer any cow in the herd that you may take a fancy to. Persons wishing to attend the sale from the city can take the morning train north, returning in the evening.

Chas. Beaton dropped in on Saturday morning to order THE JOURNAL sent to his address hereafter. He is on his way home from the north part of the county where he has been threshing. Says there is yet much shock threshing to do up there, but the crews are all quitting on account of cold weather which leaves all such grain in bad shape. The grain in stacks will doubtless have to remain until next spring.

H. Madden, one of the East Grand Forks gentlemen of leisure who was boarding for a time with Sheriff Grundysen on the hill, suddenly jumped his board-bill one day last week and, at last accounts, had not returned to settle. In some way the jailor had left the outside door locked and being unable to get out that way Madden cut through the walls. His absence was not noticed until the arrival of the party with Bren and he had then been gone some hours.

Council Proceedings.

Proceedings of an adjourned meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston held in the city hall on Tuesday evening November 24th, 1891.

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present—Buhn, Jennings, Jerome, McGlogan, Marlette, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen absent—Child, Marshall, Schmidt, Steenerson.

Alderman Jerome excused.

Moved by Alderman Jennings, seconded by Alderman Walker, that the bill of A. E. Taft for $32, be allowed, and an order drawn for the amount. Carried.

At an adjourned meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 24th day of November 1891, Alderman Jennings offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman McGlogan:

Resolved, by the City Council of the city of Crookston, That the Comptroller be and hereby is authorized to borrow from the permanent improvement fund the sum of two thousand ($2,000) dollars for the purpose of meeting the current expenses of the city. Said improvement fund to be reimbursed in aforesaid amount as soon as returns come in from the 1891 assessment.

Upon the call of ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Jennings, McGlogan, Marlette, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the President of the Council.

Passed this 24th day of Nov., 1891.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 27th day of Nov. 1891
Attest: ALEX. MCKINNON, Mayor.
E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

The committee on the flag staff reported that the staff now standing was sound and in good condition, but recommended that the weather flags be raised from the bell tower and that the janitor's salary be raised $5 per month.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.

CERTAIN CLASSES OF IMBECILES WHO BRING DWIGHT INTO ILL REPUTE.

From a Chicago Interview.

"There are three classes now attending there who are not benefitted. There is the wealthy class who go down there and are cured and then they find themselves out of business. They have no intellectual pursuits and no longer see the enjoyments of the race course or the club, so that in some instances they have resumed the old habits. Another class is those affected with a sort of species of insanity. They are usually intellectually brilliant, or have been, but there is scarcely enough brain force left to build upon in an effort to change their mode of life. A third class is the thoughtless young man or boy, who usually belongs to the wealthy class and is there, as he says, 'to please the old man.' These look upon it as a vacation, and go away from Dwight in some instances only to return. 'I'm here again, doctor' remarked one on his visit. 'The boys said I could not drink, and I thought I would show them I could.' But the doctor told him to go home again; that he could not and would not waste his time on such patients."

NOTICE.

Saturday, December 5th, 1891, at 2 o'clock p. m., is the day set for the monthly meeting of Crookston Alliance, No. 48. I have made arrangments for the City Hall for place of meeting. It is important that all alliance men attend as a great deal of business has accumulated on account of non attendance during the busy season which should be disposed of; also matters affecting the success of our organization demand our attention. All members are earnestly requested to be present.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

[Last publication Dec. 10th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Aslak A. Dyrdal and Ingeborg A. Dyrdal, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 9th day of May, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 13th day of May, A. D. 1889, at 9:45 o'clock a. m., in book 45 of mortgages, on pages 174-178; and

Whereas default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $7.87 that became due November 1st, 1889, $7.50 that became due May 1st, 1890, $7.50 that became due November 1st, 1890, and $7.50 that became due May 1st, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Two hundred ninety-five and 42-100, ($295.42) dollars; and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southeast quarter (se¼) of the northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-eight (28), and the southwest quarter (sw¼) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section twenty-seven (27), Township one hundred and forty-nine (149), Range forty-two (42), containing 80 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof. All of said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of the said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State on MONDAY, THE 14TH DAY OF DECEMBER, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and twenty-two 40-100 ($122.40-100) dollars, interest which became due on the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1891, which default has continued to the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Andrew G. Hanson, a widower, mortgagor to J. E. Boily, mortgagee, bearing date the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1890, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 24th day of July, A. D. 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 49 of mortgages, on page 143.

And whereas, the said J. E. Boily, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of sixteen hundred and twenty-two 40-100 ($1,622.40 100) dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of eight per cent. per annum from the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1891, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: All that tract or parcel of land described as the southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-four (34), Township one hundred and fifty-one (151), Range forty-four (44), according to the government survey thereof, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.

4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

It is funny to see how fearful the dems are that Blaine will get the nomination for president and how very anxious they are to defeat him as well as to conceal their fears. While there is not much doubt that Harrison could be re-elected they well know there would be no doubt of Blaine's election over any man they could put up and they think they would have a fighting chance with Harrison or any man except Blaine.

Last week, in a two column article the St. Paul Globe kindly nominated W. R. Merriam for Vice-President on the Republican ticket, then, in an editorial article elsewhere in the same issue they elected Merriam, killed Blaine off and made Merriam President of these United States of America. By reading these articles one is impressed with the idea of the extreme simplicity of president-making.

The Christmas Wide Awake is as gay as old Santa Claus himself, and it is a big pack of holiday delights. Its exquisite frontispiece, in color, is from the terra cotta bas-relief "Day and Night" by Caroline Hunt Rimmer, daughter of Dr. Rimmer, the late famous Art-Anatomist. Rarely has anything more beautiful been given in a magazine. Perhaps the story that will attract the most attention is the first one of the "Fair Harvard" series, "Such Stuff as Dreams are made of," by John Mead Howells, the son of W. D. Howells, a good proof that there is something in heredity. The opening story is as delicious and fresh: "How Christmas Came in the Little Black Tent," by Mrs. Charlotte M. Vaile, with two illustrations by Irving R. Wiles. "Christmas with 'Ole Sherman'" is an incident of the war, from the rebel standpoint, in which General Sherman figures genially. In her story, "The Fairy 'Content,'" Mrs. Jessie Benton Fremont is at her brightest and best. "Queen Margaret's Needles," by Susan Coolidge, is an historical ballad of Norway. Another fine ballad is "The Fourth Little boy," by Mary E. Wilkins, with seven pictures by Childe Hassam. Still another is "Santa's Reproof," by Emilie Poulsson. "The War of the Schools," by Capt. C. A. Curtis, U. S. A., is a splendid snow-balling story. "Captain Joe" is a particularly bright and fresh war story by a new Southern writer, Helen Keene. "In Arctic Pack-Ice" is a thrilling story by Lieut. Col. Thorndike, the first in the series of "One Man's Adventures." The illustrated papers are interesting: "A Roumanian Princess," by Eleanor Lewis, and "How I Became a Seneca Indian," by Mrs. Harriet Maxwell Converse. The serials open well: "Jack Brereton's Three Month's Service," a war story by Mrs. Maria McIntosh Cox, "The Lance of Kanana," a historical Arabian story by Abd el Ardavan, "The Writings Down of Dorothy Holcomb," some quaint New England village work. There are the departments, "Men and Things," Tangles, and Postoffice, besides many bright pictures and poems—among the latter a particularly noticeable one, "The Bad Little Goo-Bird," by Charlotte Perkins Stetson. Wide Awake is $2.40 a year. D. Lothrop Company, Boston.

THE MODERN COOK BOOK
THE CONDENSED CYCLOPAEDIA
EVERYBODY'S LAW BOOK
THE AMERICAN LIVE STOCK MANUAL
THE STANDARD AMERICAN POULTRY BOOK

We offer as a premium six reliable and useful text-books for the farm and home. These books have been specially selected with a view to meet the needs of the masses, the design being to present to our patrons an opportunity of securing, at the most trifling cost in connection with a subscription to our paper, a collection of books of the utmost practical use and value, treating upon themes of vital importance in every rural home. No man or woman can fail to be profited by the possession of these books; as works of reference they are invaluable, and really no home should be without them. Brief descriptions are appended.

THE STANDARD AMERICAN POULTRY BOOK. An entirely new book, involving all the latest ideas in poultry keeping. It is a work intended to teach the masses of farmers the secret of success in the poultry-yard, and its teachings, if followed, will add enormously to the earnings of every flock of fowls. The following are only a small portion of the topics treated in this book. How to Start and Stock a Hennery; Poultry Houses, Cheap and Expensive Yards, Coops and Enclosures; Poultry Keeping for Profit; Poultry on a Large Scale; Poultry Raising as a Business; Feeding and Laying; Winter Egg-Production; The Hatching Period, Preparing Nests for Sitters; Spring Breeding of Poultry; the Hens for Farmers; How to Produce Layers; Good and Cheap Incubators; How to Raise Artificially Hatched Chickens; Caponizing; Packing Eggs for Market; Packing Poultry for Market; Feeding Hoppers; Drinking Fountains and Grain Chests; Eggs and Pullets; Preserving Eggs; Diseases of Poultry—Chicken Cholera, Pip, Gapes, Roup, Scaly Legs, Lice, Egg Eating, Crop Bound Fowls, etc.; the Plymouth Rocks; the Wyandottes; the Brown Leghorns; the Golden Spangled Crested Polish; the White Crested Black Polands; the Langshans; the Silver Spangled Hamburghs; the Houdans; the Buff Cochins; the White Cochins; the White Leghorns; the Golden Pencilled Hamburghs; White Shanghais; the La Fleche Fowls; the Gray Dorkings; the Brahmas; Game Fowls, Bantams, etc.; How to Fatten; Management of Chickens; Killing Poultry; Preparing against Vermin; Fencing; Management of Ducks; Raising Turkeys, Fattening Geese, etc., etc. It is a large book of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover. It is profusely illustrated and handsomely gotten up in every respect. No man or woman who owns an acre or more of land can afford to be without it.

EVERYBODY'S LAW BOOK. A complete compendium of business and domestic Law, by a prominent member of the New York Bar, containing concise explanations of the general laws, and the laws of the several States, regarding Administrators and Executors, Affidavits, Agency, Agreements, Apprentices, Arbitration and Award, Assault and Battery, Assignments, Attachments, Banks, Bills of Exchange, Checks and Promissory Notes, Bills of Sale, Chattel Mortgages, Citizens and Aliens, Common Carriers, Contracts, Corporations, Deeds and Mortgages of Real Estate, Descent and Distribution, Dower, Easement, Exemptions, Farmers' Law, Fences, Fixtures, Garnishment, Gifts, Guaranty, Guardian and Ward, Heirs and next of Kin, Homestead Exemptions, Husband and Wife, Infants, Interest and Usury, Landlord and Tenant, Libel and Slander, Liens, Limitation of Actions, Marriage and Divorce, Rights of Married Women, Master and Servant, Parent and Child, Partnership, Payment and Tender, Personal Property, Power of Attorney, Principal and Agent, Privileged Communications, Railroads, Railroad Real Estate, Receipts and Releases, Replevin, Right of Way, Seduction, Trustee Process, Warranty, Water Rights, Wills and Codicils. Together with complete forms of Acknowledgments, Agreements, Articles of Copartnership, Assignments, Award of Arbitrators, Bills of Sales, Bonds, Chattel Mortgages, Contracts, Deeds, Executors' and Administrators' Accounts, Interest Table, Liens, Mortgages of Real Estate, Powers of Attorney, Releases, Satisfaction Pieces, Wills and Codicils, etc., etc., specially adapted for the daily use of those who are not lawyers, with directions for their preparation. A large volume of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover.

THE MODERN COOK BOOK AND MEDICAL GUIDE. This is practically two books in one—a perfect cook book and a perfect medical book—and there is so much in it, and so much care and pains have been taken in its compilation, that we feel perfectly safe in asserting that the Cooking department is fully the equal, in quantity and quality of contents, of any low-priced cook book ever published, and the same as to the Medical department herein as compared with any low-priced medical book in the market. The cooking recipes number 437, and include Breakfast Dishes, Soups, Meats and Poultry, Fish, Vegetables, Salads and Relishes, Bread and Rolls, Jellies and Preserves, Puddings and Pies, Fancy Dishes, Cakes, Confectionery, Ice Cream and Summer Drinks. The compilation of this department was superintended by a practical housekeeper, every recipe will be found reliable, and it has been pronounced one of the best, most complete, and practical cook-books ever published. The Medical Department will be found fully the equal of any doctor book published at one dollar or less. It tells you how to cure by simple means available in every home, every disease and ailment that is curable. It will save you many dollars annually in doctors' bills and patent medicines. The Modern Cook Book and Medical Guide is a large book of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover.

THE AMERICAN LIVE STOCK MANUAL. A complete text book containing the fullest information regarding the care and management, feeding and rearing, of live stock, likewise the cure of all diseases peculiar to these animals, and of all unruly and vicious habits, for the construction of necessary buildings and conveniences, etc., etc. The following are only a portion of the topics treated in this book: How to Judge a Horse; Feeding Horses; Raising a Colt; To Bit a Colt; To Break Horses from Pulling at the Halter; Warts on Horses; Stumbling Horses; Cure for Balky Horses; Kicking Horses; Training Vicious Horses; Galls and Sores on Horses; Bruising Horses; Colic, Bots, Founder, Heaves, Epizootic; Shying; Scratches; Ringbone, Spavin; Cribbing; Windgalls; Brittle Feet; Worms; Over-Reaching; Sprains and Bruises; Hidebound Horses; Avoiding Indigestion; How to Save Oats in Feeding; Watering Horses; Care of Horse's Legs; How to Tell a Horse's Age; Neck Yokes; Good Grooming; Shoeing; Stables and Stabling; Breeding Horses upon a Farm; Horse Medicines; [illegible] Bull; Rearing Choice Cattle; Bone Disease in Milch Cows; Marks of a Good Cow; Cattle Racks and Feed Boxes; Feeding Cattle; To Prevent Hooking Fences; Black Tongue; Lice; To Prevent Kicking; Contagious Cattle Diseases; Fattening Stock; Milking; Cooking Feed for Live Stock; The Soiling System; Raising Calves; To Break a Heifer or a Vicious Cow to Milk; Wintering Live Stock; How to Take Off a Hide; Assistance at Birth; Hollow Horn; Obstructed Teats; Black Leg; Caked Udder; Jumping Cattle; Garget; Care and Management of Hogs; Pigpens; Troughs; Pig Raising; Over-Feeding; Sanitary Management of Swine; Hog Cholera; Paralysis; Scurvy Pigs; Preparing Food for Swine; Butchering; Fattening Hogs; Driving Hogs; Raising Sheep; Washing Sheep; Sheep Racks; Handling Sheep; To Tell the Age of Sheep; Sheep Ticks; Early Lambs; How to Make Sheep Pay; Treatment of Lambs; Increasing the Growth of Wool. It is a large book of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover, and is profusely illustrated.

THE CONDENSED CYCLOPAEDIA OF USEFUL KNOWLEDGE. This book contains, probably, more useful and valuable information than was ever before published in any low priced work. Among its contents are: Population of American Cities, Area and Population of the Continents, of the States and Territories, of the Principal Countries of the World, Length of the Principal Rivers, Presidential Vote for Sixty Years, Presidential Statistics, Area and Depth of Inland Seas, Area of Oceans, Height of Mountains, Locomotion of Animals and Velocity of Bodies, Height of Monuments, Towers, etc., Distance from New York to Important Cities, Chronological History of Discovery and Progress, Popular Synonyms of States, Cities, etc., Incorrect Language, Rules for Spelling, Use of Capitals, Pronunciation, Wall Street Phrases, Commerce of the World, Curious Facts in Natural History, Duration of Life of Various Animals, Origin of the Names of States and Countries, of Popular Fables, of Familiar Quotations, and of [illegible], Fate of the Apostles, Statistics of the Globe, Leading Governments of the World, How Money Accumulates, How to Calculate Interest, Statistics of Longevity, Dying Words of Famous Persons, etc., etc. This book is a great storehouse of instruction, and a copy of it should be in every home. It is a large book of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover.

ARTISTIC EMBROIDERY, By Ella Rodman Church. This book is a complete text-book—a thorough instructor in every branch of Artistic Embroidery. Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8th, 1891.

ED. JOURNAL:

The managers of the World's Fair have prepared another junketing trip for a party of gentlemen to travel over the south of Europe during the winter season to feed and be fed by the dignitaries in Portugal, Spain, France, Italy, Greece, Turkey, Egypt and some other sections of the world where the weather is mild and pleasant. During the summer season, when the weather was warm, Major Moses P. Handy and his crowd were sent into northern and central Europe and now, as the cool weather approaches, the Honorable Thomas F. Bayard, who probably needs the recreation of a trip abroad, is to be at the head of another commission. Those junketing tours are an outrage upon the people and the secretary of the Treasury ought not to pay the money for them. He should be held accountable if he does so.

The fight between Messrs. Crisp and Mills for the speakership of the next House of Representatives is getting to be somewhat personal. Mills himself has been forced to explain that he did not say Crisp was a protectionist though the language he used was clearly liable to that construction. Crisp's friends are accused of being the men who say that Mills is a free trader. This is unjust to Crisp's friends because Mills himself said, in his speech in Minneapolis, in October, 1890, "I believe in absolute free trade," and the leading free trade organs of the country are advocating him because of his position on this question.

Senator Carlisle's letter endorsing Mills is characterized by some of the opinions of these gentlemen as reading very much like the endorsement of a patent medicine and it is certainly going to do the senator's friends more harm than good because amongst the members around Washington is heard continually the cry, "we want no Senatorial interference" and Senator Pugh, of Alabama, gives the Kentucky Senator a most terriffic castigation for his uncalled for attack upon all Democrats who do not agree with him on the silver question and the tariff.

There was on Saturday less that fifty of the Democratic members in the city of Washington but they were arriving in great numbers and there will probably be a hundred by Monday morning and the fight will then grow lively. All the claims that are made and sent out as to pledges amount to very little. It is very certain, however, that, whoever secures the nomination for speaker, an effort will be made to repeal the McKinley tariff. Of course the Democrats know that this effort will fail because of the fact that the senate is Republican, and even if it were Democratic or if any Republican members should vote with the Democratic minority to repeal the tariff, President Harrison would promptly veto any such law. It is also true that a free coinage bill will be introduced, no matter who may be speaker, and will be passed. It is generally believed that if Mr. Mills is speaker, he will endeavor to prevent such action but he will be powerless to do so, as the majority is so strongly in favor of it that it will be impossible to prevent the passage of a bill, and it is more than probable that the same votes which passed the present law in the last Congress will pass the free coinage bill in this, but it will be only to meet a veto from the President.

It is generally conceded that a majority of the Ohio Legislature will favor the return of Senator Sherman to the United States Senate, though Mr. Foraker's friends do not admit that as yet.

The men who cornered the corn market in Chicago succeeded in getting 15,000,000 bushels, and then prevented the delivery of any other and through that method they have raised the price of corn at fifty-two cents, at which they purchased, to seventy-five cents and possibly it may reach $1.00. Already several firms have been broken by being called upon to pay the differences and put up their margins.

Two New Fields.

Two new fields in Uncle Sam's farm invite occupants. The Sisseton-Wahpeton reservation, in South Dakota, reached from Brown's Valley, Watertown and Hankinson on the Great Northern, and the Fort Berthold reservation in North Dakota, reached from White Earth and other stations on the Great Northern. A government land office from this district was recently established at Minot, of which the well known Col. W. C. Plummer of North Dakota is receiver. The colonel will take pleasure in giving inquirers information about the Moose River country.

If you want a good winter cow, remember the combination auction sale at Brown's old barn on 5th street on Saturday, Dec. 12th, 1891.

Why I Am a Republican.

New York Press.

Valued correspondents of the Press have suggested that it would be well to put in plain words the reason which a member of the Republican party might be supposed to the question: Why I am a Republican. We take great pleasure in undertaking a task at once so easy and so agreeable. Any Republican on being challenged to give an account of the faith that is in him will make no mistake if he responds substantially as follows:

I am a Republican, first of all, because I believe in the political principles of the Republican party. Foremost among these is protection to American industry. Just now this is the leading national issue. It is forced to the front by a savage and persistent attack that is made against the protective system, partly in the interests of foreign manufacturers, partly under the influence of a coterie of free trade theorizers who know a good deal about books, but nothing at all about business, and partly in accordance with the Democratic idea of opposing whatever the Republican party favors. I believe in this system because it is wise in principle and beneficent in practice. It was indorsed by George Washington. It was sanctioned by John Adams and Henry Clay and Daniel Webster and a host of the greatest and best men of the country. History shows that when there has been a protective tariff the country has prospered, and when there has been little or no tariff protection there has been little or no tariff—protection there has been little or no prosperity. Protection has given profitable investment to capital and steady employment to labor at rates of wages double those that are paid for the same work in free trade England or could be paid here if anti-protection Democrats and doctrinaires had their way. And at the same time it has, by enormously increasing the home supply and the home demand, steadily reduced the price of almost every protected product, as The Press has shown beyond dispute in its series of "Tariff Pictures." Protection has enabled the United States to pay its national debt at an average rate for the past twenty-five years of $174,000 a day, presenting in this respect a sight which the world has never before seen. Within this past year, under the operations of the McKinley law, which its enemies prophesied one year ago would raise the prices of the necessaries of life and strangle trade, there has been more domestic trade, more exports of American goods abroad, and actually more imports of foreign goods, reckoned, by the value, than in any twelve months before since our national existence began. Meanwhile one dollar has bought more of the necessaries of life than ever before, and the people, rich and poor, have had more dollars to buy with. I am a Republican because I am a protectionist, and I am a protectionist because I am an American.

Another principle of the Republican party is honest money. It is that every "dollar" shall be worth 100 cents. It is, as President Harrison has said, that every dollar issued by the government shall be worth as much as every other dollar issued by the government. It is opposed to the free and unlimited coinage of "dollars" that were worth 80 cents yesterday, are worth 75 cents to-day, may be worth 70 cents, less or more, to-morrow, but never have been and, unless present conditions of the mining industry are reversed, never can be worth 100 cents. The Democratic party, on the other hand, with a few honorable exceptions, stands committed to a debased silver coinage to-day, just as it stood for irredeemable and depreciated greenback currency a few years ago, just as it was responsible for the wreck and ruin caused by the wildcat banks, the "shinplaster" money before the war. I am a Republican because I am an honest man in my political as in my private conduct, and I know that lowering the monetary standard means robbery, and especially robbery of those who can least afford to be robbed, the poor and the wage earner.

The Republican party stands for honest elections. In the national platforms of the party this principle finds a conspicuous place. In the fifty-first Congress a bill to secure a free vote and a fair count at every Congressional or Presidential election, east, west, north and south, was passed by a Republican House, in spite of the opposition of every Democratic member, was certain, if passed, to be signed by a Republican president, and would have become a law but for an alliance against it of all the enemies both of honest money and honest elections. It is the Republican party that, for the most part, has secured the adoption in many States of of the Australian or reformed ballot, and it is the Democratic party that has hindered its adoption, as witness the repeated vetoes of Governor Hill and the fact that the solid South is arrayed against ballot reform. I am a Republican because I believe in unbought and unbullied suffrage.

The Republican party is the friend of the soldier. It believes that justice, not to speak of generosity, demands that the men who imperiled their lives to save our country, requires the redeemed nation to care for its deliverers and for their loved ones, with the open palm of gratitude and not with the clinched fist of parsimony. I am a Republican because I am a patriot.

The Republican party stands for the school and the home. From that party have come the most liberal appropriations, the most effective laws on behalf of free public education. From that party have come practically the only laws that exist to-day designed to restrict the traffic in intoxicating drinks, or by other means to limit the terrible evils of intemperance. Per contra, wherever a political party joins with the enemies of the public school to get the votes of ignorance or superstition, as in Wisconsin and Illinois, it is always the Democratic, never the Republican party. Wherever a political party is in league with the assassins of society, with keepers of grog shops and gambling dens and brothels and receivers of stolen goods, levying pecuniary tribute for police "protection," as in the league between Tammany Hall and the law breakers of New York, it is always the Democratic, never the Republican party. Because I believe in law, in intelligence and decency, I am a Republican.

I have said that I am a Republican, first of all, because I believe in the political principles of the Republican party and I have cited these: protection to American industry, honest money, honest elections, justice to veterans, free schools and public morals. Now I say, in the second place, that I am a Republican because the past of my party is one of which I am proud. That would not alone be a sufficient reason, but taken together with the party's present attitude on living questions it makes assurance doubly sure. "There is but one lamp," said Patrick Henry, "by which my feet are guided, and that is the lamp of experience." "History is philosophy teaching by example," said Dionysius of Halicarnassus, and this saying has passed current for ages as one of the coined ingots of human wisdom. History teaches me that the Democratic party was the party of nullification, of human slavery, of the suppression of free speech, of secession, of armed rebellion at the South, of Copperheadism at the North, of national repudiation; that the Democratic party was opposed to free homesteads for the people out of the public domain; that it connived at the plundering of the nation's treasury and the stealing of the country's arms and warships under Buchanan; that it declared the war a failure after Gettysburg had been fought and won; that under Democratic control the country went from bad to worse, from poverty to bankruptcy, and from bankruptcy to the verge of disruption; and that in all the thirty years and more since Democratic guns opened fire on fort Sumter the party as a party, has never got control of any one State, or any one branch of the federal government without giving evidence that it has not changed its nature.

Meanwhile the Republican party, from the day of its birth until now, has been the party of freedom, progress, union, honesty, honor, the party to which whatever is best in the young manhood of each generation gravitates. The Republican party freed the slave and saved the nation. It preserved the country's credit. It made a depreciated currency good as gold. It settled the Alabama claims by an arbitration that combined peace with honor. It joined the Atlantic to the Pacific by lines of transcontinental railway. It gave to our government a foremost place amongst the nations of the earth. Its men have been commensurate with its measures. Not now to allude to the living, except to say that they are worthy successors of the noble band, the Republican party is the party of Lincoln and Chase, Seward and Greeley, Sumner and Thaddeus Stevens, of Grant and Garfield.

Because no intelligent citizen can recount the history of the one party without pride or of the other without shame I am a Republican and not a Democrat.

The Columbia Daily Calendar.

An old friend in a new dress, and an article that has come to be one of the indespensables of an editor's desk, comes to hand in the Columbia daily calendar for 1892. The calendar is in the form of a pad containing 367 leaves, each 5¼ x 2¼ inches; one for each day of the year, to be removed daily, and one for the entire year. The day of the week, of the month, and of the year are given, and each slip bears a short paragraph pertaining to cycling or some kindred subject. At the bottom of each leaf is a blank for memoranda, every leaf being accessible at any time. The stand is an entirely new departure, being made of sheet metal finished in ivory black, and is very compact. At the close of the year the stand will be available for another pad. This is the seventh issue of this now well-known calendar, yet all the matter is fresh and new, having been carefully collated from leading publications and prominent writers, most of it being specially written for this purpose. It comprises notable events in cycling, opinions of physicians and clergymen, hints about road making, and numerous other topics.

Take a Week Off.

The promise of the springtime in this Northwest has been gloriously redeemed in the harvest of the early autumn. Wheat exceeded even the expectations of the man who has farm lands to sell. The European crops were in great part failures. The Northwestern farmer has been feeling pretty well. Have you had a share of this prosperity, or are you like a hoop on a barrel—outside? If you are one of the lucky ones, why not take a few weeks off this winter, and make a visit to the old home, or a trip to Florida, Louisiana, California or Mexico? Nothing will do so much to enliven a man and furnish him with a supply of amusing and happy remembrances as a journey, especially to countries different from his own. To the American Mexico is a revelation, in productions, climate, customs, and the evidences of a former high civilization, so old that the discovery of Columbus would be an event of yesterday in comparison. To start right on any such trip, call on the nearest ticket agent of "The Burlington," for tickets and information, or address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

Hallock came very near having a big blaze. A fire in the laundry of the Hotel Hallock was discovered in time to be extinguished before serious damage was done.

It seems that they have not put on the stream in the new Reckitt building yet. Contractor Kilroe is anxiously awaiting that event so that he can get to plastering.

Rev. R. H. Batty writes THE JOURNAL from Glyndon where he is conducting revival services this week: "We are having full meetings, good interest and hopeful outlook."

E. J. Haseltine has rented his Euclid farm for a period of five years and has moved his family into the city for the winter, while he looks up some kind of business to go into.

Lots of the boys have improved the opportunity afforded by the session of the district court to drop in and get square on our subscription book for which we extend our hearty thanks.

C. O. Espe, of Melvin, contributed a year's subscription to this great family JOURNAL on Saturday last. We are patiently awaiting a hundred or so more. Call in and see our premiums.

Al. Vine has moved his family down from Warren.

Old Santa Claus' Headquarters is at Herb's this year.

I. A. Holden, of Garden was in the city on Wednesday.

Arne Higden was up from the westside on Wednesday.

J. S. Stadsvold has opened a jewelry store in the opera block.

Everybody wants one of our preminms. They go like hot cakes.

Our streets have been well filled all the week and business is lively as the heart could wish.

Farmers who desire a fine lot of cornfed pork will do well to see what Hoch & Ott can do for you.

Iver Krohn has sold his lunch room to Gay Halverson and W. Misgen and and will go on the road.

Louis Fontaine and Tim Donovan are in Argyle this week taking an inventory of Fontaine & Anglim's stock there preparatory to selling out.

Ole P. Renne was in from Garden on Wednesday. Says that the farmers in that town had their threshing and plowing all done before the freeze up.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs' nice fall and winter display of millinery is the admiration of all the ladies who have called at her fashionable millinery parlors on Second street, and the prices are extremely low this fall.

Register Hugh Thompson is to be united for life to Miss Lees McMaster, at Fisher, this evening. THE JOURNAL extends its most hearty congratulations, wishing the happy couple a long and prosperous journey through life.

Harry Palmer has severed his connection with the Tribune and will go to Valley City to accept a position there. He leaves for his new field of labor the latter part of this or first of next week. THE JOURNAL wishes Harry success in his new field of labor.

On Tuesday afternoon V. D. Carruth was appointed Superintendent of Schools, which position he has filled since the death of E. J. Grefthen. Mr. Carruth is a ripe schoolar and brings to the position an experience gained by several terms of office in the past.

Hoch & Ott have just received two carloads of corn-fed hogs which they ars selling off like hot cakes and no wonder for they are a prime lot. They are now prepared to supply their customers with choice roasts, steaks or chops from this choice lot. Call and see the boys.

A. Humphreys Esq., an attorney from Minneapolis, was in the city on Wednesday on business before the district court. Mr. H. expressed himself well pleased with the appearance and prospects of our young city and he may conclude to open an office here later on.

We have just received "Tales From Town Topics, No. 2" which follows closely on the heels of its predecessor, No. 1, and is equally bright and bold with the former publication, for which an immense sale is claimed by the projectors. [Town Topics Publishing Co., 21 West 23d street, New York.]

Rudy Burkhardt has bought out the German bakers on Second street, hired a baker, and will run the concern himself—takes the whole bakery, as it were. Rudy will aim to supply the best the market affords at living prices thus securing a big trade. Try the new Second street bake shop.

A. C. Wilkinson informs us that he passed the building that collapsed in St. Paul last week killing eleven men, just a few minutes before it fell and remarked to a companion in passing that those walls were liable to fall at any minute. When he came back from dinner four bodies had been taken out.

A visit to my store will convince you that you can save money by buying your holiday presents of me.

C. H. SAAKE.

Guy Aubol came down from Warren on Monday evening and dropped in to cheer us with another renewal. Guy is as handsome as ever and is almost fat enough for an alderman. Says crops were excellent about Warren and business proportionately good. He returned on Tuesday morning, too busy to remain any longer.

The Peterson Live Stock Company has bought the McLean building, back of the round house, and will fit it up for stables. This company, comprised of Henry and Will Peterson and Dr. Warninger, has a number of the speediest trotters ever brought to this city and will make the breeding of trotting stock a specialty.

Rev. S. Currie postponed his sale on Saturday last owing to the big storm and will bring along 30 or 40 head of Jersey cows and heifers to the combination auction sale next Saturday. Here will be a grand good chance for anybody who wants to buy good cows to catch on. Remember the date, Saturday, Dec. 12th.

T. M. Nelson was up from Fertile on Tuesday to cheer the heart of the printer and to look after a suit that he has pending against a loan company in which he complains that he has been paying a matter of 20 per cent for a little accommodation that he had in the form of a loan. He seems to have good grounds for kicking if his statement of the case is correct. The case was postponed until later to allow the company opportunity to get their chief witness.

Persons visiting their old homes in the East this winter should take along printed matter descriptive of their new homes in the Northwest. Take copies of this paper with you and ask agents of the Great Northern Railway for a supply of publications. [33-36]

Walt Ott came down to the market on Tuesday morning tickled all over "because," he said, "now we will not have to hire any more butchers since Joe's new boy"—"but hold on," said a bystander, "Joe's new boy happens to be a girl," and then you had ought to have seen Walt wilt. The cigars were of Brown's best brand.

I buy my goods for cash direct of the manufacturers, which enables me to sell goods at about what other dealers pay for theirs.

The James H. Brown Theatre Co. open a week's engagement at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening Dec. 14th in "A Brave Woman." This company is very highly spoken of by our exchanges and our theatre-going people have reason to expect a rich treat. Popular prices. Tickets on sale at box office on Monday morning.

If you are looking for holiday goods call and see Herb's stock—the largest he ever brought to this city. Herb comes pretty near knowing what toys will please the little folks and he has just laid himself out this year to supply 'em. Such an endless profusion of toys as he has is wonderful to see. Don't fail to call and look over his stock.

C. O. Borud was in from Bear Park on Wednesday. Mr. B. says he has had a very successful season with his threshing machine. He threshed less days than ever before owing to stormy weather but made more money because the grain turned out so much better. He has put in a roller feed mill and is prepared to do work for all who desire.

Among the jolly good fellows who dropped in to add their mite to our exchequer on Tuesday was Charles Robbecke, the genial landlord of the hotel Ogahmah, of Thief River Falls. Charlie says the Falls is bound to boom next year with her 8,000,000 feet of pine that is to be sawed at that place. Says there is some threshing to be done up that way yet.

As far as we can learn it the opinions of our people in relation to the proposed State Park project the sentiment is largely against it. This seems to be the case also in Marshall and Kittson Counties. They would not object to a reasonable amount of land being diverted to park purposes, but the whole north half of the State, as proposed, is a different matter.

Ladies, you cannot afford to miss seeing my new fall styles of millinery. The novelties of the season are rare and beautiful. Call and see them. MRS. E. E. BANGS.

Hoch & Ott desire THE JOURNAL to, say that they will not take a back seat for anybody in their line of business either in experience or prices. They are old experienced hands at the business, know how to kill and prepare an animal for the market and all they ask is that people call and look them over, well satisfied that they can suit even the most particular. Call and see the boys.

Big sale next Saturday at Brown's old barn—Lancaster & Young's livery stables on Fifth street. Probably from 75 to 80 head of cows, heifers, bulls and steers, 30 or 40 head of good work horses and mares, several colts and other stock, besides farm machinery, &c., &c. The chance of the season to buy. Don't forget the place, Brown's old barn on Fifth street. Sale to commence at 10 o'clock a. m.

Anton Rice came up to attend court on Monday and of course dropped in to see how the JOURNAL would appreciate one more paid up subscription in advance. On the street he fell in with Peder Engh and they soon discovered that they were neighbors in the old country—though Mr. Rice had been here for 26 years and Mr. Engh 10 years. To say that they proceeded to have a grand good visit together expresses the actual facts but feebly.

Until January 1st, 1892, we can supply your orders for "Six Great Farm Books" for only 25 cents in excess of a paid in advance subscription. The law book alone is worth the whole cost of the subscription and the set. Remember that it is only necessary for you to pay your subscription one year ahead of the date you subscribe to entitle you to the purchase of either of our three premiums at 25 and 50 cents. See our announcement on the first page of this issue.

Speaking of threshing the Hon. B. Sampson informed a JOURNAL reporter that in his opinion not over half of it in the Valley is done and, said he, if it is not done before the break-up in the spring very much of the grain will be utterly ruined if the present prospect for a very wet spring were verified. He said that a project was on foot for the purchase of a horse power threshing machine with which very much of the grain around here can be threshed. Said while he had lots of oats in stack his horses have to go without oats owing to his inability to thresh.

If you want to make and save money buy your holiday presents at Saake's jewelry store. I am closing out my present stock and will offer every article at prices far below the reach of competition.

Northfield News:—The danger from immigration arises first from the coming of the vicious, the idle, the helpless and the ignorant. The ignorant may learn after their arrival if they will. The helpless at the worst can but require to be supported and the idle can be made to work. But the vicious, those who believe that our liberty and freedom means freedom from the restraint of law and liberty to follow the guidance of all that their evil natures may suggest, and to pray upon their fellow men whenever an opportunity may offer, they are the ones who are a danger to society and a menace to our institutions.

Grand Forks Courier:—Saturday last Knut O. Sanness, a farmer residing some four miles up the Point, came to town driving a span of young horses aged 4 and 5 years. Mr. Sanness being of a bibulous nature, indulged rather freely in intoxicants, and by the time he was ready to go home he scarcely realized whether he was on horse-back or a-foot. The matter, however, was definitely settled by the time he reached the school house near the Busse farm. A turn in the road occurs at that point, and the supposition, based largely on the man's own story, is that he turned "short," upsetting the wagon—anyway, the horses got away from him and were found Sunday morning, in the Marais, frozen to death. Mr. Sanness is a poor man, though his farm is rated one of the best in Polk county and the loss falls heavily on his family. Mr. Sanness' drunk was rather a costly one, as the team was worth $350.

At the regular meeting of Col. Cobham Post No. 90 the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Commander..................I. U. JENNINGS
Sen. Vice Com..............J. O. SERGEANT
Jun. Vice Com..................H. E. COOKE
Surgeon.. ....S. L. STOWE
Chaplain.......................C. H. MIX
Quartermaster.. ....O. H. LUCKEN
Officer of the Day......B. F. ZARRACHER
" " Guard... JAMES E. GREENHALGH.

The following comrades were elected as a board of trustees: LOUIS FONTAINE, THOMAS HARRIS and O. H. LUCKEN.

As delegates to the State Encampment comrades O. H. Lucken and H. E. Cooke were elected with Geo. H. Holt and J. O. Sergeant as alternates. Announcement was made that Department Commander Parker would visit the Post on Monday, Dec. 21st and it was decided to hold a grand camp fire on the evening of that day and extend invitations to the surrounding Posts in Norman, Polk, Kittson and Marshal Counties, Minn., and Grand Forks County, N. D. A committee of reception, consisting of comrades O. H. Lucken, C. H. Mix, I. U. Jennings, B. F. Zarracher and H. E. Cooke was appointed by Commander Fontaine. Levi Le Duc was mustered in. The Post took a recess for one week to arrange for the camp fire and other matters. All comrades in good standing are urgently requested to be in attendance at the Post meeting to-morrow evening as business of importance is to come before the Post. The Commander urges all loyal comrades to be present.

Browne is Coming.

Marquette, Mich., Monday morning, Feb. 16, 1891:—Yes, Brown's coming and Alice Marble, J. Knox Gavin and all the rest of 'em. He opens at the Casino on Monday, Feb. 23, for one straight hot week of amusement for his old Marquette friends under the management of W. A. Ross. Everybody knows Ross and everybody knows Brown and his company from former visits (only the company is much stronger than ever before—has more people) so there is no need of any billing or extra exertion in order to have full houses at the Casino during the week. The people will be there.

HUBBARD SNOWFLAKES.

HUBBARD, Dec. 7, 1891.

The case of Kiland vs. Johnson before Squire Akre last week was settled before it came to trial. If all of us would follow the "Golden Rule" we would save much trouble, time and money.

Paul Simon will serve on the grand jury at this term of court.

Kolden is selling goods at low prices and is having a big trade.

Two of our citizens were lost in the storm last Thursday evening but reached home all right on Saturday.

John and Elling Ellingson eat their Thanksgiving dinner in Crookston.

All interested in the study of God's word are requested to meet at the school-house in district 17 every Sunday at 10 a. m., excepting when services are held at the church in Neilsville, then it will be held at 3 p. m.

Our farmers would have saved not less than $5,000 this year by having a railway. Our township raised not less than 250,000 bushels of wheat and a gain of 2 cents per bushel in hauling would have saved that amount and most of us would have gained double that amount in hauling.

Lewis says that "Old John" can beat "Maud S," but Peter thinks that either Barney or Fly, with an even start, can leave him far behind.

All of our people who have hauled grain to Beltrami are very well satisfied with the treatment they receive from the elevator agents at that place.

NEISLVILLE.

Crowded House Again.

Tri-Weekly Pioneer, Manistique:—That was just the case last evening at the Star Opera House; extra chairs were placed in the aisles, and a few found seats upon the trunks containing the company baggage. The old favorites, Brown's Theatre Company, with many added to it, were on hand and received as grand a reception as was ever given to any troupe in this town. The orchestra was composed of skilled musicians and gave excellent music. The play was "The Girl I Love" and from the first to the last was well handled, and the acting won the praise of all present. No better company has visited Manistique for a long time. Manager Brown has 20 people and every one a first class artist. They will appear this evening in "The Waif of the Sea." If you want to witness a good performance, go.

Will They Do It?

One of the most important questions to come before the county board this session- or one that should come, is the question of building an adequate county jail. In speaking about the jail in a conversation with the writer the other evening Judge Mills said: "It is an imposition upon a sheriff to put men into that structure and insist that he shall keep them there." The need of a new jail is too obvious to need discussion and the only question is: "Will the board take the necessary steps at this session to build it?" The suggestion has been made, and it is a good one, that the city purchase a site nearer the business centre upon which to erect the jail and present it to the county, i. e. providing the board decides to go ahead with the building project. The wisdom of such a plan would develope itself later on it indeed if does not at once present itself to the mind. This matter is of so great importance that steps looking toward securing a site should be taken at an early date, as, if no action is taken at this meeting it cannot be delayed much longer as that old trap, yclept a jail, will tumble down of its own volition if allowed to remain in its present condition and there is no earthly use wasting any more money in the vain attempt to make it tenable.

CANADIAN EXCURSIONS.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Dec. 7.—The magnitue of the business at the head of Lake Superior is shown by the report of railroad traffic for November, by Chairman Kelly of the Car Service Association, an association of the railroads here for facilitating the handling of business. According to Mr. Kelly the roads handled here 32,228 loaded cars, as against 30,126 in October, which had been by far the greatest month before known. Wheat cars were 18,277 against 16,216 in October, coal 10,005, an increase of 500. Lumber shipments were 694 cars, an increase of 151.

The Duluth and Iron Range road is to build a new ore dock this winter which will be the highest dock in the world. It will be 51½ feet above the water, the great height being necessary to facilitate the loading of the big ore steamers of the company. This will give the company three big docks at Two Harbors. The increase of dock room by one-third probably means that the company expects the output of the mines next year to increase that much. The Iron Range will also probably build a 10-mile branch into the new Mesaba range, tapping several new mines. The outlook for important developments in iron mining in St. Louis County next year is very promising. The Mesaba road from Duluth to the mines is likely to be built, and the Duluth and Winnipeg will probably tap the extreme west end of the range. With the success of pig iron making established the future of iron mining and making here is very bright. Her iron business alone ought to bring 100,000 additional population to Duluth and vicinity in the next six years.

The Duluth grain market shows the most wonderful increase this year it has ever known, and it is not likely that any other market has seen anything like such a gain. The figures of lake shipments for the season just closed are as follows: Flour 2,914,360 bbls., a gain of 325,000 bbls.; wheat, 33,177,702 bu., against 13,851,933 bu. the previous season, a gain of 19,351,769 bu. Reducing flour to wheat the shipments equal 46,295,702 bu. To this must be added shipments of corn, oats, rye, barley and flaxseed, which bring the total up to 47,330,957 bu. To carry this flour and grain it took about 750 vessels.

Rev. W. M. Barker rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church and the Duluth W. C. T. U. have united in a novel movement here. The rector will give up his evening service and will preach at the Temple Opera House, with the City Band to furnish the music. Mr. Barker will discard his Episcopal robes at this service.

NOT MERRIAM BUT RUSK,

Gov. McGill Says "Uncle Jerry" Is the Man for V. P.

Minneapolis Journal.

A Journal man waited upon Gov. McGill this morning, and the conversation lazily drifted through the weather, sluggishly touched on ice palace reminiscences, and the tabooed political ground loomed up off the lea bow before the opportunity presented itself, for the newspaper man had waited upon Gov. McGill to get his views on Gov. Merriam's vice presidential boomlet, and the exigencies of the occasion demanded that the subject uppermost in the reportorial mind be cloaked with the mantle of desultory discussion. Gov. McGill was saying, as he looked out of the window on a snow covered perspective, that the people of Minneapolis must work, and work hard, too, if they wish to make a success of the Republican national convention. Of course the Governor was aware that no definite steps could be taken until the arrival of the executive committee of the national committee, but he said that the powers-that-be once on the ground the hard work would commence.

"A delegation of 100 will arrive from New York, for instance," said he, "and the same train brings in a big Republican club from Cincinnatti, let us say. These men march up the street, all expecting to put up at the West, the question will be, "Where are you going to put 'em!" However, there is no doubt but these things will be looked after, and we will come out with flying colors."

"The selection of Minneapolis as the place for holding the convention will tend to solidify the Republican party in the Northwest, will it not, Governor?" returned the reporter.

"Not especially," was the deliberate reply. "I think that the holding of the convention in the Northwest will have but little, if any, effect politically."

"Then might not the desired end be attained by the selection of a Northwestern candidate for second place on the ticket?"

"Unquestionably," replied Gov. McGill

"And who would be the most available man in your individual opinion, Governor?"

"Well, sir," said Gov. McGill, as he meditatively stroked his moustache, "I have in mind a man who, as far as I know, has never been spoken of. Jerry Rusk of Wisconsin would do more to solidify the party in the Northwest than any other man. He is not a Scandinavian, but his wife is, and a splendid lady besides. In Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Dakotas his nomination would strengthen the party materially without a doubt. No, I do not think that the holding of the convention at Minneapolis will make any difference, but the nomination of "Uncle Jerry" for second place on the ticket would certainly strengthen the ticket in the Northwest."

"I see that Mr. Lowry, in a New York interview, favors Gov. Merriam for second honors," remarked the Journal man.

"So?" replied the Governor, raising his eyebrows ever so slightly, "I hadn't noticed that."

"Yes, Mr. Lowry declares with you that the conditions political demand the namination of a Northwestern man, but he thinks that Merriam is the Republican Moses who will solidify the party in the Northwest. The Journal tried to interview the Governor in St. Paul yesterday, but he refused to talk, and did not wish it even intimated that an attempt to interview him had been made."

"Then," replied Gov. McGill, "his excellency was very sensible. If the party is going to name a man from the Northwest for second honors, with all due respect to Gov. Merriam, we should not pass over such men as Rusk and Allison. They are the men who are entitled to the recognition of the party for their services in the past."

The Girl I Love.

Manistee Democrat:—The Brown Theatre Company had a packed house at the Opera House last evening, their opening night, and the large audience wai not at all disappointed in their anticipation of witnessing a pleasing comedy rendered in excellent style. The musical selections were well received, encores being insisted upon at each rendition, and showed ability tempered with taste and style in rendering. We have not space to review the play, but our readers may judge for themselves by joining the crowd which will visit the Opera House this evening, when they play a "Waif From the Sea."

Canadian Excursions.

Excursion tickets to Canada will be on sale via St. Paul and "The North-Western Line," to Chicago at offices of the Great Northern Ry., from points in Minnesota and Dakota north of and including Crookston and Grand Forks on December 1st, 8th, 15, 20th, 21st, 22nd and 29th, and from points in Manitoba on December 1st, 8th, 15th, 22nd and 29th, 1891. To Montreal and points west of Montreal the rate will be $40.00 for the round trip. Tickets will also be sold to points east of Montreal at a trifle higher rate. The Montana and Manitoba express trains of the Great Northern Ry. arrive in St. Paul in the morning in time to connect with the "North-Western Line" fast day train leaving St. Paul at 7:50 a. m., arriving in Chicago 9:35 p.m., making connection with late night trains out of Chicago to the east. Passengers arriving at St. Paul in the morning, desiring to tay over until evening, can take the vestibule limited on this line that leaves St. Paul at 7:30 p. m., and arrives at Chicago 9 o'clock next next morning. Buy your ticket over "The North-Western Line" it is also the only line running a train from St. Paul every morning both week days and Sundays to Milwaukee and Chicago.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

Everybody is in courting this week.

Knute S. Aker was up from the west side last week.

Att'y A. C. Wilkinson was a guest at the Clifton hotel in St. Paul last week.

Conductor J. B. Copeland was registered at the Sherman hotel, St. Paul, last week.

The train on the Great Northern road was four or five hours late on Friday morning owing to the big blizzard.

The biggest storm of the season set in on Thursday morning terminating in a regular blizzard. The weather was quite warm, however.

Remember the sale at Brown's old stables (Lancaster & Young's stables) on Fifth street next Saturday, commencing at 10 o'clock.

The train on the Great Northern on Thursday evening failed to arrive at all, owing to an accident near Grand Forks. It was either abandoned or sent down on the west side.

A Northern Pacific freight train was ditched near Burlington on Thursday afternoon which so blockaded the track that the south-bound passenger was obliged to go by way of Red Lake Falls.

Excursion tickets to the Pacific coast, via the Great Northern Railway on sale every day. Before you conclude on making the trip, apply or write to any agent of the Great Northern for particulars.

Read our great premium offer, on first page in this issue. Six great farm books for only 25 cents, Leatherstocking Tales only 25 cents or 10 Novels, by world-renowned authors for only 50 cents.

A. H. Young, traveling passenger agent for the Burlington, and B. N. Austin, assistant gen'l passenger agent of the N. P., gave this office a pleasant call on Wednesday last, piloted by C. A. Sharkey, the affable N. P. agent at Crookston.

W. W. Braden, Land Commissioner, St. Paul, Minn., will be pleased to furnish particulars concerning lands in the Park Region and Red River Valley of Minnesota, for sale at low prices and on long time. Sectional maps, publications, etc., sent free.

Conductor Casper Sands took a lay-off last week owing to the illness of his wife. Mrs. Sands has had a great deal of trouble with her throat in the past and recently has been laid up with a sore throat. Her physician pronounced it a case of diptheria and caused the house to be quarantined. [illegible] that it is an extremely mild case as she has been able to be about [illegible] of the time.

John Frasier, a lumberman employed in one of T. B. Walker's lumber camps on the Clearwater, got lost in the woods and remained out all night during the extreme cold weather. He kept walking until some time early in the morning before he sank, exhausted, where he was found by his comrades soon after. As he did not return during the night they organized a hunting party early in the morning and fortunately were able to follow his footsteps in the snow and find him in time to save his life. He was, however, very badly frozen, and was sent at once to this city where he received medical attendance and was sent from here to the hospital in Duluth.

If you want a good farm of 316 acres ready for crop in the spring, with good, substantial buildings, good fences, artesian water and a fine grove call at THE JOURNAL office. We know of just such a place near this city that can be had cheap.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Oct. 29th, 1891.]
[Last publication Dec. 10th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Rudolph Jacklin and Bertha Jacklin, his wife, to Farmers' Trust Company, bearing date the 11th day of June, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of June, A. D. 1889, at 8:30 o'clock a. m., in book 45 of mortgages, on pages 419, 420, 421, 422, 423.

And whereas the description of the premise in said mortgage contained is as follows: Situate, lying and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The south half of the southeast quarter (s½ se¼), the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter (nw¼ se¼) and the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter (sw¼ ne¼) of Section twenty-nine, (29), in Township one hundred fifty-four (154) north, Range forty-three (43) west.

And whereas the said Farmers' Trust Company, the owner and holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth and represented by the notes therein described upon which default has occurred due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due, and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest upon the notes in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to wit: Six hundred thirty-six and 46-100 dollars. ($636.46), and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The south half of the southeast quarter (s½ se¼), the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter (nw¼ se¼) and the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter (sw¼ ne¼) of Section twenty-nine (29) in Township one hundred fifty-four (154) north, Range forty-three (43) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less, according to the United States government survey thereof, in said Polk County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on SATURDAY, THE 12TH DAY OF DECEMBER, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

(First publication Oct. 29th, 1891.)
[Last publication Dec. 10th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Aslak A. Dyrdal and Ingeborg A. Dyrdal, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 9th day of May, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 18th day of May, A. D. 1889, at 9:15 o'clock a. m., in book 43 of mortgages, on pages 174-178; and,

Whereas default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $7.37 that became due November 1st, 1889, $7.53 that became due May 1st, 1890, $7.50 that became due November 1st, 1890, and $7.50 that became due May 1st, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained:

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Two hundred ninety-five and 42-100 ($295.42) dollars; and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in, and covered by, said mortgage, viz: The southeast quarter (se¼) of the northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-eight (28) and the southwest quarter (sw¼) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section twenty-seven (27), Township one hundred and forty-nine (149), Range forty-two (42), containing 80 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof. All of said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State on MONDAY, THE 14TH DAY OF DECEMBER, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Marcus E. Stockland, unmarried, mortgagor, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 31st day of May, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 31st day of May, A. D. 1889, at 11:35 o'clock a. m., in book 45 of mortgages, on pages 610-13.

And whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $10.00 that became due November 1st, 1889, $12.00 that became due May 1st, 1890, $12.00 that became due November 1st, 1890, and $12.00 that became due May 1st, 1891, and whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum to-wit: Four hundred fifty-three and 27-100 ($453 27-100) dollars; and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz; The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section twenty-four (24), Township one hundred fifty-four (154), Range forty-five (45), containing 159 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises and twenty-five ($25 00) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Last publication Dec. 17th, 1891.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and twenty-two 40-100 ($122.40-100) dollars, interest which became due on the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1891, which default has continued to the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Andrew G. Hanson, a widower, mortgagor to J. E. Bolly, mortgagee, bearing date the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1890, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 24th day of July, A. D. 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 40 of mortgages, on page 149.

And whereas, the said J. E. Bolly, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of sixteen hundred and twenty-two 40-100 ($1,622 40-100) dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of eight per cent. per annum from the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1891, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:—All that tract or parcel of land described as the southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-four (34), Township one hundred and fifty-one (151), Range forty-four (44), according to the government survey thereof in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on MONDAY, THE 21st DAY OF DECEMBER, 1891, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of sixteen hundred and twenty-two 40-100 dollars, and interest and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15th, 1891.

ED. JOURNAL.—

The Mexican Government has suspended the high duty which it levied upon cereals and meats. This was done because of the exceedingly short crops in that country and the great amount of importation of these articles that would necessarily ensue. This act opens a considerable market for the consumption of American breadstuffs and meats.

Postmaster-General Wanamaker has issued his report and, as has been the case with all his previous reports, it is a business statement of the great business of the government for distributing the mails. Mr. Wanamaker has made several valuable and proper recommendations, among them the following: "Among his more important recommendations are the adoption not only of the telegraph, but the telephone, to the postal system; a general extension of the money-order service; the introduction of house letter boxes for collection as well as delivery; the adoption of the pneumatic tube system as used in Berlin and Vienna for the transmission of mail matter in large cities; a gradual increase of free delivery; the establishment of postal saving depositories; the abolition of box rents at free delivery offices in small places; the simplification of postal rates and the consolidation of third and fourth class postage." Mr. Wanamaker brings his business methods to bear in the business of the postoffice and there is no doubt of the fact that his administration has been a very good one.

The Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Noble, has issued his report. Of course it covers all the various Bureaus of his Department though much of it is devoted to the land question. It is shown that during the existence of the administration 23,000,000 acres of land have been added to the public domain and opened for the use of settlers, and that for the three years there has been taken up by homestead over 300,000 homes, showing that the people of the country appreciate, as they ought to, the opportunity offered them of securing homes for themselves.

The Secretary of the Treasury has given out the Treasurer's report showing how the money of the United States has been handled in the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1891. The entire receipts of the government for that year were $756,721,305, and the entire expenditures, including the amount paid for the redemption of the bonds, was $781,126,276, leaving an actual balance of receipts over expenditures of $25,000,000.

Secretary Rusk in his report devotes considerable time to the effort he is making to induce the people of Europe to use corn as bread instead of taking the rye they have been accustomed to. The entire failure almost of the rye crop in Russia, Germany and Hungary has made it necessary that some other source of supply should be found, as there is no possibility of securing rye. The attention of the people has been called through special agents sent to that country for that express purpose, and it is believed that these agents have succeeded in accomplishing the object and that hereafter large quantities of corn will be exported for food purposes.

Senator-Governor Hill and some of his devoted followers, who are known as members of the David B. Hill Democratic Club, at Elmira, called a meeting to ask him to deliver a speech before it. Governor Hill spoke at great length upon the issues of the day. He devoted, however, most of his time to the discussion of bi-metallism. He says, "The Democrats of New York stand fast for sound finance. They demand that every dollar coined in the United States shall be the equal of every other dollar so coined. They demand more. They demand that every silver dollar coined hitherto or hereafter shall be the equal of the present gold dollar, our present unit of value, weighing twenty-five and eight-tenths Troy grains of standard gold, and not one cent, not one mill less worth than the gold dollar." The Governor is mistaken in this statement. The Democrats as well as the Republicans of New York demand that we shall accept the ideas and theories of Europe and Wall street.

Persons visiting their old homes in the East this winter should take along printed matter descriptive of their new homes in the Northwest. Take copies of this paper with you and ask agents of the Great Northern Railway for a supply of publications. [33-36]

THE AMERICAN LIVE STOCK MANUAL
THE STANDARD AMERICAN POULTRY BOOK

We offer as a premium six reliable and useful text-books for the farm and home. These books have been specially selected with a view to meet the needs of the masses, the design being to present to our patrons an opportunity of securing, at the most trifling cost in connection with a subscription to our paper, a collection of books of the utmost practical use and value, treating upon themes of vital importance in every rural home. No man or woman can fail to be profited by the possession of these books; as works of reference they are invaluable, and really no home should be without them. Brief descriptions are appended.

THE STANDARD AMERICAN POULTRY BOOK. An entirely new book, involving all the latest ideas in poultry keeping. It is a work intended to teach the masses of farmers the secret of success in the poultry yard, and its teachings, if followed, will add enormously to the earnings of every flock of fowls. The following are only a small portion of the topics treated in this book: How to Start and Stock a Hennery; Poultry Houses, Cheap and Expensive Yards, Coops and Enclosures; Poultry Keeping for Profit; Poultry on a Large Scale; Poultry Raising as a Business; Feeding and Laying; Winter Egg-Production; The Hatching Period; Preparing Nests for Sitters; Spring Breeding of Poultry; the Hens for Farmers; How to Produce Layers; Good and Cheap Incubators; How to Raise Artificially Hatched Chickens; Caponizing; Packing Eggs for Market; Packing Poultry for Market; Feeding Hoppers; Drinking Fountains and Grain Chests; Eggs and Pullets; Preserving Eggs; Diseases of Poultry—Chicken Cholera, Pip, Gapes, Roup, Scaly Legs, Lice, Egg Eating, Crop Bound Fowls, etc.; the Plymouth Rocks; the Wyandottes; the Brown Leghorns; the Golden Spangled Crested Polish; the White Crested Black Polands; the Langshans; the Silver Spangled Hamburghs; the Houdans; the Buff Cochins; the White Cochins; the White Leghorns; the Golden Pencilled Hamburghs; White Shanghais; the La Fleche Fowls; the Gray Dorkings; the Brahmas; Game Fowls, Bantams, etc.; How to [illegible]; Management of Chickens; Killing Poultry; Preparing against Vermin; Fencing; Management of Ducks; Raising Turkeys, Fattening Geese; etc., etc. It is a large book of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover. It is profusely illustrated and handsomely gotten up in every respect. No man or woman who owns an acre or more of land can afford to be without it.

EVERYBODY'S LAW BOOK. A complete compendium of business and domestic Law, by a prominent member of the New York Bar, containing concise explanations of the general laws, and the laws of the several States, regarding Administrators and Executors, Affidavits, Agency, Agreements, Apprentices, Arbitration and Award, Assault and Battery, Assignments, Attachments, Banks, Bills of Exchange, Checks and Promissory Notes, Bills of Sale, Chattel Mortgages, Citizens and Aliens, Common Carriers, Contracts, Corporations, Deeds and Mortgages of Real Estate, Descent and Distribution, Dower, Easement, Exemptions, Farmers' Law, Fences, Fixtures, Garnishment, Gifts, Guaranty, Guardian and Ward, Heirs and next of Kin, Homestead Exemptions, Husband and Wife, Infants, Interest and Usury, Landlord and Tenant, Libel and Slander, Liens, Limitation of Actions, Marriage and Divorce, Rights of Married Women, Master and Servant, Parent and Child, Partnership, Payment and Tender, Personal Property, Power of Attorney, Principal and Agent, Privileged Communications, Railroads, Railroad Real Estate, Receipts and Releases, Replevin, Right of Way, Seduction, Trustee Process, Warranty, Water Rights, Wills and Codicils, Together with complete forms of Acknowledgments, Agreements, Articles of Copartnership, Assignments, Award of Arbitrators, Bills of Sale, Bonds, Chattel Mortgages, Contracts, Deeds, Executors' and Administrators' Accounts, Interest Table, Liens, Mortgages of Real Estate, Powers of Attorney, Releases, Satisfaction Pieces, Wills and Codicils, etc., etc., specially adapted for the daily use of those who are not lawyers, with directions for their preparation. A large volume of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover.

THE MODERN COOK BOOK AND MEDICAL GUIDE. This is practically two books in one—a perfect cook book and a perfect medical book—and there is so much in it, and so much care and pains have been taken in its compilation, that we feel perfectly safe in asserting that the Cooking department is fully the equal, in quantity and quality of contents, of any low-priced cook book ever published, and the same as to the Medical department here, in as compared with any low-priced medical book in the market. The cooking recipes number 477, and include Breakfast Dishes, Soups, Meats and Poultry, Fish, Vegetables, Salads and Relishes, Bread and Rolls, Jellies and Preserves, Puddings and Pies, Fancy Dishes, Cakes, Confectionery, Ice Cream and Summer Drinks. The compilation of this department was superintended by a practical housekeeper, every recipe will be found reliable, and it has been pronounced one of the best, most complete, and practical cook-books ever published. The Medical Department will be found fully the equal of any doctor book published at one dollar or less. It tells you how to cure by simple means, available in every home, every disease and ailment that is curable. It will save you many dollars annually in doctors' bills and patent medicines. THE MODERN COOK BOOK AND MEDICAL GUIDE is a large book of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover.

THE AMERICAN LIVE STOCK MANUAL. A complete text book containing the fullest information regarding the care and management, feeding and rearing, of live stock, likewise the cure of all diseases peculiar to these animals, and of all unruly and vicious habits, for the construction of necessary buildings and conveniences, etc., etc. The following are only a portion of the topics treated in this book: How to Judge a Horse; Feeding Horses; Raising a Colt; To Bit a Colt; To Break Horses from Pulling at the Halter; Warts on Horses; Stumbling Horses; Cure for Balky Horses; Kicking Horses; Training Vicious Horses; Galls and Sores on Horses; Raising Horses; Colic, Bots; Founder; Heaves; Epizootic; Shying; Scratches; Ringbone; Spavin; Cribbing; Windgalls; Brittle Feet; Worms; Over-Reaching; Sprains and Bruises; Hide-Bound Horses; Avoiding Indigestion; How to Save Oats in Feeding; Watering Horses; Care of Horse's Legs; How to Tell a Horse's Age; Neck Yokes; Good Grooming; Shoeing; Stables and Stabling; Breeding Horses upon Farms; Horse Education; Ringing a Bull; Relieving Choked Cattle; Bone Disease in Milch Cows; Marks of a Good Cow; Cattle Racks and Feed Boxes; Feeding Cattle; To Prevent Hooking Fences; Black Tongue; Lice; To Prevent Kicking; Contagious Cattle Diseases; Fattening Stock; Milking; Cooking Feed for Live Stock; The Soiling System; Raising Calves; To Break a Heifer or a Vicious Cow to Milk; Wintering Live Stock; How to Take Off a Hide; Assistance at Birth; Hollow Horn; Obstructed Teats; Black Leg; Caked Udder; Jumping Cattle; Garget; Care and Management of Hogs; Piggeries; Troughs; Pig Raising; Over-Feeding; Sanitary Management of Swine; Hog Cholera; Paralysis; Scurvy Pigs; Preparing Feed for Swine; Butchering; Fattening Hogs; Driving Hogs; Raising Sheep; Washing Sheep; Sheep Rot; Herding Sheep; To Tell the Age of Sheep; Sheep Ticks; Early Lambs; How to Make Sheep Pay; Treatment of Lambs; Increasing the Growth of Wool. It is a large book of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover, and is profusely illustrated.

THE CONDENSED CYCLOPAEDIA OF USEFUL KNOWLEDGE. This book contains, probably, more useful and valuable information than was ever before published in any low priced work. Among its contents are: Population of American Cities, Area and Population of the Continents, of the States and Territories, of the Principal Countries, of the World, Length of the Principal Rivers, Presidential Vote for Sixty Years, Presidential Statistics, Area and Depth of Inland Seas, Area of Oceans, Height of Mountains, Locomotion of Animals and Velocity of Bodies, Height of Monuments, Towers, etc., Distances from New York to Important Cities, Chronological History of Discovery and Progress, Popular Sobriquets of States, Cities, etc., Incorrect Language, Rules for Spelling, Use of Capitals, Pronunciation, Wall Street Phrases, Commerce of the World, Curious Facts in Natural History, Duration of Life of Various Animals, Origin of the Names of States, of Countries, of Popular Fables, of Familiar Quotations, and of [illegible], Fate of the Apostles, Statistics of the Globe, Leading Governments of the World, How Money Accumulates, How to Calculate Interest, Statistics of Longevity, Dying Words of Famous Persons, etc., etc. This book is a great storehouse of instruction, and a copy of it should be in every home. What They are Doing for Inebriates at Dwight, Ill.

The latest circular of Mr. George B. Smith, Secretary of the Bichloride of Gold Club at Dwight, shows that the September enrollment in the club was 254, and the month ended with a total of 1,119 names on the books. To and including Oct. 14th the number had been increased to 1,324, and on the date of the circular, the 20th, it was 1,440. It is expected that the enrolment of the club will have 1,500 by the time of Dr. Keeley's return from Europe, early in November. The enrollment at Dwight, although it does not embrace half of those who are discharged cured, promises to develop into a national organization. The Secretary says: "The letters to the Secretary from our own members returned home are full of hope for the future great usefulness of the club. With every new enlistment on our books the accompanying figure of the enrollment is watched and regarded with pride. It is under such happy conditions as these that we await the return to Dwight of our honored permanent president, Leslie E Keeley, and are prepared to render account for the months that have passed with us during his absence." Thus the good work goes on, ever increasing its area of usefulness and humanity.

> And drunk the milk of paradise.
> —Coleridge.

Imagine a dozen dipsomaniacs, morphine-eaters and opium fiends turned loose in a peaceful country village with only a solitary, harmless looking policeman to preserve order. Such is the condition of affairs at Dwight—seventy-three miles southwest of Chicago—and yet there is not a more tranquil town in the whole world. Like a new Temple of Janus, the doors of the calaboose remain closed from one month's end to the other, and its apartments are the only unoccupied ones in town. Disorder is unknown. An arrest would create a sensation. Eight hundred men are under treatment here. The vast majority of them are dipsomaniacs, or to use plain English—drunkards. The residue are victims of chloral hydrate, morphia, chloroform, others opium, cocaine, and drugged cigarettes. Occasionally a patient arrives who has reveled in "all the luxuries of the season," including raw alcohol, liquor, and all the pernicious drugs just enumerated. Morphine and whisky are often used together. In addition to these unfortunates there are many ladies here for treatment. I have heard the number stated all the way from 100 to 150. They never appear on the street but live in strict seclusion, and receive private medical attendance. Some of them are hard drinkers, the result of social festivities where the elegant thing is to drink champagne. Nine-tenths of them, however, are devotees of the god Madjoon. They have been using opium in its varied forms. The burden of guilt, in most cases, rests on the shoulders of ignorant or unprincipled physicians who, at the outset, prescribed opium preparations to these victims. The habit being quickly formed, the votaries of absinthe have gone from bad to worse until nothing but bichloride of gold stands between them and the insane asylum or the grave. A morphine eater said to me the other day: "If I could ever learn that a physician had prescribed morphine to a child of mine I would kill him before sunset."

FREEDOM AND PLENTY OF WHISKY.

I expected to find a huge sanitary building here, where all the patients were collected in a body, and carefully guarded from the snares and fascinations of King Alcohol. The very reverse is the case. There are no bolts, bars, walls or dead lines. There is no restraint whatever. The patients board in hotels and with private families, and the accommodations of the town are taxed to the utmost limit. Every man comes and goes as he chooses. If he thinks he needs a drink of whisky, he goes to the medical hall and says so, and is immediately handed a small bottle of fine old Kentucky bourbon. I have not tasted liquor since arriving here, but a man who has told me that the Institute whisky was the best he ever "put his lips over." In our vernacular Dwight is known as "Jagtown." The medical hall is variously referred to as the "shot tower," the "shooting gallery," or the "target ground." It is there that they fire a charge of bichloride of gold into every man's upper left arm, four times per day. This is called "getting shot." The train from Chicago is called the "jag train," for it never fails to bring a squad of recruits. A new arrival is known as a "jag," for the greater portion of new men arrive here as drunk as lords. Anybody can tell a "jag" the moment he steps off the cars, whether he is drunk or sober. If drunk he is immediately steered over to the "shooting gallery," where he is promptly searched for liquor and morphine, and usually not in vain. He is immediately relieved of these contraband articles and in lieu of forty-rod whisky is given a small bottle of pure liquor. Almost before he knows it he also receives a heavy "shot" in the upper left arm from a hypodermic syringe. He is also induced to swallow a dose of what we call "dope." It is a mixture to be taken internally every two hours, from morning until bed time. When he leaves the institution he finds himself a regenerated and new-made man, free from the curse of liquor and all other narcotics.

Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

Stoppage In Transitu.

The right of stoppage in transitu is greatly favored by the law. It may be defined to be the right belonging to the seller of goods, who has not been paid therefor, to resume possession of them before they come into possession of the buyer who has become insolvent, bankrupt or pecuniarily embarrassed. A few general statements with reference to this very important and greatly valuable right will not be uninteresting or uninstructive.

The right of stoppage in transitu has been long recognized. We find it exercised as early as 1670. At first it was recognised only as an equitable right, that is, cognisable only in a court of equity. It is now become a part of the common law. Reverting to our definition, many questions may arise, some of which we shall attempt to answer. As to how long the right continues, we may say until the goods reach the actual or constructive possession of the buyer or his agent. Would it include the possession of a carrier who had been designated, or who is hired and paid by the buyer? We think not. So long as the goods are in the hands of the carrier, whether by sea or land, the right exists, even although the buyer appointed the carrier. But not if the conveyance belongs to the buyer. And the right continues while the goods are in any place of deposit connected with the transmission and delivery of them. Goods may be said to be delivered when they reach the hands of an authorized agent of the buyer, who is holding them until he receives orders from the buyer, but not so if they are in the hands of a shipping agent appointed by the buyer to await his instructions, not as to their destination, but as to the mode of shipment to their original destination. If the buyer be in the habit of using the warehouse of a carrier, warfinger or other person as his own, for instance, by making it the repository of his goods, and disposing of them there, the transit is at an end.

It has been held that, where the goods are stored by a carrier at the end of his route as agent for the buyer, the transit is complete.

If, at the time of the sale, the seller ships the goods to a third person in the buyer's name as consignor, at the buyer's request, the right probably does not exist.

Where part of the goods are delivered without the intention on the seller's part of retaining the rest, but as a step towards and in progress of the delivery of the whole, the right ceases. The buyer may take possession of the goods at any point on their journey and defeat the right, but merely making demand for them of the carrier does not defeat it. An attachment or execution against the buyer can not be levied on the goods to defeat the right. The vendor's right is superior to all liens, but not to the carriers' lien for freight.

An indorsement of the bill of lading to a bona fide purchaser will defeat the right. An indorsement of the bill of lading as a pledge for a specific sum defeats the right, but the seller may give notice to the pledgee, and in a court of equity maintain his right to the difference between the amount of the pledgee's demand and the sum realized by the sale of the goods.

An assignment of the bill of lading as security for an antecedent debt does not, nor does an assignment for the benefit of creditors, defeat the right. But suppose the goods are partly paid for, or an acceptance or a note given, does the right still exist? Yes. Suppose the note be negotiated? The rule would probably be the same. But if the seller takes the unindorsed note or order of a third person, the right, it seems, is defeated, but the mere fact that the vendor has recourse against some other party does not defeat the right. The cases hold that if a bill or note or part payment has been received, it is not necessary to return the same in order to exercise the right. Who may exercise the right? The seller, a general agent, or one who is a special agent in respect to this consignment; a commission merchant, one who has paid the price for the buyer and has taken the bill of lading as security; a consignor, who consigns goods to be sold on the joint account of himself and the consignee, may exercise the right. The right belongs to no one but the seller or quasi seller.

What sort of inability to pay on the part of the buyer will give this right?

Insolvency is the only ground. It is not necessarily a technically declared insolvency. It means, as well, a general inability to pay just debts. It may be proved in any satisfactory way, as by stopping payment or failing to pay one's just debts, the buyer's admissions, or well founded information. It need not be an insolvency arising after the sale. it may be one which existed prior to the sale if not discovered until afterwards. How is the right exercised? It is not necessary to actually seize the goods. Give notice to the carrier in whose hands they are, on the delivery of which notice it becomes the person's duty to retain the goods. The carrier may be held responsible if he delivers the goods after notice. If by mistake he delivers them, the seller may bring trover for them against the buyer, or his assignees, if he be bankrupt. The notice must be given to the one who has the immediate custody of the goods. If given to a principal, whose agent has custody of the goods, it must be given at such a time and under such circumstances that the principal, by the exercise of a reasonable diligence, may communicate it to his servant.

We may say that it is a common custom for the seller to require bills of lading to be made to his own order, thus cutting off any questions which might arise as to delivery.

Canadian Excursions.

Round trip tickets will be sold by the Great Northern from here to Montreal, and Ontario and Quebec points west of Montreal, for $40 on Dec. 1st and 8th, Dec. 15th to 22d inclusive, and Dec. 29th, good for 90 days—15 days going, same returning. Extension of time allowed at small additional cost. Tickets to points east of Montreal in Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia sold at one fare for the round trip from Montreal added to the $40 rate from here. Choice of route and close connection with different lines from St. Paul. A sufficient party can get the use of a tourist sleeping car, the cost of which will be for a double bunk $1 to St. Paul and $2 to Chicago. W. W. FEGAND, [31-36] Agent Crookston.

A trip to Montana over the Great Northern is one of the most attractive in the west. From St Paul the tourist takes the four-track route to Minneapolis. Crossing the Mississippi on a million dollar stone arch bridge, in full view of the Falls of St. Anthony and the largest flouring mills in the world, goes thence through the Park Region of Minnesota, with its myriad lakes, to the wheat valley of the Red River, to Devils Lake,—North Dakota's inland sea,—through the Moose River country, and the Milk River Valley, passing Fort Assiniboine, the largest and finest military fort in the west, historic Benton, Great Falls City and the mighty cataracts of the Missouri River, then skirting the Rocky Mountains, with their sublime scenery, to Helena, the rich capital of Montana, thence over the continental backbone to Butte, the largest mining camp on earth.

Always at the Front.

We have received a copy of the handsomely illustrated prospectus for 1892 issued by the Detroit Free Press. The achievements of this famous paper in the past have been great, but if its promises for the future are to be fulfilled—and there certainly is no reason to expect the contrary—The Detroit Free Press will in 1892 be, as its publishers confidently claim, the most entertaining and instructive paper published, giving additional pleasure to its thousands of old subscribers and fresh enjoyment to the many thousand new ones that its merits deserve. Its list of contributors for 1892 includes many of the most famous names in American literary and public life, and most of the articles to be published are of unusual importance and interest, presenting a splendid array of valuable features in addition to the inimitable work done by its own staff of bright and famous writers. The publishers of The Free Press will mail copies of the paper and prospectus to all applicants.

Canadian Excursions.

Excursion tickets to Canada will be on sale via St. Paul and "The North-Western Line," to Chicago at offices of the Great Northern Ry. from points in Minnesota and Dakota north of and including Crookston and Grand Forks on December 1st, 8th, 15, 20th, 21st, 22nd and 29th, and from points in Manitoba on December 1st, 8th, 15th, 22nd and 29th, 1891. To Montreal and points west of Montreal the rate will be $40.00 for the round trip. Tickets will also be sold to points east of Montreal at a trifle higher rate. The Montana and Manitoba express trains of the Great Northern Ry. arrive in St. Paul in the morning in time to connect with the "North-Western Line" fast day train leaving St. Paul at 7:50 a. m., arriving in Chicago 9:35 p. m., making connection with late night trains out of Chicago to the east. Passengers arriving at St. Paul in the morning, desiring to lay over until evening, can take the vestibule limited on this line that leaves St. Paul at 7:30 p. m., and arrives at Chicago 9 o'clock next morning. Buy your ticket over "The North-Western Line" it is also the only line running a train from St. Paul every morning both week days and Sundays to Milwaukee and Chicago.

Wheat—1 Hard 75.
1 Northern 74.
2 Northern 69.
3 Northern 63.

Dan O'Connor was buzzing about the streets this week.

A very fine line of fur capes and muffs, at Gervais, "the hustlers."

Wheat opened out at 74 cents on Monday morning.

W. C. Nash was over from East Grand Forks courting last week.

Mrs. Casper Sands is convalescent and the quarantine has been raised.

Charlie Lowe returned on Tuesday from a short visit to Galveston, Texas.

Gervais, "the hustlers," are offering great drives on flannels and blanket. Go and catch on to some of them.

H. B. Haney was up from Fisher last week and dropped in to encourage us by a renewal.

Rev. R. H. Battey goes to Ada to lecture on Friday evening. He expects to give a course there.

Our lovely December weather still continues. So far December has been an apology for November.

M. G. Peterson was up from Garden on Thursday. M. G. says his health is not very good this winter.

Gervais, "the hustler,s" are offering special drives on cloaks, jackets, and capes till New Year's.

Holiday attractions at Saake's jewelry store.

James Hall, arraigned for grand larceny plead guilty and on Friday evening Sheriff Grundyson took him to Stillwater.

The district court continues its ceaseless grind upon cases of more or less account and this will go on till the holiday vacation.

Don't fail to call and see samples of our great premiums. Reading matter enough to last you all winter goes with THE JOURNAL this year. Call and see.

The board at its last meeting bought a building for a county hospital and have advertised for a matron. The needs of an institution of this kind have been long apparent.

E. O. Flanders returned on Saturday morning from a visit to Hudson, Wis. He was also a delegate to the State Dairyman's Association meeting at St. Anthony.

A visit to my store will convince you that you can save money by buying your holiday presents of me.

C. H. SAAKE.

Rev. R. H. Battey reports a very enjoyable season at Glynden last week and speaks in very high terms of the people whom he met there. Glynden has long been noted for her hospitable citizens.

The greatest display of holiday goods and novelties that ever come to the Northwest, at Gervais, "the hustler's."

Lyman Clark was in from Rockstad on Saturday and called to drop his nickel in THE JOURNAL slot to grind out the paper another year. Mr. C. is one of the faithful ones whom THE JOURNAL likes to serve.

Very handsome neckties for gents', for Christmas presents, at Gervais, "the hustlers."

Frank Barnum came up from Sauk Centre last week to accept the situation of local editor on the daily Times. Frank seems to be a genial, whole-souled sort of a fellow such as sometimes happen in the profession.

Fred Sieverson was down from Lindsay last Thursday and called to renew acquaintance—and subscription. Fred says farmers are feeling good out his way over the fact of good crops and plowing for next spring mostly all done.

Labrador seal plush capes for ladies' and gents', the best wearing plush made, at Gervais, "the hustlers."

In relation to the jail matter of which we spoke last week, the chairman of the county board was instructed to confer with the city authorities in relation to a site down town. The matter will come up at the next meeting of the board.

Duluth Evening Herald:—The familiar face of our friend, Hon. Halvor Steenerson, with his glasses on, appears in the current number of the Northwest Magazine. It is hardly necessary to say that the portrait is not quite so large as life.

The marriage of Register Hugh Thompson to Miss Lees McMasters occurred at his residence at Fisher on Thursday evening of last week in the presence of a few friends. After the marriage ceremony the bridal party adjourned to Roberton hall where a grand ball was given and a general good time enjoyed. The presents were numerous and rich.

W. H. Widrig was up attending to business at the county seat on Monday. W. H. says he shall sow two bushels of wheat per acre next spring being convinced from his experience last season that he gets double the yield that one and one-half bushels will yield. He tried it on a headland and says the wheat thus sown ripened earlier and and yielded at least double.

Comrade Ira D. Blanchard has received his voucher for first installment of pension at the rate of $12 per month. He draws from June 1890. This will be a nice little help for a worthy comrade and THE JOURNAL is glad to see such remembered by the government that they fought to save.

Ferdinand Turgeon was in from Lambert early in the week and gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call. Says the farmers are all happy over good crops and fair prices this fall out his way. He thinks another such a crop will place Polk County farmers in independent circumstances.

A kind welcome for all, good music, and enjoyable worship at the Congregational church, Dec. 20th. Morning sermon: "Our Indebtedness to God's Love;" evening: "The Gates of Life Open," a sermon for young people. Come in early. The opening exercises of music will commence promptly at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p.m.

Mr. A. A. Olds received a visit from his brother-in-law, Mr. Jones, of Hudson Wis., of a week's duration. Mr. Jones is also an old acquaintance of Dr. M. Leguee and told us in private that the doctor is one of the best veterinary surgeons he ever knew. He is very much pleased with what he has seen of our city, and our big crops of this year are an endless source of wonderment to him.

The State comes out with another "hold your wheat" circular and urges the farmers to hold it back and gives some very good reasons why they should do so. The State urges farmers to always hold back when the market is overcrowded and to sell gradually and claims that if they had done so this fall wheat would have brought a far better price and we believe this statement is pretty near correct. The State predicts big prices later.

We took breakfast with Ira DeCamp at the Hotel Brunswick in Minneapolis last Friday morning—every well regulated Crookstonite does that when he or she is in Minneapolis, for Ira is one of the most genial hotel men in the twin cities and the Brunswick, under its present management, is the best $2 a day house in Minnepaul. If you don't believe it all you have to do is to try it on once.

Reliable reports have been given THE JOURNAL of 35 and 40 bushel crops of No. 1 Hard wheat in Polk County this year. Some of this wheat sold for from 80 to 85 cents per bushel. At 80 cents a 40 bushel crop would bring $32 per acre. Is there any profit in that? A 30 bushel crop would bring $24 per acre and the better the crop is cultivated the more money there is in it. The fact that such crops can be produced speaks volumes for our soil.

Land can now be had in Polk County at from $5 to $20 per acre. Land that can be made to produce from 30 to 40 bushels per acre is actually worth many times $20 per acre to raise wheat on. Every intelligent man can see at a glance whether our land is held too high or not. Land within a radius of four miles from this city is actually worth $40 or $50 per acre and yet it can be had for $20 at the outside figure where it is for sale at all. Now is the time to catch on.

Brown's Theatre Company opened a week's engagement at the Grand in "A Brave Woman" to a fair house. On Tuesday evening the play was called "The Girl I Love." It is a play that has been on the boards here before under the name of "The Diamond Mystery. It is an exceptionally strong company, the acting and singing of J. Knox Garvin being exceptionally fine. One pleasing feature is the singing between the acts which keeps the audience in good humor during the (sometimes) interminable waiting spells. Mrs. Robbins has a sweet, powerful voice and her support is excellent. Saturday afternoon the company give a matinee and on Saturday evening occurs the grand drawing for an elegant parlor sett. At the prices, 15, 25, 35 and 50 cents the opera house should be filled every evening.

Our esteemed fellow-townsman, A. N. Hixson Esq., departed for Portland, Mich., on Monday evening for a few weeks' visit with old neighbors and friends and while there he will do what he can toward enlightening Michiganders as to the possibilities of a Polk County farm. We can assure all who listen to his siren song that Mr. H. is a man of truth and veracity—every way worthy of confidence and he also knows what he is talking about when he is talking about Red River soil as he came here a comparatively poor man and now owns one of the finest farms in the Red River Valley, only a few miles from this city, which farm brings him a revenue each year as great as that of any business man in the city of Crookston. But Hixson is no tenderfoot—no growler. He works with hands and brain and that kind of work always pays in this country in whatever business you engage. "Pluck and muscle" will pay better in this Red River Valley than anywhere else in these United States of America and Hixson has got the facts and figures to back up the assertion.

I buy my goods for cash direct of the manufacturers, which enables me to sell goods at about what other dealers pay for theirs.

L. F. Menage,

The combination auction sale last Saturday cannot be set down as a howling success. In the first place many who had promised to list articles did not show up and the result was that there were no sheep, hogs nor poultry entered and there were almost numberless inquiries for sheep. There were but ten grade Holstein cows sold and they brought less than they were actually worth for beef—for instance one six-year-old grade Holstein cow that was bid off for $14.00 was later in the day sold to a butcher in the city for $20.50 and when butchered on Monday dressed over 600 pounds. The buyers seemed very conservative holding themselves strictly within beef prices and yet the animals offered were in the very best dairy strains of that noted dairy breed and cost to get introduced to this county at the rate of $250 per head for a yearling Holstein bull and from $100 to $125 for grade Holsteen cows. Again, Rev. S. Currie had some 35 or 40 head from his choice herd of Jerseys but the offers did not run higher than $4 to $5 per head for full-blood, and thoroughbred bulls from 6 to 8 months old and the heifers and cows were nowhere, and Mr. Currie has been one of the most careful and painstaking breeders in the county and has succeeded in building up one of the best herds of Jerseys ever in Polk County. We tried to ascertain the reason for the apathy that was so apparent but only a few would assign any reason and those said they thought the cattle too small, and some said too small and too poor, ignoring the fact that Jerseys as a breed are small and that no cow that is a good reliable milker is fat when at her best flow. A cow that will make two pounds of butter a day is better and more profitable than the best beef cow that ever lived and it is a very poor Jersey cow that will not make two pounds a day.

MARRIED.

ROBERTS—HUNTER.—At the residence of the bride's brother, R. S. Hunter, Fox Lake, Wis., on Wednesday Dec. 9th, by the Rev. S. Sawyer, Mr. R. P. ROBERTS, to Miss MARY E. HUNTER.

The happy couple arrived in this city on Sunday morning and R. P. resumed his position in Williams' store on Monday morning all the same as though going away to be married was an ordinary everyday occurrence with him. They will board with mine host Bemis until their new residence is ready for occupancy.

Ladies, you cannot afford to miss seeing my new fall styles of millinery. The novelties of the season are rare and beautiful. Call and see them. MRS E. E. BANGS.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs' nice fall and winter display of millinery is the admiration of all the ladies who have called at her fashionable millinery parlors on Second street, and the prices are extremely low this fall.

BELTRAMI ITEMS.

BELTRAMI, Dec. 13th, 1891.

We reiterate, notwithstanding the cry of "Oh, rats!" from the Liberty correspondent of the Crookston Times to the contrary, that the town of Reis did raise thousands of bushels more grain this year than Liberty. We also have many more farmers who started with very little of this world's goods and to-day are in better circumstances than Liberty. We know that the Liberty correspondent, Mr. John Nichols, has been very successful but he got his start in Reis and had all his neighbors put the same amount of muscle and brain into the farm that he did they would be in better financial condition. But talk as much as you please you cannot raise as much grain to the acre on a farm like Tom Wilcox's as you can on the Hill farm in Reis which is considered the poorest land in the township. Good land as well as good blood counts. Hurrah for Reis!

Ford's trade is bigger than ever before. Every one likes the old gentleman and his clerks.

Our elevators are receiving lots of grain from Hubbard township.

The winter term of school will begin as soon as the officers procure a teacher.

HUBBARD ITEMS.

HUBBARD, Dec. 14th, 1891.

Frank Hanson is on the petit jury.

Supt. Carruth's friends here are pleased with his appointment.

The Alliance men who honor the memory of Mr. Grefthen ought to stand by him.

Nothing but a blizzard will prevent the Union Sunday School Society from holding services every Sunday during the winter. The officers extend a cordial invitation to the old and young who are desirous of learning the duties God requires of man.

Mr. Kolden will sell his stock of goods at auction beginning next Saturday.

Many estray calves are in town. Hayes Bros. have four and John J. Ellingson three which they wish the owners would call for as soon as possible.

At present writing the road is quite good between here and Beltrami and much of our wheat is going that way.

An Appeal To The People Of Minnesota.

The attention of the charitable people of Minnesota is hereby called to the duty devolving upon them of taking some prompt and efficient steps to send aid to the starving people of Russia.

The facts regarding the widespread destitution in that empire, are already quite well known, having been published widely in the journals of our state; and the statements have been confirmed bo official information received at the departments of the general government. There are, it seems certain, twenty million people in Russia who are to-day in a destitute condition, and a large majority of them absolutely suffering for food at the beginning of a long and severe winter. The distress and suffering which must ensue, unless these millions of unfortunates receive speedy relief from some other nation, is terrible to contemplate, and appeals to the sympathy and generosity of humane people everywhere. Something must be done at once, or the suffering in Russia will be appalling, and perhaps whole populations will die of hunger and disease. A recent writer in the Illustrated American, speaks of the famine as follows:

"In one village of 150 families, forty-seven people died of hunger in a fortnight. Reports of terrible sufferings come also from the province of Tambow. Travelers say that all along the railroad, and especially around the stations are crowds of thousands—gaunt, hungry, dying. They have abandoned their homes, where the last crumb has been eaten, and have flocked in despair to the railroad, recognizing in it the one link that unites them with the prosperous world outside. There they beg piteously of all passengers, and there they are dying and being buried by their dying comrades where they fall. In Samara only two per cent of the people have a winter's supply of food, and more than one-third of the inhabitants are utterly destitute."

This country, overflowing as it is with plenty, should not forget that Russia befriended us in the time of our dire distress. We are more favorably situated perhaps, than any other nation, to aid these starving people. Our harvests have been unexampled; our surplus of food products unprecedented. Prosperity abounds on every hand, and we should, as a humane people, give our unfortunate fellow beings in far away Russia, some of the surplus substance which Almighty God has showered upon us.

I have designated as a committee to receive contributions of flour, wheat, rye and other breadstuffs, Messrs. W. C. Edgar, and Charles MacC. Reeve, of Minneapolis, and George B. Evans, of St. Paul. The metropolitan daily newspapers will doubtless be glad to accept cash donations.

I therefore call upon the people of this state to make such donations for this purpose as the means of each will permit. Let a generous response be made, for we as a people, are abundantly able, and the blessings of a divine Providence will be our reward.

On motion the report was accepted and ordered paid.

On motion the bill of Engineer Starkey for $18.63 was allowed and ordered paid.

Alderman bill No. 794 was referred to the ways and means committee.

A resolution was read by the clerk relating to the proposed National park.

On motion the bill of Alderman & Sylvester was allowed and ordered paid.

The bill of A. J. & A. McKinnon for repairing the fire apparatus was allowed and ordered paid.

Bill of A. J. & A. McKinnon for making election booths was allowed and ordered paid.

Moved by Alderman Jennings, seconded by Alderman Buhn, that the street commissioner be instructed to make a list of all the city implements and material and to present it at the next meeting of the council. Carried.

M. E. Kirsch who had been appointed by the county commissioners as a committee of one to come before the city council and ascertain whether they would donate a site for the proposed new jail and county buildings, arose and addressing the council asked that the council would take some action in regard thereto.

On motion a vote of thanks was tendered to the commissioners for establishing a county hospital in the city. Carried.

Mr. Kirsch, as chairman of the commissioners, thanked the council for the compliment.

On motion the matter of putting in the water works to the hospital was referred to the Aldermen of the second ward.

On motion a committee of three was appointed to look into the matter of procuring a site for the proposed new county buildings. President appointed Aldermen Schmidt, Jennings, Walker.

At a special meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston, held the 10th day of December, 1891, Alderman Steenerson offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman Jennings:

To the President of the United States:

WHEREAS, It has been represented to our common council that Your Excellency has been urged to establish a public reservation and National park under the act of Congress, approved March 3d, 1891, in the northern part of this State embracing tracts of more than ten million acres in area, upon the theory that such a reservation would, by preserving the forests in that region, favorably affect the annual rain fall in the adjoining agricultural regions.

Now, therefore, we, the Mayor and Common Council of the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, do hereby represent to Your Excellency that the establishment of the proposed reservation would be a great calamity to this part of said State and to the adjoining agricultural regions of Dakota. That such a reservation would entirely prevent the development of northern Minnesota. That the proposed reservation embraces not only forest regions from which the vast treeless prairies of the Red River Valley must draw its supply of lumber and fuel in the future, but also some of the best and richest agricultural and mineral lands in the State, where thousands of worthy settlers have already located in the hope that in the near future the region would be developed and traversed by railroads. That no climatic reason for the establishment of such reservation exists except in the brain of some over zealous "forestry cranks" who we believe in this instance are being used by the great lumber trusts of the Northwest who seek this means of enhancing the value of their holdings of timber lands, and of still further taxing the people of this region for the lumber and fuel which in this climate are of prime necessity.

That direct railroad communication between the Red River Valley and the head of Lake Superior is absolutely necessary in order to secure cheap transportation for the products of its farms, and that we see in this proposed reservation not only a fatal blow to the development of the region embraced therein, but also to the prosperity and advancement of the whole country lying west of and tributary to the only lake port in the State.

Now, therefore, we do most emphatically and urgently remonstrate and protest against the establishment of this proposed National park and reservation and respectfully ask that Your Excellency decline to set apart any portion of our public domain for such a purpose.

Respectfully submitted.

Upon the call of ayes and nays, the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Jennings, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Steenerson, Walker and Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 10th day of December, 1891.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 10th day of December, 1891.

Attest: ALEX. MCKINNON, Mayor.
E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

The ways and means committee reported in favor of excusing the Aldermen from the meetings which were missed during the past quarter. On motion the report was accepted and the bill ordered paid.

Moved by Alderman Schmidt, seconded by Alderman Marlette, that Alderman Jennings and the City Attorney be appointed a committee of two to draft and circulate through the county a remonstrance against the proposed National park. Carried.

On motion the purchasing agent was instructed to purchase a record book for use in the council chambers.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Dec. 12.—A chapter on the lumber trade of Duluth and Duluth district will prove an interesting one. The saw mills make a large part of the business of this city and the Northwest, and no other line of manufacture or trade has shown so great a growth within the past twelve months. What is known as the Duluth district takes in eleven mills in Duluth, two at Tower, one at Mesaba, on the Duluth and Iron Range road, three at Cloquet, three at Superior, two of which have their offices in Duluth, one at Carlton and several small mills in this neighborhood. Of the Duluth mills two were not running this season, two are new mills not yet quite finished, while two other new mills only put in part of the season. Last year the output of lumber in the Duluth district was 215,000,000 feet, of which about 70,000,000 feet only were manufactured by city mills. This year the output of the district was 258,300,000 feet, a gain of 43,300,000 feet. There were also manufactured 53,111,000 lath and 74,552,000 shingles. Of the output this year 127,600,000 feet were manufactured by city mills, showing the entire gain in the district was by such mills. In the past twelve months six new saw mills have been built on the Duluth side of St. Louis bay, being all the new saw mills in the district. The total capacity of these new mills will be 140,000,000 feet, or more than all that was sawed this year and twice as much as last year by city mills. The demand for lumber has been so good the past few months that all manufacturers and dealers have had a most excellent trade. The great crops of the west helped this trade a great deal, while more eastern buyers have appeared here. The home demand has also been large and has probably taken half the product of the city mills, and considerable from the outside mills.

Great as has been the product this year as compared with that of the past years, the cut of 1892 will be way beyond it. A third to a half more men are in the woods this winter for Duluth loggers than ever before. Probably in the entire district there are 3,500 men in the camps. The cut, of course, depends to a great extent upon the weather. At the beginning of the logging season men for the woods were very scarce but now labor is abundant, probably from the release of men from the threshing fields. From the present outlook fully 350,000,000 feet of lumber will be sawed in the district next year. Two or three mills not yet built are said to be decided upon for the season. Of this cut 200,000,000 feet will be by city mills. This last amount of lumber when sawed will be worth at least $20,000,000, so it will be seen what an important part of Duluth's industries are her saw mills. More capital is probably invested in them than any other line. The best part of the whole thing is that nearly half of this business will be entirely new and will add just so much to the growth of the city. Ten million dollars worth of new product in a single line in one year is seldom seen anywhere.

For the first two or three years there has been a tendency among eastern buyers to come to Duluth for lumber. This season probably 15,000,000 feet have been shipped to the east. Next year the amount to go will be nearly 100,000,000 feet, or cargoes for over 200 vessels. The trade that Saginaw has had is in a measure coming to Duluth. One new firm from Saginaw will alone manufacture 40,000,000 feet for the eastern market.

Of the new mills built this season, two, the Mitchell & McClure and the Merrill & Ring can saw 50,000,000 feet each a year. In many respects they are probably the most perfect saw mills in the world. In another letter I will give a description of them. HAYS.

"What Shall We Do With Our Boys?"

"Whose boys?" "Your boys; your neighbor's boys; everybody's boys." Boys will be boys, but not everyone knows how to manage them; but if you wish some practical, common-sense suggestions, read the article on the subject published in the January number of Demorest's Family Magazine, that ideal publication which bears out to the full the promise of its name. The January number contains a genuine holiday feast. The subject of the beautiful water-color "A Slippery Spot" appeals to every parent who has little ones, and the subtle sentiment of the exquisite full-page engraving, "Eloquent Silence" (after a painting by Alma-Tadema), will be appreciated by young men and maidens. The artistic attractions include, besides, over 200 other pictures, illustrating "Burma and the Burmese," by a resident of Burma; "Evolution of Modern Costume," interesting alike to men and woman; "Intelligence Offices in Paris," which will strike a responsive chord in every housekeeper's heart; "Home Art and Home Comfort," which, besides some novel ideas for fancy-work, includes a paper on "Amusements for a Sick Child"; "Correct Styles in Table Silver," an appropriate sequel to "A Course Dinner," given in the previous number; and several especially fine stories. The departments "Our Girls," "Sanitarian," "Artistic Notes," "World's Progress," "Chat," "What Women are Doing," "Household," "Correspondence Club," and "Mirror of Fashions," each have special attractions this month; and this splendid menu, with variations, is furnished twelve times a year, for the subscription price of $2. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York City.

An Anglo-Saxon Holiday.

The English speaking people may, we think, properly claim Christmas as peculiarly an Anglo-Saxon holiday. It is true that it is also a festival of the Christian church, but it is easily demonstrated that a similar festival—without the religious element—was observed by the Germanic tribes long before the Romans crossed the Alps. In fact, it would seem that Christmas was not originated by the church, but that the priesthood adopted the feast-day, remodeling it to serve as a vehicle for religious ideas, and turning its generous and social spirit to account in the service of the church. Did you ever think that today English is spoken by one hundred and ten millions of people, more than speak any other language on earth? China has two hundred and fifty millions of people, and India one hundred and ninety-eight, but there are not one hundred millions in either country who speak a tongue that is intelligible to the rest of the population. Where will you enjoy this holiday this year? At home! Good, but if you intend to visit friends, or go to the "old home" just make a note of the fact that "The Burlington," is the line from this section to Chicago, St. Louis, Peoria, Quincy, Galesburg, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Omaha, Des Moines, Burlington, Hannibal, Denver, Cheyenne, Deadwood, Winona, La Crosse, Dubuque, Galena, St. Paul and Minneapolis. If you wish to go to any other place, apply to Burlington agents or those of connecting lines, for information, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

America vs. Chili.

BY FRED. W. DAVIS.

To arms! Insulted nation,
To arms! and, to the fray!
To the insulting nation's challenge,
Let our answer not be nay.
Lift the beloved banner
And let us gather 'round,
To avenge the blood of our countrymen
Spilled upon the ground.

Hist! I hear a rustling
As of agitated wings.
'Tis the spirits of our fathers
Who defied the reign of kings.
And those spirits whisper
"Stand up for America's rights,
Avenge our insulted banner,
Avenge the stars and stripes.

We shed our blood for that banner,
Pure and undefiled,
But now it bears an insult
Which is, by no means, mild.
Then, forward to the battle!
Or disgrace your fathers' fame,
Clear that flag from insult
And save the nation's name."

Our little iron-clad monitor
Once more shall ride the seas,
Unless due reparation
Comes upon the southern breeze.
The battered old St. Louis
Will leave the navy-yards
Once more to face the enemy,
And play the winning cards.

Though a sweet-heart lose her lover,
Or, a mother her only son,
The Mighty One above us
Will whisper: "'Tis well done."
Though it cost a wife her husband
We should count it cheaply bought,
For we'd wreak revenge on Chili
For every deed and thought.

Were brave Washington among us,
Or Lincoln in the chair,
We'd soon have reparation
Or not a Chilian spare.
But, thank the One above us,
Harrison is here,
We will see what he can do for us,
To Harrison, free men, cheer!

James G. Blaine, our noble statesman,
The greatest of his time,
Will not hesitate to influence
The punishment of crime.
The darkest perpetrated
In this last decade,
And for which, we are determined,
Reparation shall be made.

Secretary Tracy
Will not be behind,
In ordering the volunteers
To quickly fall in line,
And American men-of-war
Will point their bow-sprits south
And let men of Valpariso
Gase in the cannon's mouth.

If they think to murder sailors
That come from off our coast,
I can say without hesitation,
They've reckoned without their host.
If they think that leathery lassoes
Were made for sailors necks,
They will find out, in the awakening,
That they thought without their specs.

Think you that our forefathers
Who formed this government,
Would rest if they knew we passed this by,
Without a word of comment.
Let us not put it to the test,
But load our muskets well
And with quick-drawn, steady aim,
Make our bullets tell.

Canadian Debt and Stagnation.

The startling growth of the debt of Canada, which has increased from $78,209,742 in 1871, to $288,000,000 in 1891 with a population almost at a standstill and a stagnant trade, is stirring that country to its depths. Free comment is made about these matters and attention is drawn to the fact, that while the United States government has reduced its debt from $59 to $16.50 per head in twenty years, Canada has run up hers from $21 to $47, and the results or returns do not compensate for the vastness of the new debt, with its oppressive load of interest. No wonder young and enterprising Canadians come to the Northwest to make homes.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Nov. 5th, 1891.]
Last publication Dec. 17th, 1891.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and twenty-two 40-100 ($122.40-100) dollars, interest which became due on the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1891, which default has continued to the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Andrew G. Hanson, a widower, mortgagor to J. E. Boily, mortgagee, bearing date the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1890, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 24th day of July, A. D. 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 49 of mortgages, on page 143.

And whereas, the said J. E. Boily, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of sixteen hundred and twenty-two 40-100 ($1,622.40 100) dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of eight per cent. per annum from the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1891, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: All that tract or parcel of land described as the southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-four (34), Township one hundred and fifty-one (151), Range forty-four (44), according to the government survey thereof, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

MONDAY, THE 21st DAY OF DECEMBER,

1891, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of sixteen hundred and twenty-two 40-100 dollars, and interest and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated November, 2d, A. D. 1891.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

WORK OF THE LEAGUE.

What is Being Done by the Minnesota State League of Republican Clubs.

The Political Campaign in This State Next Year Promises to be Unique.

Presenting the Spectacle of Two Armies of Political Workers in Action.

A Republican Bureau of Information Organized to Act With the Clubs.

St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

While the year 1891 is regarded as an "off year" in politics, the certainty of holding the national Republican convention in Minneapolis, and the strong probability of having the other great national convention in St. Paul, has awakened public interest in matters political, and there seems to be a strong feeling, among men of both parties, that the issues of the campaign will soon be outlined, making the struggle of 1892 a long and earnest one.

From all indications the campaign of the coming year will be a unique one. At this time it looks as if the fight would be waged bitterly between the Republican state central committee and the Republican league on the one hand and the Democratic state central committee and the state association of Democratic clubs on the other. Probably never before in the history of the state has there been a time when so much quiet work was being done such a long time in advance of the real battle of the ballots. Saturday, Dec. 19th, the Republican state central committee will hold a very important meeting to discuss the situation and to transact other important business, the nature of which has not yet been made public. The Democratic state central committee meeting, it is understood, will be called some time this month, and the leagues of the two parties are already at work. The public has very little idea of the amount that has been done, and is being done, by the Republican leaders to insure a brilliant success in 1892; but though there has been no blowing of trumpets or beating of drums about the work, the state league of Republican clubs has organized hundreds of clubs in precincts scattered all over the state from La Crescent to St. Vincent, and from Duluth to Luverne.

President John Goodnow, of the state league of Republican clubs, is one of the most active young workers in the party, and for the past two months has been very actively engaged in political work, assisted by Secretary F. C. Stevens of this city. To a Pioneer Press man yesterday Mr. Goodnow gave a full and comprehensive view of the objects of the Republican league and the present condition of the work of organization in the state. He said that Republicans all over the state are being moved by state and party pride to effect such an organization as shall be a model to the delegates coming to the national Republican convention. The work, which is already well advanced, will be made much easier by this fact. The preliminary in over seventy of the eighty counties of the state. In this work of organization the state headquarters has not been the central nucleus of growth, the principle being rather one of decentralization. The leaders have endeavored to arouse the Republicans in each voting precinct to organize themselves, and the state headquarters are maintained simply as a convenient place by means of which the precincts may communicate with one another. President Goodnow and secretary Stevens have charge of a bureau of information for the use of members of the primary clubs.

In response to the question "What is the plan of organization?" President Goodnow said:

Our plan of organization is the same as that adopted by the league of clubs all over the country. The principle of it is this:—We believe that every individual in the Republican party should take an active interest in and share the responsibility of its policy and actions. It is contrary to the spirit of Republicanism that a few men should dictate to the masses. The party was made in the first place by an uprising of the plain people against the crime of slavery and its successes have been achieved only when its leaders bowed to the freely expressed will of the units of the party. But if the people whose names never get into the newspapers are to have their proper weight they must be enlisted as an army, and if we are to win in the battle of ballots organization is also necessary, for

is to enlist all Republicans, and those inclined toward Republicanism, in each voting precinct, into a club; to unite the precinct clubs by their representatives into a county organization, and to have state headquarters and state officers to serve as a means of binding the county organizations together as a state organization. Do I make myself plain? The essential idea of our plan is to organize all the individuals of the party in each precinct into a club, and, by means of county and state organization, give these individuals of the party an opportunity to express their ideas freely and to enforce them in the conventions and on the platforms.

Who are eligible to membership in these clubs? Men and women over eighteen years of age, and who are at least willing to be convinced of the truth of the Republican doctrines. We are willing to work for the future, and take in boys not yet of age to vote. We are anxious to enroll with us the women. Ineligible to vote as yet, their influence is very potent, for they bring to bear on public questions minds generally unbiased by other considerations than those of the general good.

The success of the league is largely due to the fact that the organization is being made in the interest of no individual. The clubs are plainly forbidden to favor the candidacy of any one for any nomination before any convention. The plain people care little for

INDIVIDUAL AMBITIONS.

The ultimate end of any party is to obtain the adoption as the basis of the policy of the government of the principles it professes. The Republicans believe that the people of this country can be made happier and more prosperous if the government is run on the principle of protection and reciprocity; if our circulating medium is kept as abundant as possible while still kept honest; if every man shall have a free and fair opportunity to express his will by his vote. We only ask that our candidates shall be freely chosen as representative of these principles and shall be men whose lives and records are clean. The league of clubs was organized to boom Republicanism—not men. We are for the principles of our party.

In connection with this work of organization we expect to keep a bureau of information which will enable us to know the needs of each precinct, so that we will be able to send literature to doubtful voters effectively. It is a waste of money to send speeches and pamphlets to men of either party who are settled in their convictions. Effective work can be done only with men honestly in doubt, and young men who have yet to cast their first vote and are unattached to either party. These men are naturally attracted to the positive party. They range themselves with the party that has definite and decided convictions and the courage to fight for them. When the fight was between Platt and Tammany, between a Republican boss and a Democratic machine, our people remained at home. When the fight was between principles set forth plainly in the platform and embodied in the candidates, and personal politics were sent to the rear, Sherman and Foraker were forced to unite for the party and McKinley was elected. That is the lesson of the last elections to us. Many voters in this state were driven away from us last year by the extravagant misrepresentations sent out against the McKinley bill; others revolted against local party management. Time has shown the benefits of the tariff bill, and I believe that with nominees freely chosen as representing our principles, our next fight will be an aggressive one, from start to finish and successful beyond expectations.

Canadian Excursions.

Round trip tickets will be sold by the Great Northern from here to Montreal, and Ontario and Quebec points west of Montreal, for $40 on Dec. 1st and 8th, Dec. 15th to 22d inclusive, and Dec. 29th, good for 90 days—15 days going, same returning. Extension of time allowed at small additional cost. Tickets to points east of Montreal in Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia sold at one fare for the round trip from Montreal added to the $40 rate from here. Choice of route and close connection with different lines from St. Paul. A sufficient party can get the use of a tourist sleeping car, the cost of which will be for a double bunk $1 to St. Paul and $2 to Chicago. W. W. FEILAND, [31-36] Agent Crookston.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22nd, 1891.

ED. JOURNAL.—

The President's message has attracted the attention of the country more than almost any other State paper that has been issued for many years. It is an able and exhaustive review of the condition of the country both in its foreign and home affairs.

There has been more, of course, for the President to speak of in foreign affairs than ever before occupied the attention of any executive officer of this government. The authority given by the last congress in the third section of the McKinley Bill to make treaties without requiring the sanction of the Senate of course makes it necessary for the President to distinctly state the tenor of the reciprocity treaties made with Brazil, Spain and San Domingo. This he does and also alludes to the fact that similar treaties are being considered with several other nations. The affair with England as to the Behring Sea has been referred to arbitration, the arbitrators not yet being selected, while the Chilian awaits the action of the Chilian government before any further and stronger measures are resorted to.

Secretary Foster's report, which is spoken of by the President in a very exhaustive manner, was delivered simultaneously with the message to the senate, as the Secretary was authorized by law to make his report directly to the Congress of the United States. The report of Secretary Foster is a complete answer to the statement made by Democratic papers that the treasury is bankrupt. There was on June 30, 1891, available cash in the treasury to the amount of $139,728,145 and there is fully that amount now. The amount of money in circulation, as shown by Mr Foster's report, is $1,577,898,400, that is $24.38 per capita estimating the population at 64,680,000.

Our Democratic friends have made a great outcry against the McKinley Tariff Bill as preventing or stopping importation. The McKinley Tariff Bill, all except the sugar clauses, went into operation on the first day of October, 1890. For the ten months preceding that the value of the imports into the United States were $698,377,817. For the ten months ending the thirty-first of this October the imports are $693,981,691. Of the imports in this ten months a little more than one-half were free of duty. The duties were taken from so many articles that now over one-half of the articles imported pay no duty at all while under the previous tariff bill but very little over one-third of the value of the articles imported came in free of duty. There has been no falling off of imports but there has been a great increase in the amount of goods brought in upon which no duties were paid. As to our exports for the same period of time we present the following table:

Ten months ending Oct. 31—	1891.	1890.
Agricultural products	$538,495,442	$481,285,253
Mining "	18,925,670	17,423,491
Forest "	28,186,635	24,598,549
Fishery "	4,007,281	4,441,966
Miscellaneous "	3,570,519	2,977,093
Total	$593,475,550	$531,126,233
Manufactures	141,076,962	129,403,766
Aggregate	$729,552,511	$660,529,999

Our friends, the enemy, are enjoying themselves provided we admit that those souls which have passed the river Styx and invaded the territory of Pluto always enjoy themselves, for our friends, the enemy, are in about the condition of those people. The reason of this is that the committees of the House of Representatives are to be appointed. The kids who came into this Congress, numbering about 120, particularly the New England kids believe that they are the best qualified people in the world to run the Congress, and they are insisting, each one for himself, upon the chairmanship of the best committee; the old fellows are not willing that the kids should have all this and as a result there is trouble in the camp.

"Beating its record! Peterson's Magazine evidently means to do this, for its January number is head and shoulders in advance of previous years, and far ahead of any magazine of its price. Besides the popular old contributors, it has added Julian Hawthorne, Octave Thanet, Effie W. Merriam and various other shining lights among the younger generation of American authors. "A Prince in Disguise," by Edgar Fawcett promises to be one of his finest novelets, and this number opens with a good portrait and sketch of him. "A Buried City" by Sidney Ross, gives much fresh information about the excavations of Pompeii, and the illustrations are beautiful. "Sir Frisky," by Miss E. S. Thomas, will, with its clever pictures be the children's favorite among the month's poems. No woman can afford to do without this invaluable household assistant and its great literary and artistic merits make it one of the best family magazines published. Terms two dollars a year, with large reductions to clubs and fine premiums to club raisers. Send for full particulars. Address Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

OHIO VS. INDIANA.

We hear recently from the newspapers of a discovery having been made that the boundary line as now established between the States of Ohio and Indiana is not a correct one—that the latter State has within her accepted territory a portion of the fair soil of her sister state. Some have asked, how is this to be remedied? Without attempting to answer this question definitely, I wish to refer to cases arising at the threshold of our life as a nation, the reference to which may be interesting and instructive. In the days of the Continental Congress, many were the disputes that arose between States as to territory and boundaries, and between individuals claiming lands under grants from different States. Among these controversies were those between Pennsylvania and Connecticut; Pennsylvania and Virginia; New Jersey and Virginia; Massachusetts and New York; South Carolina and Georgia; New Hampshire, Vermont, New York anp Massachusetts.

The Articles of Confederation provided that the United States, in Congress assembled should be the last resort on appeal in all disputes and differences then subsisting, or that might arise thereafter, between two or more States concerning boundary, jurisdiction or any cause whatsoever. A mode of establishing a court for the trial of these controversies was specifically prescribed. This was adopted in 1777. The first controversy arising was that between Pennsylvania and Connecticut over the fair and fertile Wyoming—a territory of five million acres. Delegates from each State met and failed to agree. Resort was had to arms, and much blood was shed. Connecticut informed Congress of the state of affairs, and that body appointed Rutledge, Chase, Jefferson, Kinsey and Hopkins a committee. This committee recommended the cessation of hostilities and a settlement in a legal way. Peace once more reigned. After the Articles of Confederation were finally ratified, investing Congress with the powers above referred to, Pennsylvania prayed Congress for a hearing. Congress set a day for a hearing, which was noticed to both parties, and at the time designated the disputants appeared by their agents. The States were then directed to appoint by joint consent commissioners to constitute a court.

This was done. The court sat at Trenton. Fifteen days were devoted to arguments. The court decided for Pennsylvania. This was the only decision in controversies between States under the Articles of Confederation. The judgment was approved by Congress, and it was acquiesced in by Connecticut.

This did not prevent a war growing out of adverse claims to the private right of soil between individuals, and the "Pennamite and Yankee" war was the result, but Pennsylvania confirmed to actual settlers their lands, and the district was erected into the county of Luzerne.

Pennsylvania and Virginia differed as to the famous "Mason and Dixon" line. A commission, composed of clergy in Virginia and college professors in Pennsylvania, finally agreed upon the line.

New Jersey and Virginia differed as to a tract called Indiana in the Northwest Territory. No commission was appointed, for Virginia presented to Congress a deed of cession in 1784.

New York claimed the land between the Merrimac and the Charles, but before the commission which had been appointed had met, the two contending States, New York and Massachusetts, settled the dispute between themselves.

South Carolina and Georgia fought for the upper waters of the Savannah River. The States failed to agree upon a commission, as directed by Congress, and that body chose a court for the purpose, but the States came to an agreement.

New Hampshire, Vermont, New York and Massachusetts quarrelled over the region lying between Lake Champlain and the Connecticut River, which resulted in the recognition of "the pretended State of Vermont" as a State.

Thus much for early controversies. In case of conflicts not arising, we quote from Article III, Sec. 1, of the Constitution: "The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme court and in such inferior courts as the Congress may, from time to time, ordain and establish," and from Sec. 2: "The judicial power shall extend to * * * controversies between two or more States * * *." It is altogether likely that the States of Ohio and Indiana would be able to adjust any difference that might arise from an error in survey or otherwise, and that the course taken in early controversies would become unnecessary.

Seventh Congressional District And Candidate.

Moorhead Daily News.

The time has come when the people of the Seventh Congressional district of Minnesota might, with benefit to their future welfare, consider the question as to who should represent them in the National House of Representatives in the 52nd congress. With a nominal condition of politics, that is to say, if men seek old party affiliations as they will be constrained to do in a presidential year, the Republican nominee will be elected. It is from the Republican standpoint that the News will comment. Not that its editor is so much of a partisan that he does not feel an interest in good government when administered by any other party, nor so prejudiced as to believe there are no good and patriotic men in other parties or that the government of the United States and its free institutions would be imperilled if the president was a Democrat and a majority of both houses of congress were Democrats; but rather that he believes the Republican party is a fitter agent to hold the reins of power than its mightiest opponent.

The Seventh Congressional district is strictly an agricultural region and its people are pre-eminently engaged in agriculture or intimately connected with and interested in the fruits of agriculture. Therefore their representative in congress ought to be a man who is engaged in farming or whose sympathies and aspirations are avowedly and actively aroused and interested in the welfare of farmers. A man whose voice will ever be heard pleading their cause and whose influence and ability will be constantly employed in efforts to protect and extend their interests. Not that he should be so prejudiced or narrow as to be unable to recognize the fact that people engaged in other industries have rights to be guarded and interests to be fostered; but agriculture being the great preponderating industry of the district, and other industries being dependent upon it for success in a far greater degree than agriculture is dependent upon them—although there is of course a degree of mutual dependence of each upon all and all upon each—agriculture, its claims and necessities, should receive his chief concern.

The News is of the opinion that a discussion of candidates might now be commenced in the press of the district, with a view of centering the sentiment of the people upon a man who possesses the above named requirements and the experience and ability necessary to do credit to the district; one also who can be elected by the Republican party.

It is in order to point out the extent and boundaries of the new district, and also the vote cast in the counties comprising it at the election of 1890. The district consists of the following counties, beginning the list at the northern boundary line; Kittson, Marshall, Polk, Norman, Clay, Becker, Wilkin, Otter Tail, Traverse, Grant, Douglas, Stevens, Big Stone, Pope, Swift and Kandiyohi—16. The population of the district by the U. S. census of 1890 is 185,983. The vote in 1890 for governor was: Merriam, (R) 9,409; Wilson (D) 5,763; Owen, (A) 5,763; Pinkham, (P) 982. For congressman, Republican, 11,027; Democratic, 6,972; Alliance, 17,925. It will be seen that the Alliance vote cast for Halvorson in these counties in 1890 was nearly as large as the vote cast for the Democratic and Republican candidates combined, and unless there is a breaking up of the Alliance the candidate of no other party will stand any chance of success in 1892. In the opinion of shrewd political observers the Alliance party has commenced to disintegrate and crumble and that political lines in this state will be reformed with the Republican party facing its old antagonist, the Democratic party, with the Alliance and Prohibition parties casting a small minority vote, but weighing nothing in the balance.

The Problem of Aerial Navigation.

In the absence of any governmental or concerted effort, the Cosmopolitan Magazine has determined to attempt the solution of the problem of aerial navigation, and under its direction a series of experiments will be made which it is hoped will be brought to a satisfactory conclusion.

Unquestionably, the greatest mechanical problem unsolved is that of aerial navigation. When one considers the far reaching effect which it would have upon the civilization of the age, and the benefits which would accrue to mankind, the wonder is that the affair has not been seriously studied by some of the governments of the world. The Cosmopolitan does not enter lightly upon the undertaking. A portion of the plans to be put into execution were submitted to the French government by a member of the Cosmopolitan staff as long ago as 1867. There are undoubtedly great difficulties in the way, but the attempt will be steadfastly pursued by the Cosmopolitan under the direction of the ablest scientists whose aid can be obtained, until success is secured, even if it has to be carried on through a series of years.

No patents will be applied for as the result of inventions made. If success crowns the work the result will belong to the public.

Mr. Thomas A. Edison in response to an offer by the Cosmopolitan of $100 per hour for services in consultation said: "This matter is of so great interest to the public that I freely give my services without pay—and the use of my laboratory too, if you need it for experiments." The services of Professor King, of Philadelphia, who has made more than three hundred ascensions and is recognized as the most experienced living aeronaut, have been engaged as advisor in practical aeronautics. The supervision of the engineering work and mechanical construction has been entrusted to Captain Lewis M. Haupt, late of the Engineer Corps of the U. S. Army, now Professor of Engineering, University of Pennsylvania.

Plans and suggestions will gladly be welcomed from all sources, and due credit given for ideas utilized.

The Cosmopolitan offers $500 in prizes for three essays upon aerial navigation; 1st. $250 for the most valuable paper suggesting the best methods of accomplishing the navigation of the air. 2nd. $100 for the second most valuable essay on the same subject. 3rd. $150 for the best paper on the result which successful aerial navigation would have upon the moral and material interests of the world. The papers to be in the possession of the Cosmopolitan before February 1st, 1892.

Good Luck For 1892.

The last few days of 1891 reminds us that it is a pleasant custom among friends to wish each other, at the advent of a new year, happiness and prosperity for the coming months. Just why our good wishes should be any more fervent at the beginning of the year than at any other period, it would be hard to say; certainly our friends need good fortune at one time as well as another. But whatever the reason or unreason of it, "The Burlington" believes it a custom to be honored and therefore very cordially wishes its friends and patrons and the public generally, a "Happy New Year." As our particular friends are the traveling public, we would elaborate a little by hoping that, by whatever line you journey, your trains will run without accident and make good time; your way lie through lovely scenery; your trip be one of comfort in Pullman sleepers and reclining chair cars; your meals be enjoyed on dining cars whose cuisine is peerless, and your baggage be safely delivered. If you travel by other lines, we hope for the above good luck; if you use "The Burlington" we know it will be so. For tickets, rates and maps, call on your nearest ticket agent, or address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

WORK OF THE LEAGUE.

What is Being Done by the Minnesota State League of Republican Clubs.

The Political Campaign in This State Next Year Promises to be Unique.

Presenting the Spectacle of Two Armies of Political Workers in Action.

A Republican Bureau of Information Organized to Act With the Clubs.

St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

While the year 1891 is regarded as an "off year" in politics, the certainty of holding the national Republican convention in Minneapolis, and the strong probability of having the other great national convention in St. Paul, has awakened public interest in matters political, and there seems to be a strong feeling, among men of both parties, that the issues of the campaign will soon be outlined, making the struggle of 1892 a long and earnest one.

From all indications the campaign of the coming year will be a unique one. At this time it looks as if the fight would be waged bitterly between the Republican state central committee and the Republican league on the one hand and the Democratic state central committee and the state association of Democratic clubs on the other. Probably never before in the history of the state has there been a time when so much quiet work was being done such a long time in advance of the real battle of the ballots. Saturday, Dec. 19th, the Republican state central committee will hold a very important meeting to discuss the situation and to transact other important business, the nature of which has not yet been made public. The Democratic state central committee meeting, it is understood, will be called some time this month, and the leagues of the two parties are already at work. The public has very little idea of the amount that has been done and is being done, by the Republican leaders to insure a brilliant success in 1892, but though there has been no blowing of trumpets or beating of drums about the work, the state league of Republican clubs has organized hundreds of clubs in precincts scattered all over the state from La Crescent to St. Vincent, and from Duluth to Luverne.

President John Goodnow, of the state league of Republican clubs, is one of the most active young workers in the party, and for the past two months has been very actively engaged in political work, assisted by Secretary F. O. Stevens of this city. To a Pioneer Press man yesterday Mr. Goodnow gave a full and comprehensive view of the objects of the Republican league and the present condition of the work of organization in the state. He said that Republicans all over the state are being moved by state and party pride to effect such an organization as shall be a model to the delegates coming to the national Republican convention. The work, which is already well advanced, will be made much easier by this fact. The preliminary [illegible] in over seventy of the eighty counties of the state. In this work of organization the state headquarters has not been the central nucleus of growth, the principle being rather one of decentralization. The leaders have endeavored to arouse the Republicans in each voting precinct to organize themselves and the state headquarters are maintained simply as a convenient place by means of which the precincts may communicate with one another. President Goodnow and secretary Stevens have charge of a bureau of information for the use of members of the primary clubs.

In response to the question "What is the plan of organization?" President Goodnow said:

"Our plan of organization is the same as that adopted by the league of clubs all over the country. The principle of it is this: We believe that every individual in the Republican party should take an active interest in and share the responsibility of its policy and actions. It is contrary to the spirit of Republicanism that a few men should dictate to the masses. The party was made in the first place by an uprising of the plain people against the crime of slavery and its successes have been achieved only when its leaders bowed to the freely expressed will of the units of the party. But if the people whose names never get into the newspapers are to have their proper weight they must be enlisted as an army, and if we are to win in the battle of ballots organization is also necessary, for

is to enlist all Republicans, and those inclined toward Republicanism, in each voting precinct, into a club; to unite the precinct clubs by their representatives into a county organization, and to have state headquarters and state officers to serve as a means of binding the county organizations together as a state organization. Do I make myself plain? The essential idea of our plan is to organize all the individuals of the party in each precinct into a club, and, by means of county and state organization, give these individuals of the party an opportunity to express their ideas freely and to enforce them in the conventions and on the platforms.

Who are eligible to membership in these clubs? Men and women over eighteen years of age and who are at least willing to be convinced of the truth of the Republican doctrines. We are willing to work for the future, and take in boys not yet of age to vote. We are anxious to enroll with us the women. Ineligible to vote as yet, their influence is very potent, for they bring to bear on public questions minds generally unbiased by other considerations than those of the general good.

The success of the league is largely due to the fact that the organization is being made in the interest of no individual. The clubs are plainly forbidden to favor the candidacy of any one for any nomination before any convention. The plain people care little for

INDIVIDUAL AMBITIONS.

The ultimate end of any party is to obtain the adoption as the basis of the policy of the government of the principles it professes. The Republicans believe that the people of this country can be made happier and more prosperous if the government is run on the principle of protection and reciprocity, if our circulating medium is kept as abundant as possible, while still kept honest, if every man shall have a free and fair opportunity to express his will by his vote. We only ask that our candidates shall be freely chosen as representative of these principles and shall be men whose lives and records are clean. The league of clubs was organized to boom Republicanism—not men. We are for the principles of our party.

In connection with this work of organization we expect to keep a bureau of information which will enable us to know the needs of each precinct, so that we will be able to send literature to doubtful voters effectively. It is a waste of money to send speeches and pamphlets to men of either party who are settled in their convictions. Effective work can be done only with men honestly in doubt, and young men who have yet to cast their first vote and are unattached to either party. These men are naturally attracted to the positive party. They range themselves with the party that has definite and decided convictions and the courage to fight for them. When the fight was between Platt and Tammany—between a Republican boss and a Democratic machine, our people remained at home. When the fight was between principles set forth plainly in the platform and embodied in the candidates, and personal politics were sent to the rear, Sherman and Foraker were forced to unite for the party and McKinley was elected. That is the lesson of the last elections to us. Many voters in this state were driven away from us last year by the extravagant misrepresentations sent out against the McKinley bill; others revolted against local party management. Time has shown the benefits of the tariff bill, and I believe that with nominees freely chosen as representing our principles, our next fight will be an aggressive one from start to finish and successful beyond expectations."

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22nd, 1891.

Ed. Journal:—

The President's message has attracted the attention of the country more than almost any other State paper that has been issued for many years. It is an able and exhaustive review of the condition of the country both in its foreign and home affairs.

There has been more, of course, for the President to speak of in foreign affairs than ever before occupied the attention of any executive officer of this government. The authority given by the last congress in the third section of the McKinley Bill to make treaties without requiring the sanction of the Senate of course makes it necessary for the President to distinctly state the tenor of the reciprocity treaties made with Brazil, Spain and San Domingo. This he does, and also alludes to the fact that similar treaties are being considered with several other nations. The affair with England as to the Behring Sea has been referred to arbitration, the arbitrators not yet being selected, while the Chilian awaits the action of the Chilian government before any further and stronger measures are resorted to.

Secretary Foster's report, which is spoken of by the President in a very exhaustive manner, was delivered simultaneously with the message to the senate, as the Secretary was authorized by law to make his report directly to the Congress of the United States. The report of Secretary Foster is a complete answer to the statement made by Democratic papers that the treasury is bankrupt. There was on June 30, 1891, available cash in the treasury to the amount of $180,728,145, and there is fully that amount now. The amount of money in circulation, as shown by Mr. Foster's report, is $1,577,898,400, that is $24.88 per capita, estimating the population at 64,680,000.

Our Democratic friends have made a great outcry against the McKinley Tariff Bill as preventing or stopping importation. The McKinley Tariff Bill, all except the sugar clauses, went into operation on the first day of October, 1890. For the ten months preceding that the value of the imports into the United States were $698,377,817. For the ten months ending the thirty-first of this October the imports are $693,981,691. Of the imports in this ten months a little more than one-half were free of duty. The duties were taken from so many articles that now over one-half of the articles imported pay no duty at all, while under the previous tariff bill but very little over one-third of the value of the articles imported came in free of duty. There has been no falling off of imports, but there has been a great increase in the amount of goods brought in upon which no duties were paid. As to our exports for the same period of time we present the following table:

Ten months ending Oct. 3d—

	1891.	1890.
Agricultural products	$538,495,442	$481,285,258
Mining	18,925,679	17,423,481
Forest	28,186,685	24,998,549
Fishery	4,907,284	4,441,906
Miscellaneous	8,570,519	2,977,093
Total	$588,478,559	$531,126,283
Manufactures	141,078,982	129,403,766
Aggregate	$729,559,541	$660,529,959

Our friends the enemy are enjoying themselves, provided, we admit, that those souls which have passed the river Styx and invaded the territory of Pluto always enjoy themselves, for our friends the enemy are in about the condition of those people. The reason of this is that the committees of the House of Representatives are to be appointed. The kids who came into this Congress, numbering about 120, particularly the New England kids, believe that they are the best qualified people in the world to run the Congress, and they are insisting, each one for himself, upon the chairmanship of the best committee; the old fellows are not willing that the kids should have all this and as a result there is trouble in the camp.

Beating its record! Peterson's Magazine evidently means to do this, for its January number is head and shoulders in advance of previous years and far ahead of any magazine of its price. Besides the popular old contributors, it has added Julian Hawthorne, Octave Thanet, Edith W. Merriam and various other shining lights among the younger generation of American authors. "A Prince in Disguise," by Edgar Fawcett, promises to be one of his finest novelets, and this number opens with a good portrait and sketch of him. "A Buried City," by Sidney Ross, gives much fresh information about the excavations of Pompeii, and the illustrations are beautiful. Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

OHIO VS. INDIANA.

We hear recently from the newspapers of a discovery having been made that the boundary line as now established between the States of Ohio and Indiana is not a correct one—that the latter State has within her accepted territory a portion of the fair soil of her sister state. Some have asked, how is this to be remedied? Without attempting to answer this question definitely, I wish to refer to cases arising at the threshold of our life as a nation, the reference to which may be interesting and instructive. In the days of the Continental Congress, many were the disputes that arose between States as to territory and boundaries, and between individuals claiming lands under grants from different States. Among these controversies were those between Pennsylvania and Connecticut; Pennsylvania and Virginia; New Jersey and Virginia; Massachusetts and New York; South Carolina and Georgia; New Hampshire, Vermont, New York and Massachusetts.

The Articles of Confederation provided that the United States, in Congress assembled should be the last resort on appeal in all disputes and differences then subsisting, or that might arise thereafter, between two or more States concerning boundary, jurisdiction or any cause whatsoever. A mode of establishing a court for the trial of these controversies was specifically prescribed. This was adopted in 1777. The first controversy arising was that between Pennsylvania and Connecticut over the fair and fertile Wyoming—a territory of five million acres. Delegates from each State met and failed to agree. Resort was had to arms, and much blood was shed. Connecticut informed Congress of the state of affairs, and that body appointed Rutledge, Chase, Jefferson, Kinsey and Hopkins a committee. This committee recommended the cessation of hostilities and a settlement in a legal way. Peace once more reigned. After the Articles of Confederation were finally ratified, investing Congress with the powers above referred to, Pennsylvania prayed Congress for a hearing. Congress set a day for a hearing, which was noticed to both parties, and at the time designated the disputants appeared by their agents. The States were then directed to appoint by joint consent commissioners to constitute a court.

This was done. The court sat at Trenton. Fifteen days were devoted to arguments. The court decided for Pennsylvania. This was the only decision in controversies between States under the Articles of Confederation. The judgment was approved by Congress, and it was acquiesced in by Connecticut.

This did not prevent a war growing out of adverse claims to the private right of soil between individuals, and the "Pennamite and Yankee" war was the result, but Pennsylvania confirmed to actual settlers their lands, and the district was erected into the county of Luzerne.

Pennsylvania and Virginia differed as to the famous "Mason and Dixon" line. A commission composed of clergy in Virginia and college professors in Pennsylvania finally agreed upon the line.

New Jersey and Virginia differed as to a tract called Indiana in the Northwest Territory [illegible]

Seventh Congressional District And Candidate.

Moorehead Daily News.

The time has come when the people of the Seventh Congressional district of Minnesota might, with benefit to their future welfare, consider the question as to who should represent them in the National House of Representatives in the 52nd congress. With a nominal condition of politics, that is to say, if men seek old party affiliations as they will be constrained to do in a presidential year, the Republican nominee will be elected. It is from the Republican standpoint that the News will comment. Not that its editor is so much of a partisan that he does not feel an interest in good government when administered by any other party, nor so prejudiced as to believe there are no good and patriotic men in other parties or that the government of the United States and its free institutions would be imperilled if the president was a Democrat and a majority of both houses of congress were Democrats; but rather that he believes the Republican party is a fitter agent to hold the reins of power than its mightiest opponent.

The Seventh Congressional district is strictly an agricultural region and its people are pre-eminently engaged in agriculture or intimately connected with and interested in the fruits of agriculture. Therefore their representative in congress ought to be a man who is engaged in farming or whose sympathies and aspirations are avowedly and actively aroused and interested in the welfare of farmers. A man whose voice will ever be heard pleading their cause and whose influence and ability will be constantly employed in efforts to protect and extend their interests. Not that he should be so prejudiced or narrow as to be unable to recognize the fact that people engaged in other industries have rights to be guarded and interests to be fostered, but agriculture being the great preponderating industry of the district, and other industries being dependent upon it for success in a far greater degree than agriculture is dependent upon them—although there is of course a degree of mutual dependence of each upon all and all upon each—agriculture, its claims and necessities, should receive his chief concern.

The News is of the opinion that a dis[illegible]

[illegible] cratic, 6,972; Alliance, 17,925. It will be seen that the Alliance vote cast for Halvorson in these counties in 1890 was nearly as large as the vote cast for the Democratic and Republican candidates combined, and unless there is a breaking up of the Alliance the candidate of no other party will stand any chance of success in 1892. In the opinion of shrewd political observers the Alliance party has commenced to disintegrate and crumble and that political lines in this state will be reformed with the Republican party facing its old antagonist, the Democratic party, with the Alliance and Prohibition parties casting a small minority vote, but weighing nothing in the balance.

The Problem of Aerial Navigation.

In the absence of any governmental or concerted effort, the Cosmopolitan Magazine has determined to attempt the solution of the problem of aerial navigation, and under its direction a series of experiments will be made which it is hoped will be brought to a satisfactory conclusion.

Unquestionably, the greatest mechanical problem unsolved is that of aerial navigation. When one considers the far reaching effect which it would have upon the civilization of the age, and the benefits which would accrue to mankind, the wonder is that the affair has not been seriously studied by some of the governments of the world. The Cosmopolitan does not enter lightly upon the undertaking. A portion of the plans to be put into execution were submitted to the French government by a member of the Cosmopolitan staff as long ago as 1867. There are undoubtedly great difficulties in the way, but the attempt will be steadfastly pursued by the Cosmopolitan under the direction of the ablest scientists whose aid can be obtained, until success is secured, even if it has to be carried on through a series of years.

No patents will be applied for as the result of inventions made. If success crowns the work, the result will belong to the public.

Mr. Thomas A. Edison in response to an offer by the Cosmopolitan of $100 per hour for services in consultation, said: "This matter is of so great interest to the public that I freely give my services without pay [illegible]

[illegible] 3rd. $150 for the best paper on the result which successful aerial navigation would have upon the moral and material interests of the world. The papers to be in the possession of the Cosmopolitan before February 1st, 1892.

Good Luck For 1892.

The last few days of 1891 reminds us that it is a pleasant custom among friends to wish each other, at the advent of a new year, happiness and prosperity for the coming months. Just why our good wishes should be any more fervent at the beginning of the year than at any other period, it would be hard to say; certainly our friends need good fortune at one time as well as another. But whatever the reason or unreason of it, "The Burlington" believes it a custom to be honored and therefore very cordially wishes its friends and patrons and the public generally, a "Happy New Year." As our particular friends are the traveling public, we would elaborate a little by hoping that, by whatever line you journey, your trains will run without accident and make good time; your way lie through lovely scenery; your trip be one of comfort in Pullman sleepers and reclining chair cars; your meals be enjoyed on dining cars whose cuisine is peerless, and your baggage be safely delivered. If you travel by other lines, we hope for the above good luck; if you use "The Burlington" we know it will be so. For tickets, rates and maps, call on your nearest ticket agent, or address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

Winter Excursions.

"The Burlington" has now on sale excursion tickets at greatly reduced rates, to all the principal health and pleasure resorts of Florida, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Texas, Mexico, California and to Hot Springs, Ark., Las Vegas, New Mexico, Eureka Springs, Ark., Prescot and Phœnix, Arizona. Tickets to these points will be good from three to six months from date of sale, and with liberal stop-over privileges in most cases. The fast time, sure connections, luxurious accommodations and unrivaled service of "The Burlington" are well known and make it the favourite route for tourists. For tickets, rates, sleeping car accommodations and any further information, call on the nearest ticket agent of "The Burlington" or connecting lines, or address W. J. Kenyon, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn. [34-36]

H. L. Zutz came down from Red Lake Falls on Tuesday and called to encourage us with another paid up subscription in advance. Mr. Z. had a yield of 25 bushels of 1 Northern per acre. Shipped it himself and is satisfied that he did better than to sell it to local dealers.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs' nice fall and winter display of millinery is the admiration of all the ladies who have called at her fashionable millinery parlors on Second street, and the prices are extremely low this fall.

Frank Goodin, a Crookston old-timer, but now a prosperous business man of Stephen, passed through the city on Monday evening en route to New Brunswick, his old home, where he goes as a missionary to tell the good points of this favored region. He expects to be gone several weeks.

The past week has been one of the warmest on record for December, Sitting in our office in the middle of the day with our window up has not been unpleasant. It is said that the half-breeds predict an open winter and if this sort of weather lasts until April 1st their prediction will prove true.

I buy my goods for cash direct of the manufacturers, which enables me to sell goods at about what other dealers pay for theirs.
C. H. Saake.

The Journal learns of the death of Mrs Stephen Quisnell, which sad event occurred recently at her home at Terrebonne, Mrs. S. was an estimable woman highly respected by all who knew her, a good wife and mother and she leaves a large family of children and a husband to mourn her loss.

See the new advertisement of E. M. Walsh elsewhere in this issue and if you want to buy a good farm call on Ed. He is one of the old settlers and what he don't know about Polk County soil but few can tell. He is thoroughly posted and when he recommends a piece of land you can bet your last dollar it is all O. K.

Osmond K. Knudson was one of the prosperous west-side farmers who called in on Monday to contribute his mite toward the success of The Journal. He had one hundred acres in wheat last season and harvested 3,000 bushels—a yield of 30 bushels per acre. We have lots of that kind of land in Polk County.

E. O. Flanders goes to his old home in Chatauqua County N. Y. this week to act as immigration agent and hopes to be the means of pointing many a poor man to a sure means of gaining a fortune. He will go prepared to show up the good points of Polk County in good shape and we hope to see him return in company with a goodly colony.

Persons visiting their old homes in the East this winter should take along printed matter descriptive of their new homes in the Northwest. Take copies of this paper with you and ask agents of the Great Northern Railway for a supply of publications. [33-36]

The Brown Comedy Company played to full houses last week. The piece on Saturday night we consider the best on their repertoire, calling forth the full power of the company. Should they ever favor this city again they will be sure of full houses. Each individual actor and actress is a good one—far better than the average of traveling troops.

City Engineer Geo. A. Ralph returned on Saturday from his surveying expedition in Kittson County to spend the holidays with his family after which he will go to the Red Lake Indian Reservation to complete his contract there. He says those Minneapolis chaps might take everything north of Red Lake for a park and not deprive anybody of a good farm.

A visit to my store will convince you that you can save money by buying your holiday presents of me.
C. H. Saake.

Joseph Coe, an old man of 78 years, was severely injured on Monday by a horse. He was hauling a barrel of water when the horse became frightened at something. The old man was thrown down and in some way the horse managed to step upon him, fracturing his ribs, the splintered bones penetrating a lung. Owing to his extreme age the result is very liable to be fatal.

Any persons who wish to visit eastern Canada, for business or pleasure, should avail themselves of the $40.00 round trip excursion rates to Montreal and Toronto. These tickets will be on sale daily December 15th to 22nd inclusive and on Tuesday, December 29th. Tickets and full information can be obtained of any agent Northern Pacific Railroad. [35-37]

"A Merry Christmas and a Happy New year, to The Polk County Journal from Charles Kretzschmar, Jr.," was the motto on a box of elegant imported Acorn cigars that found its way to our office an hour or so after Charlie Kretzschmar's visit on Monday last. In return our wish for the little fellow is for many and many a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year and may he grow up to be as good and honest a man as his father is.

The East Grand Forks Courier doubts our statement that land can be had in Polk County for $5 an acre, because, it says, the railroad has none for sale for less than $10. Well, we did not say how much of that kind of land there is for sale, however we know of some and if the Courier will send us a cash purchaser we will see that he gets two quarter sections of $5 land anyhow, good land too, that is, if the land is still in the market when he calls.

The following jolly comrades were over from Grand Forks on Monday evening to attend the camp-fire. Geo. B. Winship, editor of the Herald and Commander of the Department of North Dakota, Col. Brown—the great and only Col. Brown, who is a hustler from way back, Col. W. H. Topping—every Crookstonite knows who "Top" is; Lew Freeman—and everybody knows that rustler too; Col. A. W. Warren, J. H. Goodwin, J. C. Duncan, O. Hixom, A. C. Howe, August Revoir and Z. N. Hunt. The boys all privately told a Journal reporter that they enjoyed themselves hugely.

The May Louise Comedy Company will appear at the Grand Opera House on the evening of December 28th in "Mabel Heath, or the Old Old Story," which is one of the finest plays on their repertoire. Our readers will remember this company's first appearance in this city about one year ago and it was then considered an excellent one by those who claim to be posted. They win golden opinions everywhere.

There will be a Christmas entertainment open to all the Congregational Church Thursday evening at 7:30. The committee in charge have kindly invited all who will to bestow their presents upon their friends by bringing them to the church on Thursday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock to be presented from the main tree in the evening. The S. S. pupils will receive presents from the Aid Society on the trees. Good music by the church choir and others.

A. M. Malmberg, of Fisher, dropped in on Tuesday to renew and to chat over old times. Malmberg was a resident of Glyndon in '72 when the writer first reached that beautiful prairie village and commenced to make his fortune and maybe we didn't have a good time recalling those bygone days—and then maybe we did. Malmberg worked long and faithfully before he struck a wave of prosperity and he had to come to Polk County to find it. He is now one of the most prosperous farmers in Polk County—and he takes nearly every newspaper in the county, too.

John Knuppe was up from St. Paul last week to arrange for the sale of his farm to L. Brouillard who pays him $7,000 for a half section about three miles north of the city. We know of a half-section nearer the city all under cultivation and more land ready for seed in the spring that has been in the market for only $6,400 for three months. This land has good buildings, a grove of trees, a good artesian well, 80 acres under fence and is a snap at the price. Can be had for a cash payment of from $1,000 to $1,500 cash with the balance at 8 per cent, payable at the convenience of the purchaser. One hundred acres broken and backset last summer. About 270 acres ready for seed next spring. For further particulars call at or address The Journal office.

The sun on Wednesday morning rose on a scene of desolation and ruin at the meat market of Hoch & Ott, on Main street, showing where the fire fiend had held high carnival during the silent watches of the night. The alarm was given about 1:30 and the department was soon on deck, but the fire had then gained good headway in the fat meats and lard and proved an ugly customer, completely destroying $1,800 or $1,900 worth of meats, all of the tools and leaving the building a total wreck. Hoch & Ott were insured for $1,200 in the Continental. They will open out again just as soon as they can secure a building and get their losses adjusted. The building was owned by Elias Steenerson and insured for $600 in the Continental.

Sweeping bargains in ladies gold and gold filled watches, at C. H. Saake's jewelry store.

Charlie Kretzschmar dropped in to see us on Monday morning before taking the train for home and when we rallied him about looking so much younger he said it was all owing to "dot leetle poy dot vas tree weeks old already!" He is sanguine that Thief River Falls will get a railroad next spring; says they have two saw mills and millions of feet of pine to saw during the next spring and summer and that his roller mill is kept busy trying to keep up with orders. From what we can learn we should judge that Kretzschmar is getting rich again and if any man deserves it he does for his indomitable pluck which carried him through a financial crisis which would have cowed many a man in like circumstances. He richly deserves success and seems to be getting it amply.

Buffalo robes and cutters. Mrs. Mary Schreader, Crookston, Minn. [35-tf]

Replying to a letter of inquiry from J. D. S., Cass Co., N. D. we would say that the population of Polk County consists of native born Americans, Norwegians and French all a thrifty class of people generally. Our soil is heavy in some parts, light in other parts of the county, but excellently adapted to the raising of wheat. The average yield is from 16 to 20 business per acre but in exceptional cases as high as 47 bushels to the acre have been raised that amount having been raised one year on the farm of Hugh Thompson (the present register of U. S. Land Office here) and F. S. DeMers, (who was a land office official in Fargo awhile ago) on their farm at Fisher. Other yields of from 25 to 35 are frequent. Land can be had from $5 to $20 per acre, the latter with good buildings and improvements. Artesian wells producing the very best of water can be got at an expense of from $100 to $250 on almost every quarter section in Polk County. We have good schools, church privileges equal to many older communities and farm property is raising in value and the prospect now is that it will be at least 25 per cent higher next summer. For the capacity of the land the prices are not over fifty per cent of its real value and now is the time to catch on. If you desire further information as to special chances address E. M. Walsh, Crookston, Minn., enclosing stamp for reply. Mr. W. is one of the earliest settlers of Polk County thoroughly familiar with all of our lands and you can implicitly rely on what he tells you.

THE CAMP-FIRE.

The camp fire, given by Col. Cobham Post No. 90 in the Post room and the beautiful hall of the I. O. O. F, on Monday evening was a brilliant success in point of attendance and enjoyment. The Post room was thrown open on Monday morning for the reception of visiting comrades, and in the evening the lodge room and reception rooms were opened to received the ladies and other guests not belonging to the Post. After a Post meeting at 8 p. m. the boys adjourned to the spacious dining hall which, though capable of accommodating a hundred or so were found inadequate for the occasion and most of the members of the Post and their families had to go on second relief. After all had partaken of a bountiful repast of genuine hard tack and beans the company adjourned to the elegant hall where the time until 12 o'clock was pleasantly occupied by the old comrades in songs, speeches and army anecdotes. Comrade J. G. McGrew acted as master of ceremonies, and, after a song, introduced Department Commander C. D. Parker, who made a good speech taking as his text the Grand Army of the Republic, which was listened to with wrapt attention. He made the assertion that there are at least 20,000 old soldiers in Minnesota but only about 8,000 belong to the Grand Army and he said that he thought this might be remedied in a measure if every Grand Army man would constitute himself a committee of one on membership to see that every old soldier of his acquaintance enrolls his name in the Grand Army. Said he was pleased to find that a Ladies Relief Corps, with 35 charter members was established here and spoke of the great good the ladies have done the order and can do and he urged the importance of the work of the Sons of Vets also. Complimented Col. Cobham Post on the good work and good prospects and urged the boys to be faithful to every trust, always to observe their motto, fraternity, charity and loyalty which he defined at length.

He was followed by Commander Geo. B. Winship, of the Department of North Dakota who gave a brief resume of the work in his department, which though recently organized already contained about 1,000 members. His speech was well received by the old boys and heartily enjoyed by all. He was followed by Col. Brown, of the Grand Forks Post, who made a witty speech filled with anecdotes and old army reminiscences that waked the old boys up in great shape. Commander Parker had boasted somewhat of being one of Sherman's bummers and Col. Brown gave a facetious illustration of Sherman's bummers remarking that HE, the Col., had been a member of the Army of the Potomac and no common ordinary bummer.

Lawyer E. M. Stanton was called out who said that, owing to circumstances over which he had had no control he was not a Grand Army man now, though having been born about the time war was declared, he belonged to the home infantry during the war and always since its organization he has had a large-sized regard for the G. A. R.

Comrade McGrew closed the speechifying with a few well-chosen remarks and after Col. Brown had sung "The Army Bean" the company repaired to McKinnon Hall where all who desired to do so tripped the light fantastic toe until an early hour on Tuesday morning. Altogether the affair was a very enjoyable one, long to be remembered by each participant.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Dec. 28.—The first kiln of slate brick was turned out this week at the new Thomson works and was a great success. Slate brick are manufactured in New Jersey and are a great favorite. It is claimed that they are superior to pressed brick and more beautiful and can be manufactured cheaper.

C. F. Houghton, of Boston, the owner of a lot on Superior street, was here this week arranging with an architect for the erection of a fine block. Considerable building is now in sight. Most of it is of dwellings of a moderate cost, which will give homes to men of moderate incomes at rents they can afford to pay.

The Marinette Iron Works company have cast the big propellor wheel for whaleback steamer No. 120, for which it is also building a 1,000-horse power triple engine. The wheel is four-bladed, is 12.5 feet in diameter, is cast solid and weighs 7,500 pounds without the shaft. It is the largest casting of the kind ever made in Duluth, and probably in the Northwest.

The Duluth Manufacturing company yesterday received an order for 800 cars for New York, Lake Erie & Western road. So it is our factories are extending their business all over the country, and the manufacturing establishments of this section are becoming recognized.

The Duluth Imperial mill has donated 210 sacks of flour to the Russian famine sufferers and the Duluth Roller mill 25 sacks.

Wheat is moving rather more freely than it did last week. The present movement is expected to keep up until after the first of the year, when it is thought it will grow larger. According to estimates received here it is thought that from 40 to 50 per cent of the wheat tributary to Duluth is still unmarketed.

Another saw mill has been secured for Duluth. It will be located up the St. Louis and will be ready for work in the spring. It will be a small mill with only 10,000,000 feet annual capacity.

As an indication of the tendency of travel and the growing importance of this city as a center, the new train service on the Duluth & South Shore road to the East may be cited. A new train, the "Lake Superior Limited," was put on Thursday, which goes to Detroit in 28 hours, and to the East 12 hours quicker than formerly. HAYS.

EDNA, Dec. 14, 1891.

ED. JOURNAL: In his daily issue of Dec. 4th, the Times man denies that I called upon him to stop my copy of the weekly Times on account of the Bill Snort business and attempts to belittle me by saying that I probably am one of those hoboes who steal his valuable (?) sheet, &c., &c. Well, if THAT were true WHY should I take the trouble to call at his office to ask him to stop a paper I had nothing to do with? Of course, I am only a poor country farmer, the class that the dignified (?) Times man so heartily despises down in that cavity where MEN keep a soul, and so, of course, I am not IN it with such a magnificent publisher of a daily poster and a weekly smut-mill, but yet I am an American citizen, and as such have a right to breathe, even in a country inhabited by such a magnificent animal as the Times man, and I also have a right to the expression of an opinion, and I did express my opinion of that Bill Snort rot, and I did not go behind the barn to do it (unless the Times sanctororum is behind the barn, i. e. out of sight,) but I told the Times man to his little face what I thought of that slush, and told him to stop sending it to me although it was paid up in advance a little. He did not do as he was ordered; however, I notice that NOW he attributes the Bill Snort foolishness to Texas Siftings, whereas before he used to run it just as though it was original matter, and the average reader was led to infer that Mac wrote it himself. So it would seem that I made him ashamed of it and caused him to give proper credit. Now, as to my stealing my paper I have only to say that that is utterly false and the Times man knows it. I am foreman on the old Reis farm for Mr. John C. Wells and my contract calls for such county papers as I may choose to order. Mr. Wells had paid the Times man for my paper and the Times man well knew it, and the statement he made is a base subterfuge, and now he appears to be determined to keep sending it right along whether I want it or not, but that don't seem to me to be legitimate newspaper business. I call it downright robbery and a fraud.

Respectfully yours,
J. A. CROFT.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO IF YOU Were In Our Place?

This question we ask in all seriousness to those to whom we sent a statement of account in October, giving them until January 1st 1892 to pay up at the rate of $1.50 per annum, and who have as yet paid no attention to it. We are pleased with the fact that only about one quarter of the names on our list are in this boat but seven or eight hundred in arrears from 2 to 6 or 8 years as the case may be is too great a burden for us to carry over another year and we feel that something must be done to remedy this state of things and that is why we ask you this simple question, "What would you do about it if you were in our place?" We know very well what many of you would do—you would sue every account, for the full amount just as soon after January 1st 1892 as soon as you could get to a justice shop but, while we urgently need a settlement on our list we do not wish to proceed to extreme measures and will not unless we are absolutely driven to it, and we don't mean to if our patrons intend to be honest with us—that is all we ask and certainly that is fair enough. Now this is what we intend to do in these cases. We have secured 30 days time on pressing obligations maturing on Jan. 1st 1892 and we will extend the limit of our $1.50 offer for long past due subscriptions for that time or until Feb. 1st 1892. There is not probably one name on our list the owner of which is unable, if he cannot pay up to give us a secured note, one that we can use in our business if he intends to be honest and remember, that, as much as we need our money at this time we do not expect that any man who lost his crop by hail will either pay us this year or secure a note for us. He needs all his resources to make another crop and we do not wish to hamper any honest farmer. Please give this matter your early attention and save both ourself and you unnecessary trouble.

East Grand Forks Courier: Axel Whalstrom, a well-known citizen of this city, was a few days ago while in Crookston, induced to pay $2 for an almanac by a facetious Frenchman, who represented to Mr. Whalstrom that life without an almanac was not worth the living. That a citizen of East Grand Forks should fall a prey to a resident of Crookston is just a trifle beyond our comprehension.

Proceedings of the Board of County Commissioners

At Their Meeting of Dec. 7th, 1891.

On the motion of Commissioner DeMers the sum of $25 was voted to Mrs. Anderson and family.

The sum of $300 was appropriated for a bridge across the Sand Hill River on the Crookston and Moorhead road. Application of Ed. Hamery for abatement of personal taxes, rejected.

V. D. Carruth was elected County Superintendent of Schools in place of Even J. Grefthen, deceased.

The board appropriated the sum of $3,897.75 to purchase the Mattie Holton property to be used as a county hospital. Steps were taken toward the building of a good bridge at Thief River Falls. Personal property taxes of W. Tindolph, of Thief River Falls, abated. H. R. Nolan was requested to make plans and specifications for bridge at Red Lake Falls.

By resolution the justices of East Grand Forks, Crookston and Thief River Falls were instructed to send files and dockets and all papers in criminal cases wherein bills have been presented at this and the January meeting, to the county auditor for inspection at the January meeting of the board. The report of Henry Nolan on the Red Lake Falls bridge read and filed. The chairman was appointed a committee to consult with the proper authorities of the City of Crookston in relation to procuring a site for a new jail.

Briefly Told.

Half of the fresh water on the earth is found within a radius of 1,000 miles of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

The Great Northern in a run of 1,074 miles from St. Paul to Great Falls, Mont., has no grade of over .06 per cent, or 31.6 feet per mile, giving it the longest stretch of low grade track in the world.

Montana leads all the states in the production of precious metals.

Great Falls, Mont., has the largest water power in this country. The Missouri river tumbles 512 feet over a series of falls in a course of eight miles.

The best hunting and fishing resorts in the Northwest are to be found along the lines of the Great Northern Railway.

The Great Northern is one of the very few railways in the United States owning and operating its own entire equipment.

The Great Northern, with four tracks, is the main thoroughfare between St. Paul and Minneapolis; has the only double track to Lake Minnetonka.

The new extension of the Great Northern to Park Rapids, Minn., 209 miles from St. Paul, comes within about 25 miles of Lake Itaska, the source of the Mississippi.

Minnesota has more water surface and the largest body of standing white pine timber of any state in the union.

THE MANITOBA.

A Revolution In Hotel Life In Canada.

On December 31st the Northern Pacific Railroad will open at Winnipeg their new new hotel, the Manitoba. This structure, which is unique in design and complete in all the arrangements that go to make a first class hotel and a comfortable home for travelers, is located in the centre of the business portion of the city at the corner of Main and Water streets, and is by far the finest hotel and railway station in Canada.

The Manitoba will be conducted on the American plan. The fact that it has been placed under the management of Mr. W. J. Gunning for years steward of the Minnesota Club of St. Paul, gives assurance that the table and service will be perfect in every respect.

The building contains in the basement and on the first floor all the necessary adjuncts of a first class hotel, such as the rotunda, reception rooms, barber shop, laundry, toilet rooms, Turkish baths, bar, billiard room, etc.

On the second floor are beautiful parlors and dining rooms, all finished in California redwood. The main dining room, which extends through two floors, is magnificent in size and decorations. Private dining rooms adjoin which are unsurpassed in their furnishings.

The private parlors and bedrooms are 305 in number, many of them with bathrooms in addition. The furniture throughout is in keeping with the fine general appearance of the building. The sanitary arrangements are perfect. A complete steam heating and electric plant, situated in a seperate building, will supply the house with warmth and light.

In the first floor of his hotel are ticket offices, waiting rooms, etc., of the Northern Pacific Railroad, affording easy facilities for travelers taking this line south, east and west. Trains make their arrival and departure from a large iron shed which is adjacent to an extension of the hotel containing baggage rooms and express offices.

County Alliance Meeting.

A meeting of the Polk County Alliance is hereby called at the Court House, in Crookston, at 10 o'clock a. m., on Tuesday, Dec. 29th 1891, for the purpose of electing one delegate and one alternate to attend the meeting of the State Farmers' Alliance at Minneapolis Minn., January 5th, 1892, and to transact any other business deemed for the good of the order. It is recommended that sub-alliances meet as soon as possible and elect their delegates. Each sub alliance is entitled to three delegates.

Reclining Chair Cars.

If you intend going East of South via St. Paul and Chicago, why not take "The Burlington" day train from St. Paul and Minneapolis, and enjoy the beautiful scenery of the Upper Mississippi? This train has one feature not afforded by any other line between the Twin Cities and Chicago; it carries elegant reclining chair cars, which make the journey delightful, easy and comfortable, and no extra charge is made to those occupying seats in them. Insist on the agent giving you tickets via "The Burlington"—C., B. & N. R. R.—and take no others.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post-office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

The Russian Thistle.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 17, 1891.

E. D. Childs, Crookston, Minn.:

DEAR SIR:—I enclose herewith a page from "Farm, Stock and Home" of the 15th inst. in which is introduced a cut of the Russian thistle, with two or three communications with regard to it. I particularly call your attention to the article by Mr. C. H. Church. If you will study the habits of this plant, you will see that a wheat growing State is threatened with irreparable loss by the spread of a pest of this character. It has occurred to me that it is barely possible to save the State of Minnesota if action shall be taken at a very early date. A line might be established along the State line of Minnesota, and the weed could be, by a yearly expenditure, kept from getting a foothold. There is also a bare possibility that by united action of North and South Dakota and Minnesota, that the weed might be extirpated. If, on the contrary, the pest shall spread and nothing shall be done except by the individual action of farmers, it will spread itself over the entire Northwest, and the loss will be millions of dollars yearly, with a perpetual struggle against this weed. If a dozen representative farmers in this State could be interested to meet here, and if one or two intelligent men from South Dakota meet with us, we could arouse public interest in this question. It seems to me possible, that a commission of say three men from this State, and a like number from North and South Dakota, could investigate this subject during the summer of 1892, and report to the several Legislatures on the habits and character of the weed, giving the area now invested, and present some plan for its extirpation. If not done at once, there will be no hope in five years from this date for any community which has not protected itself. It spreads like wildfire, and the plant shown in the cut, nearly four feet in diameter, was one which I found in the heart of Minneapolis, and carried in my carriage to the office of Farm, Stock and Home, and from which the cut was made in that office. If you feel an interest in this subject I would like suggestions from you, and the names of a few prominent farmers throughout the State who might become interested enough to meet for a conference with regard to the matter. Please pardon my anxiety which leads me to trouble you. Yours very truly,

ELWOOD S. CORSER.

The Alliance Saved.

Grand Forks News: As the News has maintained from the beginning the Farmers' Alliance, as an organization, should be kept aloof from party politics, and it is gratified to note that the outcome of the Larimore state meeting was the determination to abstain from mingling alliance affairs with any party. This is its only salvation. For on party lines the alliance will inevitably divide and between the two factions, the good sought would elude their grasp. The heads who are guiding the alliance of North Dakota seek no personal preferment, no political power, but only the enhancement of the welfare of the agricultural and allied people. Hence it is that the alliance of North Dakota is independent of all parties. Its members are left free to act with any party as they understand their interests to be—and to choose men who will carry out alliance principles.

New York Press.

Who will be the Republican candidate for President in 1892? This is a question which the near approach of the year in which the next Presidential election will be decided brings to the front. It is an issue that cannot be ignored. The best interests of the party and the nation demand its intelligent and judicial consideration. There are only two names prominently mentioned for the nomination. No one needs to be told what they are. Each is that of a great leader who has worthily won the confidence and esteem of the Republican party; of a broad minded, amply equipped statesman whose high services to the nation have been inspired by the sincerest patriotism.

It is important, once for all, to stamp as absolutely false the malicious reports which have been going the rounds of the Democratic press in regard to the personal and political relations of President Harrison and Secretary Blaine. The rumors which have intimated that these gentlemen were rivals for the Presidency have never had the slightest basis of truth. The Press is in a position to announce that there is not now and that there never has been one moment of antagonism in respect to the nomination between the President and the Secretary of State.

Both statesmen have labored with the utmost cordiality and harmony in the work of efficiently and wisely administering the national government. As leaders of the Republican party they are both equally devoted to its unity and welfare. The name presented to the Republican National Convention may be Harrison or it may be Blaine. But only one of the two men will be a candidate before the convention; and the one that goes before the people as the Republican standard bearer next year will have the heartiest and most effective support the other can give. This may be accepted as definite and settled fact.

The nomination rests solely with the masses of the party. If, as the trend of events now seems to indicate, the demand is for Mr. Blaine, the brilliant and forceful Secretary will have no warmer friend or well wisher than the sterling patriot and able statesman whose administration has been one unbroken record of progress and success. If the President is again a candidate, the potent voice of the greatest Secretary of State since Seward will be heard in irresistible appeal to the people for his re-election. The party is indeed fortunate that it can count two such men among its leaders. The claims of each upon popular confidence and admiration are manifold.

President Harrison's administration is one that inspires every patriot with pride. It has been eminently just, courageous and strong. The complicated financial affairs of the government have been administered with consummate ability and honesty. The work of constructing the navy has been pushed with the utmost energy. The foreign relations of the government have been maintained with dignity and wisdom. The President has shown that he knows how to put the right man in the right place; and having put them there to sustain them in every emergency. In the Behring Sea negotiations; in the treaties of reciprocity which have resulted in the commercial annexation of so many states of Latin America to the United States; in the vexatious and unprecedented New Orleans affair; in defending the national honor against the arrogance and insults of Chili, the President has loyally upheld and aided Mr. Blaine. In every department of the government the work has been carried on with economy, fidelity to the public interests and a high degree of skill.

As a leader President Harrison has proven himself safe, sound and sagacious. His record of appointments to every office, judicial, political, naval or military, has been excellent. His name is a tower of strength for the cause of honest money and the 100 cent dollar. While he is in the White House no free coinage measure and no measure designed to strike at the business interests of the nation through repeal of essential portions of the McKinley bill can be enacted into law. He is stronger with his party and the people to-day than he was in 1888.

The magnificent services of Mr. Blaine to his party and his country are familiar to all Americans. Prior to 1884 they were such that they brought about his nomination for President in that year as a natural and logical result. Since the election of President Harrison, to which his masterly speeches in behalf of protection contributed so powerfully, Mr. Blaine has achieved new and notable triumphs in the realm of constructive statesmanship. His resolute and skillful course has forced Great Britain to an arbitration of the vexed and dangerous Behring Sea dispute which threatened at one time to bring two great nations to the verge of hostilities. His conduct of the diplomatic controversy with Italy following the lynching of the Italians in New Orleans has evoked the warm admiration of the most distinguished foreign statesmen. European diplomats have been quick to recognize the touch of a master hand in the dealings of this government with those of other countries. Mr. Blaine's tenure of office as Secretary of State has resulted in immeasureably increasing the prestige and reputation of the United States abroad.

Yet this has not been his greatest achievement. In creating the policy of reciprocity, as the handmaid and complement of protection, Mr. Blaine has conferred an immense benefit upon the American mechanic and farmer and given to Republicanism a battle shout that will sweep the country from sea to sea. His grand project of securing the markets of all America for the products of the United States; of ousting monarchical European influences from the southern continent and elevating this country to its rightful primacy and dominance in Pan-American affairs, has aroused the enthusiasm of the nation. Under Mr. Blaine's management reciprocity treaties have been concluded with Brazil, with Spain for Cuba and Porto Rico, with San Domingo and the British West Indies, whereby tropical products that we cannot raise are admitted free of duty into our ports and American manufactures and agricultural products are either admitted free or at greatly reduced rates into the countries named. Treaties of the same sort are pending with Mexico, Guatemala, Costa Rica, Salvador, Colombia, Venezuela, Peru and Ecuador. The policy of gaining a wider market for our products in Europe has also been followed successfully. Germany, France and Austria have revoked their prohibition of American pork. An important reciprocity treaty with the German Empire, that will provide for admission under a greatly reduced tariff of the products of American farms, only wants the sanction of the Reichstag to become law. And all this has been accomplished without the sacrifice of one iota of that protection to American industries which is a cardinal principle of Republicanism.

With two such leaders as President Harrison and Mr. Blaine working together in the fullest harmony, the Republican party looks forward with confidence to 1892. Either of the two would command the entire and enthusiastic party support. Whether the Minneapolis convention names Blaine or Harrison, its nominee will be triumphantly elected over the candidate of free silver and free trade.

The January Wide Awake will have an especial claim upon its thousands of readers by the diversity of subject represented in its carefully selected material. Of especial interest will undoubtedly be found Sally Joy White's description of the new Leland Stanford Jr., University in the State of California—that tender and magnificent memorial to a bright and most lovable boy by his parents, Senator and Mrs. Leland Stanford. Mrs. White calls the article "The Boy who Built a College," and although the great school is built as a memorial it was still so clearly the fruit of the dead boy's desires that the title is no misnomer. Molly Elliot Seawell, a rapidly rising name among American "short story" writers, has a delightful characteristic tale of school-boy life, "Two Schoolmasters," that all boys will enjoy; and Miss Adam's "Double Christmas at St. Martin's," is also so good a story of boarding school life that boys and girls will scarcely be satisfied with a single reading of it. The serial stories of "Jack Brereton's Three Months Service"—an inspiring story of the stirring war days, by Maria McIntosh Cox, and "The Lance of Kanana," a striking Arabian story by "Abd el Ardavan," the Araban, already grows absorbing even in their second installment. The American pale-face woman who was adopted by the Seneca Indians Harriet Maxwell Converse, has another interesting sketch of Seneca life in "The Strawberry Feast at the Long House;" Amanda B. Harris has a curious account of how a church was eaten up, bit by bit, from roof to corner stone, and why it is that the gypsies have no churches; Zitella Cooke tells a charming story of the celebrated Mexican general Santa Anna and his jealous pet bird; and Otis T. Mason has something to say of Professor Marsh's giant lizards, sixty feet long. The poems in the number are by Celia Thaxter and Clara Doty Bates, Miss Thaxter's being a ballad rendering of the quaint Norwegian story of Gudbrand's bad bargains and how they led to good luck; Mrs. Bates tells, in verse, the old fable of the Mice in Council, and how they sought to "bell the cat." Other verses and sketches fill out a most entertaining number of Wide Awake, which is, as usual, well illustrated and so carefully made up as to prepare a tempting feast indeed for the myriad young people who eagerly await and as eagerly welcome it. Wide Awake is published at 20 cents per number, $2.40 per year. All booksellers keep it. D. Lothrop Co., Publishers, Boston.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29th, 1891.

ED. JOURNAL.—

The President has announced that, under the power conferred on him by the third section of the McKinley Act, which was the reciprocity section, he will reimpose the duties on sugar and coffee imported from South American states which have not accepted the offer made by the United States to enter into reciprocity trade arrangements.

This power was given to the President that he might use it; it was given to him that he might, by offering reciprocity trade arrangements to some countries, induce all to enter in it. So far as our coffee and sugar trade is concerned we have already made proper arrangements with Brazil and the Spanish West Indies as well as the English West Indies. From these we secure nearly all our sugar and coffee. There are some of the smaller states of South and Central America that have not yet responded to the very generous offer on our part and the President says that their sugar and coffee shall not enter the country upon the same terms with those of the countries which have given us trade advantages. This is an observance of both the spirit and the letter of the law. Some of the Democratic papers of course say that the President, in exercising this power, is imposing a tax upon those who take the sugar and coffee. Any one not a natural born fool would know that there will not be a pound of sugar and coffee imported into the United States from any of those countries that have to pay a tax or, if a pound is imported, that it will be sold precisely at the same price to the purchaser that the free sugar from Porto Rico, Cuba and other countries with which treaties have been made is sold at. We said any one not a fool would know this; any one not a liar would say it.

The silver fight has opened in the Senate. Senator Stewart delivered one of his characteristic speeches on the 17th. This action of the great silver Senator has brought the papers of the gold bugs into renewed activity in their fight against free silver. The silver, too, has created quite a muss in the Democratic ranks. Mr. Collins, of Massachusetts, that gentleman who, not born in Boston nor educated at Harvard, still believes that one of the principal beatitudes was left out of the Sermon on the Mount and that it should have read "Blessed are they who reside in Boston and are educated at Harvard for such shall know all things," has been laboring with Mr. Crisp on the subject of silver. He tells Mr. Crisp that if a free silver bill of any kind should pass the New England Democrats who are now in Congress could not be re-elected. Mr. Collins might have left out all the preamble to that. There is no probability of the Congressmen from New England being re-elected at all whether there is any free silver legislation or not. This fight of the New England men has complicated Mr. Crisp's difficulties very much in selecting his committees. Another trouble has been visited upon his head by some of his Southern brethren. The Southern men say that it is not fair or right that the principal committees should be given to Northern men and a few of them are kicking like a bucking broncho against the appointment of Springer and Holman as chairmen of the two leading committees of the House.

Mr. Watterson, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, has jumped into the ring in the usual style of Mr. Merriman, declaring "here we are again," and says that the election of the Speaker had nothing to do with Presidential possibilities. In fact all of Mr. Cleveland's friends are engaged in that delectable work; Vilas, Dickinson, Bayard, Carlisle and Morrison were all active supporters of Mr. Mills and they are known as the special friends of Mr. Cleveland. The New York Times and the St. Louis Republican are his two leading newspaper organs and they were for Mills. All of them are now saying that the Presidential question did not cut any figure in the election. They remind one of Mark Tapley who kept jolly under all circumstances.

Dressing in Good Taste.

American ladies, especially in the larger cities and towns, are becoming noted for their good taste in dress. This is largely due to the fact that they secure the best fashion journals published, and by a careful study of them they get correct ideas upon the all-important subject of dress. Any lady can cultivate her taste in this direction if she will only go to the trouble of comparing the styles found in the reliable fashion journals published by A. McDowell & Co., 4 West 14th Street, New York, with those appearing in other fashion magazines. Those issued by A. McDowell & Co. are produced only by the best artists, and are for the most part plain, and in every respect practical; the others are generally very loud or dowdy, and thoroughly unsuitable for the requirements of American women. The firm of A. McDowell & Co. seeks to furnish ladies with genuine French styles, such as can be used without any danger of appearing ridiculous. Hence their fashion journals are now the favorites with all ladies of good taste throughout the country. "La Mode de Paris" gives the latest French styles. "Album des Modes" furnishes styles which are popular in Paris. "La Mode" gives a selection of styles which are serviceable to the family. The two former are each 35 cents a copy, or $3.50 a year. The last is 15 cents a copy, or $1.50 per annum. They are supplied by newsdealers, or direct to subscribers from the house.

Quite a bliz on Christmas day.

Don't forget to write it 1892 hereafter.

Doc. Koyle was up from Ada this week.

Mrs. Bucknam expects to remove to Colorado.

Wm. Vannet spent Christmas in Grand Forks.

H. Steenerson left for St. Paul on Sunday evening.

Free dinner at the Congregational church this noon.

The May Louise Aigen company hold the boards this week.

Wheat opened out on Monday morning at 74 cents per bushel.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graul went to Chicago to spend the holidays.

Saturday was one of those bright, beautiful days that you read about.

The merchants tell us that their Christmas trade was excellent this year.

Arthur W. Foss spent the Christmas time with friends and relatives at Mentor.

Frank Montague has gone to the Sanitarium at Battle Creek, Mich., for treatment.

C. E. Sawyer went to St. Paul on Sunday evening's belated train on the Great Northern road.

Charles E. Harrington, of Euclid, has gone to Bellevue, Iowa, to spend the winter at his old home.

Wesley Morris and wife came down from Mentor last week to do their Christmas trading.

Harry Ives, the St. Hilaire Spectator man, went below on Sunday evening for a holiday visit with friends and relatives.

Call and settle that subscription if you are behind a number of years. We need our money.

The Christmas Eve dance at McKinnon's Hall was a very enjoyable affair, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather.

Call and see us on that back subscription or send in the cash before February 1st as we shall require them settled by that date.

We want to hire a good reliable man or boy for farm work. Steady employment to the right party. Apply at THE JOURNAL office.

"Christmas comes but once a year" and the average mortal would be glad of it if it involves such weather as the Christmas of '91 saw.

Mrs. Ellingbo, mother of policeman Ellingbo, died at her residence in this city last week after a short illness. She was about 55 years old.

J. O. Buhn, the Mentor merchant dropped in to set that subscription ahead on Monday. Reports business excellent this fall and winter.

Crookston hotels dined their guests in elegant shape on Christmas day. The most of them prepared a spread unsurpassed by any St. Paul hotel.

Pretty quick postmaster Dawley will be right on deck with the best burglar proof safe in the city. Workmen are busily engaged at the post office putting it in.

Dept. postmaster McLean steps extra high in these days—with his fine gold-headed cane presented to him on Christmas day by the mail clerks on the railroad.

Judge Spendley remembered THE JOURNAL by sending in a good bit on subscription on Christmas morning. A nice little Christmas present and very highly appreciated.

The Aigen Company are as fine a company of ladies and gentlemen as ever visited our city, genial, jolly and good artists, qualities which are sure to win friends and keep them.

Wm. Erdmann, who has been at Warren building an engine room for their fire steamer, returned last week. Erdmann reports business very lively at the county seat of Marshall County this fall and winter.

Lovely weather again since Sunday.

From the tone of letters THE JOURNAL is receiving we should say that next spring will see a large influx of new settlers. Let 'em come. There's lots of good land at low figures.

Comrade Geo. Truax was united for life to Miss Lizzie Sprague, of Fisher, last week. The comrades all unite with THE JOURNAL and his many friends in wishing comrade Truax and his bride a long and happy life.

"I am a bachelor now-a-days," said engineer Tom Hunt to a JOURNAL man the day before Christmas. "My better half has gone to the Devil's Lake to spend the holidays with Fred and the baby—and my daughter."

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather old Santa Claus managed to reach the various churches in this city that had duly arranged to receive him, and the little folks had a grand good time. "Christmas comes but once a year" and the little folks are bound to observe the event regardless of the weather.

If you have from $1,000 to $1,500 to invest in a good farm near this city, one-half section all under the plow, call at this office and we will put you onto a bargain.

The jury in the case of Geo. O'Brien, charged with setting fire to the elevator at Fisher, on trial at the time of going to press last week, brought in a verdict of guilty, and O'Brien was sentenced to four years in the St. Cloud reformatory.

Herb Mason's holiday trade was not circumscribed by the boundaries of Polk County but he sold toys to St. Paul people as well. In that lot was a handsome young doll that cried because it could not stay in Polk County and grow up with the country.

Last year during December and January JOURNAL subscribers put up the needful very encouragingly. The past month has not been so good but we trust that January will be sufficiently good to make the average equal last year at least and we should like to see it exceeded.

Mr. Smith, who has been with Charlie Thomas for a few weeks, left last week for Webb City, Mo., where he will hang out his shingle. Meanwhile Charlie will conduct his business at the old stand himself until he finds a good assistant, and Charlie is no slouch of a barber himself.

Tom Morris:—"That was the finest fire scene I ever saw put on the stage; Why, don't you know, when that curtain caught and burned up I thought the business had got away from them and that we had a sure enough fire in dead earnest. It was a dandy and no mistake."

Joseph Laframboise starts this week for a visit to his old home in Canada. While he is away he will use his persuasive powers upon his old neighbors and friends in the interest of immigration to this Red River Valley. He is an excellent talker when he is talking about the good points of Polk County.

Freight conductor Ditty met with a severe accident on Sunday evening. He was caught between a coal car and a passenger coach and suffered a fracture of the right shoulder. He was taken to Dr. Dampier who attended to his needs. He was able to leave on the delayed passenger train for his home in Barnsville.

Walt Ott informed a JOURNAL reporter on Tuesday that Hoch & Ott expect to be on deck again soon, ready to supply the wants of their many customers for meat. They expected the adjuster that day to fix up their insurance and as soon as that is done will open out somewhere. Their loss in tools and meats was about $2,000 with an insurance of $1,200.

A few weeks since, THE JOURNAL announced, upon the authority of a lead citizen of Gentilly that a combination sale would be held at Gentilly next Monday. We were told that bills would be gotten out in a few days, and that an announcement, giving full particulars would be given later. We have heard nothing of it since so we conclude that the sale is off.

E. M. McCoslin, a new arrival from Franklin, Ind., called in to become a subscriber to THE JOURNAL on Monday. Mr. McCoslin was a strong supporter of President Harrison during the last campaign, is very well satisfied with the administration and would like to see it continued. He will join the ranks of the grangers in Polk County and help to swell the visible supply in the future.

Many of our farmer friends, in attendance at the County Alliance, improved the opportunity to run in and square up on that back subscription for which we are duly grateful as well as for the new names added to our list during the past week. THE JOURNAL has ever striven to work for the best welfare of all the people of Polk County and as long as we control its destinies it will continue to do so.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hoch have been called upon to pass through the deep waters of affliction in the death of their little three-year-old daughter, Gracie, which sad event occurred on Friday evening. The little one was sick only one day and its loss falls with peculiar force upon the heads of a loving father and mother. Their many friends in this city will deeply sympathize with them in their sore trial.

Joe. Brewster was in from Fisher on Tuesday and of course called in to help keep THE JOURNAL running right along. We wish every man on our list was as prompt as he. Joe. was obliged to bring his big herd from his Lambert farm to his Fisher farm to winter, owing to the fact that he could not find fodder enough out east. He expects about next year to reap a profit from his big herd.

Prof. Sheley came down from Fosston last week to spend his two weeks' vacation in the walks of civilization. He tells of an Indian (a good Indian now) whom they roasted for their Christmas festivities up there. The said Indian started in to celebrate Christmas allee samee Melican man by getting his skin chuck full of fire-water, and being "tired" retired to his tepee to sleep off the effects of his celebration. In some way the tepee took fire and before Mr. Indian could be rescued he was roasted to a turn and of no further use to his tribe. They say the Indians seem to get all the whiskey they want notwithstanding the law says they shall not have it.

A Hog In His Stocking.

Charlie Misner is not only a rattling good barber but a lucky man withal. For some weeks he has been hinting to his brothers that pretty quick he would have a birthday coming along—and moreover Christmas was coming soon and that a nice fat hog in his Christmas stocking would be about the checker. Well, on Christmas morning he received a postal saying that hog-killing would be ripe in a few days and that a nice fat hog would be sent him to put in his stocking or elsewhere as he saw fit. Charlie has been "scalding down" that hog ever since.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs' nice fall and winter display of millinery is the admiration of all the ladies who have called at her fashionable millinery parlors on Second street, and the prices are extremely low this fall.

The party who had rented the store occupied by C. H. Saake has given up the idea of starting a saloon on Jan. 1st as he had planned to do, so Saake will not be obliged to give up his store after all. He has leased the building for three years, also the room across the street recently occupied by Hans Peterson and will stock both places to their fullest extent and be ready to greet his friends again with that same old genial smile.

I buy my goods for cash direct of the manufacturers, which enables me to sell goods at about what other dealers pay for theirs.

C. H. SAAKE.

L. I. Benoit received the sad news on Wednesday last of the death of his brother Frank's wife at St. Paul, which occurred on Wednesday, Dec. 23d, as the result of an operation to remove a tumor. Her death was a question of only a short time if the tumor was not removed, so she took the one chance in a hundred and suffered the operation, but had not sufficient vitality to rally. Besides a loving husband, she leaves four small children to mourn her irreparable loss. L. I. Benoit and Mr. Emond left for St. Paul on the evening of the 24th to attend the funeral.

Ship your wheat to O. Tharaldson general agent of the Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association, at Duluth, and make from 4 to 7 cents a bushel. For further particulars as to membership, &c., inquire of L. K. Hassel, Grand Forks, N. D. [25-tf]

Ed. Bivens tells us a story of a lost sheep that is a remarkable one and if anybody else told it we might doubt it. During the first blizzard the sheep were in the barnyard waiting the completion the sheep shed. The next day they were all (it was supposed) put into the shed. Five days afterward Ed. took a scoop shovel and began excavating a six foot drift in the corner of the barnyard to find a sheep trough when he uncovered a spring lamb that had been snowed in by the blizzard. The first words the sheep said was to skip for the hay stack and begin to eat, and after a good square meal appeared to be as good as ever.

The May Louise Aigen Company continues to delight good audiences at the Grand Opera House each night this week. On New Year's night an elegant opera glass will be voted to the handsomest young lady and a silk hat to the homeliest gentleman in the house. THE JOURNAL would like to see some young lady get it who is not a pampered child of luxury, abundantly able to get one or who perhaps already has several of her own, some hard working teacher, or seamstress, or a hired girl, one who would appreciate it at its worth. Of course, the tile, if it goes according to the strict conditions of the offer will be awarded THE JOURNAL man naturally enough for a homelier man cannot be found in these upper counties—we are perfectly satisfied of that.

On the day before Christmas, as everybody seemed to be indulging in goodies, we bethought ourself that it would be a pretty good idea, so we dropped in on neighbor Sture to see what he had good to eat. There, among other good things, we saw a lot of genuine Polk County honey that he had obtained from a farmer near Gentilly, so we took a comb of it to sample. After having duly sampled it we are fully prepared to vouch for the statement that there is no honey in existence better than Polk County honey. We have often wondered why our farmers have neglected this industry, as there is a mint of money in it on a small scale, and we see no reason why bee-raising is not perfectly practical. Thousands of dollars annually have gone out of Polk County for honey that could just as well have been paid out to our farmers.

Church Banquet.

To-day, Dec. 31st, occurs the annual meeting of the Congregational church of Crookston. It meets at 12 o'clock noon. All members are requested to be present at that hour. The ladies of the church give a free banquet at the church to the members of the society, the supporters, those who attend the Sabbath worship, the members and their friends; also some others have been invited. The banquet will be open at 1 p. m. promptly. The friends of the church who are thus invited are kindly requested to come about 12 o'clock, if convenient. There will be speeches and music after dinner. The ladies have made liberal provision for the occasion and it is hoped that no one's seat will be vacant.

Installation of officers of Crookston Lodge, 141, A. F. and A. M. took place on Monday evening, Grand Master M. R. Brown officiating. The following are the officers for the ensuing year:

John Cromb—W. M.
Frank Skinner—S. W.
R. G. Marlette—J. W.
J. V. E. Wyatt—S. D.
W. G. Lytle—J. D.
W. B. Dawley—Steward.
Geo. O. Buhn—Steward.
Hugh R. Robertson—Sec.
E. M. Walsh—Treas.
John Ross—Tyler.

Geo. M. Swift was in from Mentor on Tuesday and gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call.

No. 149 is the lucky number. If you have that number go to Herb's and claim your doll-carriage.

J. D. Knudson, of McIntosh, dropped in on Tuesday to say "how," and put up a little of the needful.

J. S. Nichols was in to find out about Lady Audrey's secret on Tuesday night. J. S. said to us: "Keep THE JOURNAL coming; we can't keep house without it."

When Prof. Armstrong severed his connection with the East Grand Forks schools to accept the position of assistant superintendent of schools, the position was first offered to Prof. T. Casey, of the Carman school, but the board did not wish to spare Casey so he declined the honor.

One of the Aigen company was chaffing Bert Frank, on Wednesday morning, claiming that Bert did not take the part of Geo. Tallboys well enough on Tuesday evening. As one of the audience we thought he did exceedingly well—in fact for the most part he appeared to be "dead in it."

Next Sabbath Mr. Battey will have for his sermon themes: "The Conditions," and "Abraham," the latter being the first of a new series of Sunday evening sermons on "Some Great Men of the Olden Time." A cordial invitation is extended to everybody to attend and enjoy these services at the Congregational church. Morning worship will open at exactly 11 a. m. and the evening service at 7:30 p.m. The S. S. is at 12:15; Junior Society, 3:30; Young People's Society. 6:30. A hearty welcome for young people and children. Remember the hours of service are not govered by any bell but by the standard time. The pastor regulates his time by jeweler Saake's regulator every Saturday evening.

The May Louise Aigen Dramatic Company presented "Lady Audley's Secret" on Tuesday evening to a good house, with Miss Aigen in the title role. As an emotional actress Miss Aigen is one of the best ever before a Crookston audience, her portrayal of the double-dyed villainy of this part being perfect. Her support was good, the character of Luke Marks, taken by Owen Bartlett, being excellent. The fire scene, wherein a hotel was set on fire and totally destroyed before the eyes of the audience was so realistic that Dunc Morris, (after the curtain) grabbed his hat and rushed out into the street to go for the fire apparatus to turn the hose on the whole business. It took some effort to convince Dunc that it was only a play fire, but when so convinced at last he mildly smiled and returned. The company will occupy the boards for the balance of the week. On Friday evening an elegant opera glass will be voted to the handsomest young lady and a silk hat to the homeliest gentleman in the audience.

Frank T. Haseltine, the genial proprietor of the celebrated Crookston Nurseries, departed for Madison Wis., this week for the winter. In conversation with a JOURNAL reporter Frank said that his business this year far exceeded his most sanguine expectations last spring. His collections have been excellent, far better than ever before. When asked what department of his business was the best he said: "forest trees. People are coming to understand better than ever the value of trees upon the prairie as a protection in winter and hundreds of them set out trees last season and my orders for spring delivery are larger and more of them than ever before. I tell you it will be but a few years before every dweller upon these prairies will have a fine grove of trees to protect his buildings in the winter and the effect will be magical. I believe that our farmers have seen their toughest years in this country and hereafter they will see very much better times as I believe that it will be many years yet before wheat will go down as low as it has been if ever. I shall return next spring prepared to do the biggest season's work I ever did."

HAPPY NEW YEAR.

C. H. SAAKE.

On Wednesday afternoon about 2 o'clock, as four men were unloading a crate of glass at the new block the crate fell, catching Ed. Ross beneath it crushing him badly. He was taken at once to Dr. Dampier's office and up to the hour of going to press we are unable to learn the full extent of the injury he sustained beyond the fact that one leg is fractured in several places.

Stephen Leader:—Mr. Z. Barager has been threshing his crop since the recent blizzard and says that much snow is blown into the stacks three or four feet on the north side. He says if allowed to stand until the warm weather of spring comes most of the grain in stack will be ruined and for his part he will pound his grain out if it takes all winter. Others report the same condition of affairs and further that the work of threshing now is not such an extremely difficult matter as one might fancy. Mr. E. N. Davis, the bonanza farmer of Daviston, and a man of much practical observation and knowledge says that those who wait until spring to thresh, expecting to find their grain in good shape, will miss it badly. Several years ago he threshed considerable wheat one spring and it was unfit for market. The snow which had blown into the stacks melted and spoiled a lot of it which could not be kept separate from the balance. The result was musty, rotten wheat. While it is expensive business threshing at this season of the year, it is the general opinion of our best informed farmers that it is the only way of preventing a much heavier loss. Those with grain in stack should certainly try to get it out before spring.

BELTRAMI ITEMS.

BELTRAMI, Dec. 26th, 1891.

Mrs. H. B. Budd, Mrs. Frank Haight, Miss Daisy Webb and J. J. Carey a short time ago formed a plan for giving the children of school district 53 a pleasant time on Chrismas Eve. Although the weather was unfavorable the school house was filled with children, parents and friends. Never in the history of the district have our people seemed so happy and united as they were that evening. The tree was very tastefully trimmed and there was a present for every one. The opening address of the evening was delivered by one of our Polk County teachers, whose remarks were as follows: "This is the eve of that day in the year when all nations, races and people ought to rejoice. No event in the history of the world is so full of vital interest as the birth of our Savior By His work while here on earth He made it possible for us to obtain eternal life, and knowing how much He suffered for our sake, should we not in gratitude to His Father for sending, and Him for coming, lead a life and conversation such as becometh the gospel.

Oh, i our lives could poise and swing
Like the compass in its brazen ring,
Ever level and ever true to the task we have to do,
We shall securely and safely reach
Those fortunate isles on whose shining beach
The sights we see and sounds we hear,
Shall be those of joy and not of fear."

Then followed recitations by the little ones, interspersed with music by a quartette consisting of Mrs. Budd, Mrs. Haight, J. J. Carey and Bert Murphy. Santa Claus (Jos. Murphy,) then came down the chimney and distributed the presents. His address to the children was very appropriate and we all wish him many merry Christmases.

The committee of arrangements regretted the absence of the Walter family, who were to take part in the exercises, and also other families who were detained on account of the storm. We all missed the kind faces of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Herriott, of Pennsylvania, who during the years while here always endeavored to make others happy. May their declining years be filled with joy and love. Among the presents was a beautiful Siberian parrot, thoroughly acclimated, for C. E. Ford, Jr., who has been very sad since his polly died and his "sweetest birdee" flew away. H. B. Budd received a box of the most delicious fruit and after opening it he was heard to repeat:

"Long, long be my heart with such memories filled,
Like the vase in which roses have once been distilled
You may break, you may shatter the vase if you will,
But the scent of the roses (onions) will hang round it still."

We wish the district many such pleasant gatherings.

Miss Olive R. Hallock, who has charge of the village school at St. Hilaire, is spending the holidays with her parents.

Joe. Ball, a college student, will teach the next term of school in district 53, which begins Jan. 4th.

C. E. Ford, Sr., has gone to his home in Minneapolis where he will spend the balance of the winter.

The County Alliance.

Polk County Farmers' Alliance met at the court house on Tuesday at 10 a. m., with President H. G. Mitchel in the chair and John D. Knudson at the bat—as Secretary. The credentials showed up 50 delegates entitled to seats in the convention, which don't look as though the alliance spirit in Polk County was quenched entirely by the big crop of last fall. Resolutions were passed against the scheme to make a great national park out of choice mineral and pine land in the northern part of the state; against wheat gambling; in favor of equal taxation; endorsing Donnelly and a resolution declaring in favor of the government control of liquor by manufacturing it was discussed and left an open question until next meeting. J. S. Nichols was elected delegate to the State convention of Minneapolis on Jan. 5th, with L. H. Judson as alternate, instructed to support Mr. Donnelly for president. The sum of $40.50 was raised for the State campaign fund. Adjourned subject to call of the president.

Our Own Sufferers First.

Recently great efforts have been put forth by State authorities to raise a cargo of flour to ship to the starving people of Russia, and that is all right if the stories we have read are true, but now comes a Russian of prominence who says the Russian government does not need any assistance—is abundantly able to provide for her own unfortunates. But right in the face of this story of destitution comes one which is right at our doors—of a man who was hailed out last summer, who with his family of little ones is almost entirely destitute in this land of plenty. He is not a pauper or he would have been begging long ere this. One of his neighbors chanced to find out the true condition of things and, as he had been hailed out himself and was thus unable to relieve his neighbor he came over to solicit clothing, food and such supplies as the urgency of the case demanded. Now we are one of those who believe that before we go to russian our charity abroad so austentatiously it would be better to attend to such cases at home. This case is one of a hitherto thrifty farmer—a hard working man, who has teams, machinery and land but no seed for next spring, no feed for his teams and no way to obtain them, and there are other cases of a similar nature that should be attended to. Norman County is rasing a fund by subscription. What will Polk County do? Can she afford to see such citizens as these we mention absolutely forced to quit farming just for lack of a little seed and feed? We don't believe she can. We don't believe she would if some one would start the ball rolling, and for want of a better source THE JOURNAL will head a list with a subscription of $5 and will receive all sums sent us by any who wish to help the cause along.

He Tried the Gold Cure

AND THOUGHT HIS MOUTH WOULD HAVE TO BE AMPUTATED.

St. Paul Dispatch.

The following is the story told by a graduate of the Keely institute, an institution for the reformation of drunkards, as his experience in Dwight as related by "Bourbon" in the Mount Carmel (Ill.) Herald:

"I went down on the jag train," said he, "and I tell you I had a jag on as big as a Kansas wheat rick. You see I was afraid I would'nt be able to get any whisky at Dwight, so after filling myself up to my collar button with budge I secreted four or five bottles about my personal premises. I had two in my grip and my pockets fairly bulged with booze. When I got to Dwight I was escorted to a hotel, where I found numerous sympathizing friends who, however, refused to join in my libations, although they did not attempt to deprive me of my stock. The next morning I joined the procession to the shot-tower, where I received a dose of "dope" and a hypodermic injection of the gold cure in the arm. Whisky is given to each patient who desires it. In fact, no attempt is made to deprive him of his accustomed beverage. I kept up my "toot" for two days, being gloriously full all the time, but taking my regular course of treatment.

"But on the third day came a frost, a killing frost, and nipped my enthusiasm in the bud. The first effect was a suspicion that somebody had surreptitiously inserted a dead mouse into my beloved whisky bottle. I held it up to the light, but couldn't see anything, and then concluded that I was simply not feeling well.

"On the fifth day I had a taste in my mouth like the remains of a deceased cat stuffed with limburger cheese. I was afraid to go into society with my mouth, and was afraid it would have to be amputated. The doctor made the matter worse by telling me I was all right.

" 'It's a sign,' he said, 'that you are cured.'

" 'But have I got to carry this morgue around with me all my life?'

" 'Oh, that bad taste will pass away.'

" 'Pass away? Why, doctor, it has already passed away. It is so dead that it is beginning to spoil.'

"The doctor comforted me, and I went out on the prairie and let the wind blow through the rafters of my mouth until supper time, when I felt better and ceased to weep over the remains of my breath. In ten days I was all right again and could take a drink without being ready to swear that it had been strained through a soured hen's nest."

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 24, 1891.

ED. JOURNAL:—Knowing you to be a fair-minded man, and one who has always stood up to defend the rights of us farmers from whatever foe that assails us, I make bold to enter my protest against a malicious and uncalled for attack upon me in the Crookston weakly Times of November 21st. The Times says:

"A farmer living on the ridge near Louisville is said to have put sand in his wheat; he sold something like 500 bushels of it, before the fraud was discovered. He bought his wife a plush cloak with the proceeds."

Now, I happen to be "a farmer living on the ridge near Louisville," and I happen to know something about this affair and I know that the particular farmer referred to is one of our leading farmers in Louisville, wholly incapable of the fraud of which he is accused. He raised 1,500 bushels of wheat this year, the most of which he sold at the elevator in question, and the Times assertion that he sold something like 500 bushels of sand to the agent before discovery looks rather peculiar for the agent, to say the least. Five hundred bushels of sand would weigh at least half as much as the man's whole crop of wheat and ought to buy a pretty expensive "plush cloak." The "plush cloak" seems to stick in the Times man's crop, as, according to his notion, no plebian farmer should have the audacity to indulge in such luxuries. It is a fact, Mr. Editor, that many of our Louisville farmers are democrats, and the Times claims to represent democracy, but I can tell you that we don't like the Times man's sneers at the farmers as a class, nor his ill-concealed contempt of them. We do not pretend to be a "bigger man nor old Grant," but we are jealous of our reputations as honest men, and we do not enjoy to have such an insignificant little whipper-snapper as the Times man continually sneering at us. Financially speaking, there are many of us farmers in Polk County able to buy up the little fellow and keep him, and when you come to speak of honor the little Times man would be totally bankrupt compared to the meanest farmer in Polk County. If the little whiffit could grasp the idea of the province of a newspaper he would see that its mission is to build up the country and not to tear it down. The wealth of the country is based upon the prosperity of the farmer and without him the Times man would soon fall from that high pedestal upon which he imagines himself, and yet, in diabolical glee he never hesitates to loudly proclaim: "Another FARMER gone wrong!" just as though every rogue in Polk County was a farmer. In this case we make bold to assert that no farmer from Louisville sold 500 bushels of sand nor any other amount, certainly not the man to whom the Times man refers. Yours for the truth.

A LOUISVILLE FARMER.

ESTRAY.

A sorrel horse, with three white feet and white in face, came on my place Sec. 15 Town of Kertsonville, about the 20th of last month. Owner is requested to claim property, pay charges and take him away. FRANK LASARGE.

A POPULAR FAMILY.

JENNIE: "How is it, Kate, that you always seem to 'catch on' to the last new thing? Do what I may, you always seem to get ahead of me."

KATE: "I don't know: I certainly do not make any exertion in that direction."

JENNIE: "Well, during the last few months, for example, you have taken up painting, without any teacher; you came to the rescue when Miss Lafarge deserted her Delsarte class so suddenly, and certainly we are all improving in grace under your instruction; I heard you telling Tommy Eames last evening how his club made mistakes in playing baseball; you seem to be up on all the latest 'fads,' and know just what to do under all circumstances; you entertain beautifully; and in the last month you have improved so in health, owing, you tell me, to your physical culture exercises. Where do you get all of your information from in this little out-of-the way place?—for you never go to the city."

KATE: "Why, Jennie, you will make me vain. I have only one source of information, but it is surprising how it meets all wants. I very seldom hear of anything new but what the next few days bring me full information on the subject. Magic? No! Magazine! And a great treasure it is to us all, for it really furnishes the reading for the whole household: father has given up his magazine that he has taken for years, as he says this one gives more and better information on the subjects of the day; and mother says that it is that that makes her such a famous housekeeper. In fact, we all agree that it is the only really FAMILY magazine published, as we have sent for samples of all of them, and find that one is all for men, another all for women, and another for children only, while this one suits every one of us; so we only need to take one instead of several, and that is where the economy comes in, for it is only $2.00 a year. Perhaps you think I am too lavish in my praise; but I will let you see ours, or, better still, send 10 cents to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a sample copy, and I shall always consider that I have done you a great favor; and may be you will be cutting us out, as you say we have the reputation of being the best informed family in town. If that be so, it is Demorest's Family Magazine that does it."

Our Own Sufferers First.

Recently great efforts have been put forth by State authorities to raise a cargo of flour to ship to the starving people of Russia, and that is all right if the stories we have read are true, but now comes a Russian of prominence who says the Russian government does not need any assistance—is abundantly able to provide for her own unfortunates. But right in the face of this story of destitution comes one which is right at our doors—of a man who was hailed out last summer, who with his family of little ones is almost entirely destitute in this land of plenty. He is not a pauper or he would have been begging long ere this. One of his neighbors chanced to find out the true condition of things and, as he had been hailed out himself and was thus unable to relieve his neighbor he came over to solicit clothing, food and such supplies as the urgency of the case demanded. Now we are one of those who believe that before we go to russian our charity abroad so austentatiously it would be better to attend to such cases at home. This case is one of a hitherto thrifty farmer—a hard working man, who has teams, machinery and land but no seed for next spring, no feed for his teams and no way to obtain them, and there are other cases of a similar nature that should be attended to. Norman County is rasing a fund by subscription. What will Polk County do? Can she afford to see such citizens as these we mention absolutely forced to quit farming just for lack of a little seed and feed? We don't believe she can. We don't believe she would if some one would start the ball rolling, and for want of a better source THE JOURNAL will head a list with a subscription of $5 and will receive all sums sent us by any who wish to help the cause along.

He Tried the Gold Cure

AND THOUGHT HIS MOUTH WOULD HAVE TO BE AMPUTATED.

St. Paul Dispatch.

The following is the story told by a graduate of the Keely institute, an institution for the reformation of drunkards, as his experience in Dwight as related by "Bourbon" in the Mount Carmel (Ill.) Herald:

"I went down on the jag train," said he, "and I tell you I had a jag on as big as a Kansas wheat rick. You see I was afraid I would'nt be able to get any whisky at Dwight, so after filling myself up to my collar button with budge I secreted four or five bottles about my personal premises. I had two in my grip and my pockets fairly bulged with booze. When I got to Dwight I was escorted to a hotel, where I found numerous sympathizing friends who, however, refused to join in my libations, although they did not attempt to deprive me of my stock. The next morning I joined the procession to the shot-tower, where I received a dose of "dope" and a hypodermic injection of the gold cure in the arm. Whisky is given to each patient who desires it. In fact, no attempt is made to deprive him of his acoustomed beverage. I kept up my "toot" for two days, being gloriously full all the time, but taking my regular course of treatment.

"But on the third day came a frost, a killing frost, and nipped my enthusiasm in the bud. The first effect was a suspicion that somebody had surreptitiously inserted a dead mouse into my beloved whisky bottle. I held it up to the light, but couldn't see anything, and then concluded that I was simply not feeling well.

"On the fifth day I had a taste in my mouth like the remains of a deceased cat stuffed with limburger cheese. I was afraid to go into society with my mouth, and was afraid it would have to be amputated. The doctor made the matter worse by telling me I was all right.

"'It's a sign,' he said, 'that you are cured.'

"'But have I got to carry this morgue around with me all my life?'

"'Oh, that bad taste will pass away.'

"'Pass away? Why, doctor, it has already passed away. It is so dead that it is beginning to spoil.'

"The doctor comforted me, and I went out on the prairie and let the wind blow through the rafters of my mouth until supper time, when I felt better and ceased to weep over the remains of my breath. In ten days I was all right again and could take a drink without being ready to swear that it had been strained through a soured hen's nest."

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 24, 1891.

ED. JOURNAL:—Knowing you to be a fair-minded man, and one who has always stood up to defend the rights of us farmers from whatever foe that assails us, I make bold to enter my protest against a malicious and uncalled for attack upon me in the Crookston weekly Times of November 21st. The Times says:

"A farmer living on the ridge near Louisville is said to have put sand in his wheat; he sold something like 500 bushels of it, before the fraud was discovered. He bought his wife a plush cloak with the proceeds."

Now, I happen to be "a farmer living on the ridge near Louisville," and I happen to know something about this affair, and I know that the particular farmer referred to is one of our leading farmers in Louisville, wholly incapable of the fraud of which he is accused. He raised 1,500 bushels of wheat this year, the most of which he sold at the elevator in question, and the Times assertion that he sold something like 500 bushels of sand to the agent before discovery looks rather peculiar for the agent, to say the least. Five hundred bushels of sand would weigh at least half as much as the man's whole crop of wheat and ought to buy a pretty expensive "plush cloak." The "plush cloak" seems to stick in the Times man's crop, as according to his notion no plebian farmer should have the audacity to indulge in such luxuries. It is a fact, Mr. Editor, that many of our Louisville farmers are democrats, and the Times claims to represent democracy, but I can tell you that we don't like the Times man's sneers at the farmers as a class, nor his ill-concealed contempt of them. We do not pretend to be a "bigger man nor old Grant," but we are jealous of our reputations as honest men, and we do not enjoy to have such an insignificant little whipper-snapper as the Times man continually sneering at us. Financially speaking, there are many of us farmers in Polk County able to buy up the little fellow and keep him, and when you come to speak of honor the little Times man would be totally bankrupt compared to the meanest farmer in Polk County. If the little whiffit could grasp the idea of the province of a newspaper he would see that its mission is to build up the country and not to tear it down. The wealth of the country is based upon the prosperity of the farmer and without him the Times man would soon fall from that high pedestal upon which he imagines himself, and yet, in diabolical glee he never hesitates to loudly proclaim "Another FARMER gone wrong!" just as though every rogue in Polk County was a farmer. In this case we make bold to assert that no farmer from Louisville sold 500 bushels of sand nor any other amount, certainly not the man to whom the Times man refers. Yours for the truth,

A LOUISVILLE FARMER.

FRANK LASARGE.

A POPULAR FAMILY.

JENNIE: "How is it, Kate, that you always seem to 'catch on' to the last new thing? Do what I may, you always seem to get ahead of me."

KATE: "I don't know; I certainly do not make any exertion in that direction."

JENNIE: "Well, during the last few months, for example, you have taken up painting, without any teacher; you came to the rescue when Miss Lafarge deserted her Delsarte class so suddenly, and certainly we are all improving in grace under your instruction; I heard you telling Tommy Eames last evening how his club made mistakes in playing baseball; you seem to be up on all the latest 'fads,' and know just what to do under all circumstances; you entertain beautifully; and in the last month you have improved so in health, owing, you tell me, to your physical culture exercises. Where do you get all of your information from in this little out-of-the-way place?—for you never go to the city."

KATE: "Why, Jennie, you will make me vain. I have only one source of information, but it is surprising how it meets all wants. I very seldom hear of anything new but what the next few days bring me full information on the subject. Magic? No! Magazine! And a great treasure it is to us all, for it really furnishes the reading for the whole household: father has given up his magazine that he has taken for years, as he says this one gives more and better information on the subjects of the day; and mother says that it is that that makes her such a famous housekeeper. In fact, we all agree that it is the only really FAMILY magazine published, as we have sent for samples of all of them, and find that one is all for men, another all for women, and another for children only, while this one suits every one of us; so we only need to take one instead of several, and that is where the economy comes in, for it is only $2.00 a year. Perhaps you think I am too lavish in my praise; but I will let you see ours, or, better still, send 10 cents to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a sample copy, and I shall always consider that I have done you a great favor; and may be you will be cutting us out, as you say we have the reputation of being the best informed family in town. If that be so, it is Demorest's Family Magazine that does it."

EVERYBODY'S LAW BOOK
THE AMERICAN LIVE STOCK MANUAL
THE AMERICAN POULTRY BOOK

We offer as a premium six reliable and useful text-books for the farm and home. These books have been specially selected with a view to meet the needs of the masses, the design being to present to our patrons an opportunity of securing, at the most trifling cost in connection with a subscription to our paper, a collection of books of the utmost practical use and value, treating upon themes of vital importance in every rural home. No man or woman can fail to be profited by the possession of these books; as works of reference they are invaluable, and really no home should be without them. Brief descriptions are appended.

THE STANDARD AMERICAN POULTRY BOOK. An entirely new book, involving all the latest ideas in poultry keeping. It is a work intended to teach the masses of farmers the secret of success in the poultry yard, and its teachings, if followed, will add enormously to the earnings of every flock of fowls. The following are only a small portion of the topics treated in this book: How to Start and Stock a Hennery; Poultry Houses, Cheap and Costly; Yards, Coops and Enclosures; Poultry Keeping for Profit; Poultry on a Large Scale; Poultry Raising as a Business; Feeding for Laying; Winter Egg-Production; The Hatching Period; Preparing Nests for Sitters; Spring Breeding of Poultry; [illegible] for Farmers; How to Produce Layers; Good and Cheap Incubators; How to Raise Artificially Hatched Chickens; Caponizing; Packing Eggs for Market; Packing Poultry for Market; Feeding Hoppers; Drinking Fountains and Grain Chests; Eggs and Pullets; Preserving Eggs; Diseases of Poultry—Chicken Cholera, Pip, Gapes, Roup, Scaly Legs, Lice, Egg Eating, Crop Bound Fowls, etc.; the Plymouth Rocks; the Wyandottes; the Brown Leghorns; the Golden Spangled Crested Polish; the White Crested Black Polands; the Langshans; the Silver Spangled Hamburghs; the Houdans; the Buff Cochins; the White Cochins; the White Leghorns; the Golden Penciled Hamburghs; White Shanghais; the La Fleche Fowls; the Gray Dorkings; the Brahmas; Game Fowls, Bantams, etc.; How to Fatten; Management of Chickens; Killing Poultry; Preventing Vermin; Fencing; Management of Ducks; Raising Turkeys; Fattening Geese; etc., etc. It is a large book of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover. It is profusely illustrated and handsomely gotten up in every respect. No man or woman who owns [illegible] can afford to be without it.

EVERYBODY'S LAW BOOK. A complete compendium of business and domestic law, by a prominent member of the New York Bar, containing concise explanations of the general laws, and the laws of the several States, regarding Administrators and Executors, Affidavits, Agency, Agreements, Apprentices, Arbitration and Award, Assault and Battery, Assignments, Attachments, Banks, Bills of Exchange, Checks and Promissory Notes, Bills of Sale, Chattel Mortgages, Citizens and Aliens, Common Carriers, Contracts, Corporations, Deeds and Mortgages of Real Estate, Descent and Distribution, Dower, Easements, Exemptions, Farmers' Law, Fences, Fixtures, Garnishment, Gifts, Guaranty, Guardian and Ward, Heirs and next of Kin, Homestead Exemptions, Husband and Wife, Infants, Interest and Usury, Landlord and Tenant, Libel and Slander, Liens, Limitations of Actions, Marriage and Divorce, Rights of Married Women, Master and Servant, Parent and Child, Partnership, Payment and Tender, Personal Property, Power of Attorney, Principal and Agent, Privileged Communications, Railroads, Railroad Real Estate, Releases, Replevin, Right of Way, Satisfaction, Trustee Process, Warranty, Water Rights, Wills and Codicils. Together with valuable forms of Acknowledgments, Agreements, Articles of Copartnership, Assignments, Award of Arbitrators, Bills of Sale, Bonds, Chattel Mortgages, Contracts, Deeds, Executors' and Administrators' Accounts, Interest Table, Liens, Mortgages of Real Estate, Powers of Attorney, Releases, Satisfaction Pieces, Wills, etc., etc., specially adapted for the daily use of those [illegible] lawyers, with directions for their preparation. A large volume of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover.

THE MODERN COOK BOOK AND MEDICAL GUIDE. This is practically two books in one—a perfect cook book and a perfect medical book—and there is so much in it, and so much care and pains have been taken in its compilation, that we feel perfectly safe in asserting that the Cooking department is fully the equal, in quantity and quality of contents, of any low-priced cook book ever published, and the same is the Medical department herein as compared with any low-priced medical book in the market. The cooking recipes number 677, and include Breakfast Dishes, Soups, Meats and Poultry, Fish, Vegetables, Salads and Relishes, Bread and Rolls, Jellies and Preserves, Puddings and Pies, Fancy Dishes, Cakes, Confectionery, Ice Cream and Summer Drinks. The compilation of this department was superintended by a practical housekeeper, every recipe will be found reliable, and it has been pronounced one of the best, most complete, and practical cook-books ever published. The Medical Department will be found fully the equal of any doctor book published at one dollar or less. It tells you how to cure by simple means, available in every home, every disease and ailment that is curable. It will save you many dollars annually in doctors' bills and patent medicines. THE MODERN COOK BOOK AND MEDICAL GUIDE is a large book of [illegible] pages, 12mo, with handsome cover.

THE AMERICAN LIVE STOCK MANUAL. A complete text book containing the fullest information regarding the care and management, feeding and rearing, of live stock, likewise the cure of all diseases peculiar to these animals, and of all unruly and vicious habits, for the construction of necessary buildings and conveniences, etc., etc. The following are only a portion of the topics treated in this book: How to Judge a Horse; Feeding Horses; Haltering a Colt; To Bit a Colt; To Break Horses from Pulling at the Halter; Warts on Horses; Stumbling Horses; Care for Balky Horses; Kicking Horses; Training Vicious Horses; Galls and Sores on Horses; Raising Horses; Colic, Bots; Founder; Heaves; Fistula; Shying; Scratches; Ringbone; Spavin; Cribbing; Windgalls; Brittle Feet; Worms; Over-Reaching; Sprains and Bruises; Hide-Bound Horses; Avoiding Indigestion; How to Save Oats in Feeding; Watering Horses; Care of Horse's Legs; How to Tell a Horse's Age; Neck Yokes; Good Grooming; Blowing; Stables and Stabling; Breeding Horses upon Farms; [illegible]; Relieving Choked Cattle; Bone Disease in Milch Cows; Marks of a Good Cow; Cattle Racks and Feed Boxes; Feeding Cattle; To Prevent Hooking Fences; Black Tongue; Lice; To Prevent Sucking; Contagious Cattle Diseases; Fattening Stock; Milking; Curing a Heifer or a Vicious Cow to Milk; Wintering Live Stock; How to Take Off a Hide; Assistance at Birth; Hollow Horn; Garget in Teats; Black Leg; Caked Udder; Jumping Cattle; Care and Management of Hogs; Piggeries; Troughs; Pig Raising; Over-Feeding; Sanitary Management of Swine; Hog Cholera; Scurvy; Preparing Food for Swine; Butchering; Fattening Hogs; Driving Hogs; Raising Sheep; Washing Sheep; Shearing Sheep; To Tell the Age of Sheep; Sheep Ticks; Lambs; How to Make Sheep Pay; Treatment of Lambs; [illegible] the Growth of Wool. It is a large book of [illegible] pages, 12mo, with handsome cover, and is profusely illustrated.

THE CONDENSED CYCLOPAEDIA OF USEFUL KNOWLEDGE. This book contains [illegible] useful and valuable information than was ever before [illegible] any low priced work. Among its contents are: Population of American Cities, Area and Population of the Continents, of the States and Territories, of the Principal Countries of the World, Length of Principal Rivers, Presidential Vote for Sixty Years, [illegible] Statistics, Area and Depth of Inland Seas, Area of Oceans, Height of Mountains, Locomotion of Animals and Velocity of [illegible], Height of Monuments, Towers, etc., Distances from New York to [illegible] Cities, Chronological History of Discovery and Progress, [illegible] Sobriquets of States, Cities, etc., [illegible] Spelling, Use of Capitals, Pronunciation, [illegible] Wonders of the World, Curious Facts in Natural History, Duration of Life of Various Animals, Origin of the Names of States and Countries, of Popular Fables, of Familiar Quotations, [illegible] Fate of the Apostles, Statistics of the Globe, Leading Governments of the World, How Money Accumulates, How to Calculate Interest, Statistics of Longevity, Dying Words of Famous Persons, etc., etc. This book is a great storehouse of instruction, and a copy of it should be in every home. IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO IF YOU Were In Our Place?

This question we ask in all seriousness to those to whom we sent a statement of account in October, giving them until January 1st 1892 to pay up at the rate of $1.50 per annum, and who have as yet paid no attention to it. We are pleased with the fact that only about one quarter of the names on our list are in this boat but seven or eight hundred in arrears from 2 to 6 or 8 years as the case may be is too great a burden for us to carry over another year and we feel that something must be done to remedy this state of things and that is why we ask you this simple question, "What would you do about it if you were in our place?" We know very well what many of you would do—you would sue every account, for the full amount just as soon after January 1st 1892 as soon as you could get to a justice shop but, while we urgently need a settlement on our list we do not wish to proceed to extreme measures and will not unless we are absolutely driven to it, and we don't mean to if our patrons intend to be honest with us—that is all we ask and certainly that is fair enough. Now this is what we intend to do in these cases. We have secured 30 days time on pressing obligations maturing on Jan. 1st 1892 and we will extend the limit of our $1.50 offer for long past due subscriptions for that time or until Feb. 1st 1892. There is not probably one name on our list the owner of which is unable, if he cannot pay up to give us a secured note, one that we can use in our business if he intends to be honest and remember, that, as much as we need our money at this time we do not expect that any man who lost his crop by hail will either pay us this year or secure a note for us. He needs all his resources to make another crop and we do not wish to hamper any honest farmer. Please give this matter your early attention and save both ourself and you unnecessary trouble.

Brainerd Despatch:—Nobody is worrying over Knute Nelson's tariff record, except our Democratic friends and a few, very few, would-be Republican bosses. Mr. Nelson's ideas on the tariff are sound, and we honor him for his courage in voting for the Mills bill. The fact is that neither the Mills bill nor the McKinley law is perfect. Either is better, however, than the old law of free trade. Neither is the monstrosity which politicians would have both to be. Here is Mr. Nelson's tariff platform as declared by him in congress and at Minneapolis: "While I am in favor of a fair and just protective tariff—a low tariff as I call is—I am under all circumstances opposed to a tariff that reaches beyond this point—to what I term a high tariff." And this is the Republican—not the Democratic—idea of the republican doctrine of protection. Of course the democrats howl, and it's only a howl, a calamity shriek as it were, that Republican tariff means a high or war tariff. Mr. Nelson is right when he declares that a tariff beyond what is actually necessary to protect a given industry, is not Republicanism. In speaking of the McKinley law, he again hits the nail on the head, and spikes forever the guns of his jealous neighbor: "I will tell you," he says, "about the McKinley bill. It is a good deal like you and I—It is a picture of human frailty. You and I aim at perfection, but we are unable to reach it, and so with the McKinley bill. The men who passed it no doubt aimed to make it a perfect bill, but the science of government is an experimental science. Granting that the McKinley bill is not as good a bill as it ought to be, it is sufficient for the Republicans to show that it is better than the Mills bill or better than free trade." Now, if there is anything wrong in that kind of tariff we fail to see it, and our calamity shriekers are heartily welcome to all the comfort hey can squeeze out of it.

The Committees.

St. Paul Daily News.

Speaker Crisp may have pleased himself in making the House Committees, but if he has pleased any one else among the members of his party, except Bill Springer, they are yet to be heard from. Mr. Crisp has gone forward just as if the Democratic party were intrenched in an impregnable fortress and he were its autocrat to dictate at pleasure.

With surprising narrowness of vision he has overlooked the fact that Northern Democrats constitute the numerical preponderance of the members, a thing that has not before occurred in party history, so that a man in his position, as a party leader, if possessed of average sagacity, would have taken a course intended to have strengthened the party where it needed the most encouragement.

Thirty-one of the chairmanships have been given to the old Southern States, and veteran, tried and true Democrats from the Northern States passed by entirely. The name of Mr. Bynum, of Indiana, is conspicuously missing from the head of a committee, and, indeed, it is found only in second and third places upon the minor committees, while a number of Northern Republicans outrank him.

From Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota one chairman each is named, while no Southern State has less than two and several have three and four. Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut with one chairman each, are the New England States noticed, but Tammany gets four for New York, and Pennsylvania has two for anti-tariff reform. Ohio with three, Indiana three, Illinois three, Michigan two and New Jersey one, are the Northern States recognized.

The grievous blunder made by the speaker in his unexpected elevation to power in a place quite too large for him, is admirably criticized by Henry Watterson, who has the fearless wisdom to speak plainly instead of undertaking to conceal the truth or fawn upon the man who has wrecked his party's hopes:

For the first time in the history of the Democratic party in Congress is the principle laid down that the organization of the house is a matter not of friendly rivalry among friends, but of personal aggrandizement and factional powers. A stronger man than Mr. Crisp might have paused before giving himself and his party over to the assertion of this. Indeed, we had hoped for better things. No one will deny the right of Mr. Crisp to make his own committees. But when he fixes it as the rule of his arrangement to reward those who supported him, and to punish his opponents, and, in doing this sends the tried men of the House to the rear and brings the untried men to the front, the country and the party have the right to hold him to a very rigid accountability for the consequences. If the results vindicate his forecast, well and good. If they fail to do so, which seems only too likely, he will live to regret his own election.

Nothing but the extraordinary political exigency caused by the course pursued by Mr. Crisp could have called out such an expression from so valiant and patriotic a Democrat as the editor of the Courier-Journal of Louisville. His clear perceptions of the situation are those of all dispassionate men, who deprecate the course of faction and the unwisdom of putting spoils and rewards above principle.

It needs no prophet to announce the result of such leadership as is seen at Washington, and though not at all assuring that there is any remedy it is better to be open and honest in locating the responsibility than to undertake by self-deception to make the worse appear the better.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

AN INDEPENDENT RAILROAD TO DULUTH.

How to Get it.

While all the platforms of the new party are having "planks" inserted favoring government ownership of railroads, no one seems for a moment to consider the possibility of public ownership, except through the general government. The fact seems to have escaped the politicians, not only of the old, but also of the new party, that if the people ever expect to own railroads they must take the initiative step themselves. While there is a great cry for railway communication via an independent line with the head of Lake Superior, no one seems to think it possible that the people of the Red River Valley are able to build and pay for a road from the lake to some central point in this valley, with the necessary branches to take in the largest part of its area.

There never has been a more favorable time and place for the building of a road by the people than is here and now afforded, and bear this in mind, whatever corporation builds this line, whether it be the Duluth & Winnipeg or some other, the people of this valley will pay for it, anyway. If they build it themselves they will pay for it and own it, while in case they allow some corporation to build it, they will pay for it just the same, but they will not own it, not one foot of it. Why then this grumbling and inaction? The corporations have confidence enough in this valley and its people to know that they are able to pay for all the railroads that they will need, as they have been and are paying for the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads many times over. All the people need is to have as much confidence in themselves as the corporations have in them. What, but the people's timidity prevents them from constructing and maintaining this line themselves? Are they waiting for some high and mighty railroad magnate to take hold of it, who by his high and lordly mien will try to convince them that he is doing them a great favor by allowing them to build it for him? It seems so! But if they are to get a road that will be of any material benefit to them they must build it themselves, and allow no private corporation to gain control of it. We have already ample railroad facilities for our present business, if we could only obtain fair rates, but the roads that we have, instead of competing for business, combine in order to more effectively skin us. They gauge their rates, not by what it costs to build and operate them, but what the people are able to pay, and the fact that the people are compelled to pay over a large part of what they ought to add to their wealth every year, retards the growth of this valley, both in wealth and in population.

If we were to get another road under the same kind of management, what security have we that it will not join the combine and still further fleece us? We have no security whatever, but we know that this is exactly what is liable to happen. The question here is, can it be built by the people? and if it can, what is the best way of going about it? In order to answer the first question, it is necessary to ascertain approximately what such a road would cost, and then take stock of our resources to ascertain if they are large enough to warrant the outlay. The first part of this question must be decided by the number of miles of line to be built and the average cost per mile. The number of miles required to be built would aggregate somewhere about four hundred. This would mean a road to some central point east of the Red River, and two branch lines from such central point extending northwest and southwest respectively, across the Red River, cutting it diagonally in both cases. Two hundred and fifty miles of these lines would be across our wild prairies and could be constructed at a minimum of cost, while the balance, 125 miles, would pass through a more or less broken country, where the expense would be somewhat greater.

The first 250 miles above indicated can be built at various estimates averaging not over $10,000 per mile, or $2,500,000, while the other 150 miles would probably cost on an average nearly, if not quite, twice as much per mile, or $3,000,000. Total $5,500,000, an average of $13,750 per mile for the whole road. It may be argued that these figures are not high enough, below however is the estimated average cost per mile of roads in Illinois, and the topography of Minnesota is so similar to that of Illinois that the average cost will probably be about the same. The figures given below were prepared at the request of the Illinois Railroad Commissioners by a railroad official, so that the probability is that they are at least high enough.

Right of way	$ 1,500.00
1,200 yds grading, 20c per yd	2,400.00
Bridging	2,000 00
2,700 ties at 40c	1,080.00
95 tons steel rails, $31 per ton,	2,945 00
Rail joints and fastenings	200.00
Track laying, surfacing, spiking and spikes	850.00
Fencing	800.00
Hand cars, section hand tools, &c	100 00
Water supply	200.00
Side tracks	400.00
Section buildings and stock pens	400.00
	$12,375.00

Some of the above items would certainly have to be cut down if applied to a road from North Dakota, across northern Minnesota to Lake Superior. For instance, the first item, right of way. In a mile of right of way there is about 12 acres of land; at $1.500 per mile this would make it worth $125 per acre, which is rather high even for our prairie land, to say nothing about the wild country to the east of us where the cost would be almost nothing. Instead of $1,500, the actual figures would not exceed $500, and perhaps not half that sum. The next item, grading, would also have to be reduced. The 240 miles of prairie road can be graded with patent graders at less than $500 per mile, allowing twice the average cost of Illinois roads for the other 150 miles, would still only make the average cost per mile for grading of the whole line $2110.25.

Fencing is an item that can be dispensed with almost entirely. The item of rails, however, would have to be raised to 70 pound steel, making 126 tons per mile and costing $3,906. This increase would, however, not quite offset the reduction in other items, so that it appears quite safe to accept the figures of the Illinois Railroad Commission, $12,375 per mile, making 400 miles cost $4,500,000. The cities at the head of the lake could be depended upon to give right of way and terminal facilities at least.

Now, without counting on the country to the west of Duluth for the first 200 miles for any aid whatever, is the Red River Valley able to construct this line?

Taking a strip of country 40 miles wide on each side of the Red River and 180 miles long, we have an area containing 9,216,000 acres, ninety per cent. farming land. The road then would cost less than 50 cents per acre of the territory it would control, not taking into condition town and city property which would reduce the burden on the farming land somewhat. Allowing the net earnings of the road to accumulate to pay off the principal, at would leave, at 6 percent interest, 3 cents per acre annual increase of taxes on account of this road. Deducting one-third of the number of acres contained in this territory for government, state and railroad lands, not taxed, would increase the tax on the balance to 4½ cents per acre, on a farm of 160 acres this would amount to $7.20 annual increase of taxes. Without taking into consideration the increased value of land in consequence of cheaper transportation, which alone would build the road twice over, let us see what the actual cash saving to each farm of 160 acres would amount to on the one item of wheat. Allowing 100 acres for wheat, at an average producing capacity of only 15 bu. or 900 per acre, a reduction of 5 cents per cwt, would make an annual saving of 45 cents per acre, $45 for a 100 acre field or 160 acre farm. Deducting $7.20 increase of taxes from $45.00 decrease of expenses, would give a balance of $37.80 per annum clear profit. Taking all other classes of freight into consideration the saving would be at least $50.00 or about enough to pay all taxes. It is clear then that this valley, so far as resources are concerned is amply able to build this road, and that as a business investment it should not be neglected.

The second question is, how to go about it, and it is here that the main difficulties present themselves, we have become so accustomed to leave all large undertakings in the hands of corporations that many of us have come to look upon public ownership as a visionary theory well enough to talk about but in no ways practicable, but let us see. This project being an interstate affair the first thing to be done is to see that we have the lawful sanction of the government, if no law already exists under which we can legally go to work, our congressmen should be communicated with and urged to put forth every effort to have the necessary law passed. The matter of management is a great bugbear to some people, because, they say, it would fall into the hands of the politicians and be controlled by them. Indirectly they affect it, as they do the postal department, but directly they would have no power over it. Let one or more directors be chosen from each county with power to appoint the manager and to decide the general policy of the road. The manager to hold his office so long as he shows ability and willingness, to operate the road in the interests of the people, but he must, before being appointed be able to show that he is a practical railroad man and is competent to manage the business. He should have full power to appoint his own assistants, and subordinates, but not to discharge them, except for cause, and subject to appeal to the directors, who should meet once a month to decide such cases beside transacting other necessary business. Appointments to fill all vacancies should be made by competitive examinations from the ranks. In this way the best of service would be obtained and the managment taken entirely out of the hands of the politicians.

With regard to the method of raising the money wherewith to carry out the enterprise there is the usual way of voting bonds and floating them on the eastern markets, besides this method, a goodly sum could be raised by issuing non-interest bearing script to be given in exchange for loans from private parties interested in the development of the country, this script to be redeemed from the earnings of the road by accepting it at face value in payment of freight, to the amount of 5 per cent of any freight bill. There is hardly a business man, or a farmer owning 160 acres of land and upward but could well afford to loan from one hundred to one thousand dollars in this manner, knowing that every time he shipped or received a pound of freight, five per cent of the cost of such transportation would have to be accepted in script, making it absolutely good, and while outstanding it could be used to a certain extent as money, as merchants and others having large sums to pay in freights, could use it in limited quantities to the same advantage as cash.

Further details could be gone into with regard to the scheme, "if so you choose to name it," but it is hardly practicable within the necessary limits of a newspaper article to do so, furthermore it is not the intention of the writer to lay down any infallible rules, to be followed out in every detail, but rather to bring the matter up for discussion in order that people might ascertain each others' opinions in regard to it. If after duly considering it the people conclude that they can agree to undertake the project, it is time enough then to decide upon details. Now I will permit myself to urge upon the alliance especially (although all classes should be interested) to take the question up and discuss it thoroughly. If the matter is taken up in earnest, there is not much doubt but that the verdict will be in favor of building this line.

Whether the plan, partially outlined above be followed with or without modifications, or ignored altogether makes no difference, so long as the result arrived at is the same as here aimed at, but at any rate let us wake up and do something, and not allow ourselves to be further driven like a flock of sheep by an arrogant railroad combination. Let us not by our sluggishness and timidity render useless the work of this country's pioneers, who, had they been given our opportunities would certainly not have allowed them to go by without taking advantage of them. All this weeping and gnashing of teeth over railroad extortions might elicit sympathy, were it not for the fact that we have the weapons wherewith to not only defend ourselves but to annihilate our oppressors, once our leatherpates become sensitive enough to distinguish a mule's kick from a maiden's caress and we get our eyes open to the fact that corporations have only the strength that we give them, and that as soon as the people, the real power, withdraw their support from the corporations, the latter's efforts to take undue advantage would be as futile as an attempt to tear down Gibraltar with a toothpick.

People of the Red River Valley! now is the time for you to show by your actions whether the title of Free American Citizens, upon which you pride yourselves so much, really amounts to something, or is only an empty parade of words, a shining coat to hide from superficial view your political imbecility. If the former, then sound the reveille, fall in line, forward march.

Yours truly,

P. M. RINGDAL.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31st, 1891.

ED. JOURNAL.—The Cleveland and Mills wing of the Democratic party propose to execute a flank movement on Speaker Crisp. Their agents are now busily at work suggesting that a caucus might be held of the Democrats to determine the politics to be followed by the party in Congress. This plan is a new one. The Speaker has heretofore always outlined the politics of the party and the election of Mr. Crisp was a direct outoutlining by a Democratic caucus, but the Mills fellows, following the lead of Cleveland, are not satisfied with having been beaten once and are determined to try again to see if they cannot make the tariff the sole question in the coming campaign and by so doing secure the nomination of their little tin god on wheels, Grover Cleveland.

Breckenridge, of Kentucky, the silver-haired and golden-tongued orator from the blue grass region, fired the first gun in the campaign against Crisp on Wednesday. The House met for the purpose of receiving the report from the Speaker of his committees. As soon as Mr. Rusk, of Maryland, was announced as chairman of the committee on Accounts, he made the usual resolution that the committee on Accounts be authorized to designate the committees of the House to which clerkships should be assigned. Speaker Crisp stated that the agreement that no business should be transacted other than the announcement of the committees, a resolution as to adjournment for the Holidays and the swearing of new members, and that this required unanimous consent. Mr. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, objected. This single objection kept in all the Republican clerks until the House convenes on the fifth of January and kept out the Democrats, knocking them out of their pay from the 23d of December until the 5th of January. To say that the clerks were mad and that the chairman of the committees were mad would hardly express the condition of affairs when Mr. Breckenridge prevented the adoption of this resolution. The air was lurid and the gentlemen who were thus disappointed "swore like our army in Flanders." Breckenridge made a great many enemies by his action in this matter.

Henri Watterson, the self-selected knight who, with visor down and armed cap-a-pie, is fighting the battles of the star-eyed Goddess of reform, has issued his bulletin against the action of Congress in sitting down upon Mills and Cleveland. He attacks Crisp and says that his selection of chairmen and the organization of the House was a matter of personal aggrandizement fixed to reward those who supported him and to punish those who were against him, that he brings untried men to the front and the party and the country have the right to hold him to a very rigid accountability for the consequences. Of Springer he says the appointment "is positively unfortunate." He says that Springer has never shown any capacity as a House leader and his selection looks exactly like the result of a trade and is a pretext to turn down and degrade a man who has done efficient and eminent work. In short Mr. Watterson is very mad.

The World's Fair managers are resorting to desperate measures to secure their appropriation from Congress. They are now bringing suit against all the straw subscribers to the World's Fair funds in Chicago to show that they are in need of the money and are announcing that the work will have to stop by the first of February if they do not succeed in getting it. Let Mr. Pullman, Mr. Potter Palmer and Mr. Marshall Field, each of whom signed a telegram during the time that the question of locating the Fair at Chicago was under discussion declaring that they could raise all the money necessary, even to the amount of twenty-five million dollars pull out their pocketbooks and furnish the funds. The United States will not furnish a dollar.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Dec. 31.—The holiday season brought with it a cessation of business, to a large extent. Now that is about over signs of renewed activity are already to be seen. The principal interest just now is in the new mining country which was described in a previous letter. Duluth men are very sanguine as to its future and expect it to do much for the Northwestern country. Measures will probably soon be taken to secure for this city many of the benefits to be derived from it.

In a talk the other day with a prominent business man on local industries, he spoke of the market furnished them. It is really interesting to study this phase of the industrial question. Many places can furnish cheap fuel, others cheap raw material and others possess some other advantage as a manufacturing point, but no one of them alone, and at times not all of them will build up factories. The greatest advantage, after all, is a good market. This gentleman pointed out the markets supplied by some of this city's industries. The new blast furnace, recently put in operation, was mentioned. For the first two or three weeks the company were troubled with the delays and accidents usual to new plants, but the furnace is now working satisfactorily and producing 100 tons of pig iron daily, and this amount is soon to be increased to 125 tons. All this output is contracted for in advance to the steel works across the bay. Another plant at West Duluth is the Duluth Manufacturing Company's. Almost the entire output of its rolling mill is consumed at the head of the lakes. Of the local lumber cut, one-third or more is used here. For almost every industry here save for those like the flour mills and the manufactories of machinery of special paterns, which look to the entire country or even Europe, there is a market for a good part of their product. Of course the great interior Northwest furnishes one of the best markets for a large number of manufactured goods.

The wheat movement to Duluth was about 100,000 bu. less last week than for the previous week, being 1,047,626 bu. Last year for the same week it was only 154,822 bu. Stocks are increasing on an average now about 1,000,000 bu. a week. At this rate it will take three months to fill the elevators here, there now being in store over 6,000,000 bu. If there is as much wheat in the farmers' hands as generally supposed, and it moves freely, as expected, they will be full some time before navigation opens in the spring. Since September 1st, Duluth has received 32,178,046 bu. of wheat, and estimating the last three days of December, the receipts for the calendar year will be 40,500,000. Total receipts of wheat and flour will equal nearly 53,000,000 bu.

The Iron Range road has made in its shops at Two Harbors a new ore car, after designs of its own, and will send it to different car factories throughout the country and ask for bids on a large number. The road will probably add considerable to its equipment before the next season's ore traffic begins. HAYS.

Jos. Laframboise left for his old home in Canada this week. Will be gone a month or six weeks and hopes to return in company with a goodly crowd from his old home.

The Rev. Washington, of Fertile, gave THE JOURNAL office a pleasant call on Tuesday. He thinks if there was more practical christianity in politics it would be better and we reckon he is about right.

By grape vine telegraph THE JOURNAL is informed that representative Will Carlton is grandpa—and by that same token so is Mr. S. Crookshanks, of Buffington, for it is said that a fine bouncing boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. A. Carlton, of Angus, recently.

Chas. Misner came down to his shop on Tuesday morning stepping as high as a Shanghai rooster and bearing underneath his left wing a box of Brown's Selects and as he extended the box to our reporter he put on the handsomest pompadour smile you ever saw as he said: "Little girl; yesterday; 7¾ pounds!"

The East Grand Forks Courier inquires how many hotels Crookston has, anyhow? A friend at our elbow suggests that that is a funny question for an East Grand Forks paper to ask, "seeing as how the large majority of her citizens always patronize hotel di Grundysen during their sojourn in Crookston."

The ladies of the Congregational church gave an excellent dinner at the church parlors on Thursday to which over 100 guests sat down. Some of our patrons kept us so busy writing receipts for subscription that we did not get time to leave the office before 5 p. m., however the ladies did not forget us and we did ample justice to the chicken pie later on.

On Thursday night a collision of freights occurred within the yard limits in this city, an east-bound freight train was struck by another and a pretty extensive wreck was the result, fortunately, however, with no loss of life. The storm prevailing prevented the engineer of the last freight seeing the rear lights of the train ahead until too late to avert the disaster.

At a special meeting of the city council on Tuesday evening it was decided to purchase the property on Ash Street between the Episcopal church parsonage and the Congregational church and present it to the County for county jail purposes. The county board agrees to build a jail to cost not less than $18,000 nor over $25,000. This is a wise move on the part of the city.

Wheat opened out on Monday morning at 72 cents.

Comrade Ira D. Blanchard departed for Minneapolis on Saturday evening and may be gone three or four months.

Frank Steelman and Geo. Tripp were two of the prominent farmers of Mentor who made us a pleasant call last Friday evening.

The county commissioners are in session this week. They will probably take some action on that jail matter at this session.

Note the change in Fontaine & Anglim's ad. and remember that their annual remnant sale affords great opportunities for bargains.

The St. Hilaire Spectator says that George Lipscombe was up to Thief River Falls to see his best girl New Year's Day. How is that, George?

A. O. Ralstad has purchased a building in Fosston and will go up there to open up a restaurant. A. O. knows how to keep a good restaurant and he tells us he has made big money in the business here.

Mr. W. W. Attix, of Mentor, received an apoplectic stroke last week. Dr. C.E. Dampier went down on Monday to attend him and pronounces it a very serious case, requiring a long time to cure. His many friends all hope for the best.

The leading articles of the month, as condensed for the January number of the Review of Reviews, comprise the most important essays and discussions that have appeared in the leading periodicals of the world in the month of December.

Emil Himmelback commenced the new year right by subscribing for THE JOURNAL and Farm Stock and Home with us. Having taken unto himself a wife he now sees the necessity for plenty of good reading matter and considers the family JOURNAL the proper thing to have.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Durkee desire to take this method for returning thanks to O. J. Barnes for a liberal supply of groceries on New Year's Day. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

Tim Donovan, who has been with Fontaine & Anglim so long has severed his connection with that firm and will go on the road. Tim has made many friends who will regret to see him leave but will unite with THE JOURNAL in wishing him lots of good fortune.

Since E. M. Walsh put his ad. into THE JOURNAL he is being deluged with letters from parties all over the United States inquiring for lands. Mr. Walsh is one of the oldest settlers of Polk County, coming before the railroad reached this point and he is thoroughly conversant with every farm in Polk County, and he will honestly answer all letters of inquiry. People do well to write to Ed.

Mr. A. Boddy, of Edna, dropped in on Tuesday to help oil the wheels and bid us God speed. Mr. B. has opened a real estate office in Edna and being an old resident, is perfectly acquainted with the lands in his neighborhood and is in every way reliable. JOURNAL readers, desiring information about Polk County lands may impose implicit confidence in Mr. Boddy, who will cheerfully answer any and all questions asked. His address is Edna, Polk County, Minn.

On Tuesday evening the sad news of the death of W. W. Attix was brought us, which event occurred at his residence at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning. Mr. Attix was about 47 years old, one of the pioneers of the town of Grove Park, coming there with his brother H. S. 13 or 14 years ago, and he was at the time of his death one of the most prominent men of the town, respected and beloved by all who knew him. He has filled many positions of public trust in his life and with honor to himself and credit to his constituents. He was a man of liberal education, a hard worker a good kind husband and father, and, after years of toil had just begun to reap the reward thereof when the fatal appoplectic stroke was received that laid him low. On the day that it happened he had been unusually joyous and happy, joking and chatting with his wife and children and no indication of the coming sad and bitter trial for his loved ones was apparent. His wife had left the room but a moment, when, hearing a peculiar sound, she hastily returned and found him in a fit. Everything that loving hearts and willing hands could do was done; physicians were summoned as hastily as possible, but all in vain—the dread summons had been served and his time had come, and quietly and peacefully he passed into eternal rest, surrounded by family and kind neighbors. He leaves a family of six children and his faithful and loving wife, with whom he has walked life's pathway for 28 years, to mourn their irretrievable loss. And so a good man goes to his reward, ever faithful in the discharge of his duties, kind, honest and cheerful in adversity, as well as prosperity he had ever a place in the hearts of his neighbors that but comparatively, few in this world attain, and though no grand marble shaft may mark his last resting place, he has a grander, far more noble monument in the hearts of his fellow-townsmen that shall endure co-equal with the history of the town he founded and did so much for, and we sincerely believe that he has gone to a reward far greater than the hand of man could ever bestow. The funeral obsequies take place at Mentor to-day.

Council Proceedings.

Proceedings of a special meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston held in the city hall on Monday evening January 4th, 1892.

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present—Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Marshall, McGlogan, Marlette, Steenerson, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen absent—none.

The call of the acting Mayor was for the purpose of considering the liquor application of Fred Sargent, also the matter of a jail site and the extention of the water mains to the county hospital.

The application and bond of Fred Sargent for a liquor license was read. On motion the bond of Fred Sargent was approved and a license ordered made out upon the payment of the required sum.

The committee to whom was referred the matter of extending the water main to the county hospital reported as follows:

CROOKSTON, Minn. Jan. 4, 1892.

To the President and members of the City Council of the city of Crookston:

GENTLEMEN:—Your committee to whom was referred the extension of water mains in the 2d ward from a point on west Fifth street, near the railroad track, thence westward on same street six hundred feet, with one hydrant at terminus, beg leave to report that your committee had an interview with the Superintendent of the Water Works, Power and Light Co., and they agree to put in this extension and the city pay the extra expense of going through the frosted ground; said expense not to exceed fifty dollars, and your committee would recommend the same be ordered laid.

Respectfully submitted:

A. C. SCHMIDT,
G. H. MCGLOGAN. } Com.

Moved by Alderman Marshall, seconded by Alderman Buhn, that the report be accepted and adopted and the committee discharged. Carried.

The committee appointed to look into the matter of a jail site reported as follows:

CROOKSTON, Jan. 4, 1892.

To the President and Members of the City Council of the city of Crookston:

GENTLEMEN:—Your committee to whom was referred the matter of looking up a suitable site for jail and other buildings beg leave to report that we recommend the city purchase a suitable amount of land for building purposes, and as near the business portion of the city as practicable, and the same be paid for in city orders payable July 1st, 1892, and the purchase price not to exceed eleven thousand dollars ($11,000) or as much thereof as deemed necessary.

Respectfully submitted:

A. C. SCHMIDT,
I. U. JENNINGS.
W. E. WALKER, } Com.

Moved by Alderman Marshall, seconded by Alderman Walker, that the report of the committee on a jail site be referred back to the same committee with instructions to confer with the Board of County Commissioners and to report to the Council on Tuesday evening, Jan. 5th. Carried.

Moved by Alderman Marshall, seconded by Alderman Steenerson, that when we adjourn it be to meet on Tuesday evening, January 5th. Carried.

At a special meeting of the City Council of the city of Crookston, held the fourth day of January, 1892, Alderman Schmidt offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman McGlogan:

Resolved, That the Crookston Water Works, Power and Light Company be and is hereby ordered to construct a line of water main the proper depth below any danger of frost on the following street: Commencing at the west terminus of the present line on Fifth street (5th st.) thence in a westerly course to the corner of Pine street, with one (1) hydrant at the corner of Fifth and Pine streets, the city of Crookston to pay fifty dollars ($50) to defray part of the extra expense connected with laying pipes through frosted ground, provided said pipe is laid immediately.

Upon the call of ayes and nays, the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Marshall, McGlogan, Marlette, Steenerson, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 4th day of January, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 4th day of January, 1892.

Attest: ALEX. MCKINNON, Mayor.
E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

A communication was read from Constable Larson resigning as constable. No action taken.

An application was read from T. B. McManus to be appointed as constable in place of H. Larson, resigned. No action taken.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH, City Clerk.

Council Proceedings.

Proceedings of an adjourned special meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston, held in the City Hall on Tuesday evening, January 5th, 1891.

Meeting called to order by president Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present—Buhn, Jennings, Jerome, Marshall, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Steenerson, Walker, Cromb.

Alderman absent—Childs.

The claim of Mrs. Blanchard for damages from water from the street, damaging lots 6 and 7, block 6, Sletten and Cromb's subdivision, was referred to the aldermen of the 4th ward and the city engineer, to examine into the matter and report at the next meeting.

The committee on the jail site reported verbally that they had met with the county board and looked over the different locations for a jail site, among them the property known as the Lancester & Young property, also the property owned by Messrs Braley and Scott situated in block one, original townsite of Crookston in Fletcher & Houston's addition to Crookston, with 250 feet facing Ash street, 150 feet deep to the alley and 280 feet back of alley for the sum of $8,500.00.

The following proposition from the County Board was read:

To the Hon. City Council of the City of Crookston:

GENTLEMEN,—

Upon the delivery of a clear and warranty deed from the City of Crookston to the County of Polk to the following described real estate, viz:

The property now owned by Messrs Braley and Scott, situated in block one (1) original town site of Crookston and Fletcher & Houston's addition to Crookston.

We, the undersigned Commissioners of Polk County, will and hereby agree to erect and build a county jail on said premises at a cost not less than $18,000 and not to exceed $25,000 00, said building to be built during the year A. D. 1892.

M. E. KIRSCH,
CYPRIEN DEMERS,
A. O. STORTROEN,
A. C. RHINEHART.

Dated Crookston, Minn., January 5th, 1892.

The tax payers and business men present were invited by the president to express their views on the matter and remarks were heard from J. E. Morrissey, E. M. Walsh, H. E. Cooke, all in favor of the matter.

Moved by Alderman McGlogan, seconded by Alderman Jerome, that the report of the committee on site be accepted and adopted. Carried unanimously.

Moved by Alderman Steenerson, seconded Alderman McGlogan, that the matter of securing the deed of the property required by the proposition of the County Commissioners for a jail site be referred back to the committee who negotiated for said property and just made a report thereon, with instruction to said committee to proceed to carry out said negotiation and to secure deed for said property as required by the County Commissioners. Carried.

On motion, Alderman Steenerson was added to the committee on jail site.

Moved by Alderman Steenerson, seconded by Alderman McGlogan, that the recommendation of the jail site committee dated January 4th, 1892, be adopted. Carried.

On motion Council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

Mrs. Mary E. Leavens, of Faribault, was in the city last week for the purpose of organizing a Ladies' Relief Corps. Forty-eight members joined as charter members forming Col. Cobham Corps No. 92, with the following officers:

Mrs. Van Arnam, President.
Mrs. I. U. Jennings, Sen. Vice-President.
Mrs. J. V. E. Wyatt, Jun. Vice-President.
Mrs. W. E. Slocum, Treasurer.
Mrs. O. S. Spendley, Secretary.
Mrs. M. B. Hayes, Chaplain.
Mrs. Geo. W. Peake, Conductor.
Miss. Minnie Walker, Assistant.
Mrs. J. G. McGrew, Guard.
Miss. Lizzie Zarracher, Assistant Guard.

Mrs. Leavens says she seldom organizes a larger corps and was highly pleased at the prospects of Col. Cobham Corps No. 92.

COUNTER CRUMBS,

That's a good name for them, or we might call them

Clearance Crumbs.

They are the crumbs of our season's stock. You know how it is. Every season sees some broken lines left on our courters; remnants, odd pieces and patterns. These we call "crumbs." They go at "crumb" prices, too, as we want to reduce our stock to the lowest limit before invoicing.

NOTE THIS!

Most merchants make a sale after invoicing to work off old calamity catch-pennies. We make our sale before invoicing, and offer

Ladies, you can not afford to miss seeing my new fall styles of millinery. The novelties of the season are rare and beautiful. Call and see them. MRS E. E. BANGS.

W. J. Nickels was up from his school on the west-side on Saturday last. Nick says the Hayes boys have a yield of 28,000 bushels of wheat from less than 1,000 acres which is a grand yield on that acreage. Such crops as these emphasize the need for a railroad down that way.

O. H. Bang was up from the west side on Tuesday and did not forget to make THE JOURNAL a profitable call. Ole has developed into a first-class granger raised a large crop of No. 1 Hard wheat and has 200 acres plowed ready for wheat in the spring. He will try sowing wheat on stubble land after a vigorous use of the spring-tooth harrow.

Since our last issue we have been kept busy writing receipts for subscription which is an extremely agreeable feature to us as it promises to enable us to carry out contemplated and much needed improvements in our mechanical department, as well as giving promise of our being able to meet maturing obligations on Feb. 1st. A few of these have been six or eight years in arrears, but the singular feature is that the majority of such cases are as dumb as oysters on the subject, however many of these have signified their intention to settle before Feb. 1st and things begin to look encouraging again. We trust the good work so well begun on this new year will continue until we have not a name on our list that is not paid up one year in advance. If this condition of things existed we could carry out our plans for improvements and not have to owe a cent for them.

WHAT WILL YOU DO?

Since we broached the project of raising a fund to procure seed wheat and oats for feed for those who were hailed out last summer, many have expressed a willingness to aid in the matter, and in order to bring matters to a focus we suggest that all who are willing to contribute wheat, oats or money write us what they will do and how they will do it; all money received will be placed in the Scandia-American bank in the charge of Lewis Ellington. Those who will contribute oats or wheat can send to him an order upon themselves for the amount they will contribute, or they can send the same to us, and the party to whom it will be given can call for the grain. We would also suggest that any in need of grain leave their name at this office or with Mr. Ellington with proper voucher of loss so that an estimate of the amount required can be gained. A little judicious help extended to those who need it next spring would be an investment that would pay the county a hundred fold. Let us hear from those who are willing to aid in the good work. It will not require a very great outlay if all who are able take hold with a will and here goes to start the list:

POLK COUNTY JOURNAL..........$5.00

And Still They Come.

THE JOURNAL is happy to acknowledge the addition of 12 new names this week to its list. We would like the name of every dweller in Polk County, but as that is impracticable then the next best thing is a large majority of them.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs' nice fall and winter display of millinery is the admiration of all the ladies who have called at her fashionable millinery parlors on Second street, and the prices are extremely low this fall.

"Prisoners of War," an original drama by Miss Aigen was the play put on by the May Louise Aigen Company, on Wednesday night of last week. Miss Aigen, in the dual character of "Kate Hardy" and "Sister Mary," was good, taking the part of the Sister of Mercy perfectly, while the Capt. Richard Hardy, of F. C. Huebner, for the concentrated essence of pure diabolism is hard to beat. He plots against his own brother's life with all the cool, calculating deliberation with which a man would trade horses or sell a farm. He realizes the old saw that a man "may smile and smile and be a villain." Owen Bartlett takes "Old Ned" nicely—he does everything well, while as Nell, an adventuress, Dot Bartlett excelled herself. Sid Hawkins, as Teddy O'Brien is a screamer. His very makeup is provocative of laughter and the audience is on the broad grin all the time Teddy is on the stage. His specialty work is good and he was re-called time and again until it would seem that even his Irish good-nature would give way. This is a strong piece well staged and well played.

"The Clemenceau Case," which was played by the May Louise Aigen Dramatic Co., on Friday evening was one of the best of the season. Each actor and actress fitted their respective characters like a new glove. The opera glass was awarded to Mrs. F. W. Bugg by a vote of 113; Miss Mabel Holt following her closely with a vote of 105. The hat, awarded to the homeliest man was voted to Frank Hertz by a large majority, no one else seeming to be "in it. We thought we had a dead cinch on that hat—sort o' entitled to it by right, but the ladies seemed to think differently and their judgement is generally pretty correct so we rather feel flattered than otherwise. Mid a storm of applause Frank marched up to the front and received his order for the hat and as he was returning one of Dick Hussey's little boys up in the gallery added to Frank's confusion by shouting out: "Oh, where did you get that hat?"

DEATH TO OPTIONS.

Senator Washburn Again Expresses Himself Anent Grain Gambling.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Senator W. D. Washburn, of Minnesota, author and introducer of the option bill presented to the United States Senate last month, was in the city to-day en route to Washington. To an Inter Ocean reporter he said:

"I have just finished reading an interview in your paper with Mr. Councilman, in which that gentleman severely criticised the bill introduced by me to prevent grain gambling. I am not surprised at his hostility nor disturbed by the sarcastic references to my philanthrophy in the premises, for any effort directed toward the curtailment of the great evil known as 'short selling' is expected to call down the wrath of all dealers in illegitimate or fiat grain.

"What I want to do is to stop the pernicious, demoralizing practice known as 'short selling,' where a man can go on the board without a kernel of grain real or prospective, and sell a million bushels, depressing the market the same as if so much wheat had been dumped on it. Mr. Pillsbury, the largest buyer of real wheat in the world, tells me that there are men in Minneapolis, with their offices in their hats, who sell more wheat in a year than he buys."

Referring to the meeting of the Minneapolis chamber of commerce called Saturday for a conference with him, the Senator said: "Of course the board of trade folks up there occupy the same position as the Chicago board, save that they believe the bill means the utter revolution of all trading in futures, but they will find their mistake when the bill becomes a law and goes into effect. A very interesting table I came across the other day selects ten days from April to October in 1890, and shows that in those days while the actual sales of wheat amounted to 337,800 bushels, optional or fictitious wheat sales were 125,720,000 bushels. On April 14th, 1890, the New York speculators sold 44,000,000 bushels of spring wheat, probably more than twice as much as reached that city during the year, and actual sales that day were but 6,000 bushels. Were it not for the board of trade I think every bushel of wheat would be worth 20 cents more to-day. In fact, all Europe is astonished that it is getting wheat to-day for such ridiculous low prices considering all the circumstances. They expected to pay more, and it is an outrage upon the producer that he should be sacrificed to a relentless greed and the disreputable deals of 'short sellers' on our boards of trade. In my opinion, some kind of relief will be granted the producer in a restrictive law that will preserve all the good features in future dealing and eliminate the bad."

Copyright Law.

It was formerly held that, by Common Law, an author had a perpetual right in the products of his intellect. This is now denied, and the whole matter has become the subject of Statute, so that now, unless the provision of the law designed to secure to the author the exclusive ownership of the results of his labor are strictly complied with, the product is public property. We shall now see what may be copyrighted, and the method thereof.

First, books, meaning not only such in their ordinary sense, but such as are printed only on one sheet, as the words of a song, or the music accompanying it. It may be a diagram with directions on one sheet of paper, private letters, abstracts of title, an illustrated newspaper. If the book is in manuscript, it may yet be copyrighted. Foreign books may not be, translations otherwise. A new edition of a copyrighted book is protected by the original copyright, but not to the extent of protecting new matter in it.

Compilations may be copyrighted. Under this head also fall dictionaries, Books of chronology, gazetteers, guide books, directories, calendars, catalogues, tables, collections of statistics, recipes, designs.

Abridgements and law reports, where there is original matter, may be copyrighted.

The law gives the right to the author, inventor, designer or proprietor, or the assigns thereof, who are citizens or residents in this country, to obtain a copyright. How to obtain a copyright:

1. Deliver to the Librarian of Congress, by mail or otherwise, a printed copy of the title of the book or other article, or a description of the painting, drawing, or whatever it may be.

2. Within ten days from the publication, deliver to the Librarian of Congress two copies of such book or article, or in case of a painting or other work of such sort, a photograph of the same.

3. Give notice of the copyright by inserting in several copies of every edition published, on the title page, or the page following, or if a picture or any such production, on the face or front thereof, the following words: "Entered according to Act of Congress, in the year—by A. B., in the office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington," or the words, for instance, "Copyright, 4891, by George Brown."

A copyright is assigned by an instrument in writing, which instrument must be recorded in the office of the librarian within sixty days after its execution, otherwise it is void as against a subsequent purchaser or mortgagee for a valuable consideration without notice

The Review of Reviews for January contains the portraits of some fifty or sixty of the notabilities of the day. General Johnston and Governor Nicholls of Louisiana, Secretary Foster, Assistant Secretary Wharton, the late Dom Pedro, Fonseca of Brazil, Mr. Jackson the new Irish Secretary, Mr. Redmond the Parnellite leader, Mr. Flavin of Cork, Archbishop Walsh of Dublin, Prince George of Wales, five governors of Australian states, the late Lord Lytton, the late Rev. Oscar McCulloch, the late William B. Florence, Governor Alvin P. Hovey, Senator Plumb, Hon. S. B. Elkins, Mr. Gillam of Judge, the Czar and Czarina of Russia, with various other Russian portraits; Mr. Elbridge Gerry of New York, Mr. Benjamin Waugh of London, Mark Twain, Frederic Harrison, Thomas Nelson Page, the late Mr. Velhagen, the distinguished German editor, and Lord Roseberry, the rising liberal statesman of England, are among the people whose faces are presented in this number.

The Grand Forks Fence Co. have purchased the right for Polk County for the Jones National Fence and will be ready in the spring to supply all who need good fences, cheap. This fence is made of plain wire but can be used in combination with barbed wire, or the crimp and lock system can be applied to barbed wire fences already built with advantage to stock as it renders a barbed wire fence absolutely harmless to stock. It is the only crimp and lock system in use; the only line tension and diagonal brace in existence. This system inquires less posts as by the crimp and lock system the posts may be set 50 feet apart if you desire. The company will be prepared to furnish a fence for the farm, the railroad, the cemetery, the garden or the lawn, at prices ranging from 20 cents a rod to $1.00 per foot. Will build you a fence or sell you a farm right. Look out for their announcement later.

NOTICE.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Scandia-American Bank, of Crookston, Minn., for the election of directors and the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it, will be held at its Banking house Tuesday, January 12th, 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m.

The May Louise Aigen Co. presented "Aurora Floyd" at the Grand Opera House on Saturday evening. This is one of the best plays of their excellent repertoire and was exceedingly well played, Miss Aigen appearing in the title roll and it is needless to say that the character was excellently well sustained. "Mrs. Powell" was excellently taken by Dot Bartlett who appeared to better advantage in this roll than ever if we except her character in the Clemenceau case. Bert S. Frank was in it as Talbot Balstrode, the friend of Squire Mellish—and Bert makes an excellent friend either on or off the stage. F. C. Huebner sustained the character of the Squire to a dot, leaving nothing to be desired, while Owen Bartlett, as "Steve Hargrave, the Softy," was simply immense. Bartlett is a thoroughbred. The Aigen company is composed of ladies and gentlemen, all artists, and should they ever return to our city they will, we think, draw good houses.

THE MODERN COOK BOOK
THE CONDENSED CYCLOPAEDIA
EVERYBODYS LAW BOOK
THE AMERICAN LIVE STOCK MANUAL
THE STANDARD AMERICAN POULTRY BOOK

We offer as a premium six reliable and useful text-books for the farm and home. These books have been specially selected with a view to meet the needs of the masses, the design being to present to our patrons an opportunity of securing, at the most trifling cost in connection with a subscription to our paper, a collection of books of the utmost practical use and value, treating upon themes of vital importance in every rural home. No man or woman can fail to be profited by the possession of these books; as works of reference they are invaluable, and really no home should be without them. Brief descriptions are appended.

THE STANDARD AMERICAN POULTRY BOOK. An entirely new book, involving all the latest ideas in poultry keeping. It is a work intended to teach the masses of farmers the secret of success in the poultry yard, and its teachings, if followed, will add enormously to the earnings of every flock of fowls. The following are only a small portion of the topics treated in this book: How to Start and Stock a Hennery; Poultry Houses, Cheap and Expensive Yards, Coops and Enclosures; Poultry Keeping for Profit, Poultry on a Large Scale; Poultry Raising as a Business; Feeding and Laying; Winter Egg-Production; The Hatching Period, Preparing Nests for Sitters; Spring Breeding of Poultry; The Hens for Farmers; How to Produce Layers; Good and Cheap Incubators; How to Raise Artificially Hatched Chickens; Caponizing; Packing Eggs for Market; Packing Poultry for Market; Feeding Hoppers; Drinking Fountains and Grain Chests; Eggs and Pullets; Preserving Eggs; Diseases of Poultry—Chicken Cholera, Pip, Gapes, Roup, Scaly Legs, Lice, Egg Eating, Crop Bound Fowls, etc.; the Plymouth Rocks; the Wyandottes; the Brown Leghorns; the Golden Spangled Crested Polish; the White Crested Black Polands, the Langshans; the Silver Spangled Hamburghs; the Houdans, the Buff Cochins; the White Cochins; the White Leghorns; the Golden Penciled Hamburghs; White Shanghais; the La Fleche Fowls; the Gray Dorkings; the Brahmas; Game Fowls, Bantams, etc.; How to Fall, Management of Chickens; Killing Poultry; Protecting against Vermin; Fencing; Management of Ducks; Raising Turkeys, Fattening Geese; etc., etc. It is a large book of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover. It is profusely illustrated and handsomely gotten up in every respect. No man or woman who owns [illegible] of land can afford to be without it.

EVERYBODY'S LAW BOOK. A complete compendium of business and Domestic Law, by a prominent member of the New York Bar, containing concise explanations of the general laws, and the laws of the several States, regarding Administrators and Executors, Affidavits, Agency, Agreements, Apprentices, Arbitration and Award, Assault and Battery, Assignments, Attachments, Banks, Bills of Exchange, Checks and Promissory Notes, Bills of Sale, Chattel Mortgages, Citizens and Aliens, Common Carriers, Contracts, Corporations, Deeds and Mortgages of Real Estate, Descent and Distribution, Dower, Easement, Exemptions, Farmers' Law, Fences, Fixtures, Garnishment, Gifts, Guaranty, Guardian and Ward, Heirs and next of Kin, Homestead Exemptions, Husband and Wife, Infants, Interest and Usury, Landlord and Tenant, Libel and Slander, Liens, Limitation of Actions, Marriage and Divorce, Rights of Married Women, Master and Servant, Parent and Child, Partnership, Payment and Tender, Personal Property, Power of Attorney, Principal and Agent, Privileged Communications, Railroads, Railroad Real Estate, Receipts and Releases, Replevin, Right of Way, Seduction, Trustee Process, Warranty, Water Rights, Wills and Codicils, Together with complete forms of Acknowledgments, Agreements, Articles of Copartnership, Assignments, Award of Arbitrators, Bills of Sales, Bonds, Chattel Mortgages, Contracts, Deeds, Executors' and Administrators' Accounts, Interest Table, Liens, Mortgages of Real Estate, Powers of Attorney, Releases, Satisfaction Pieces, Wills and Codicils, etc., etc., specially adapted for the daily use of those who are not lawyers, with directions for their preparation. A large volume of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover.

THE MODERN COOK BOOK AND MEDICAL GUIDE. This is practically two books in one—a perfect cook book and a perfect medical book—and there is so much in it, and so much care and pains have been taken in its compilation, that we feel perfectly safe in asserting that the Cooking department is fully the equal, in quantity and quality of contents, of any low-priced cook book ever published, and the same as to the Medical department herein as compared with any low-priced medical book in the market. The cooking recipes number [illegible], and include Breakfast Dishes, Soups, Meats and Poultry, Fish, Vegetables, Salads and Relishes, Bread and Rolls, Jellies and Preserves, [illegible] and Pies, Fancy Dishes, Cakes, Confectionery, Ice Cream and [illegible] Drinks. The compilation of this department was undertaken by a practical housekeeper, every recipe will be found reliable, and it has been pronounced one of the best, most complete, and practical cook-books ever published. The Medical Department will be found fully the equal of any doctor book published at one dollar or less. It tells you how to cure by simple means, available in every home, every disease and ailment that is curable. It will save you many dollars annually in doctors' bills and patent medicines. The Modern Cook Book and Medical Guide is a large book of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover.

THE AMERICAN LIVE STOCK MANUAL. A complete text book containing the fullest information regarding the care and management, feeding and rearing, of live stock, the cure of all diseases peculiar to these animals, and of all unruly or vicious habits, for the construction of necessary buildings and conveniences, etc., etc. The following are only a portion of the topics treated in this book: How to Judge a Horse; Feeding Horses; Raising a Colt; To Bit a Colt; To Break Horses from Pulling at the Halter; Warts on Horses; Stumbling Horses; Care for Balky Horses; Kicking Horses; Training Vicious Horses; Galls and Sores on Horses; Raising Horses; Colic, Lots; Founder; Heaves; Epizootic; Shying; Scratches; Ringbone; Spavin; [illegible]; Windgalls; Brittle Feet; Worms; Over-Reaching; Sprains and Bruises; Hide Bound Horses; Avoiding Indigestion; How to Save Oats in Feeding; Watering Horses; Care of Horse's Legs; How to Tell a Horse's Age; Neck Yokes; Good Grooming; Shoeing; Stables and Stabling; Breeding Horses upon Farms; Horse Education; Ringing a Bull; Relieving Choked Cattle; Bone Disease in Milch Cows; Marks of a Good Cow; Cattle Racks and Feed Boxes; Feeding Cattle; To Prevent Hooking Fences; Black Tongue; Lice; To Prevent Kicking; Contagious Cattle Diseases; Fattening Stock; Milking; Cooking Feed for Live Stock; The Soiling System; Raising Calves; To Break a Heifer or a Vicious Cow to Milk; Wintering Live Stock; How to Take Off a Hide; Assistance at Birth; Hollow Horn; Obstructed Teats; Black Leg; Caked Udder; Jumping Cattle; Garget; Care and Management of Hogs; Piggeries; Troughs; Pig Raising; Over Feeding; Sanitary Management of Swine; Hog Cholera; Paralysis; Scurvy Pigs; Preparing Food for Swine; Butchering; Fattening Hogs; Driving Hogs; Raising Sheep; Washing Sheep; Sheep Herding; Handling Sheep; To Tell the Age of Sheep; Sheep Ticks; Fattening Lambs; How to Make Sheep Pay; Treatment of Lambs; Increasing the Growth of Wool. It is a large book of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover, and is profusely illustrated.

THE CONDENSED CYCLOPAEDIA OF USEFUL KNOWLEDGE. This book contains, probably, more useful and valuable information than was ever before published in any low priced work. Among its contents are: Population of American Cities, Area and Population of the Continents, of the States and Territories, of the Principal Countries of the World, Length of the Principal Rivers, Presidential Vote for Sixty Years, Presidential Statistics, Area and Depth of Inland Seas, Area of Oceans, Height of Mountains, Locomotion of Animals and Velocity of Bodies, Height of Monuments, Towers, etc., Distances from New York to Important Cities, Chronological History of Discovery and Progress, Popes, Sobriquets of States, Cities, etc., Incorrect Language, Rules for Spelling, Use of Capitals, Pronunciation, Wall Street Phrases, Commerce of the World, Curious Facts in Natural History, Duration of Life of Various Animals, Origin of the Names of States, also of Countries, of Popular Fables, of Familiar Quotations, and of Gender; Fate of the Apostles, Statistics of the Globe, Leading Governments of the World, How Money Accumulates, How to Calculate Interest, Statistics of Longevity, Dying Words of Famous Persons, etc., etc. This book is a great storehouse of instruction, and a copy of it should be in every home. It is a large book of 128 pages, 12mo, with handsome cover.

ARTISTIC EMBROIDERY, By Ella Rodman Church. This book is a complete text-book—a thorough instructor in every branch of Artistic Embroidery. With it as a guide all may become proficient in this beautiful and fascinating art. The following is a partial summary of the contents: Worsted Embroidery—[illegible] Work; Simple Ideas of Colors; Silk Embroidery—the Satin Stitch; Point Russe; Herring Bone or Feather Stitch; [illegible] Stitch; Ladder Stitch; Chinese Embroidery; [illegible] Designs; Articles in Silk [illegible]; Screen of Peacock Feathers; [illegible]; Window-Curtain Border; [illegible]; Small Curtains or Hangings; an Embroidered [illegible]; Cover; a Chair Cover; [illegible] Work; Silk Embroidery with [illegible]; and Other Articles; [illegible]; Lambrequin in Applique; [illegible]; Crape Pictures in Applique; [illegible] Curtains; [illegible]; Point Tire; [illegible] large 12mo, book of 128 pages, [illegible].

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 7th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 18th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, executed and delivered by Ida D. Van Tuyl and John E. Van Tuyl, her husband, mortgagors, to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company," mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of November, 1887, with a power of sale therein contained, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1889, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in book 51 of mortgages, on page 265, and whereas said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars and interest thereon from its said date at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, due and payable on the first day of January in each year. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable January 1st, 1891, and default having also been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable on January 1st, 1892, and both of said defaults still continue, and no part of said principal has ever been paid. And whereas the conditions of said mortgage are such that if default be made in the payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage or interest thereon when the same becomes due, then the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall thereupon become due and payable at once.

And whereas both by the terms of said mortgage and the election of said mortgagee hereby made the whole amount secured by said mortgage both principal and interest accrued to this date is now due and payable.

And the amount now claimed to be due and which is due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage, including interest in accordance with the terms of said mortgage is the sum of six hundred and ninety-nine and 95-100 dollars. And no action or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained which by reason of the defaults aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: The west half of the southeast quarter and the east half of the southwest quarter, both of the above described tracts being in Section ten (10), Township one hundred and forty nine (149), Range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and containing 160 acres of land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on Tuesday, the 23d day of February, 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy and pay the amount which will then be due upon said mortgage according to the terms thereof, and interest and fifty dollars attorney's fees as provided by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 4th, 1892.

Office of G. F. Washburn,
Eastern Member National Executive Committee.
Boston, Mass., Nov. 10, 1881.

Dear Sir and Bro:—All true reformers, especially members of the People's party, are looking forward with unusual concern to our next national convention. In order that we may achieve success in 1892 and victoriously become the great National party of the people we must not only unite the great reform and industrial forces of the country, but we must also have harmony in our ranks and present a solid, unbroken front to our common enemy, plutocracy. If we can unite all reform elements our our success is assured, as the total actual membership would alone be sufficient to elect the next President of the United States. The greatest danger to harmony lies in the fact that a division of sentiment exists in our ranks on the liquor problem. Shall we put a straight prohibition plank in our national platform? The liquor problem is one that cannot be evaded. It must be met, and should receive heroic treatment, especially by a reform party offering remedies for existing evils, for surely this is the greatest social evil that ever cursed suffering humanity. Therefore, believing that it is better to discuss it now, and find a solution for it, than be obliged to hastily decide upon so important a measure when unprepared in convention assembled, I take the liberty to invite your attention to what I propose as a solution of this problem. It is asserted by many, that inasmuch as there exists a National Prohibition Party, and as a large element in our own party are believers in so called "personal liberty,' that if a prohibition plank should be placed in our national platform, it would create such a split in our party as to seriously affect its chances for success in our national campaign. There is also a much larger element which believes that the saloon should be abolished, and that as our party is the great party of reform, we should not hesitate to take a pronounced stand on this question and present a measure that will be practical in its operations in accomplishing the above results. This is the difficulty that confronts us: We must satisfy both elements. Permit me to suggest one way out. I shall shall submit to our national convention for adoption a plank which will read something like the following:—

NATIONAL PLANK.

We believe the principal solution of the liquor problem lies in abolishing the element of profit, which is a source of constant temptation, evil and corruption. We therefore demand that the exclusive importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, shall be conducted by the government or state, at cost, under conditions and restrictions which may be adopted by the various states. In adopting this as a national plank, we give no offence to either the "personal liberty man" or to the prohibitionist. We merely declare for the principle, and leave the restrictions for adoption, to the various states, according to the temperance sentiment in each state.

STATE PLANKS.

In all the states where temperance sentiment is strong enough to permit, I heartily advocate the adoption of restrictions, reading something like the following: 1st. We believe the principal solution of the liquor problem lies in the abolishing of the element of profit, which is a source of constant stant temptation, evil and corruption. we therefore demand that the exclusive importation, manufacture and sale of all intoxicating liquors shall be conducted by the government or state at cost, for medical, mechanical and scientific purposes only, through county commissioners who shall appoint salaried officials in such towns or cities as shall apply for such agencies. 2d. In states not quite so far advanced in temperance sentiment, the state could sell intoxicating liquors at cost, not to be drank on the premises. 3rd. In states like Ohio, Massachusetts and New York, which advocate high license, the restriction might read that "The exclusive importation, manufacture and sales of intoxicating liquors shall be conducted by the government or state at cost, through county commissioners who shall appoint a salaried official, in such towns and cities as shall apply for such agencies. Thus we not only leave the restrictions to the states but local option to each town and city. The third plank leaves out the limitations mentioned in the first two. Ohio and Massachusetts have both declared for the nationalization of the liquor traffic, by adopting planks in their state platforms, reading substantially like the latter plank. The plan is heartily endorsed by many of our most prominent leaders, including chairman Taubeneck, of the National Executive Committee, Congressman Otis of Kansas, M. W. Wilkins, editor of the Nonconformist, S. H. Snider, national organizer of the Citizens' Alliance, Edward Bellamy and others. The prohibitionists in Massachusetts, in their state convention last September, partially endorsed the plan by placing a plank in their platform reading as follows: "Inasmuch as the desire for gain is the motive power of the drink traffic, we favor such arrangements for the supply of alcoholic liquors for medical, mechanical and scientific uses as shall divest the dealer of any pecuniary interest in the sale."

G. F. Washburn,
Eastern Member National Executive Committee, People's Party, U. S.

Reclining Chair Cars.

If you intend going East or South via St. Paul and Chicago, why not take "The Burlington" day train from St. Paul and Minneapolis, and enjoy the beautiful scenery of the Upper Mississippi? This train has one feature not afforded by any other line between the Twin Cities and Chicago; it carries elegant reclining chair cars, which make the journey delightful, easy and comfortable, and no extra charge is made to those occupying seats in them. Insist on the agent giving you tickets via "The Burlington"—C., B. & N. R. R.—and take no others.

A POPULAR FAMILY.

Jennie: "How is it, Kate, that you always seem to 'catch on' to the last new thing? Do what I may, you always seem to get ahead of me."

Kate: "I don't know: I certainly do not make any exertion in that direction."

Jennie: "Well, during the last few months, for example, you have taken up painting, without any teacher; you came to the rescue when Miss Lafarge deserted her Delsarte class so suddenly, and certainly we are all improving in grace under your instruction; I heard you telling Tommy Eames last evening how his club made mistakes in playing baseball; you seem to be up on all the latest fads, and know just what to do under all circumstances; you entertain beautifully; and in the last month you have improved so in health, owing, you tell me, to your physical culture exercises. Where do you get all of your information from in this little out-of-the way place?—for you never go to the city."

Kate: "Why, Jennie, you will make me vain. I have only one source of information, but it is surprising how it meets all wants. I very seldom hear of anything new but what the next few days bring me full information on the subject. Magic? No! Magazine! And a great treasure it is to us all, for it really furnishes the reading for the whole household: father has given up his magazine that he has taken for years, as he says this one gives more and better information on the subjects of the day; and mother says that it is that that makes her such a famous housekeeper. In fact, we all agree that it is the only really FAMILY magazine published, as we have sent for samples of all of them, and find that one is all for men, another all for women, and another for children only, while this one suits every one of us; so we only need to take one instead of several, and that is where the economy comes in, for it is only $2.00 a year. Perhaps you think I am too lavish in my praise; but I will let you see ours, or, better still, send 10 cents to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a sample copy, and I shall always consider that I have done you a great favor; and may be you will be cutting us out, as you say we have the reputation of being the best informed family in town. If that be so, it is Demorest's Family Magazine that does it."

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.

4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

IT IS TIME FOR ACTION.

New York Press.

Nearly three months have passed since, to quote the language of President Harrison in his message to Congress, "an event occurred in Valparaiso, so serious and tragic in its circumstances and results as to excite very justly the indignation of our people, and to call for prompt and decided action on the part of this government. A considerable number of the sailors of the United States steamship Baltimore, then in the harbor of Valparaiso, being upon shore leave and unarmed, were assaulted by armed men nearly simultaneously in different localities in the city. One petty officer was killed outright and seven or eight seamen were seriously wounded, one of whom has since died. So savage and brutal was the assault that several of our sailors received more than two, and one as many as eighteen stab wounds. An investigation of the affair was promptly made by a board of officers of the Baltimore, and their report shows that these assaults were unprovoked, that our men were conducting themselves in a peaceable and orderly manner, and that some of the police of the city took part in the assault and used their weapons with fatal effect, while a few others, with some well disposed citizens, endeavored to protect our men. Thirty-six of our sailors were arrested, and some of them, while being taken to prison, were cruelly beaten and maltreated. The fact that they were all discharged, no criminal charge being lodged against any of them, shows very clearly that they were innocent of any breach of the peace."

The evidence that the murderous attack upon men who wore the American uniform was not a sailors' brawl is overwhelming. Everything that has been ascertained in connection with the tragedy goes to confirm what President Harrison has declared, that there is "no other explanation of this bloody work than that it had its origin in hostility to these men as sailors of the United States, wearing the uniform of their government, and not in any individual act of personal animosity." Unfortunately for proof of this animosity we have not to look alone to the slaughter of the Baltimore sailors. Among other instances of Chilian maltreatment of Americans because they are Americans is the more recent case of Patrick Shields, a seaman on the steamer Keweenaw. Shields, who was arrested on some petty charge by the Valparaiso police, says that "he was not treated with special brutality until he stated he was an American, whereupon he was knocked down and beaten." He managed to escape from the police, but was recaptured by mounted officers and was this time beaten into insensibility, in which condition he was finally, without trial, sent on board the police boat. He was manacled and placed in the chain-gang to work on the public streets, jeered at and insulted, alike by police and the populace, because he was an American. An English or other foreign sailor, under the same circumstances, would have undoubtedly have been sent aboard his vessel after at the most a few hours' detention.

Nor have we to depend upon American evidence of Chilian hatred and abuse of Americans. An Englishman named Edmundson, who recently arrived in San Francisco from Valparaiso, and to whom no reason can be imputed for an exaggeration of facts, said in an interview ten days ago, that "the treatment which American citizens receive at the hands of the Chilians is outrageous and wholly unwarranted. England would not stand it a week. I know what I am talking about, and what I say to you is authentic. I have been going to and from Chili for years, and for the last year and a half I have resided in Valparaiso. You will be astounded when I tell you that the Chilians will actually spit in the faces of Americans on the streets. Resent it and you will be beaten by a mob. You surely can have no conception of the sneers, jeers and insults heaped upon your citizens there. German, French, English and other foreign nations represented there have commented upon the state of affairs, and I know that, had it been any of these nations, Chili would have paid dearly for it long ago." This is the testimony of a respectable Englishman, not likely to be prejudiced against Chili or in favor of the United states. Agreeing, as his statement does in substance with the evidence of our naval officers and seamen and the carefully worded accounts that reach us from diplomatic sources, no just ground is apparent for questioning its truth. The facts stated are, too, in complete accord with the treatment by the Chilians of Minister Egan, who has comported himself in a manner to justify the confidence of our government, and against whom no charge whatever has been officially presented.

The strongest proof of Chilian hostility is in the course of the Chilian government. In all the correspondence that has been published, whether between Chilian officials themselves or in diplomatic communications emanating from the Chilian government, there is nowhere to be found a word of regret for the tragedy or condemnation of the outrage, except in one place. The police commander at Valparaiso speaks of it in his report as "a disagreeable occurrence." Search the correspondence through and these words are all that can be found showing that the massacre of our sailors, because they serve under a flag the Chilians hated, was an event even in the slightest degree regretted by any Chilian authority. This is all the more significant when it is recollected that the upper class of Chilians are eminently polite, and that with them expressions of comity and courtesy do not mean as much as with us of North America. The Spanish-American is polite, even to an enemy—unless he despises the enemy. Do the Chilians despise the American people? There is, unhappily, plenty of cause to believe that they do. They have been taught by foreigners, jealous of the American Republic and fearful of American rivalry in the field of Chilian trade, that the American can be safely maltreated and defied. "Prominent officials of Chili," said Mr. Edmundson, from whom we have quoted before, "have no hesitancy in saying they are perfectly willing the United States should declare war against them. They are free in expressing the sentiment that Americans cannot fight; that they don't know anything but buying and selling, and that your navy is a very shoddy affair and was built by swindling contractors. They say they can destroy or blockade every port of the United States on the Pacific coast and cut off all army and navy supplies, so that you would be glad to give up the fight." This means, in brief, that the Chilians, ignorant of American history, and of the strength and resources of the American people, believe that they can massacre our sailors, defy us with impunity, and whip us if we dare a forcible remonstrance. That is, they both hate and despise us.

For nearly three months this government has waited in vain for a suggestion of apology or an intimation of redress. The Chilian Minister has given a dinner to Secretary Blaine, but not even a grudging word of friendliness has come officially from Chili to make the dinner palatable. Champagne at Washington cannot wash away the blood of our sailors slaughtered at Valparaiso. If we are to stand before the world as a nation ready and able to maintain the national honor abroad and to punish outrage aimed at the American name, then the time has come for action. Delay means dishonor; hesitation is interpreted as cowardice. To say that because Chili is weak by comparison we should patiently endure Chilian arrogance and require no amends for Chilian barbarity is to say that lesser states shall have a license that would not be allowed for a moment to nations nearer our own in greatness and in prowess. For weakness, self-confessed and penitent in wrong, there may well be exceptional consideration. But weakness is rather a provocation than a plea when accompanied by pride and defiance. It is not to be omitted that the Chilians make no plea of weakness for themselves; they ask for no consideration; they offer no apology. They themselves waive, by their attitude, any claim for leniency on the ground of inferiority, and it is puerile for any one here to suggest a defense or palliation which evidently has no place in Chilian minds.

To come to the final point, the United States has strained forbearance to the limit where it may be mistaken for pusillanimity. The Chilian outrage will invite other outrages unless ample atonement is exacted. The honor of the nation is in the issue, and it is for the President and Congress to see that it shall not be imperiled. The people, through the press, demand that the special message which the President promised shall be sent at once, and and that the dignity of the United States, wounded by repeated insults added to the original outrage, shall be asserted and vindicated before the nations of the earth.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10, 1892.

The Hon. Bishop W. Perkins has been appointed Senator to succeed Mr. Plumb, of Kansas. Mr. Perkins has been a member of Congress for many years and has shown himself to be a man of decidedly over the average ability and, while it is not to be expected that he will at once take so high a standing in the Senate as that held by Mr. Plumb, he will impress himself upon the legislation of the country there as he did in the House.

The New York newspapers of the 1st all give comprehensive reviews of the past year and it must be said, to their credit, that the Democratic newspapers gave the Republican party fair praise for what it has done in the past. Of course the free trade papers did not admit that the McKinley Bill had been the cause of the renewed prosperity of the country when, if they had been entirely honest, this admission would have been made. Speaking of President Harrison, the World says: "Mr. Harrison has certainly gained much in the public estimate of his ability. The series of speeches he made during his tour through the country revealed him to the people not only as a readier and abler speaker than had been suspected, but as a man with a stronger intellectual grasp and larger gifts. The recent message also added to the President's reputation as a public officer. It was an able document, carefully designed to meet an exigent political situation. In its treatment of our foreign relations it was dignified and judicious where causes of irritation existed, and where there were causes of congratulation, as in the matter of the reciprocity treaties it was adroitly framed to secure for the President the credit which men were very generally disposed to give to Mr. Blaine." This is very high praise from a Democratic standpoint and such praise from such a source is so unusual that it is worthy of notice.

The Democrats did, while the law was being enacted, assert that the McKinley Bill was all wrong and the reciprocity idea a humbug. They opposed and have continued to oppose the making of reciprocity arrangements, but the facts are so strong that they will have to admit that reciprocity was neither a free trade idea nor a humbug. On the closing day of the last year reciprocity treaties had been concluded with Brazil, British Guiana, British West Indies, Costa Rica, Germany, Guatemala, Salvador, San Domingo and Spain, and negotiations were pending which promised an early and successful conclusion with France and Mexico. Under these treaties we admit one article which is entirely non-petitive, that is coffee, sugar which is nearly so, and hides. By doing this we have secured either free import or low duties on nearly all the products of the farm and the factory of the United States into these countries.

To show what has been done in some instances, the duty on flour imported from the United States into Cuba was $5.03 a barrel on the 31st day of December, and on the 1st of January it was one dollar a barrel. The duty on wheat which was 99 cents, on the 1st of January was eight cents per bushel. To Porto Rico the duty on flour was $2 46 a barrel, on the 1st it was $1.00; the rate on wheat which was 24 15 cents a bushel was reduced to eight cents and this ratio is continued in a great many other things. During the last fiscal year we imported from the countries with which we have concluded treaties, and from one with which we are about to conclude one, Germany, $142,965,593 worth of coffees, hides and sugar and we exported to these altogether $131,165,597, that is, eleven million dollars less than their imports in these three articles. Under the new arrangements we will undoubtedly export to these countries fifty per cent. more than the value of the sugar they send us, probably double that amount. We will certainly do so in the instance of Cuba, Porto Rico, San Domingo, Salvador and Guatemala.

FROM OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, D. C. January 5, 1892.

The United States Navy Revival attracts no little attention in Europe and especially in England. The St. James's Gazette of London says "the Americans are making a steady and surprising progress toward becoming a great naval power." English experts are comparing the New York with the Blenheim and the Blake and some of them admit that the former can steam faster and throw more metal than any British vessel of the same class. This however is not the only time our naval achievements have surprised our English cousins.

The Miantonomah this week is at Gardiners Bay trying her four ten inch breech-loading guns that throw a 500 pound shell by the explosion of 250 pounds of powder. These guns were made at the Washington Navy Yard. She also carries lighter rapid-firing guns. She is not a new vessel. In 1866 she steamed into British waters and stirred naval and official circles there something as an over-head hawk flutters a flock of barn-yard fowls. The British had, prior to that date, made light of the vessels of the Monitor class, never having properly appreciated the famous pioneer that fought the Merrimac in Hampton Roads, and subsequently foundered off Cape Hatteras. But the Miantonomah with her hull below water and her low turrets and deadly guns silently moving among British war vessels in a British harbor was an alarming object lesson. Under this stimulus England built an iron clad designed by an inventor named Cowles which craft subsequently upset off the coast of Spain, and carried down to the bottom, five hundred men, including the rash inventor who claimed the honor due to Ericsson. The Miantonomah having crossed the ocean safely could probably double Cape Horn, though she is not likely to make the attempt.

Iron Clads and heavy guns are expensive luxuries and notwithstanding our pride in a young and growing navy we ought in some way make our vessels commercially useful in times of peace. No large standing army is wanted nor a vast, expensive and unproductive war navy. Let ship-building for the carrying trade and for peaceful pursuit be revived by legislation that will put the stars and stripes at the mast head in every port of the world.

New Years Day in this city was so sunny and mild that overcoats were discarded by callers and inveterate croquet players knocked the balls about from morning until night. Official receptions were crowded; but not private ones. Fashion is frowning upon the time honored custom and fewer than ever opened their doors this year to miscellaneous callers. Heretofore it has been the practice of young men and those not so young to hire a carriage and rush about town all day and far into night or until overcome with wine. And silly young follows who carry their canes by the middle and stick out their elbows have done the same on foot. Fewer people however now offer wine, and the number that hang baskets at the door yearly increases. The custom of new years calling stripped of excesses and absurdities is a good one.

Social drinking and drunkenness is decreasing. Drinking to excess among public men is much rarer than formerly. There are no notorious drunkards in congress as in old times. Open liquor selling is excluded from the capitol. One reform however remains to be accomplished by congress and that is, the cutting off of the wine and liquor bills of funeral parties. Here is a very proper field for retrenchment.

Prohibition. Congress not only prohibits liquor selling in the capitol but has prohibited the sale of intoxicants within a mile of the Soldiers Home, the boundary line running through the most densely peopled portion of the city. The district commissioners also in the exercise of their discretion have practically prohibited the sale of liquor in a section of the city called "Hells bottom." This we have prohibition in spots.

Hells bottom was a product of war times and has been a disgrace to the city. Three murders by half drunken men were committed in this place in rapid succession not many months since. The section is however greatly improved in decency particularly since the recent routing out of the occupants of certain infamous dens and the substitution of a Young Men Cristian Association. The spot is closely hemmed in by four large colored churches which have done good work in purifying the pit. But curiously enough the pastor of one of them says that the low saloons and dives are a curse yet insists that the commissioners discriminate against his people by closing them.

Queer Legislation. Congress passed a law that only ex-soldiers should be appointed as policemen in this district. It is now impossible to find soldiers of the late war young and vigorous enough for the duties. A recent immigrant after a few days service of some sort in the army resigned and received an appointment on the police force and thereupon proceeded to get drunk and flourish his revolver. In his tipsy rampage he shot down a sober and quiet one armed soldier. And see how curiously the law works. The old soldier could not serve as a policeman because of his age. His son is excluded by the law for he was never in the army, but this drunken importation found no difficulty in gitting an appointment. Judge Miller at the preliminary hearing held the officer for trial and remarked that every policeman whose breath smelt of liquor ought to be discharged.

Chief Justice Fuller is said to be very indignant as to the premature announcement that the Supreme Court has decided the Nebraska contest in favor of Boyd and intimates that the enterprising news given will be suitably punished.

THE TARIFF IN CONGRESS.

New York Press.

The criticism that has been made on the avowed programme of Speaker Crisp to "tinker" with the tariff bill, rather than adopt in the House any general tariff bill which will distinctly foreshadow the Democratic policy, has had such an effect in Washington on the minds of leading Democrats that it is said a halt has been called while the question of policy is being settled. The knowledge that no tariff bill can pass both houses of Congress, whether it be a complete measure covering the entire tariff field or only a measure of amendment, or if carried through both houses would be subjected to a veto, leaves to the Democratic majority in the House as its only task the making of an exhibition of legislation which shall give the country positive information as to what the party would do if intrusted with both legislative and executive branches of the government. President Harrison will stand by the McKinley bill in every schedule. The Republicans in the Senate will stand together against any attempt to break down that bill, either by detail or in bulk.

It is wholly immaterial to Republicans which course the Democrats pursue in this matter. They have already shown that they are aware that the tariff question is their white elephant, by first deciding not to present any general bill, and then by temporizing and now by halting while they consider what is really best to be done. If they enter upon the scheme of trying to drive a breach in the McKinley bill by passing separate measures to put coal on the free list, wool on the free list, iron on the free list, and so on down a list of articles such as was named the other day by Mr. Springer of Illinois, the Democrats will array against themselves great elements of voting population, comprising Democrats or Republicans, and reaching through every grade of the community, from tillers of the soil to capitalists, whose opposition will be sufficient to determine the election of 1892 in favor of the Republican party. Republicans can well afford to have this course pursued, because it will enable the campaign of 1892 to be based on the impugnment of the Democratic party for insincerity in its opposition to protection and for inability to frame a general "tariff reform," about which they have been harping so loudly until within a month as the great need in national legislation.

On the other hand, if Mr. Crisp shall now form his ways and means committee so as to give the country a general tariff bill the situation of 1888 will be repeated and the country will without doubt decide that it is unwise to change the present law or policy until it has been thoroughly tested, and that whatever trifling changes may be necessary in it should be committed to the hands of the friends instead of the enemies of the protection principle.

The Democratic House must make a record on the tariff on which the Democratic party can go to the country next year, and it already looks as if they would have such difficulty in uniting on any policy that the contest of next year will be a walkover for Republicanism and protection.

Great Remnant Sale is now going on at Gervais, "The Hustlers."

Rudy Burkhardt took a trip north this week canvassing for petit ledgers.

Services are being held every evening this week at the Congregational church.

Hon. E. E. Lommen was in St. Paul last week to attend the alliance convention.

The Enterprise, of Hallock, says that C. C. Shapleigh is the happy father of a little girl.

S. K. Torgisson was up from Lake Park last week interviewing old friends in the city.

Finlayson & Vannett have reopened the Gymnasium and are now ready to supply tickets.

Great drives on Blankets, Flannels, Underwear and Hosiery at Gervais, "The Hustlers."

It is reported that ex-register H. H. Dickmann is the fond father of a new boy, on the 6th inst.

On Saturday last Judge Christianson united for life Hans Christofferson and Annie Christianson.

Wheat opened out on Monday morning at 71 cents and on Tuesday morning dropped one cent.

A. B. Holston went to St. Paul last week. The Globe warmed over one of Holston's old chestnuts.

Fur Capes, Muffs, Boas, Hoods, Fascinators at half price to close out at Gervais, "The Hustlers."

The week of prayer was observed by union meetings of the Congregational and Presbyterian congregations.

Mrs. A. J. Streeter has been appointed matron of the new county hospital. A worthy appointment.

We heard some of our neighbors say something about cold weather on Sunday and Monday last. Did you observe it?

The Andrews Company will probably put on "The Pretty Persian." This opera is said to be one of the best going.

THE JOURNAL is pleased to note that Miss Eunice Copeland, who has been very ill with tonsilitis and erysipelas is convalescent.

Those who cannot call can drop us a card saying how much they will put up for the hail sufferers and their names will be added to the list.

Walter Lee has purchased Mrs. Bucknam's property on Houston Ave. and it is said that he will build an elegant house thereon next spring.

Casper Sands is used to breaking bronchos to ride or drive but we reckon he will find that goat the most ornery critter he ever tried to straddle!

The Crookston Musical Society meets Friday evenings at the reading room for practice. This society is becoming one of the prominent institutions of the city.

Gervais, "The Hustlers" are offering tremendous bargains in Remnants, odds and ends and broken lines of all kinds. Call in and get some of the plums as they roll.

Mrs. Van Arnam left last week for Iowa, summoned by the news that her sister, who is afflicted by cancer, was not expected to survive long. She may be gone all winter.

Engineer Fred Chapin came over from Devil's Lake this week with his wife and child for a two weeks' visit with her folks. Her mother, Mrs. T. Hunt, returned with them.

The trend of events political seem to indicate that in the near future we shall be confronted with the question: "Shall America elect a king?" Already the wires are being skilfully laid to install a dictator.

Alderman Walker has a letter from Mayor McKinnon, in which the Mayor seems quite sanguine of enlisting capital to build a large hotel in Crookston next summer. Mac seems to be doing some tall rustling down there.

J. W. Wheeler has resigned his position as paying teller at the 1st National bank, but will engage in some kind of business in Crookston. He has had several offers but has not accepted any as yet, we are told. Mr. W. has been a faithful official in that bank for some time.

Jimmy Fulton, who has been manager of the St. Hilaire creamery during the past season went through on Monday evening en route for his home in Hawley. Jim was once a typo on THE JOURNAL staff and they say that he is a No. 1 butter maker also.

G. H. Palmer: "Come and see us when we get in our new quarters in the new Reckett Block. The Land Office will soon move in there also, so as to be handy to us. We will be as slick as a whistle made of a pig's tail when we all get in there."

O. H. Lucken will succeed Hugh Robertson as clerk in the Land Office.

Cloaks and Shawls at almost your own price at Gervais, "The Hustlers."

Sauk Rapids Sentinel:—Mr. Jas. Greenhalgh, of Crookston, father of W. C. and J. H., visited with the Skeate family last week, returning home Saturday.

Uncle John Ross, who has been janitor at the court house for so long, has been supplanted by a younger man. Uncle John has been a faithful servant and his many friends will regret to see him step down and out.

Mr. S. L. Dobson is not getting as many oats to grind as he would like. He would like enough to keep the mill running night and day. This would require 600 bushels for every 24 hours, or 180,000 bushels for the year. That's a good market for oats.

The Crookston Musical Society will hold a meeting at the reading room Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock and a full attendance is desired. Any one wishing to unite with the society are invited to attend at that time and give in their names. A general invitation is extended to all to do so.

P. S. WARE, Sec'y.

Presto Change:—Saturday night a burglar entered the residence of J. H. Greenhalgh by breaking into the wood shed and climbing through a window. He ransacked bureaus and trunks, taking about $15 in cash. Nothing else was missing. Mr. G. is a fireman and was on duty at the time, and Mrs. G. was alone in the house, but was not awakened. No clue to the robber.

"I like that idea of yours about contributing to the needs of hail sufferers and will go ten bushels of barley on it, anyhow," said O. H. Richardson to THE JOURNAL man on Thursday of last week. "and if need be I will chip in more. I will hold the grain subject to the order of your townsman, Mr. Ellington, and deliver it to whomsoever he says. I hope to see a generous response to this call."

B. C. Jorgenson dropped into our den on Thursday and after putting up the needful on subscription, said: "I like THE JOURNAL's idea on the question of home relief for the hail sufferers and I have $10 for that object. I hope every reader of THE JOURNAL will chip in to the extent of his ability and it will be no trouble to provide a sufficient fund to supply all who need wheat and feed for their teams."

Mr. W. McPherson, who was one of the old-time dwellers in this vicinity, having a claim up north of Harry Wyand's, was down from his present home in the Thirteen Towns last week. We are glad to note that Mac is doing well up there he having raised several good crops and a rousing good one last season. Mac has many friends in this neck of the woods who will be glad to hear of his good fortune.

If you wish to contribute wheat, oats or barley to the hail sufferers send us an order on yourself for the number of bushels you will contribute and the order will be placed in the Scandia-American Bank, with Mr. Ellington, and your name will go on the list. We have heard many farmers say they would contribute to this cause if they had an opportunity and here is your opportunity. Send in your orders.

Hugh R. Robertson has accepted the position of paying teller in the First National bank, in place of J. W. Wheeler, resigned. Mr. Robertson has been for a long time clerk in the U. S. Land Office, which position he has filled creditably and he will prove just as capable and efficient in his new field. While in the Land Office he has made hosts of friends who will unite with us in best wishes for his future success.

Nekkolai Gjestrum, a young man living in Vineland, died at the residence of John Thompson in that town on Monday, the 11th, of consumption. Had he lived until Tuesday, the 12th, he would have been just 28 years old. He was a young man highly respected by all who knew him and leaves many friends in that neighborhood where he had lived 7 or 8 years. He had taken one term at the Crookston Business College. The funeral is to be held at Neby next Saturday at one o'clock.

A writer on the subject of the humane treatment of animals calls attention to the injurious effect of cold-iron bits on horses. He points out that the horse is an animal of nervous organization. Its mouth is formed of delicate glands and tissues, the temperature of its blood is the same as in the human being, and as also in man the mouth is the warmest part of the body. If any one would realize the effect of a cold bit in the mouth of a horse on a frosty morning let him try the contact of a piece of iron at a temperature below freezing point on his own tongue. The effect on the horse is not simply momentary. Food eaten subsequently is masticated with difficulty, and the repetition of the irritation day after day causes a loss of appetite and strength. Many a horse has become worthless from no other cause but this. India-rubber bits are now so common that there is no excuse for their not being used, but should any difficulty occur in procuring such a merciful provision for the comfort of the horse a bit covered with leather will do good service in the meantime.

On The Death of Mr. W. W. Attix.

BY MRS. W. MORRIS.

Wherefore, Oh, ye friends of Jesus,
  Throb your hearts with anguish wild;
Wherefore mourn for one departed
  From the raging tempest wild?

Though you miss him from your circle,
  Though you see his face no more,
Yet remember you shall meet him
  On the shining glory shore.

Jesus says "I will not leave you;
  I will be the widow's guide;
I will be the orphan's Father
  Till they too shall cross the tide.

Though you lose a father's blessing,
  Though you miss a husband's care;
He has done his share of suffering,
  He a crown of life shall wear.

Every home has lost a darling,
  Some dear loved one gone before;
Oh, how lovingly they'll greet us
  Over on the other shore.

One by one the roses perish,
  Drop by drop the stream runs dry;
But the roses bloom in heaven,
  We shall see them by and bye.

When we cross the crystal river;
  When we climb the golden stair;
When we walk through shining portals
  We shall know each other there.

When the silver cord is broken;
  When this earthly house shall fall;
When the last farewell is spoken,
  Save us Jesus, one and all.
    "Asleep in Jesus."

Mentor, Minn., Jan. 9th, 1891.

Iver H. Mjoen, one of the leading farmers of Vineland, was in the city on Tuesday and gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call, renewing for one year. Mr. M. came from Norway in 1872 and in November took a government claim in Vineland, as he supposed, but afterwards learned that the railroad company laid claim to it. Their claim was sustained by the government and Mr. M. says that although able lawyers have tried to get a hearing for him he has been denied even that privilege. Some two years since, fearing lest he should lose his farm altogether, he contracted for it with the company for $8.50 per acre. Thus, after having by hard work given the farm what value it has, he was obliged to pay for his own labor. When he came from Norway he had only sufficient means to bring himself and family over, but now he is regarded by his neighbors as a man in independent circumstances—all accomplished here in Polk County and remote from a railroad market town, at that. His nearest point is Buxton, N. D., which is 12 miles, but not accessible in the fall until the river freezes over. The next nearest is Fisher, 16 miles, and there he has hauled most of his wheat. He says if they had a railroad down there it would be worth thousands annually to that country. He raised this year nearly 3,000 bushels of wheat and could do better than that every year if he had a convenient market. He lives in hopes of seeing a railroad in his neighborhood and a good wheat market opened up.

Making a Big Hit.

Duluth Papers Accord the Andrews Opera Company High Praise.

Grand Forks Plaindealer:—An engagement of unusual importance and interest is that of the Andrews Opera Company which commences on Friday next at the Metropolitan. Three performances will be given, the repertoire being Friday "The Pretty Persian," Saturday matinee "The Bohemian Girl," Saturday evening "Iolanthe."

The Andrews Opera Company is playing a week's engagement in Duluth where they are winning golden opinions both from press and public. The Duluth Daily News of Tuesday in its criticism said: "The Andrews Opera Company made an excellent start in its week's engagement at the Temple last night. There was a big audience and thoroughly satisfied." The same paper of Wednesday, commenting on their performance of "The Pretty Persian, said: "The costuming was excellent and there was fun without end. C. A. Parker was lively as a cricket and resembles Eddie Foy in his work. Ed. Andrews also furnished lots of enjoyment." The Tribune of yesterday said: "It is a pleasure to see the Andrews Opera company in any of their presentations, for the reason that whatever they produce receives conscientious and artistic treatment. Their principals are artists, their chorus evenly balanced and well trained."

The Andrews Opera company carries its own orchestra, which will add greatly to the enjoyment of their performances.

THE COUNTY DADDIES.

M. E. Kirsch Re-elected Chairman and the Crookston Times Made the Official Organ.

Fisher Bulletin.

The Board of County Commissioners convened Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. The first business was the election of a chairman, and M. E. Kirsch will again sit enthroned.

At 3:30 p. m., the bids for the county printing were opened. Only two offers to officially record the proceedings, etc., were tendered—and, under the present state of affairs, there was one bid too many. The following was the first bid opened:

To the Hon. Brd. of Co. Com'rs of Polk County, Minn:

GENTLEMEN:—We, the undersigned, publishers of the Fisher Bulletin, published at Fisher, Minn.; the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, published at Crookston, Minn., and the McIntosh Times, published at McIntosh, Minn., respectfully submit the following proposition to do the county printing for the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, for the year 1892, to-wit: We agree to publish in each of said papers, the delinquent tax list, at the rate of two (2) cents per description, to be paid each of the said three papers publishing the same; the proceedings of the board FREE; financial statement and all other notices required to be published by the County Commissioners or any of the officers of said county, at fifty (50) cents per folio, for the first insertion, and twenty-five (25) cents per insertion for each subsequent insertion; also to furnish all stationery and do the job printing required by said county or county officials at our regular rates. Said financial statement and above mentioned notices are to be printed in each of the above mentioned papers, the payment for same to be divided equally between each of the said named papers; and said stationery and job printing is to be divided equally between the papers named.

A. G. RUTLEDGE,
Pub. of Bulletin.
H. E. COOKE,
Pub. POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.
C. G. LANMAN,
Pub. McIntosh Times.

At this stage of the proceedings, C. P. Demers, of the Red Lake Falls district, took a document from his pocket, which afterwards proved to be the Times resolution, which we give below.

The following bid was then opened:

CROOKSTON, January 4, 1892.

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners of Polk County, Minnesota:

GENTLEMEN:—The undersigned, publisher of the Daily and Weekly Times, published at Crookston, Minn., begs leave to submit the following proposition to do the county printing for the County of Polk for the year 1892, as follows, to-wit: I agree to publish the delinquent tax list, financial statement, proceedings of the board of county commissioners, and all official notices ordered published by said county board, in both the Times and Red River Dalen at the following rates, viz: Financial statement at 72 cents per folio for first insertion and 32 cents for each subsequent insertion. Proceedings and all other official notices ordered by the board, 72 cents per folio for the first insertion and 32 cents per folio for each subsequent insertion. Delinquent tax list six cents a description for both, or three cents a description for each of the two papers. Job work as follows: Letter heads, linen, per M, $6 00; do common, per M, $5 50; note or mem. heads, linen, per M, $4 50; do common per M, $4.25; envelopes, 5 inch, per M, $4; do 6½ inch, per M, $4 50; do 10 inch, per M, $5 50; do 11 inch, per M, $5.75; do 12 inch, per M, $6; blanks, ¼ sheet, one side, $4,50 per M; do ½ sheet, one side, $6 50 per M; do ¼ sheet two sides, $6,50; do ½ sheet, two sides, $8 50. All other job work and stationery at usual rates.

Respectfully submitted,
W. E. MCKENZIE,
Pub. Times.

Moved by A. C. Reinhart and seconded by J. P. Johnson that the bid tendered by the Fisher Bulletin, POLK COUNTY JOURNAL and McIntosh Times, being the lowest, that the said papers be declared the official papers of the county for the ensuing year.

Demers here introduced his resolution, which had been prepared for him, and which was as follows:

Whereas, The board of county commissioners did advertise for bids for printing for the ensuing year; and whereas the law requires that the contract for said work BE LET TO THE LOWEST BIDDER; the commissioners, however, take into consideration the circulation and standing of the newspapers filing such bids; and, whereas, it appears from the bids tendered and on file, that the bid of W. E. McKenzie, publisher of the Crookston Times, wherein he agrees to publish according to law the delinquent tax list, and all other official county notices and commissioners proceedings in the Crookston Times and Red River Dalen; and after taking into consideration the circulation and standing of the two papers, we find this bid the lowest before us; therefore be it

Resolved, That the bid of W. E. McKenzie be accepted and the Crookston Times, a weekly newspaper printed and published in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, be and the same is hereby designated as the official newspaper in which shall be published according to law the delinquent tax list for the year 1890, and all other official county notices and commissioners proceedings.

How Mr. Demers could, PREVIOUS TO THE OPENING OF THE BIDS, consider the "circulation and standing" of the papers is a piece of thought that does that gentleman great credit.

Mr. Reinhart's motion was then considered, the vote being Reinhart and Johnson, yes; Stortroen, Demers and Kirsch no.

Demers' resolution was then seconded by Stortroen, and resulted: Stortroen, DeMers and Kirsch yes; Reinhart and Johnson no. The two latter gentlemen wished to be placed on record as indignantly voting in the negative.

We submit the bids as tendered, and as any intelligent person can see the contract was not awarded to the lowest bidder.

Of course there could have been no put-up job in that business, because Demers and Stortroen voted for it and were they not selected by the farmers as fit men to represent their constituents on the board to prevent all kinds of jobbery and to see that due economy was exercised in the spending of the people's money? Did they not pledge their sacred honor to their constituents to discharge their duties honestly and faithfully, nay more, did they not solemnly swear so to do when they entered upon the discharge of their duties? Of course Messrs. DeMers and Stortroen honestly believed that 72 cents per folio for financial statement, notices, &c., was less than 50 cents per folio! Of course they must have supposed that 72 cents per folio for publishing the proceedings of the board was less than to have said proceedings published free. We say "of course" they must have "supposed" so, for if they did not suppose so their vote was a direct violation of their pledged word to their constituents, a violation of their sacred honor and a violation of their oath, was it not? And could it be possible that these reformers could have put up a job upon the down-trodden tax-payers whom, at the last election, they sacrificed their personal feelings and comforts to protect? Oh, no, they must have honestly thought that 72 cents per folio was less than nothing per folio! But isn't it mysterious that at the last meeting of the board in '91, when that body should call for bids for county printing that they "forgot" to say or do anything about that important matter and that later on a few lines were inserted once in an obscure corner of the paper that was afterward (was it "afterwards" or was the arrangement already made) designated as the official paper? Of course Demers and Stortroen, those two brilliant statesmen, put there specially in the interest of reform, had nothing to do with the omission of this important matter by the board, not even by calling attention to the omission, so it strikes us that the Bulletin's comments are rather severe, for how can they be blamed if they don't know that 72 cents per folio is just 22 cents more for each and every folio, and that 72 cents per folio for proceedings as against nothing per folio is just 72 cents more for each and every folio than the tax payers need to have paid? The only ugly look about it that we can see is in the fact that even before the bids were opened they concluded that an apology for their vote was necessary, and so had one all ready to spring, just as they would have done if they had got together beforehand and agreed to vote for the Times, anyhow! Of course they could not have done that, for that would have been one of those "ugly jobs" they used be so angry against, and swore to spill their last drop of blood to "drown out." The county printing is likely to cost the tax payers this year far more than ever before, and certainly double what it need to had the lowest bid been accepted, and if the thing had not been done through these latter day reformers we should have been of the opinion that the whole busines was clearly a put up job from beginning to end.

At the adjourned meeting of Col. Cobham Post held at the Post H'dq'rs in I. O. O. F. Block, on Friday evening, Jan. 8th, the following officers were installed by Past Commander T. A. Harris:

I. U. JENNINGS	Commander.
J. O. SERGEANT	Sen. Vice "
H. E. COOKE	Jun. Vice "
B. F. ZARRACHER	Officer of the Day.
J. E GREENHALGH	" " Guard.
C. H. MIX	Chaplain.
S. L. STOWE	Surgeon.
O. H. LUCKEN	Quartermaster.
COMRADE SCHMIDT	Q. M. Sergeant.
V. D. CARRUTH	Adjutant.
WM. KISTENMACHER	Sergeant Major.

Upon giving up the chair to the commander elect the retiring commander, Louis Fontaine, made a few remarks in which he complimented the boys for faithful attendance during the past year, thanked them for their universal courtesy and good behaviour and urged them to be as loyal to his successor, told them that without the active, hearty co-operation of the members of the Post the commander could do nothing, but if each member does his part the result will be an active Post. After three hearty cheers for Past Commander Fontaine, the new Commander, I. U. Jennings, made a few well-chosen remarks in which he pledged himself to earnest endeavor in behalf of the Post and urged the comrades to aid him in every way. He read "The Old Canteen," and closed the business session, opening up on the social degree.

RAILS FOR THE CAMP FIRE.

The comrades, upon assembling in the evening were greeted with a box of Brown's best bearing the legend: "Comrade Geo. Truax." The comrades at once remembered the recent marriage of Comrade Truax and immediately commenced to discuss the cigars and to wish Comrade Truax abundant happiness, trusting that he may never have occasion to be sorry he enlisted. THE JOURNAL was appointed a committee of one to pass the cigars to an absent comrade in the far west.

Comrade Coe, from Wm. Ketcham Post, Ada, was admitted to membership in Col. Cobham Post and the adjutant instructed to so notify him.

The comrades were pleased to greet comrade A. M. Childs and trust that he will come often.

Comrade Jennings reported the organization of a Woman's Relief Corps of 60 members, which, he said, was the largest organization ever mustered in in the State, larger than many organizations reach in several years. This announcement was greeted with ringing cheers.

The regular meeting occurs to-morrow evening, the 15th, and all comrades are urged to be in attendance to discuss business of importance. After the regular routine is disposed of there will be a social session devoted to army songs, army experiences and topics that always enlist the old soldiers' earnest attention.

Reclining Chair Cars.

If you intend going East of South via St. Paul and Chicago, why not take "The Burlington" day train from St. Paul and Minneapolis, and enjoy the beautiful scenery of the Upper Mississippi? This train has one feature not afforded by any other line between the Twin Cities and Chicago; it carries elegant reclining chair cars, which make the journey delightful, easy and comfortable, and no extra charge is made to those occupying seats in them. Insist on the agent giving you tickets via 'The Burlington"—C., B. & N. R. R.—and take no others.

Good Market For Oats

Having had a fine oat crop swept away by hail in few minutes time we are obliged to buy oats to supply our farm teams, and we will be glad to pay the highest market price to any who are owing us several years subscription. We shall need about 1000 bushels and will take them as fast as offered. Bring on your oats and get your receipts.

The Southern brigadier in Congress says Uncle Sam has done too much for the boys in blue already and they say they don't propose to stand any "more nonsense."

It has been intimated frequently that Doc. Fish is a whale. Recent events would seem to indicate the truth of the statement and, moreover, Donnelly seems to have been playing the Jonah act to Doc's whale.

Time was when "Me & Mike" was a flourishing St. Paul concern that gained some notoriety throughout the State. From the appearances of things it looks very like a "Me & Mike" society has been started in Crookston, since the new daily blossomed.

The Southern brigadier being in control in the lower house of Congress, the northern states get but little recognition on important committees. That is no more than might be expected, but it is amusing to see the democratic papers squirm. They have always howled about "oppressing our poor Southern brother," and now they have a dose they don't relish.

The southern brigadier is in the saddle again. In the democratic House it was decided that Uncle Sam is not rich enough to send the food contributions to the starving poor in Russia—you see Russia sided with the north against the south in the late unpleasantness and that makes a difference to the southern element in Congress—which is at present in control of the lower house of that body.

St. Paul Dispatch.

DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 11.—At the annual meeting of the Duluth & Winnipeg road officials a complete change in the management was made, of the utmost importance to Duluth and the Northwest. B. N. Baker, of Baltimore, is succeeded as president by A. W. Wright, of Saginaw, and the executive committee became Messrs. Wright and R. S. Munger, of Duluth. The road by these changes becomes thoroughly a Duluth affair, which it has not been during Baker's presidency. Additional money has been raised and a line is to be built at once directly west from Grand Rapids to and beyond Red River into the wheat country.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Jan. 5.—The new year is all a time for reckoning accounts and making out statements. In all Western cities it is customary to review the progress of the year just closed and give columns of figures that show the growth of the twelve months. Duluth newspapers have been either not as enterprising or not as ambitious this winter as usual, for up to date no annuals have been published and little attempt has been made to collect the statistics of the year. The figures in a few of the principal lines of business, however, are at hand. Bank clearings for the year were $106,824,193.99 against $104,572,349 81 in 1890, an increase of $2,251,845 68. Not a large increase, but very satisfactory, considering the fact that the business of one of the largest banks of the city, which failed in December, 1890, was absorbed by other banks, making a large loss business passing through the clearing house. In the amount of capital and surplus, deposits and loans, the banking business of the city showed a large increase, about 80 per cent. over that of the previous year. The records of the board of trade show that flour receipts for the year were 2,783,494 bbls, wheat receipts 40,501,106 bu., corn 299,291 bu., oats 570,442 bu., rye 15,652 bu., barley 160,492 bu., flax 490,690 bu. The receipts of flour and wheat, reducing the former to bushels, were 54,524,851 bu. As compared with 1890 flour receipts are 415,217 bbs. larger, and wheat receipts increased 25,159,644 bu. The increase of receipts at Minneapolis was only half that amount.

The shipments of flour were 3,452,494 bbls, and wheat 34,659,368 bu., or a total flour in bushels, of 50,195,391 bu. Of these shipments 3,220,273 bbls flour and 33,817,568 bu. wheat went by lake. Chicago lake shipments of flour were 1,684,011 bbls, and wheat 29,642,142 bu. In 1890 Duluth's flour shipments were 2,599,384 bbls, and wheat shipments 15,090,826 bu.

The year's flour production was 684,000 bbls, against 430,978 bbls in 1890, and 84,446 bbls in 1889. After January 16th the capacity of the mills will be more than doubled, running up to 6,500 a day. Next fall mills at the head of the lake will have a daily capacity of 11,000 bbls.

The report of Collector Johnson for the year makes the number of arrivals and clearances 2,895, an increase of 861 over 1890. The tonnage of the port was 3,268,031, an average tonnage to vessels of 1,125. In 1885 vessels arriving here averaged only 761 tons. Among the items of receipts were 778,962 tons coal, 206,971 bbls lime and cement, 33,318 tons building stone and lime, 137,621 bbls salt, and 270,174 tons merchandise. About 18 per cent of the real tonnage of Duluth is lost to the custom house records by the reporting at other ports and that percentage ought to be added to the figures given. Duluth and Superior together report the number of arrivals and clearances at 4,505 and the tonnage at 5,882,494 tons. There is a population at the head of the lake now of about 70,000. At the port of Chicago, with its population of 1,200,000, the arrivals and clearances were 20,237 and the tonnage 10,150,052, the latter being less than twice as large as the tonnage at the head of Lake Superior. Building permits issued by the city inspector were for 439 structures valued at $1,122,275. In addition to this valuation the expenditures on such buildings as the Lyceum, the Union Depot and the new High School, which took out permits last year and the extra expenditure on other structures, has been about $800,000. The new buildings in Lakeside, West Duluth and New Duluth outside the inspection limits number about 400, and are valued at about $1,200,000, making the total expenditures for the year about $3,125,000, and the total number 839. Last year 780 buildings were erected.

About 5 miles of streets were paved, and 12 miles graded, 65 miles of sanitary and 4 miles storm sewers, and 7½ miles sidewalk built. The total cost of this work was about $900,000 or $350,000 more than the amount expended the previous year. In street railway building, harbor improvements and railroad improvements within the city limits the expenditures were larger than for years, if not greater than ever before.

HAYS.

Minneapolis Tribune, Dec. 19th, 1891:—"Next week the Andrews Opera Company will present the two most popular comic operas of the day, "Mascotte" and "The Mikado," the former the first half of the week. During the past three weeks the audiences at the Lyceum have been large, which is an indication that the people have realized that the Andrews Opera Company is giving worthy and creditable performances. The Lyceum ought to be well filled next week. An excellent performance of the "Mascotte" can confidently be expected, for the company has already presented this opera here one night. As for "The Mikado," there can be no doubt but that it will be well done, for the characters are well suited to the principals of this company." Will be at the Grand Opera House, Crookston, one night only, Monday, Jan. 25th, 1892. Prices, $1.50, $1.00, 75c. and 50c. Seats on sale at Tom Morris' Monday, Jan. 18th. Come early and avoid the rush.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 7th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 18th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, executed and delivered by Ida D. Van Tuyl and John S. Van Tuyl, her husband, mortgagors, to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company," mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of November, 1889, with a power of sale therein contained, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1889, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in book 51 of mortgages, on page 265, and whereas said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars and interest thereon from its said date at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, due and payable on the first day of January in each year. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable January 1st, 1891, and default having also been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable on January 1st, 1892, and both of said defaults still continue, and no part of said principal has ever been paid. And whereas the conditions of said mortgage are such that if default be made in the payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage or interest thereon when the same becomes due, then the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall thereupon become due and payable at once.

And whereas both by the terms of said mortgage and the election of said mortgagee hereby made the whole amount secured by said mortgage both principal and interest accrued to this date is now due and payable.

And the amount now claimed to be due and which is due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage, including interest in accordance with the terms of said mortgage is the sum of six hundred and ninety-nine and 93-100 dollars. And no action or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained which by reason of the defaults aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit:. The west half of the southeast quarter and the east half of the southwest quarter, both of the above described tracts being in Section ten (10), Township one hundred and forty nine (149), Range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and containing 160 acres of land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on Tuesday, the 23d day of February 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy and pay the amount which will then be due upon said mortgage according to the terms thereof, and interest and fifty dollars attorney's fees as provided by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 4th, 1892.

A POPULAR FAMILY.

JENNIE: "How is it, Kate, that you always seem to 'catch on' to the last new thing? Do what I may, you always seem to get ahead of me."

KATE: "I don't know: I certainly do not make any exertion in that direction."

JENNIE: "Well, during the last few months, for example, you have taken up painting, without any teacher; you came to the rescue when Miss Lafargo deserted her Delsarte class so suddenly, and certainly we are all improving in grace under your instruction; I heard you telling Tommy Eames last evening how his club made mistakes in playing baseball; you seem to be up on all the latest 'fads,' and know just what to do under all circumstances; you entertain beautifully; and in the last month you have improved so in health, owing, you tell me, to your physical culture exercises. Where do you get all of your information from in this little out-of-the way place?—for you never go to the city."

KATE: "Why, Jennie, you will make me vain. I have only one source of information, but it is surprising how it meets all wants. I very seldom hear of anything new but what the next few days bring me full information on the subject. Magic? No! Magazine! And a great treasure it is to us all; for it really furnishes the reading for the whole household: father has given up his magazine that he has taken for years, as he says this one gives more and better information on the subjects of the day; and mother says that it is that that makes her such a famous housekeeper. In fact, we all agree that it is the only really FAMILY magazine published, as we have sent for samples of all of them, and find that one is all for men, another all for women, and another for children only, while this one suits every one of us; so we only need to take one instead of several, and that is where the economy comes in, for it is only $2.00 a year. Perhaps you think I am too lavish in my praise; but I will let you see ours, or, better still, send 10 cents to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a sample copy, and I shall always consider that I have done you a great favor; and may be you will be cutting us out, as you say we have the reputation of being the best informed family in town." If that be so, it is Demorest's Family Magazine that does it."

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Jan. 11.—Judge Start has just decided a case of great local interest, and one which covers a new point—the right of a street railway company to condemn a right of way. The Motor Line Improvement Company a year or more ago built a line to Woodland Park, out Woodland avenue, a new street partly opened through two or three additions, in which W. E Richardson and his partners were the owners. It was found that the grade through these additions was too steep for economical operation, and the company surveyed and built a new farther east. This new line passed through property owned by Mr. Richardson, who got out a restraining order. This was dissolved and the company went ahead with the work. The decision was appealed to the Supreme Court, and Judge Mills, of the District Court, holding that the appeal left the restraining order in force until a decision was given by the higher court, fined the company for contempt. The company appealed from this fine, and the appeals are still pending. In the meantime the company has completed and is operating the line. It also began condemnation proceedings, and Judge Start has just decided that a street railway company can condemn for its necessary purposes under the right of eminent domain, in this respect placing it upon the same footing as the ordinary railway company as a common carrier.

The banking business in Duluth the past year was a most prosperous one, and the condition of all banks at the close of the year shows a most satisfactory growth in every direction. There was an immense amount of business added through the great wheat trade of the year. Only two of Duluth's banks are large enough to handle this great business. There is room here for more banking capital, especially in large banks. All banks in the city paid good dividends and all have added a large amount to their surplus. Two institutions increased their capital during the year and one new bank, in the West End, was started. The condition of the nine banks and the Loan and Trust company, which does a banking business, on the first day of January, as compared with a year ago, is shown by the following figures: Capital, $2875,000, increase for the year $400,000; surplus and undivided profits, $704,500, increast $218,000; deposits, $3,914,325, increase about $400,000; loans $5,987,381, increase about $800,000.

The Benton Transportation company of Bismarck, is considering the wisdom of building a large elevator here. If it should conclude to do so, it will make this city its headquarters. HAYS.

St. Hilaire Spectator:—S. M. Dainard returned last Saturday from Crookston with a new team of horses which he had bought while away. A look into Sam's stables these days would lead one to believe that he was trying to work a corner on the stock market.

St. Hilaire Spectator:—Emil Holmes returned last Monday from Goodhue county where he had been spending the holidays with his relatives and his best girl. While at Crookston he left his grip to go and see a man, and a tramp walked off with it. He takes the loss of the grip very hard as it was full of Christmas presents that his girl had made him. The Crookston police were notified but could not find the thief.

Council Proceedings.

Proceedings of a regular meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston held in the city hall on Tuesday evening January 12th, 1892.

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present—Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Alderman absent—Marshall, Steenerson.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The committee to whom was referred the matter of Mrs. Blanchard for damages done by water overflow on her property, reported that the City is not responsible and therefore recommended that no action be taken.

On motion the report was accepted and the committee discharged.

Report of Justice Spendley was read.

Report of the chief of police on the number of hours the electric lights were out during the past two months was presented.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman McGlogan, that the chief of police be instructed to make his report relating to the electric lights immediately after the date on which the Crookston Water Works Power & Light Co. present the semi-annual bill, and to present it to the comptroller so that he may have both bills before him for auditing. Carried.

A communication was read from the Crookston Water Works Power & Light Co. relating to electric light.

On motion the report of the chief of police on the electric lights for the three months ending Dec. 31st was referred to the finance committee with instructions to deduct the amount necessary from bill for the nights that the lights were not burning.

On motion the resignation of H. Larson as constable was accepted.

Alderman Jennings excused.

Two applications were presented to fill the vacancy of constable and were from T. B. McManus and O. Ducharme.

On motion the constable was elected by ballot.

5 ballots were taken before there was any choice. On the fifth ballot O. Ducharme was declared elected as constable.

The finance committee reported favorable upon the following bills:

The fence committee held bills No. 803, 815, 818 and 819 in abeyance.

On motion the report was accepted and adopted.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Jerome, that the President of the council, chairman of the finance committee and the city treasurer be instructed to wait upon the county treasurer and request him to turn over all moneys in his hands belonging to the city to the city treasurer. Carried.

The city engineer presented a bill of $137 for assistance and surveying in making the maps of the city.

On motion the bill was referred to the finance committee and the comptroller with instructions to report at the next regular meeting.

The question of granting Fred Sargent a license to sell liquor for a term of one year from the date of his application was then brought up.

Remarks were heard from Attorney Stanton in favor of granting the license.

The city attorney gave his opinion that the council had no right to grant it for a year from the date of his application.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Marlette, that the city attorney be requested to submit the question of (has the council power to grant a license for one year running from any date within the fiscal year) to the Attorney General for his decision and that the license in question be held in abeyance until the report is obtained.

Upon the call of ays and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Childs, Marlette.

Aldermen voting in the negative—Bunn, Jerome, McGlogan, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Motion declared lost.

Moved by Alderman Walker, seconded by Alderman Schmidt, that Mr. F. Sargent be granted a license to sell liquors for the term of one year from the date of his application, upon the payment of the sum of $500 to the city treasurer. Carried.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Walker that the city attorney be instructed to ascertain the Attorney General's opinion as to whether the council has the power to grant a license for the term of one year running from a date within the fiscal year. Carried.

Alderman Jerome excused.

Alderman Childs offered the following ordinances relating to houses of ill-fame:

At a regular meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston held the 12th day of January, 1892, Alderman Childs offered the following ordinance:

AN ORDINANCE

Relating to disorderly houses within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston:

The city council of the city of Crookston do ordain:

Sec. 1. Any person or persons who shall within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston, keep a disorderly house for the practice of fornication, or for the resort of persons of evil name or fame, or who shall commit or suffer to be committed therein any immoral, immodest or other improper conduct or behavior, or any tippling, reveling, rioting or disturbance, calculated to disturb the neighbors or annoy travelers of the general public, and all persons who resort to such disorderly house shall, on conviction thereof before any justice of the peace of said city, be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution or by imprisonment not to exceed ninety days at the discretion of said justice of the peace.

Sec. 2. No person or persons within the limits of the city of Crookston, shall commit or suffer to be committed in any house or other building or premises by him, her or them occupied, any rioting, quarreling, fighting, reveling, drunkenness, or and other disorderly conduct, calculated to disturb the neighborhood or annoy travelers, or the general public; and any person or persons violating any of the provisions of this section of this ordinance, shall on conviction thereof before any justice of the peace of said city be punished by a fine not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution, or by imprisonment not to exceed ninety days as to the discretion of said justice may seem just.

Sec. 3. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in so much as they may be inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Sec. 4. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval, publication and recording.

At a regular meeting of the City Council of the city of Crookston, held the 12th day of January, 1892, Alderman Childs offered the following ordinance:

AN ORDINANCE

Relating to houses of ill-fame within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston:

The city council of the city of Crookston do ordain:

Sec. 1. Any person or persons who shall within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston, keep a house of ill-fame, or house resorted to for the purpose of prostitution and lewdness; and all persons, male or female, who resort to such house of ill-fame, shall on conviction thereof before a justice of the peace of said city, be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars, or imprisonment not to exceed ninety days, at the discretion of said justice of the peace.

Sec. 2. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to demise, let or hire, any house or other building, buildings or premises within the limits of the city of Crookston, to any person or persons for any of the purposes mentioned in the first section of this ordinance, and if any person shall knowingly offend against this section of this ordinance, he, she or they, upon conviction thereof, before a justice of the peace of said city, shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution for every such offense.

Sec. 3. Any person, male or female, who shall, within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston, resort to any house of ill-fame for the purposes of prostitution or to associate with a prostitute or prostitutes, or who shall procure another to resort to any house of ill-fame for the purpose of prostitution or to associate with prostitutes shall, for each such offence on conviction thereof before a justice of the peace of said city, be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution or by imprisonment in the city jail not more than thirty days in the discretion of said justice.

Sec. 4. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in so much as they may be inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Sec. 5. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval, publication and recording.

Alderman McGlogan moved to amend them, that $25 be substituted where the $50 appeared.

On motion the report of Justice Spendley was referred to the finance committee.

Alderman Schmidt offered an ordinance relating to the fire department of the city of Crookston, which was passed.

On motion Council adjourned.

City Clerk.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1892.

Two matters have been of interest in Congress for a week. One was Governor and Senator Hill, who seemed to absorb the Democratic minority in the Senate as thoroughly as he had absorbed the Executive, Legislative and Judicial Departments of New York, and the other was the Russian relief fund resolution in the House.

Governor Hill promptly took his place as a leader. There is no further question as to his standing in the Democratic party of the country. In New York he has been a dictator of Democracy for years. His national ascendancy begins with the Congress. It is assured. If there is any Democratic nomination he wants this year, he can have it. If he wishes to have the party nomination for President go west this year—to Palmer, of Illinois, for instance—it will go west. The Democratic party is this man's slave, to-day, as much as it was slavery's slave a generation ago. He has shown that he can win, in one field and that is enough. What the Democracy wants is to win. Theirs is the man's advice to his son—"Get money; honestly if you can; but get money."

The other subject of interest—the Russian relief resolution—is one that appeals to every patriot in the country. It was simply for the Government to charter a vessel to carry Northwestern contributions to starving Russians. There was no "job" in it. The Russians were starving, the millers had given the flour, and the United States was asked to furnish the transportation. The Senate passed the resolution, but the House rejected it. This is a revival of the "war spirit" with a vengeance. Russia is the one historical friend of the United States—aided the Colonies in 1776, and had a fleet in American from 1862 to 1865 to assist the nation if England or France or any other European Government should recognize the Confederacy. The Confederacy, represented in the House by the Democracy, is even with Russia now. But what sort of Americanism is this sort of Democracy? The United States carried food to suffering people in Ireland and used a Government vessel to carry Lafayette to France in 1824. But for feeling in the Southern Democracy to-day, growing out of Russia's attitude during the civil war, the same graceful and patriotic action would have been taken as to the Russian relief fund.

It is impossible to say what Governor Hill would have had the House do with the Russian relief resolution if he had taken charge of the Democracy at Washington a few days sooner. He was not in time. As it is, the two events of the week were Democratic, un-American and unpatriotic. The man who filched a State Government took his seat on the Democratic side of the Senate, and the historical and traditional friend of the United States among the nations was deliberately slighted in the Democratic House.

Questions are raised as to the honesty of the Administration of only two bureaus of the Government during President Harrison's three years of service. The Pension office is attacked, but chiefly if not entirely because of the present Commissioner's unpopularity. There is no charge against the office that involves improper use of government money. There will probably be an investigation, and if the Commissioner is shown to be unworthy he will go, as any unworthy person should go from public position. In the other case the Census Bureau is assailed. Extravagance is charged, and there are allegations that the New York City Democracy did not have a "fair count." This latter charge is serious only because of the reputation as counters that the New York men have who make the charge. But the Census Office will be investigated, as the Pension Office will, by the Democratic House.

Hill's Program.

Cleveland Leader.

Ex-Governor Hill, in his recent bid for the democratic nomination for President, expressed the opinion that the wisest course for the democrats to pursue was only to pass such bills in the democratic house this winter as "will cost the republican party final overthrow in the next congressional and presidential elections." In other words, the popular branch of Congress is to be managed as a political machine entirely, for the benefit of a political party. Nothing is to be done this winter unless it will injure the republican party. Every measure that comes up for consideration is to be scrutinized with regard to its political effect. Financial matters, the tariff, legislation affecting the courts, the army and navy, and our intercourse with other nations, must all be considered from a narrow, partisan standpoint. If a proposed act will injure the republican party, it will be passed and the administration will be blamed for it; or, if it is thought that its defeat will make democratic capital, it will be passed in the house and sent to the senate to make the republican party responsible for defeating it. Traps and mines are to be set and sprung, the time of men, supposed to be statesmen, will be devoted to a series of plots and counter plots; a chaos of complications, a warfare of cabals, is to be inaugurated. Principles are to be thrown to the winds and the government left to take care of itself to allow free scope to the democratic lust for office. As in the heat of a fiercely fought battle, when law and all questions of right are suspended and every energy is bent upon taking life, so in this fight for power every democratic congressman is to sink his convictions of duty to his constituents, to disregard all claims of statesmanship, to scheme and plot solely to gain some advantage over his political opponents. This is modern democracy. This is the doctrine upon which the south has been made solid, northern states made democratic by gerrymanders, and the senate of New York stolen.

Crookston, January 21, 1892.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 70.

2 Northern 64.
3 Northern 61.

S. M. McKee has returned from Michigan.

The little two-year-old boy of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hooper died on Monday.

J. P. Marcum has gone to Iona to attend the funeral of his father.

Frank Brown has accepted a position in the office of Lee & Herrick's mill.

During the cold snap the water-pipes at Fontaine & Anglim's bursted causing some damage to goods.

Geo. Vine gets another carload of hogs from below this week. For choice meats of all kinds go to Vine's Robert street meat market.

Frank Barnum is walking on stilts this week. When asked the cause he remarked: "'That wife of mine' will be here on Sunday morning next."

A wreck occurred in the Carman yard last week by which two cars, loaded with wheat, were smashed and a delay of several hours occasioned to the down passenger train.

The Crookston Musical Society will meet at the residence of Mr. Thomas Adams, on Oak street, Friday evening next. The society desires to add to its number about twenty-five more voices before proceeding with the drill, and it is hoped that all who can sing will be present at the above time.

Fred Durand, Marsh Barber, Sam. Rosenthal and O. J. Barnes went out to one of Walker's logging camps last week to breathe in a little of the ozone that doth much abound in these parts. They returned on Saturday evening without much game to show for the trip—but then it ain't that time of year.

An accident occurred on the Northern Pacific Railroad near Brainerd last week, by which a sleeper containing the Andrews opera company was wrecked, killing Mrs. Ed. Andrews and her maid and wounding several of the troupe seriously. The car was thrown from the track by a broken rail, went over an embankment, took fire and the bodies were nearly consumed before they could be taken out. Owing to this accident the company can not appear here as previously advertised.

Regular services at the Congregational church next Sunday. Rev. R. H. Battey will preach morning and evening. Morning subject—"How to Increase Spiritual Power in Our Churches." Evening subject—"The Golden Scepter." A very cordial welcome is extended to all. All are requested to be prompt. There will be a decided gain both in the pleasure and profit of both morning and evening service if the people will plan to come into the church at least five minutes before the hours of service, 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

McKenzie of the Times was making a great kick last week over the expense of his new daily. We sympathize with Mac. deeply, and to help him bear the expense of publishing his daily we will turn over to him our circular relating to "green goods" thus affording him an opportunity to rake in $20,000 on an expenditure of only $1,000. That $19,000 would run your daily a long time—Eh, "thanks," did you say? Oh, don't mention it! This, with the extra amount the board assessed the taxpayers ought to float your daily awhile yet.

We are informed that Rev. R. H. Battey has bought "The Message" of Rev. F. C. Whitney, and will enlarge the field and sphere of usefulness of this paper. Mr. Battey has had experience in editorial work, and readers of The Message, we predict, may look out for quite a stirring up to good words and works. One decided improvement will be made at the very beginning of Mr. Battey's handling of The Message, and that is it will be run in the interest of all the churches and their good work, instead of as the organ of Baptist churches, as heretofore. Mr. Battey will bring out his first issue about February 1st.

The fire bell called the department out at 7 o'clock on Monday morning to attend to an incipient blaze in the old Markham building, now occupied by Mr. Tibesar as a meat market. The rooms above were occupied as a residence by Mrs. Newland and Mrs. E. E. Bangs lives there. The family were about getting up when the fire broke out, and escaped—some of them en dishabille with the thermometer ranging down among the forties. The building was saved with slight damage, though considerable damage was done to the household effects by water. It was fortunately discovered in time to prevent the loss of life, though had no one been up it is hard to say what might not have happened as the fire caught right beneath the only means of egress for those living above. The fire evidently caught in a chimney.

The comrades of Col. Cobham Post discussed some of H. F. Brown's excellent cigars, at the Post meeting last Friday evening with the Junior Vice Commander. The boys always like to smoke Brown's cigars knowing them to be reliable in every instance.

The subscriptions to our relief fund do not roll in very fast but we have verbal promises for some more. As near as we can learn at present writing 1000 bushels of wheat, about 500 bushels of barley and from 1500 to 2000 bushels of oats will be required to relieve the most urgent cases. To us this looks like an extremely small amount to raise and yet we have less than 50 bushels of wheat pledged toward it. If the alliance should take hold of this matter in earnest the whole amount needed could be raised in very short order. In conversation with one of the victims on Monday he said to the writer: "If I had seed wheat for 150 acres, oats and barley for 50 and feed for my horses I believe I could pull through all right; but if I have to give seed grain notes for my seed it will be no use to try again as then I will have nothing to put up for provisions for my family." This man is one who has lost three crops in succession by blight and his last crop was completely swept away by hail leaving him nothing but a disposition to try again if he can get the seed and feed. We believe such men should be encouraged by all means. All who feel disposed to help can advise us of the fact and add their names to the list. Let us hear from you, friends.

The daily Times, in its issue of Saturday, comes valiantly to the rescue of DeMers and Stortroen from what it calls the attack of THE JOURNAL upon those two worthies, and charges us with using "mud batteries and abuse." If the simple statement that it was the votes of these two commissioners that obliges the taxpayers to pay two or three times as much for the printing as they need to have done is a "mud battery and abuse" THE JOURNAL pleads guilty, but we supposed the board of county commissioners were public servants, elected to transact business in the interest of people, and we had an idea that they were under oath to do it. If this is the case it is the right of every citizen to criticise the actions of their servants and it is the duty of every newspaper that, like THE JOURNAL desires to see the interests of the taxpayers protected, to protest against such jobs as this appears to be, and we propose to stand by the people against all the jobs of all the rings in Polk County. The people in some way got the idea that a great deal of public money was being used to bolster up political jobs and they elected Messrs. Stortroen and DeMers as much for the special purpose of guarding against such jobs as for any other purpose and how have they discharged that trust? Without knowing what the bids were to be they get up a resolution declaring the Times bid the lowest, declaring that THE JOURNAL and the Bulletin and the NoIntosh Times incapable of doing the work which is not in accordance with the facts as far as two of the papers are concerned as both of them have done the work in the past and either one alone could do it now if called upon. Moreover, they had given good and sufficient bonds to the county to do the work at less than half the Times bid and this fact makes them just as responsible bidders as the other parties. THE JOURNAL is not worrying over the loss of that work at those figures but the Times, with its daily issue must levy contribution everywhere in order to live. Now it is all right to publish a daily, if you publish a good one, and if it is a good one it is a benefit to the locality in which it is published and deserves support but those who support it ought to do it from choice and not be obliged to do it by an action of the county board. No doubt the commissioners thought the daily a good thing to have and deserving of patronage—and we do not say that a good daily is not all of that, for its locality, but the fact remains that a good responsible bid offered to do the printing for at least one half what the commissioners obliged the taxpayers to pay for it and we do not see how these two commissioners elected specially to protect the taxpayers against such jobs can give a satisfactory explanation of their action to their constituents.

Some more zero weather during the past week.

J. W. Wheeler returned last Saturday from a visit to Chicago and at once took his new position as cashier in the Scandia American Bank. Mr. W. has been with the 1st National bank for seven years is thoroughly posted in the duties of his position and the Scandia is to be congratulated upon securing his services.

Hallock Enterprise:—Attorney Wilkinson, of Crookston, was up on Thursday in the interests of Richard Russell, who has been buying out the interest of Fred Hughs. The mill now is owned wholly by Mr. Russell, and Thos. Kane will remain as manager. A miller is expected from Minneapolis on Monday and the manager says that when they start up again it means business. That is just what the people of this county will be pleased to see.

Postmaster W. B. Dawley furnishes THE JOURNAL the following report of the money order business done at Crookston post office for the year 1891. There were 1724 domestic money orders issued, amounting to $16,750.93, the fees on which were $248.48; 189 international money orders issued, amounting to $1,612.59, fees, $22.50; 1227 domestic money orders paid, amounting to $14,389.19; 93 international money orders paid, amounting to $3,431.56; 1594 postal notes issued, amounting to $1,576.84, fees $39.88; 745 postal notes paid amounting to $1,576.74; 12 money orders prepaid, making 5584 orders handled, amounting to $39,947.88, on whech the fees were $310.81. Our post-office seems to be in excellent hands and doing a land-office business.

On the evening of January 18th, at the residence of Hon. Halvor Steenerson in this city Levi S. Myers was united for life to Miss Sigri Ostby, of Vineland, the Rev. Mr. Hillman officiating. Levi is one of the leading grangers of Polk County and is also extensively engaged in the lumber business with headquarters for that business at Fosston. THE JOURNAL extends congratulations.

A company was organized in this city last week called "The Maple Lake and Land Improvement Co.," for the purpose of developing the resources of Maple Lake as a pleasure resort. The following officers were elected:

Capt. Griggs, of Grand Forks, President.
Max Ericsson, of Crookston, Vice "
W. G. Smith, of Grand Forks, Secretary.
W. C. Lee, of Crookston, Treasurer.

These officers, together with W. B. Dawley, of Crookston, and W. W. Attix, Jr., of Mentor, form the first board of directors. The company intends to build a hotel on the shore of the lake and keep a supply of boats and fishing tackle for the use of their guests. They are prepared also to sell lots to any who will build a cottage upon the lot. Connection by rail will be made with the Fosston line at or near Mentor. Prospects good for lots of fun at the lake next summer and hereafter.

At a meeting of Mentor Alliance, No. 594, Jan. 16th, 1892, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas it has pleased our all-wise Creator to remove from life one of our members, W. W. Attix,

Therefore be it resolved, that this Alliance has lost one of its most worthy members, and this community one of its best citizens.

Resolved, that this Alliance most sincerely feels his loss, and extends to his family our heartfelt sympathy.

Resolved that these resolutions be recorded in the minutes of this meeting.

HERE YOU HAVE IT!

"GREEN GOODS!"

A CHANCE TO MAKE A FORTUNE!

(IN A HORN!)

This Moth-eaten, Wormy Old Chestnut Again at the Front.

On Monday morning of this week the following "confidential" letter was received by THE JOURNAL man, but as he is already making too much money raising wheat and publishing a country newspaper, he has not time to make money so fast, so he generously offers the reading public the benefit of the "method," only adding that it is a swindle of the first water and yet there are many who would bite at it if not warned.

The clipping referred to is a statement that plates have been stolen that print money so accurately that no one can tell it from genuine, and this swindler means to insinuate that he is in possession of said plates:

CONFIDENTIAL.

DEAR SIR: I am desirous of obtaining a shrewd agent in your locality to handle my "goods." I enclose herewith a newspaper clipping, which gives all the information that could be desired and explains itself. Thinking you are in a position to handle my goods safely I have concluded to write you, and if you don't care to invest in this enterprise I hope you will excuse the liberty I have taken in making the proposition. I have a very superior article of the kind, in fact the best ever issued or put on the market; the sizes run from one to twenty. I warrant each and every note to be perfect as to paper, coloring, vignette, printing, engraving and signatures, and when made to appear as having been used or handled much, I defy the best bank clerk or expert to tell them from the genuine. It has cost me a great deal of time and money to perfect these goods and I have at last succeeded where many others failed, in producing the genuine fibre paper. My stock is now as neat and perfect as human skill can make it and absolutely no risk in using it. Remember, this is an article which will go anywhere and everywhere, leaving you a net profit of from ten to twelve hundred per cent, according to the amount you buy. These goods cannot be detected in the ordinary course of trade, and only in the Treasury at Washington through the duplication of the numbers, and not then if the genuine bill of the same number is still is circulation so that they are really as good as gold. Now, my friend, (as I will take the liberty of calling you) we are strangers to one another, but if you are desirous of handling these goods, and will come here to see me, you will find me a square white man in all my dealings, as my manner of doing business will show. It is as follows: When you come here I will show you my entire stock, compare them with the genuine and in fact submit them to any test you see fit, before you pay me a single dollar, then after you are thoroughly satisfied on every point, you can select whatever sizes you want and pay cash for your purchase, and carry the goods home with you. Now, my friend, to do this business safely, it must be done "face to face;" experience has taught me that this is the only absolutely safe way to transact this business, and most satisfactory for us both. When you come here you can see me and what you are buying, and I can see and judge the man I am to place confidence in for future business, besides it is absolutely necessary that I should see you on our first deal, as there are some few secrets pertaining to the business and necessary to success which I don't care to put in writing, and is only imparted to a customer "by word of mouth" at a personal interview, as a customer only has the same interest I have in keeping these private matters to himself. Remember, I do not ask or expect to be paid one cent till you have the goods in your possession. Do not ask me to send goods by mail or express as it is not a safe way for either of us; it is better to be sure and safe than to transact business of this nature in a careless manner. Now, my friend, if you wish to make a deal with me, do not hesitate too long over the matter, it is always best to be among the first than one of the last to take hold of a thing of this kind. If you will come on at once I can guarantee you a clear field to work in, and if I am satisfied at a personal interview that you would make me a good agent, I may offer you more liberal inducements to take the State agency and make you a special rate for any deal over $20,000. If you have not the money to buy my goods, I would consent to your taking in some confidential friend in with you who has, provided, however, he is trustworthy and could keep the secret, you could then both come on together and and make the deal, however you would be very foolish to take any one in with you if you could raise enough money yourself. You can make money faster and easier by dealing in my goods than you ever dreamed of before in your life. You are bound to be successful—there can be no such thing as fail. An opportunity like this to make an independent fortune in a short time, and at a comparatively small investment is well worth a favorable consideration and should not be rejected hastily from conscientious scruples or otherwise. B [illegible] was never intended that one man should have millions and another nothing. The wealth and good things of this world are too unevenly distributed; others have grown rich around you, but they were not slow to grasp opportunities, and unless you have money enough to live comfortably on for the rest of your days, this is just the business you want to take hold of, as the goods can be handled with perfect safety and immense profit to yourself, and enable you to provide a competency for your old age and pass your remaining years in ease and comfort. No wrong in it—Uncle Sam has millions of our money locked up in the Treasury, uselessly and unjustly so. I know that you have some distance to come, but considering the tremendous profits and no risks whatever, it is well worth the slight inconvenience of a journey here, and as far as expenses are concerned I will make a liberal allowance to cover them, and I promise if you do not find the goods just as represented, or should you upon any reasonable pretext whatsoever decline to consummate a trade, I guarantee to refund you your entire expenses, from the time you leave home till you return, and make a liberal allowance for loss of time, inconvenience to business, etc. Now, sir, your own good sense should tell you I can have no object in misrepresenting my goods and bringing you here on a fool's errand, and do not, because I am in this line of business, doubt my word or consider me otherwise than meaning you well, as you are not asked to invest a single dollar till you have seen, examined and are thoroughly satisfied in every respect, and have the goods in your own possession. My terms are: Three hundred dollars buys three thousand in my goods. Four hundred dollars buys five thousand; five hundred dollars buys seven thousand; six hundred and fifty dollars buys ten thousand, and one thousand dollars buys twenty thousand.

Three thousand for three hundred dollars is the very smallest amount I will sell under any circumstances. I will give you the "State right," that is, the sole privilege of handling the goods throughout your State, if you invest from six hundred and fifty dollars and upwards. Remember, I sell my goods so cheaply on the first deal in order to give my customers a fair start and build up a trade, and on all after deals, which surely follow, I charge 25 cents on the dollar. I will not do a retail trade, as thereby it would let too many into the business and its secrets. Now, sir, when you have fully made up your mind and prepared to come on obey the following instructions, and do only just as I tell you; be guided by my experience and advice and you will do just right.

1. Do not as long as you live ever write me a letter; if you do I shall refuse to receive it, and furthermore all business relations between us will cease. Don't forget this, and remember I mean exactly what I say.

2. When ready to come and see me, send me a telegraph despatch and say in it:

("Everything satisfactory on Hat." 515.)

Do not sign your name to despatch, as I will know it is from you, if you send the despatch exactly as it is worded above. Simply sign John, Jack, William or any other name.

On receipt of your telegram, I will immediately send you simple and plain instructions how to see and know me, and I will appoint a place of meeting at some hotel, in some town within 50 miles of this city. If I am alive I will surely meet you. Don't attempt to come on to find me without first telegraphing to me for instructions. Send telegrams, which will be promtly received, to the enclosed address.

I hope you will take no offense at the above, if you do not like the business, and I will trust in your honor not to do me any harm. Please destroy this letter. Yours respectfully and in strict confidence.

Parlez-Vous Francais?

If you don't, there certainly have been times when you wished that you could; and if you are anxious to learn to read and speak French, you should have the splendid article "French Without a Master," by Prof. A. de Rougemont of Chautauqua University, published in Demorest's Family Magazine for February. With the definite and practical instructions given in it, one cannot fail to acquire an accurate knowledge of French in an astonishingly short time. But this is not the only attraction of this superb number of this typical Family Magazine. The numerous illustrations, including a lovely phototint of "Cupid and Psyche," are simply splendid; the stories are of excellent merit. "At the Home of a Florida 'Cracker,'" handsomely illustrated, will interest everybody; "The Home of a Specialist," with numerous illustrations, furnishes practical and artistic ideas for building and furnishing a home; and "A Small Garden, and What It Produced," gives just the information needed by those who have little ground, and yet like fresh vegetables. As usual, there is something in this number for everybody, and everything is of the best; and this number is only a sample of what is furnished twelve times a year, for $2. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 E. 14th St., New York City.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE, 1892.

True and tried friends are always welcome, consequently "Vick's Floral Guide" is sure of a warm reception, especially when dressed as daintily as this year. The "Nellie Lewis" Carnation on the front of cover, and "Brilliant Poppies" on the back, are unusually attractive, and the numerous colored plates of flowers and vegetables are certainly works of art and merit. The first twenty-four pages, printed in violet ink, describe Novelties and Specialties. Send ten cents to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., and procure a copy of this attractive and useful catalogue. It costs nothing as the ten cents can be deducted from the first order.

The February Peterson is one of the handsomest and best of the month's magazines. It opens with a showy fashion plate and fine full page engravings, one of which, "The Belated Valentine," illustrates a very beautiful poem by Minna Irving. "Up and Down East Anglia," by Roslyn K. Brooke, is an interesting account of English Norfolk and Suffolk with a series of excellent illustrations. "An Involuntary Elopement," by Carrie B. Morgan, is a dramatic story of western life effectively illustrated. Another capitally illustrated paper is "The Children's Fancy Dress Party," which gives clear directions for making the costumes at a small cost. "His Mistake," by Kate Wallace Clements, is a charming story. "The Confusion of Philosophy" will add to Alice Maud Ewell's rapidly growing reputation. "Folk Lore of Colored People," by Mrs. E. A. Matthews, is a very charming paper. The remainder of the contents are in keeping with the articles we have mentioned, and the whole get up of the number would do credit to a periodical double the price. Terms, two dollars a year. Address, Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Good Market For Oats

Having had a fine oat crop swept away by hail in few minutes time we are obliged to buy oats to supply our farm teams, and we will be glad to pay the highest market price to any who are owing us several years subscription. We shall need about 1000 bushels and will take them as fast as offered. Bring on your oats and get your receipts.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication, January 21st, 1892.]
[Last publication, March 3rd, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty and 16-100 dollars, interest which is due at the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Alphonse Paridis and Elmira Paridis, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of October, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of November, 1889, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 43 of mortgages, on page 52.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and forty-six and 82-100 Dollars, with interest on nine hundred and twelve ($912) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the 18th day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-east quarter (ne¼) of Section thirty-four (34) Town one hundred and fifty (150) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston in said County and State, on at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and forty-six and 82-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, January 21, 1892.

AN ORDINANCE

Relating to the Fire Department of the City of Crookston:

The City Council of the City of Crookston do ordain:

SECTION 1. That the organization in the city of Crookston known and designated as "Crookston Volunteer Fire Department," be and the same hereby is declared to be the duly authorized and legally constituted Fire Department of the city of Crookston:

SEC. 2. That said Fire Department shall be composed of all members of said organization in good standing according to the by-laws thereof, at the date of the passage of this ordinance, and such other persons as may from time to time comply with initiatory by-laws of said organization and become members thereof in accordance with the same.

SEC. 3. That said organization shall have the power to pass such by-laws, rules and regulations for the good order and efficient maintenance of the same as to the members thereof may seem necessary, and in such manner as they may deem advisable, and all by-laws, rules and regulations heretofore passed and now in force in such organization, in so much as they are not inconsistent with this or any ordinance of the city of Crookston heretofore passed or to be passed, or the laws of the State of Minnesota, shall have full power and effect in so much and to such extent as they apply to the individual concerns and efficiency of said Fire Department.

SEC. 4. It is hereby made the duty of said Fire Department to file with the city clerk of said city, within ten days after the passage of this ordinance, a list of all members thereof in good standing at the date of the passage of this ordinance, which list shall be certified to by the Secretary of said Department and countersigned by its Chief.

SEC. 5. It is hereby made the duty of said department, whenever a member thereof shall cease, either because of death, resignation, dismissal or otherwise, to belong thereto, to at once by its proper officer notify the city clerk of said city; and upon such notification the said clerk shall strike from the list of members of such organization the name of such member so retiring.

SEC. 6. It is further made the duty of said department by its proper officers to, within a reasonable time thereafter, present to the clerk the name or names of any and all persons who may comply with the regulations of said department, and join the same after the passage of this ordinance, and thereupon the said clerk shall annex such name or names to the list of the members of said department.

SEC. 7. That the officers of said department shall consist of a chief, to be appointed by the city council, and such other officers as to the members of such department may seem necessary.

SEC. 8. The chief of said department shall have general supervision of the same, and of all apparatus and other material used by or in connection with said department; provided, the said department may require such other and further duties of the said chief as to the members thereof may seem meet.

SEC. 9. That all fire apparatus and paraphanelia used and required for the purpose of quelling any conflagration, shall, and the same is hereby ordered to be kept in that portion of the first floor of the city hall of said city of Crookston, fronting on Broadway, in said city; and it is hereby made a misdemeanor for any person than the janitor of said building or the duly authorized members of said fire department, to remove, meddle or in any wise interfere with said fire apparatus, and any person found guilty of a violation of this section of this ordinance, before any Justice of the Peace of said city, shall be fined not less than one or more than one hundred dollars, and may be imprisoned until such fine and costs are paid.

SEC. 10. It is hereby ordained that the bell known as the fire alarm bell, and hanging in the bell tower upon the city hall of the city of Crookston, be and the same hereby is constituted the lawful fire alarm of the city of Crookston.

SEC. 11. It is hereby made the duty of all members of said fire department, to respond without delay to the fire alarm of said city whenever the same may be sounded in giving alarm of fire; provided, however, that upon reasonable excuse shown any member may be excused from responding to said alarm.

SEC. 12. As remuneration for services as aforesaid as firemen, each of the members of said fire department shall receive for any response to said fire alarm by him actually made, the sum of two dolars for every such response; provided further, that before any bill for response to said alarm shall be paid to said department, the same shall be duly certified by the Chief thereof, which verification shall include the names of each member present, and presented in the same manner as ordinary bills are presented to the city council of said city.

SEC. 13. If any person shall, at any fire, refuse to obey the orders of the chief of said fire department or other officers vested with authority at such fire, such person may be arrested by the direction of the officer whose orders are so disobeyed, and upon complaint made before the City Justice of said city, shall be punished by a fine not to exceed fifty dollars and costs of prosecution and may be imprisoned until such fine and costs are paid.

SEC. 14. It is further provided that any person or persons furnishing a team of horses in response to any alarm of fire, for the purpose of aiding in the removal of fire apparatus from its repository to the location of any fire, and who does actually so aid in said removal, shall be remunerated as follows, viz: For the first team so aiding the sum of four dollars for each response; for the second team two dollars and for the third team one dollar; provided, however, none of the persons supplying aforesaid teams shall be entitled to any remuneration for aforesaid services unless said teams shall also assist in reconveying said apparatus to its place of keeping; and all bills for services in this section specified shall be presented in the same manner as is provided for the presentation of bills in Section 12 of this ordinance.

SEC. 15. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in so much as they may be inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

SEC. 16. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval, publication and recording.

Upon the call of ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Childs, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the President of the Council.

Passed this 12th day of Jan., 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 13th day of Jan., 1892.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Mrs. Loren Fletcher Suddenly Taken This Morning.

St. Paul Daily News.

At 5 o'clock this morning Mrs. Loren Fletcher died, at the family residence in Minneapolis, after a short illness of capillary bronchitis. She had been in very poor health for several months, but the malady which brought death did not appear until very recently.

Mrs. Fletcher, as Miss Ameret J. Thomas, was married to Loren Fletcher in 1856 in Bangor, Me., and in 1857 they came to Minneapolis, which has been their home since. For thirty years the lady has been an earnest communicant of Gethsemane Episcopal Church, and while arrangements have not yet been made finally, the funeral will probably be from the church, with interment in Lakewood, beside the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher, which died 17 years ago, at the age of seven years.

Mrs. Estes, Mrs. Fletcher's mother, now almost 84 years old, is quite ill at her dead daughter's house, and her recovery is hardly probable.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-two and 49-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Eugene Boulie and Melvina Boulie, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the twentieth day of August, 1890, at 3 o'clock p. m., in book 52 of mortgages, on page 393.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and ninety-six and 4-100 dollars (494.04), with interest on four hundred and eighty-one (481) dollars thereof, at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been institut d at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south half of the northwest quarter (s½ nw¼) and lots three (3) and four (4), all in Section two (2), of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of four hundred ninety-six and 4-100 dollars ($496.04) and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars Attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of forty-three and 25-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Napoleon Gonyea, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of November, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the third day of November, 1890, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 54 of mortgages, on page 343.

And whereas the said, The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred and fifty and 83-100 dollars ($650.83) with interest on six hundred and forty-two (642) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The west half of the northeast quarter (w½ ne¼) and the west half of the southeast quarter (w½ se¼) of section thirty (30), of Town one hundred and fifty (150) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and fifty and 83-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

[Last publication Feb. 18th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, executed and delivered by Ida D. Van Tuyl and John E. Van Tuyl, her husband, mortgagors, to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company," mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of November, 1889, with a power of sale therein contained, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1889, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in book 51 of mortgages, on page 205, and whereas said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars and interest thereon from its said date at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, due and payable on the first day of January in each year. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable January 1st, 1891, and default having also been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable on January 1st, 1892, and both of said defaults still continue, and no part of said principal has ever been paid. And whereas the conditions of said mortgage are such that if default be made in the payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage or interest thereon when the same becomes due, then the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall thereupon become due and payable at once.

And whereas both by the terms of said mortgage and the election of said mortgagee hereby made the whole amount secured by said mortgage both principal and interest accrued to this date is now due and payable.

And the amount now claimed to be due and which is due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage, including interest in accordance with the terms of said mortgage is the sum of six hundred and ninety-nine and 95-100 dollars. And no action or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained which by reason of the defaults aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: The west half of the southeast quarter and the east half of the southwest quarter, both of the above described tracts being in Section ten (10), Township one hundred and forty nine (149), Range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and containing 160 acres of land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on Tuesday, the 23d day of February, 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy and pay the amount which will then be due upon said mortgage according to the terms thereof, and interest and fifty dollars attorney's fees as provided by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Marshall County Banner: Blaine can get the nomination for President if he desires it. As an American citizen he has no equal. He has just arranged matters between Italy, also Chili and the United States, so there will be no war, and in both cases the United States has got the best of it. He is growing old, has served his country nearly all his life and the feeling seems to be universal that he should be honored by an election to the presidency as a fitting crown to his brilliant career.

Another Keeley Institute.

Duluth Evening Herald:—Messrs. Fred Reynolds, J. M. Smith and Pearsons, who have the state rights for New York for the Keeley cure for drunkenness, have just opened a new bichloride of gold institute at Westfield. Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present—Buhn, Marshall McGlogan, Schmidt, Walker, Steenerson, Cromb.

Aldermen absent—Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Marlette.

The call of the acting Mayor was as follows:

CROOKSTON, MINN., Jan. 19, 1892.

There will be a special meeting of the City Council at the city hall, on Wednesday, January 20th, 1892, at 7:30 p. m., to receive the report of the committee on the jail site, and to complete the purchase of the ground for same.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council,
Acting Mayor.

The committee on jail site reported as follows:

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 20, 1892.

To the President and Members of the City Council of the City of Crookston.

GENTLEMEN—Your committee on jail site, to whom was referred the purchasing of same, beg leave to report as follows: Your committee find it impossible to complete negotiations in the matter of payment for same.

Respectfully submitted,
A. C. SCHMIDT,
W. E. WALKER,
H. STEENERSON.

Moved by Alderman Marshall, seconded by Alderman McGlogan, that the report be accepted and adopted. Carried.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

Moorhead Weekly News:—J. P. Ray, of St. Paul, who travels for a wholesale cigar house, was at the Grand Pacific hotel yesterday. He told to friends there his experience in taking the Keeley remedy for cure of drunkenness at the St. Paul institute. Ray had been a confirmed drunkard, so far gone that he was on the verge of having the delerium tremens. He was so completely under the dominion of King Alcohol that he would put the glass to his lips when he was so drunk as to be obliged to steady himself against the bar. He is a man of good ability and a successful salesman, but on account of his use of ardent spirits and frequent and prolonged sprees, lost his place time and again. The Keeley treatment has destroyed his taste and desire for intoxicating drinks, and he avoids everything like Roman and cardinal punches, or ices flavored with wine, mince pie flavored with spirits, &c., that would have a tendency to create the appetite for strong drinks anew. He told a most interesting tale of his experience and expressed himself as having received so much benefit that it would be impossible to express its value in dollars and cents. In fact he said there was not wealth enough in America to tempt him to take a drink again.

Inquiries About Silver.

New York Press.

To the Editor of The Press:

SIR—Kindly state the difference between free coinage of silver and contrariwise; also, please, the advantages as claimed by the Democracy and the disadvantages as claimed by the Republicans.

L. D. M.

New York, Jan. 12.

The above is one of a number of similar questions received by The Press, and we hope that all the other inquirers will note our answer to this question. Free coinage of silver, as it is demanded by that controlling element of the Democracy which elected Speaker Crisp, means that if L. D. M. or any other man is able to go West and buy a silver mine he can bring the product of that mine to the United States mints and have it coined free of charge, so that he will make the profit on the coinage instead of the government's making it, as the government does now. Bar silver is now selling at 93¾ cents per ounce of 480 grains. That means that the 371.25 grains of pure silver which (with the 41.25 grains of alloy) are used in making a standard silver dollar, whose weight is 412.5 grains, are actually worth about 78 cents, and that under free coinage the silver owner could get a dollar for 78 cents' worth of his product.

A very good thing for the silver owner, for awhile, perhaps; but how would the rest of us fare, and how would even the silver owner fare under such "inflation"? The merchant wouldn't tell us that he would not take a legal tender dollar for more than 78 cents, but he could and would mark up his 78 cent goods to a dollar, and others in proportion, just as soon as the rush of silver to be coined free of charge had resulted in a circulation of a greatly increased number of silver dollars, and the advance of the gold dollar to a corresponding premium. The Democracy claims that that sort of inflation of the currency would bring business "expansion" and activity. But it would be the activity of fever and delirium. It would be as reasonable for a man with a flying machine to fly higher and higher notwithstanding the certainty that his machine would sooner or later collapse. The higher such a man flew, the worse he would get hurt when the drop came. The experience of business panics shows that the greater the "activity" and "expansion" of this speculative character, the more cruel the financial disaster that comes with the collapse.

Against that sort of silver financiering the Republicans urge that no silver be coined free until we have agreed with other nations as to a uniform ratio with the civilized world, in order to avoid the differences of valuation which would cause other nations to draw our gold away from us and speculate at our expense. The present American silver dollar is coined at a ratio of 1 to 16, or in other words we put sixteen times as much silver in a silver dollar as we put gold in a gold dollar. Other silver coining nations in Europe put fifteen and one-half times as much, and they are not willing to come to an agreement with us until we provide for the recoinage here at home of the $400,000,000 silver already coined. Such an agreement as we ought to seek would be best for 60,000,000 of ordinary citizens, because it would mean a steady and sound currency, and a dollar that was worth just as much when the workingman bought groceries with it on Monday as it was when he received it in his pay envelope on Saturday. But you can see that there would be no extra profit to the silver producer if what the government coined free of charge into a silver dollar were a full dollar's worth of silver. That is why he opposes the people who want to remove the danger of speculative panics.

Good Market For Oats

Having had a fine oat crop swept away by hail in few minutes time we are obliged to buy oats to supply our farm teams, and we will be glad to pay the highest market price to any who are owing us several years subscription. We shall need about 1000 bushels and will take them as fast as offered. Bring on your oats and get your receipts.

AN ORDIANCE

Relating to the Fire Department of the City af Crookston.

The City Council of the City of Crookston do ordain:

SECTION 1. That the organization in the city of Crookston known and designated as "Crookston Volunteer Fire Department," be and the same hereby is declared to be the duly authorized and legally constituted Fire Department of the city of Crookston.

SEC. 2. That said Fire Department shall be composed of all members of said organization in good standing according to the by-laws thereof, at the date of the passage of this ordinance, and such other persons as may from time to time comply with initiatory by-laws of said organization and become members thereof in accordance with the same.

SEC. 3. That said organization shall have the power to pass such by-laws, rules and regulations for the good order and efficient maintenance of the same as to the members thereof may seem necessary, and in such manner as they may deem advisable, and all by-laws, rules and regulations heretofore passed and now in force in such organization, in so much as they are not inconsistent with this or any ordinance of the city of Crookston heretofore passed or to be passed, or the laws of the State of Minnesota, shall have full power and effect in so much and to such extent as they apply to the individual concerns and efficiency of said Fire Department.

SEC. 4. It is hereby made the duty of said Fire Department to file with the city clerk of said city, within ten days after the passage of this ordinance, a list of all members thereof in good standing at the date of the passage of this ordinance, which list shall be certified to by the Secretary of said Department and countersigned by its Chief.

SEC. 5. It is hereby made the duty of said department, whenever a member thereof shall cease, either because of death, resignation, dismissal or otherwise, to belong thereto, to at once by its proper officer notify the city clerk of said city; and upon such notification the said clerk shall strike from the list of members of such organization the name of such member so retiring.

SEC. 6. It is further made the duty of said department by its proper officers to, within a reasonable time thereafter, present to the clerk the name or names of any and all persons who may comply with the regulations of said department, and join the same after the passage of this ordinance, and thereupon the said clerk shall annex such name or names to the list of the members of said department.

SEC. 7. That the officers of said department shall consist of a chief, to be appointed by the city council, and such other officers as to the members of such department may seem necessary.

SEC. 8. The chief of said department shall have general supervision of the same, and of all apparatus and other material used by or in connection with said department; provided, the said department may require such other and further duties of the said chief as to the members thereof may seem meet.

SEC. 9. That all fire apparatus and paraphernalia used and required for the purpose of quelling any conflagration, shall, and the same is hereby ordered to be kept in that portion of the first floor of the city hall of said city of Crookston, fronting on Broadway, in said city; and it is hereby made a misdemeanor for any person but the janitor of said building or the duly authorized members of said fire department, to remove, meddle or in any wise interfere with said fire apparatus, and any person found guilty of a violation of this section of this ordinance, before any Justice of the Peace of said city, shall be fined not less than one or more than one hundred dollars, and may be imprisoned until such fine and costs are paid.

SEC. 10. It is hereby ordained that the bell known as the fire alarm bell, and hanging in the bell tower upon the city hall of the city of Crookston, be and the same hereby is constituted the lawful fire alarm of the city of Crookston.

SEC. 11. It is hereby made the duty of all members of said fire department, to respond without delay to the fire alarm of said city whenever the same may be sounded in giving alarm of fire; provided, however, that upon reasonable excuse shown any member may be excused from responding to said alarm.

SEC. 12. As remuneration for services as aforesaid as firemen, each of the members of said fire department shall receive for any response to said fire alarm by him actually made, the sum of two dollars for every such response; provided further, that before any bill for response to said alarm shall be paid to said department, the same shall be duly certified by the Chief [illegible] which verification shall include the names of each member present, and presented in the same manner as ordinary bills are presented to the city council of said city.

SEC. 13. If any person shall, at any fire, refuse to obey the orders of the chief of said fire department or other officers vested with authority at such fire, such person may be arrested by the direction of the officer whose orders are so disobeyed, and upon complaint made before the Chief Justice of said city, shall be punished by a fine not to exceed fifty dollars and costs of prosecution, and may be imprisoned until such fine and costs are paid.

SEC. 14. It is further provided that any person or persons furnishing a team of horses in response to any alarm of fire, for the purpose of aiding in the removal of fire apparatus from its repository to the location of any fire, and who does actually so aid in said removal, shall be remunerated as follows, viz: For the first team so aiding the sum of four dollars for each response; for the second team two dollars and for the third team one dollar; provided, however, none of the persons supplying aforesaid teams shall be entitled to any remuneration for aforesaid services unless said teams shall also assist in reconveying said apparatus to its place of keeping; and all bills for services in this section specified shall be presented in the same manner as is provided for the presentation of bills in Section 12 of this ordinance.

SEC. 15. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in so much as they may be inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

SEC. 16. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval, publication and recording.

Upon the call of ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Childs, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the President of the Council.

Passed this 12th day of Jan., e1892.

Norway's Plan of Restricting the Liquor Traffic.

Toledo Blade.

In the December number of the Nineteenth Century, a monthly Review published in London, the Earl of Meath has an article on "The Diminution of Drunkenness in Norway," which contains facts of the highest importance to all interested in the solution of the drink problem. The Earl states the fact briefly when he says that only a few years ago drunkenness prevailed to a large extent in both Sweden and Norway; but that now both these countries, especially Norway, have, in a large measure, freed themselves from the clutches of the drink demon, with the happiest results.

The effort to emancipate the people from the curse started in the town of Gothenburg, in Sweden. There the municipal council is made the licensing authority, and fixes the number of licenses which it deems proper. But instead of issuing them to individuals, it grants a monopoly to an association of shareholders formed for the purpose, and which undertakes to conduct the trade in the interests of the public.

This monopoly is given for a number of years, and the municipal council retains full control over the operations of the society, fixes the number and location of the saloons, and all employes of the society are subject to its approval. The stockholders are precluded from making more than 5 per cent on the capital invested each year. All profits in excess of this are paid over to the municipal council, and used as part of the revenue raised by taxation.

The advantage of the Gothenburg plan is that neither company nor its hired saloonkeepers are interested in increasing the amount of drinking, at least beyond the amount of sales required to secure them the maximum rate of profit allowed—5 per cent. The salary of the saloonkeepers themselves is fixed by the municipal council, thus making them so far independent of the company. The disadvantage of the plan is that it makes it to the interest of selfish taxpayers to have the traffic increased in order that the profits shall be as much as possible above the 5 per cent, so as to decrease the tax burden as much as can be done.

The success of the Gothenburg experiment led to the adoption of a system on the same general lines for Norway, the strong lines of the Gothenburg plan being retained and the weak ones eliminated. In Norway the municipal council fix the number of saloons which shall be licensed, and grant a monopoly of the traffic for a term, usually five years, to a company organized for the purpose. The council retains full control of the company's operations, as in the Gothenburg plan, and they must also have the royal sanction. The details of management of saloons are put in charge of a committee composed of a certain number of the shareholders of the company, selected by their fellows, and a number of representatives of the municipal council. As in Gothenburg the company is not allowed more than 5 per cent on the capital invested.

The great improvement over the Gothenburg plan is that the profits accruing above the 5 per cent allowed the company is not, in Norway, allowed to go into the general revenue fund raised by taxation. No matter how great it may be, nor how heavy the taxes, not one penny of it can be used to reduce taxation. It is applied each year to helping deserving charities, benevolent associations, philanthropic institutions, etc., which are entirely dependent on the voluntary support of the public. Any institution or object which derives any money, no matter how little, from the funds raised by taxation, is excluded from all benefit. Hence the municipal councils can have no possible object in favoring the slightest extension of the traffic.

Local option exists in Norway, and when there is a majority opposed to licensing, prohibition is the rule. In 1890, there were but 59 towns and cities in the whole country which gave a majority for license; and where the traffic is allowed, it is under the restrictions of the plan outlined above. The regulations concerning saloons are extremely strict, and are enforced to the letter. The men employed in the saloons are uniformed and each has his number on his collar. Persons under sixteen years of age are not allowed to be served with liquor under any pretext.

The amount of capital invested can not be increased by lavish expenditure in fitting up saloons. The bar fittings are all of the simplest and plainest. The rooms are kept absolutely clean. They are not allowed to have seats of any kind, no private rooms, nor is there any convenience permitted to favor loitering, or using the saloons as places of social resort. It is plain that here is dealt one of the severest blows possible to the increase of drinking. The power of the saloon in this country lies largely in its being used as a place of common resort to pass away the time, and where men can meet and converse, or play cards or other games. All saloons are closed—and this provision is strictly carried out—at 5 o'clock on Saturday evenings, and on the evening before any church or other festival, and remain closed until 8 o'clock on Monday, or the day following the festival. The only hours they are allowed to be open are from 8 a. m. until 10 p. m.

The Earl of Meath, in his article, says that the workings of the law since its passage, which was on May 3d, 1871, show conclusively "that the vice of drunkenness in Norway has received a staggering blow, and that the consumption of ardent spirits is immensely reduced; while great financial results have been attained, to the benefit of deserving institutions, charities, and objects of public utility which, but for the life thus given them, could not exist."

If the traffic in intoxicants is to be permitted, the Norwegian plan is thus shown, by its workings for twenty years to be the best plan so far devised, and to have reduced the amount of drunkenness and the quantity of liquors consumed very materially. Of course, the objections remain that men who have the craving for rum, and those whose will-power has been destroyed by the drink habit, have no possible relief; and that, even though much restricted, by having the social element of the saloon largely eliminated, the opportunity still exists for the formation of the drink habit by young men. Prohibition is the only thing which can fully protect these and pulverise the rum power.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, January 28, 1892.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 72.
1 Northern 65.
2 Northern 62.
3 Northern 59.

Milder weather has prevailed during the past week.

The policemen's ball occurs this evening. A big time is expected.

Andreas Warren, of Maple Lake, died recently of typhoid fever, we are told.

Mr. G. Peterson, of Garden, gave us a pleasant call on Friday of last week.

A. G. Gallosch came up last week to look after his business interests in the city.

R. E. White, one of the leading Marais farmers, was in the city last Thursday.

M. R. Brown expects a carload or two of choice work horses and mares some time next week.

Geo. A. Ralph starts for the Reservation this week to complete another surveying contract.

We want a few oats right away quick and will pay thirty cents per bushel for them on subscription.

Comrade S. Snedeker was down from Mentor last week chatting with old friends and comrades.

Doc Rutledge, of the Bulletin, was in the city on Thursday last and gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call.

Wheat opened out at 72 cents on Monday morning. The market indicates considerable strength.

Sunday last was one of the warmest and pleasantest days in January, and every rig in town was busy.

Dr. A. Nelson was up from Fertile on Monday on legal business. Reports a profitable year's business.

L. C. Couverette has bought the Moore place, a farm of 480 acres, five or six miles north-east of the city.

Charles Henderson and Wm. O'Reilley, prominent citizens of Fisher, visited the county seat on Thursday last.

Joseph Robar has been spending a few weeks in St. Paul, visiting his brother Frank, the deputy Probate Judge.

A. C. Schmidt started for a visit to the old home in Wisconsin last week and incidentally talk up the advantages of this country.

Mr. Webster, of Webster & Brandtjen, type founders, of Minneapolis, was in the city on Tuesday and gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call.

Miss McAnulty and brother, of Maple Bay, and Miss Berg, of Mentor, came down last week to attend the high school for the balance of the term.

W. J. Murphy was up last week looking after his interests here. He says the company contemplate great improvements next season.

Crookston Alliance will meet on Saturday, Feb. 6th, at the city hall at 2 p.m. A large attendance is requested as business of importance is to be transacted.

Rudy Burkhardt has a new baker who arrived from Wabasha last week. He is one of the best in the business and Rudy invites his friends to sample his wares.

August Stromberg, of McIntosh called to fix up that little subscription on Tuesday. Says the threshing was pretty nearly completed last fall in his neighborhood.

Holmboe & Locken's delivery horse took a bit of a go-as-you-please exercise on Monday, collided with Herb's awning and succeeded in making a total wreck of it and also of the delivery sleigh.

We are paying 30 cents per bushel for oats and 40 cents per bushel for barley on subscription, and are ready to accept either until we get enough. First come first served. Bring on your oats and barley.

P. O. Estenson was up from the west side on Monday and dropped in to encourage us with another paid up subscription. He agrees with all other farmers down there that the need of a railroad is urgent.

M. W. Jenson was down from McIntosh last Thursday. Says that the mill has all the business it can attend to this season. We are told by parties who ought to know that Jenson's flour is among the best in the market.

Another break in some of the internal arrangements in connection with the water works caused some bother last week. The company promises that all these little annoyances shall cease as soon as they get their improvements completed.

Eustache Payment, of Red Lake Falls, was in on Tuesday and dropped in to see THE JOURNAL man on subscription. These little visits are highly appreciated by us at this time. We hope they will continue until our list is fully squared up.

M. E. Bartlett, Esq., has received the sad news of the death of his only brother, Clarence, which event occurred on the 12th inst., at his home in Texas. Clarence Bartlett was about 42 years old, a single man and leaves an aged father and a brother to mourn his loss.

Dr. Barnes, one of the old-timers, is in the city this week.

Charles Hardrath returned from a trip to Wisconsin on Thursday last. Says that many of his old neighbors and friends are making preparations to come to this country next spring. Everybody is interested in hearing about this country.

Samuel Hayes, one of the partners of the Hayes Bros. big farm on the west side, dropped in on Wednesday to set that subscription ahead a peg and report progress. Says about 20 per cent. of the threshing in his neighborhood remains to be done and a larger per cent. of the plowing. Hays Bros. got their work well along.

Mr. A. Daniels has bought the old Honeywell place, up the river a few miles, and will take possession as soon as Mr. Roberts' lease expires. He has secured a choice farm, as that is the farm that used to raise 100 bushels of oats per acre for Sam whenever Fred Fox dared to report 85 per acre. There were no flies on Sam's figures.

The new Beckett block is approaching completion. Very soon the lower rooms will be ready for occupancy and most of them, we are told, are already engaged. The land office officials expect to take possession of their rooms up stairs early next week also. This block will be one of the most handsome business structures in the city.

Comrade H. C. Burdick was up on Monday and such a sight as he was! He got into a bit of unpleasantness with Dr. W. A. Robertson, and though the doctor is a slimly-built, innocent-looking individual, when comrade Burdick left his room he had not one tooth left in his head. The doctor promises to make it right with Burdick by supplying a new set of teeth.

Aleck McDonald returned to civilization last week. Has sold his farm near Grand Forks, gets half cash and the balance on interest which will enable him to live like a king hereafter. All Aleck needs now to make him perfectly happy is a good wife and as it is Leap Year there are hopes for him—we do not suppose he would ever find time to pop the question himself.

Do not forget the 60 Days marked down RED FIGURE SALE of Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods at the Boston One Price Clothing House. It will interest you if you wish to save money.

MOSSEFIN & LINDELL,
Proprietors.

M. E. Kirsch and C. P. DeMers have gone to look over various and sundry jails in the State, probably to see which one they would prefer to live in—we can see no other good they can do the county by the trip. But then, you know, this is an era of "reform" and the boys seem bound to have a good time while they are reforming—and the tax-payers will pay the fiddler.

The old M. E. church building, on the corner of Main and Fifth streets, is being utilized for school purposes. By another summer it will be necessary to build a new school house and it has been suggested that Jerome's Addition would be the proper place to put it. Many residences will be added to those already there next season and it would seem as though that was the proper thing to do.

O. H. Locken—"Now that Chili backs water and the whole business is to be settled without a scrimmage, it looks like us old roosters wouldn't get any fun out of it. Well, I never did believe the little bantam had any sand in its craw, anyhow, and the position she now takes settles that load of poles. Guess we'll have to depend upon the re-union in Minneapolis next month for our fun."

Oscar, the bright little boy of Eli and Mrs. Austin died on Sunday evening after a week's illness of brain fever. At the time the boy was taken ill his father was in hospital in St. Paul and the boy's symptoms becoming alarming, Mr. Austin was summoned home, arriving in time to be with the boy a few days. Oscar was a bright, intelligent lad, six years and two months old and his loss will be a severe blow to the fond parents. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon.

A cordial welcome to all to attend services at the Congregational church next Sunday. Mr. Battey's sermon will be on "Sharpening God's Sickles," at 11 a. m. and "La Grippe in Religious Life," at 7:30 p. m. Then the Sunday school at 12:15 p. m., Junior Society at 3:30 and Young People's prayer meeting at 6:30. Let all our workers do their best to have a full house morning and evening, next Sabbath. Hotel guests and all strangers cordially invited and the whole family ought to turn out in the evening.

There was a social at the residence of Mr. N. P. Stone Tuesday evening. It was gotten up by the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Congregational church and was a very enjoyable and successful affair. The party numbered about 80 and the lunch and games were alike inviting and worthy of special notice. We are pleased to record the occurrence of such happy gatherings. They are good for old and young, alike in cultivating mutual friendships in social life among our citizens and in taking the place of other questionable amusements of the people.

REMNANTS OF LACES AND EMBROIDERIES IN ABUNDANCE.

Next Monday is the 1st day of February, until which date our offer to accept payment at the rate of $1.50 per annum runs, and we find upon looking over our list that there are still some who have paid no attention to our statement sent them nor to our notices in the paper. We have reason to believe that each and every one of these persons is financially good for the amounts due us, and yet we do not like to sue not even one, and we have done all in our power to avoid such a course under the impression that every man intends to settle. Many have written us, promising as soon as possible to settle. We have been contemplating improvements in our office which will involve a considerable outlay of cash and we rely upon our delinquent friends to do their part in the matter, and while we do not like to put any one to extra expense in this matter, and, after those who have so far paid no attention to our statements sent out by letter, or our notices in the paper, have had a reasonable time to save themselves cost, we intend that some of them shall come to the city and see us, whether they like it or not. We hope that we shall be spared this unpleasant duty, but if we are forced to it no one but the delinquent himself will be to blame, for we have given all plenty of opportunities to avoid any unpleasantness. Remember, all have until Feb. 1st. to settle at the rate of $1.50 per annum, and all who have asked for further time have had it granted; and remember that this request is made for the purpose of giving all who honestly intend to settle with us some time or other one more opportunity to save costs and unpleasantness, and we expect replies. We would gladly avoid making you trouble and costs but we must have something, even though that something be no more than several judgments—in some cases we think we should prefer that to a larger sized silence.

E. E. Abbott, of Grove Park, dropped in to see us on Tuesday evening and to have a social chat with THE JOURNAL man. In relation to the yarn in the Times to the effect that the authorities of Grove Park allowed a pauper to lie around in a hovel until too badly frozen for any use, Mr. A. says that the man, Kramer, who is referred to, has a claim of 160 acres of land and from choice lives alone upon it for the most part of the time, but the town has contributed to his support, purchasing him food and clothes at times. The man at times appears to be demented and will sleep in straw stacks with a big club handy to "defend himself against his enemies," he says. At one time during the winter he got slightly frost-bitten and clothing was procured for him; he was also sent to the Judge of Probate for examination but declared to be sane and sent back to Grove Park. While he is not by any means violently insane there is no question but that he is off his mental equilibrium, and that the town authorities have done their full duty by him is very evident. Having a claim, he can hardly be classed as a pauper, and if he is a sane man he is able to support himself at least by manual labor, yet it seems he will not work. We cannot see how the town authorities can be held responsible for the care of such a man. If the man was insane or unable to work the case might be different, even though he has a farm, but medical experts have pronounced him sane and it is true that he is able to work if he was a mind to.

Albert Simpson has interested himself in behalf of the hail-sufferers and is canvassing among his neighbors in their behalf. While much has been done for a few of them, much remains to be done if all are supplied with seed and feed.

A. M. Hanson was down from Wylie on Tuesday and paid THE JOURNAL a pleasant visit. Says there isn't much threshing going on just now but lots o it to do later. Thinks the grain was all so well stacked that none of it will be likely to spoil in stack.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the advertisement of the Moorhead Institute for the cure of drunkenness and the opium habit. This institution has recently been started and with marked success—a number of its patients already rejoicing in their newly acquired liberty. Absolute cure guaranteed or no pay. Dr. Darrow, an old and successful practitioner of Moorhead, is the physician in charge, and H. D. Scott is manager. For full particulars, address Moorhead Institute, Moorhead, Clay Co., Minn.

A Singular Accident.

Geo. Vine, the Robert street butcher, met with a serious accident on Tuesday evening in his market. In attempting to take a piece of meat from the hook, while holding the knife in his right, another piece fell from a hook higher up, struck the knife, knocking it upon George's left hand cutting a severe gash. George at once sought Dr. Dunlop who sewed up the gash and then he took a lay off for a few hours. He was walking around a little on Wednesday morning.

BELTRAMI ITEMS.

BELTRAMI, Jan. 25th, 1892.

We are all glad to see Mrs. D. T. Herriott again. She is visiting her daughter, Mrs. H. B. Budd.

A few of C. E. Ford, Jr's., friends surprised him on Thursday evening. Charley was equal to the occasion and had plenty of refreshments for all, liquid as well as solid.

A very select sociable was held at the residence of I. U. Webb the other evening. The elite of Reis' and Liberty were present.

Lewis Seeger, the contractor and builder, is very busy these days. Don't even have time to go and see his best girl.

Our teacher, Joe Ball, and John Mjelde went to Maple Lake Sunday to fish.

Wm. Price, who has had the "grip," is improving.

John Towers is selling more lumber than any one who was ever in that business here. EDNA.

Geo. Vine gets another carload of hogs from below this week. For choice meats of all kinds go to Vine's Robert street meat market.

EDITOR POLK CO. JOURNAL:—

Dear Sir—I have been thinking you and I like to do good; I think every one's motto should be "Do all the good you can to all the people you can and not injure yourself or family." I want you to tell the farmers' wives how to make cough Syrup as this is the time for La Grippe. It is my own; no one told me how to make it, but I would not take two hundred dollars and promise not to make or use any more. It is harmless; my children used to get it and drink it. It will cure la grippe, lung fever, bronchitis, whooping cough, prevent croup if taken in time, prevents diphtheria, good for catarrh, sore mouth and scrofulous eruptions, it cleanses the blood; consumptives will find much relief from its use. Do not think I do not know what I am talking about. I have raised four children (all I ever had), my youngest nearly eighteen, and I have not employed a doctor for twenty years. MIRANDA P. HALLOCK.

COUGH SYRUP.

Put ten cents worth of hoarhound in a tin pail, pour in one quart boiling water, set on back of stove to steep one hour, strain into a pitcher, put in one pint more water on the leaves, steep half an hour, break up three sticks best licorice, put in a pitcher to soak; when leaves are steeped enough, strain in with the other, throw leaves away wash out the pail and pour in the contents of the pitcher, put back on the stove to boil and stir well to dissolve licorice; put in five coffee cups of white sugar and one pound honey, boil to dissolve sugar, then take it off the stove, put in half an ounce essence of peppermint, one large tablespoonful of oil of tar, stir well, put in bottles and set in a cool place.

Part of a Great Movement.

The idea of educating people in their homes, instead of confining the process within the walls of a college, is just beginning to make itself known and felt. The great movement termed "University extension" is simply a movement to bring some of the advantages of the higher schools into the homes of the people; that advantage may be taken of the very expensive machinery of higher education by those who are unable to leave home or to raise the money required. The university extension course is largely the outgrowth of Chautauqua influences and the influence of the correspondence schools of language, etc., which have been established for some years. An incorporated law school has been established at Detroit, Mich., under the name of the Sprague Correspondence School of Law—so named from its originator. The school has been in operation fifteen months and is doing great service to the many men and women throughout the country who are desirous of obtaining a liberal education in the law, but who are not able to attend the law colleges.

Ship your wheat to O. Tharaldson general agent of the Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association, at Duluth, and make from 4 to 7 cents a bushel. For further particulars as to membership, &c., inquire of L. K. Hassel, Grand Forks, N. D. [25-tf]

INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT.

In my last contribution I took up the subject of Copyright, with reference to how, by whom and on what it may be obtained. A few words on the subject of Infringement of Copyright may not be without interest and profit to the general reader.

What is an infringement?

It may be said that if so much of a work be taken that the value of the original is sensibly and materially diminished, or the labors of the original author are substantially, to an injurious extent, appropriated by another, such taking or appropriation is sufficient in point of law to maintain the suit. It is not necessary that the whole or even the larger part be taken, to constitute invasion of a copyright.

Copying is not confined to literal repetition, but includes the various modes in which the matter of any publication is adapted, imitated or transferred, with more or less colorable alterations to disguise the piracy. It may be incorporated into some larger work and and be none the less an infringement, as if an encyclopedia were to contain a copyrighted article, or part of an article of another author. "The true test," says one case, "is to ascertain whether the defendant has in fact used the plan, arrangement, and illustrations of the plaintiff as the model of his own book, with colorable alterations and variations only to disguise the use thereof, or whether his work is the result of his own labor, skill and use of common materials and common sources of knowledge open to all men, and the resemblances are either accidental or arising from the nature of the subject."

It is an infringement, even though an improvement on the original. The test then is whether the copy is substantially the same as the original. Courts have several times defined a copy to be that which comes so near to the original as to give to every person seeing it the idea created by the original.

The same principle holds good in regard to maps, charts, pictures, musical compositions, etc. It is hard to say what is an infringement of a map. Where the subsequent map appears to have been substantially copied from the original, except in scale and color there is an infringement. In the case of music, even though the copy be adapted to a different purpose, if the original may still be recognized by the ear, it is an infringement, and this so even if "variations" be added. Copying a copyrighted engraving by means of photography is an infringement.

If a book infringe to a slight degree, as by embracing a small part of a copyrighted work, together with much original matter, the equitable remedy is a suit for the damage suffered, and not an injunction to restrain the issue of the publication. Although a copyrighted book cannot be copied, still a "fair use" of the book, as by quotations for criticism, review, etc., is not prohibited. Recourse must be had to the decisions of courts as to what is "fair use."

It must be such use as will not cause substantial injury to the proprietor of the first publication.

NATURALIZATION.

One may be a citizen of a State and not a citizen of the United States. Compliance with State laws of naturalization do not make a man a citizen of the United States. This power is vested solely in Congress, and yet, strange to say, one may not be a citizen of the United States and yet vote for a Senator or member of Congress, and should the power to choose a president by any chance be thrown into Congress, as indeed it may under the Constitution, there is given to persons not citizens of the United States, indirect influence in the choice of the President. This comes about by the Constitution declaring that electors of members of the lower house of Congress, have the qualifications requisite for electors of the lower house of the State Legislatures. So that in order for an alien to vote for a Member of Congress, and indirectly for a Senator or President, it is only necessary for him to be able to vote for a member of the more numerous branch of the State Legislature. The State may prescribe what qualifications it may see fit for State citizenship, but Congress alone can make an alien a citizen of the whole country. It is difficult, in view of what has been said, however, to see wherein lies the distinction between the privilege of a citizen of the United States and a citizen of one of the States. One privilege at least the State could not confer, that is, she could not give him as a citizen, a title to those privileges and immunities of citizens of the several States which the federal constitution guarantees and secures.

We will state briefly who may be naturalized under the laws of the United States. Any alien friend who is a free white person or a person of African nativity or descent, who has made the legal preliminary declaration, and who has resided for the five years next preceding his application, in the United States, and for one year next preceding such application, in the State or Territory in which the court sits to whom he makes application, and who, during that time, has been of good moral character, attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States, and well disposed to the good order of the same, may become a citizen of the United States. This excludes Indians, Mongolians, half Indian blood, and Chinese. A married woman may be naturalized without the concurrence of her husband.

There are five classes of privileged persons.

First, minors. Children of naturalized citizens, under age of twenty-one at the time of the naturalization of their parents, are deemed citizens if dwelling in this country. Minor children of foreign parents, whose mother, after the death of the father, marries a citizen, become citizens. Children of citizens, who are born abroad, are citizens of the United States. In regard to the five years qualification, a portion of this time may be years of the applicant's minority; in such case, the previous declaration of intention is not necessary if he make a declaration at the time of his admission, and proves and declares on oath that for two years it has been his intention to become a citizen.

Second, wives of citizens. An alien woman of the race or class entitled to naturalization, who marries a citizen, becomes by that act a citizen. If makes no difference if she is less than twenty-one years of age. When an alien is naturalized, his wife thereby becomes a citizen, though she may never come to the United States until after his death. This latter statement is, however, questioned in some courts. A discussion of the three remaining classes of privileged persons will be found in our next paper.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, San. 22.—The new iron mines on the Mesabi Range continue to attract the attention of the Duluth people and especially of the iron men. The first wonderful stories of the great richness of these new found deposits are borne out by the later developments. The work of opening new locations is being prosecuted with vigor by a good many companies and generally with good results. A week ago a party of Southern capitalists interested in the Cincinnati mine, with Messrs. John McKinley, A. E. Humphreys and S. T. Hale of this city, were here to investigate that and other properties. I had the good fortune to make the trip to the new range with them. The mines are reached by a twelve mile ride from the Duluth & Iron Range road at Mesabi station, and a twelve mile sleigh ride with the thermometer hovering around 29 below zero was a new experience for most of the men who made the trip. There was enough pleasure on the ride to more than compensate for the discomforts from the cold, and if there had not been, every one would have been amply repaid by the wonderful revelations at the mines.

Four of the mines, the Cincinnati, Canton, Bewabic and Hale were visited and examined. After inspection of any one of them there would be no doubt of the value of the newly opened deposit of ore. Taken altogether they show an amount of ore never before found on any range in this country.

The developments so far have all been by test pitting, and on each property from three to thirteen pits have been put down, with the result every time of finding a good body of ore. The Bewabik on which the most work has been done, has up to date showed up the largest amount. On one of its four "forties" there is known by actual measurement to be about 0,000,000 tons, and on the four there are probably not less than 20,000,000 tons. The Cincinnati, in which the controlling spirits are A. E. Humphreys, John McKinley, Judge J. T. Hale and Geo. E. Milligan, the latter of Parkersburg, W. V., has twice the amount of land the Bewabik owns, and the test pits so far show just as rich a deposit, so it may be said to have even a greater body of ore available. The Hale and the Canton each are showing up fine bodies of ore. All this ore is a red hematite Bessemer running from 60 to 65 per cent metalic iron. The ore formation so far shows that for a long time at least that the mining will be very cheap, probably costing less than 50 cents a ton. As the ore lies it is a vast stock pile, needing only to be stripped and lifted out with a steam shovel. It can be delivered to furnaces in Duluth for about $2 a ton, and this means a marvelous development of the iron and steel industry here. The McKinley mine three miles farther west was not visited, but the reliable reports that come from there show that at least in the quality of the ore it is more than the equal of the other mines. One result of the visit of these Southern and Eastern capitalists, some of whom are interested in the Tennessee and Alabama iron fields, was the organization of the Chicago Iron company, a strong concern, which has secured about 800 acres between the Canton and Bewabik and the McKinley and on which preliminary work shows the same ore formation to exist. A large outside interest has been created in these new iron fields and men are coming from every section to investigate them. The two railroads which will reach the range are rushing their surveys and the clearing of the rights of way and by August both will be constructed. The Duluth, Mesabi & Northern has 65 miles to build and the Duluth & Iron Range 13.

World's Fair Notes.

The Lord Mayor of London, it is announced, will form a committee to raise the sum necessary to send to the Exposition a selected number of representative working men from London, with a view of their making reports on the industrial exhibits there. Similar action was taken in case of the last two Paris expositions.

Indiana's building at the Exposition will be French gothic in style, and constructed entirely of Indiana material. It will measure 100x170 feet, and in realty will be a $100,000 structure, though, on account of the donation of a large part of the material entering into its construction, its cash cost will be only about $80,000.

A grand dedication ball, probably in the Auditorium, on the night of Oct. 13, 1892, will conclude the exercises dedicatory to the Exposition buildings. Many representatives of foreign countries are expected to be present, and the event will be, to an extent, international in character. The committee on ceremonies has selected the following patronesses and managers:

Patronesses—Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. George L. Dunlap, Mrs. George M. Pullman, Mrs. Nelson A. Miles, Mrs. W. W. Kimball, Mrs. A. C. McClurg, Mrs. Heaton Owsley, Mrs. Arthur Caton, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, Mrs. Wm. Armour, Mrs. Hobart C. Taylor and Mrs. Robert W. Patterton, Jr.

Managers—Mr. N. K. Fairbank, Mr. Marshall Field, Mr. Norman Williams, Mr. Franklin McVeagh, Mr. Lambert Tree, Mr. Hobart C. Taylor, Mr. T. Harvey Bradley, Mr. F. M. Whitehouse, Mr. Huntington W. Jackson, Mr. A. C. Honore, Mr. Arthur Ryerson and Mr. Mr. George Armour.

The second volume of "Tales From Town Topics" has appeared, with the announcement in the preface that the first volume enjoyed a "phenomenal" sale, and that the publishers expect the new book to prove quite as popular. It is doubtless true that a large body of the public buys with considerable avidity a book that is known to contain stories told with a French degree of freedom, and, so long as literary purity is preserved and a romantic brilliancy exhibited, and lapses into unconventional moral attitudes are smiled away, "Tales From Town Topics, No. 2," contains some rather startling pages judged under austere rules, but the book is seldom stupid, and can be read by broad-minded men and women without seriously influencing the health of their souls. Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24, 1892.

There have so far been two occasions in the House of Representatives at this session, where a straightforward and patriotic Republican sentiment clashed with what is known as Democracy. In the first, the Democracy triumphed, and prevented the sending to Russia, at government expense the contributions of patriotic Americans to Russian sufferers by famine. The Republicans were as one for this small testimonial to an ever friendly government, and, though the Democracy was divided, enough of their bulky majority voted against the appropriation to defeat it. This slap in the face of the only government on earth that has always been friendly to us was a most ungracious and unpatriotic thing.

The next contest was over the Holman resolution, which virtually limited appropriations this year to the carrying on of department work. Nothing was to be voted for the thousand things, outside of routine, that have been recognized as part of the government's needs from the days of Jefferson to those of Cleveland. In this contest there was a transient Republican triumph, as Mr. Holman's resolution was withdrawn. But it came up again the day after, and was adopted. As passed, it pledges the United States to give or pay nothing to the World's Fair at Chicago, to United States' creditors who have been left in arrears by the inevitable friction that comes with the movements of a great government, and to the increase and improvement of the navy. In various ways, outside of these, the Holman resolution, if carried out in its terms, would cripple the United States in its dealings with their own citizens and in their relations with foreign powers. Of coure the letter of the resolution will have little to do with the actual legislation of the session. Harbors and rivers will be improved, necessary public buildings erected, the naval vessels completed and new ones commenced, and the United States continue to make themselves respectable abroad as well as at home, notwithstanding the Holman resolution. The two hundred and thirty-six Democrats in the house may vote wildly and foolishly on an abstract proposition of economy, but when the local, national and international needs of the nation come before them for consideration and vote, they will act and vote intelligently. Mr. Holman seems to be a man who thinks a people of seventy millions, with railroads, steamboats, electrical appliances, and all other modern improvements will be content with the stage-coach methods of a hundred years ago. He will find his mistake before the session closes—long before it closes.

There is no real and serious complaint about the census of 1890 except that comes from New York City. New York State does not complain. No state complains. No really American community complains of the general accuracy and fairness of the enumeration made. The unavoidable mistakes here and there are criticised as they should be. But these Democrats of New York who believe that New York State is solidly Democratic now are seriously thinking of proceeding in Congress, in some way unknown to the ordinary mind, against Mr. Porter, the present superintendent of the census. As Governor and Senator Hill has New York City in his vest pocket, New York State in his overcoat pocket, and expects the nation to meet him next summer at Harlem Bridge, it is supposed that he is at the bottom of the new raid on Porter and the census of 1890. The special object he has is not understood. He may believe that he is the only man who can take a census, as he is the only man who ever created a Legislature.

If there are any Union soldiers who have not decided to visit Washington at the September reunion this year, they may get information that will influence them by addressing a note to Harrison Dingman, Washington, D. C. He is secretary of the general committee, and will respond to any call.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 7th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 18th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, executed and delivered by Ida D. Van Tuyl and John E. Van Tuyl, her husband, mortgagors, to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company," mortgagee, bearing date the 23d day of November, 1889, with a power of sale therein contained, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1889, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in book 51 of mortgages, on page 255, and whereas said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars and interest thereon from its said date at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, due and payable on the first day of January in each year. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable January 1st, 1891, and default having also been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable on January 1st, 1892, and both of said defaults still continue, and no part of said principal has ever been paid. And whereas the conditions of said mortgage are such that if default be made in the payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage or interest thereon when the same becomes due, then the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall thereupon become due and payable at once.

And whereas both by the terms of said mortgage and the election of said mortgagee hereby made the whole amount secured by said mortgage both principal and interest accrued to this date is now due and payable.

And the amount now claimed to be due and which is due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage, including interest in accordance with the terms of said mortgage is the sum of six hundred and ninety-nine and 95-100 dollars. And no action or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained which by reason of the default aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: The west half of the southeast quarter and the east half of the southwest quarter, both of the above described tracts being in Section ten (10), Township one hundred and forty-nine (149), Range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and containing 160 acres of land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on Tuesday, the 23d day of February, 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy and pay the amount which will then be due upon said mortgage according to the terms thereof, and interest and fifty dollars attorney's fees as provided by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and 85-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Peder H. Mesedalen and Kari Mesedalen, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the tenth day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 245.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, ($692.81) with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (684) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section seventeen (17), Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

The Hail Fund.

It will be observed that the hail list is growing some, but yet not as rapidly as it should if any substantial aid is to be furnished. In order to afford relief in the most urgent cases about 1,000 bushels of wheat, 1,000 of barley and from 1,500 to 2,000 of oats are required. If you wish to contribute to this fund and it is not convenient for you to come and see us you can write upon a postal card the amount you are willing to contribute and your name will be put upon the list.

The Demand Of Justice.

New York Press.

American patriotism has not degenerated in a long interval of peace. The public sentiment in favor of exacting reparation for the cowardly murder of our seamen at Valparaiso is overwhelming. It is evident that Congress, regardless of party lines, is prepared to support the administration in the most vigorous measures. The President's message is eagerly awaited both in the Senate and the House. The recommendations which it contains will undoubtedly be acted upon at once. The action of the government in ordering the squadrons of Admiral Gherardi and Admiral Walker to concentrate their forces at Valparaiso indicates that the forthcoming ultimatum to Chili will be backed up by the entire available power of the United States navy.

The time for conciliation and forbearance has passed. Chili has had ample time to afford reparation, and she has refused even to consider the question of making amends. Her persistent course of insult and defiance, following the murderous assault of her citizens and officials upon American seamen, has left no alternative but an appeal to force.

Talk of arbitration by any European power is futile and foolish. The report that Great Britain has officiously tendered her services as a mediator in the dispute is without confirmation. While England has a historic reputation for interference in the affairs of inferior countries, it is improbable that she would venture to offer interposition between the United States and Chili. Such interference could not be tolerated, much less entertained by the American people. Chili must settle her account directly with the United States. We have nothing to do with England in the matter. The United States needs no foreign instructions as to the course to be taken in defending her national honor.

The case is one that does not admit of arbitration. The United States requires an apology from Chili for the unprovoked murder of our unarmed seamen, the punishment of the assassins and the payment of satisfactory indemnity to the families of the murdered men. This is what simple justice demands. We will accept nothing less. If we are to have peace it must be peace with honor. In its infancy the United States went to war with France and with Great Britain, because of their maltreatment of American seamen. Those who think the United States will allow its faithful sailors to be barbarously slaughtered without exacting full reparation for the outrage know little of the history and the spirit of the American nation.

World's Fair Notes.

A collective exhibit of sanitary appliances and methods of sanitation, and of all that pertains closely to them, is to be made at the Exposition. The various state and municipal boards of health will work in conjunction to that end, numerous representatives of those organizations having so decided at a recent convention in Chicago.

The Blue Grass League, of Iowa, embracing the southwestern counties of the State, has decided to construct a "Blue Grass Palace" at the Exposition.

The fine geological collection made by the late Prof. Worthen, State Geologist of Illinois, will form part of the Illinois, will form part of the Illinois exhibit at the exposition. The State World's Fair Board has purchased it for $8,000.

The Hon. W. C. P. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, according to present plans, will deliver the oration dedicatory of the Exposition buildings, on Oct. 12th, 1892.

The London Polytechnic Institute expects that its plans for bringing artisans and others of limited means to the exposition will result in enabling 1,500 or 2,000 such persons to visit Chicago at a total expense of something like $125 or $130 each for the round trip.

The United States Potters' Association has applied for 32,000 square feet in the manufactures building, and announces its intention of making an exhibit that will not be surpassed by any showing made by the famed potteries of Europe.

The Columbian Navigation Company has been incorporated with a capital of $500,000 for the purpose of running steamboats to Jackson Park during the exposition for the accommodation of visitors. It is believed that many thousands of visitors will prefer the lake route in reaching the exposition.

The Chemical National Bank, of Chicago, has been granted the privilege of establishing and operating a bank on the exposition grounds. It will afford to exhibitors and visitors all the conveniences and safeguards of a metropolitan bank, including safety deposit vaults.

Secretary Dickinson estimates that $125,000 will be necessary for the expenses of the national Commission for the year ending June 30th, 1893, divided as follows: two meetings of the Commission, $30,000; salaries, $50,000; rent, $5,000; board of control and committees, $1,000; stationery, printing, etc., $10,000; expenses connected with admission of foreign exhibits, $20,000.

It is the intention to have one room in Delaware's exposition building fitted up in colonial style, with hangings, pictures and furniture of that period. among the exhibits in this room it is proposed to show models of three celebrated colonial churches—the "Old Swedes' Church," in Wilmington, founded in 1699: Barratt's Chapel, near Frederica, which was founded in 1780, and where, in November, 1784, Rev. Dr. Thomas Coke, Francis Asbury, afterwards first Methodist bishop in America, met with several others and planned the organization of the Methodist Church in this country; and Christ Church, Broad Creek.

The colossal statute of the Republic, which will stand on a pedestal rising from the basin in front of the administration building, is being modeled in Paris by Daniel C. French, the New York sculptor. It will be a female figure seventy-five feet high.

Water for the Exposition grounds will be supplied from two pumping stations having a combined capacity of 64,000,000 gallons a day. The largest of the two has a capacity of 40,000,000 and constitutes the exhibit of the Worthington Pump Company, which puts in the entire plant, costing $250,000, free of expense to the exposition.

A project has been inaugurated to have an international rifle shoot at Chicago at some time while the exposition is in progress. It is proposed that picked teams from the U. S. Army and national guard compete with teams from other nations.

A "Columbian Catholic Congress" will be held at Chicago at the time of the exposition, beginning, as now planned, On September 5th, and continuing five days. It is expected that fully 5,000 delegates from dioceses in the United States and Canada will be present and that the number from European countries will be very large and will include many noted dignitaries of the church. It is hoped that Pope Leo XIII. himself will accept an invitation to be present, and it is believed that this gathering will be the greatest and most representative in the history of the church. The progress and standing of the Catholic church in America and throughout the world and the social and economic questions embraced in the Pope's recent encyclical will be presented and discussed.

The Thomson-Huston Electric Companies are planning to make a united exhibit at an expense of $500,000. They want to occupy 20,000 square feet of space.

Chew Yu Ling, representing commercial parties in china, has arranged to conduct a tea pavilion on Midway Plaisance, and has applied for 1,000 square feet of space in the manufactures building in which to exhibit Chinese silks, embroideries, etc.

The ceremonies attending the dedication of the exposition buildings, Oct. 11, 12 and 13, 1892, are to be very elaborate and impressive. The committee having the matter in hand will devote $300,000 to that purpose. It is expected that the President of the United States and his Cabinet, many of the Senators and Congressmen and Governors of the States, numerous representatives of foreign governments, and 10,000 militia and several thousand regulars will be present. A dedication ode and marches, written for the occasion, will be rendered with full choral and orchestral accompaniment. Patriotic and other music, a dedicatory oration, a pageant of symbolical floats representing the "Procession of the Centuries," and magnificent displays of fireworks will be among the chief features of the programme.

The National Association of Woolen Manufacturers has decided to make a united exhibit at the fair.

On the three evenings during the exercises dedicatory of the exposition buildings, October 11, 12 and 13, fireworks to the value of $25,000 will be displayed. The contract has already been let.

Nearly $1,100,000 of insurance is now carried on the exposition buildings and electric plant. The amount will be increased from time to time as the construction proceeds.

Japan has appropriated $630,765 for its representation at the exposition. A splendid Japanese exhibit is assured,

Visitors to the exposition can, if they choose, drink Waukesha water on the fair grounds at one cent a glass. A company owning one of the principal springs at Waukesha has been awarded the contract for furnishing the water, which will be piped from that place to Chicago, about 100 miles, and be served at 300 places on the fair grounds. Plenty of Lake Michigan water will be obtainable free, of course.

The Chamber of Commerce at Salt Lake City, Utah, and the national commissioners and lady managers of the territory have circulated a petition asking, that the legislature appropriate $100,000 in aid of an exhibit at the world's fair.

The Wisconsin world's fair board has issued a circular to the farmers of Wisconsin asking them to exhibit the very best products of their farms at the county fairs and state fairs of this year, as the exhibit for the world's fair will be selected, to a considerable extent, from the cereals and other farm products which are awarded premiums at those fairs.

The world's fair board of Kansas is promoting a plan whereby it is expected that the expense of erecting the exposition building for that state will be borne by school pupils. The proposition is to have all of the schools in the state observe a "World's Fair Day," by holding an entertainment with music, recitations, tableaux, etc., to which a small entrance fee will be charged. The proceeds are expected to be sufficient to pay for the state building. Over the main entrance of the structure it is proposed to have the words: "Erected by the School Children of Kansas."

Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

NATURALIZATION.

In our last we talked on the subject of naturalization, as to where the power is vested and who may be naturalized. We found that there were five privileged classes, and two of these—minors, and wives of citizens—were specially referred to. The three last classes of privileged persons are: 1st, The widow and children of one who has made the preliminary declarations, but who dies before his admission to citizenship; 2d, Aliens in the military service of the United States; and 3d, Seamen. As stated in the preceding talk, the alien must make a preliminary declaration of his intention to become a citizen. Now, when he has made this declaration, but dies before his admission as a citizen, his widow and his children become citizens upon the taking of the oath prescribed by law. As to the second class, the declaration of intention is not required from the alien who is over 21 years old and has been discharged from the military service of the United States. All that is required of him is that he prove one year's residence previous to his application. He is required also to show good moral character. It has been held in a federal case that this law does not apply to marines, but the law has been held to include the navy as well as the army in at least one case, arising in New York. We do not know that the matter is entirely settled. Inasmuch as the law does not specify as to what races are included under the term "alien," it is thought that there are no qualifications as to race required, and that the discharged soldier or sailor may be admitted to citizenship without regard to his race. Third, as to seamen: In order for the foreigner who is a seaman to become a citizen, he must declare his intention to become such in a competent court, and must have served three years on board of a merchant vessel of the United States subsequent to the date of the declaration, and must produce a certificate of discharge and good conduct during that time, together with the certificate of his declaration of intention to become a citizen. A seaman who is a foreigner, after making his declaration, and after serving three years, is deemed a citizen for the purpose of manning and serving on board a United States merchant vessel. Such seaman is for purpose of protection as an American citizen; deemed such after the filing of his declaration of intention to become such citizen. It is held that none of the provisions of the law as to seamen as above referred to, apply to sail or steam vessels engaged in the coast trade, except the coast trade between the Atlantic and Pacific; nor in the lake going trade touching at foreign ports or otherwise; nor in the trade between the United States and the British North American possessions; nor in any case where the seamen are by custom or agreement entitled to participate in the profits or result of the cruise or voyage. The law does not apply to naval service.

We shall in our next treat of the procedure in obtaining naturalization, including preliminary declaration of intention, the application, proof, certificate, record, etc.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30, 1892,

The newspapers of the country of all political shades are still discussing the action of the New York Senate in the passage of the enumeration bill, and it is a question that cannot be too fully discussed or commented upon. The facts are well known to the public, that a bill having been introduced to provide for an enumeration, and still unprinted, a Democratic Senator drew out of his pocket a substitute and a vote was forced upon this without discussion, while three Republican Senators who refused to vote were suspended and are still suspended and their names not called because they refused to vote on a bill they had never heard read. The Democratic papers which have the least pretension to fairness are denouncing this action everywhere. Even the New York World, a most partisan newspaper, says of it: "The action of the majority in requiring Senators to vote on an important bill which they had not been permitted to see, and because they declined suspending them from the rights of membership in that body to which they were legally elected, was unprecedented, unwarranted and dangerous." It continues that "if such a policy were persisted in, no new apportionment could secure the Democrats a Legislature next fall." That is true. The people of the State of New York intend to rebuke this conduct, by electing a Republican Legislature to replace the men who have so grossly violated all rules of decency.

The Sage of Corsicana, Roger Q Mills, has so acted for the last few weeks that the title heretofore bestowed upon him ought to be changed and he should be denominated hereafter the Mad Bull of Corsicana, for he acts very much like a bull in a china shop. It was stated in several of the papers that he would, when Mr. Springer's bill came from the committee on Ways and Means, offer as an amendment the Mills' Bill, better known as the dark lantern affair, which was prepared when Mills was chairman of the committee on Ways and Means in the Fifteenth Congress. Mr. Mills was interviewed on this subject and he did not deny but what he should make this move. If he does, the probabilities are that this session of Congress will last into October, to the great disgust of many new members who would like to be at home trying to secure a re-election.

It is not known to every one that, under Section 1,218 of the revised statutes of the United States, no man who was in the civil or military service of the late Confedaracy or of any of the States belonging to it could, in the event of war, take service in the armies of the United States as a volunteer with any rank higher than that of a private. Even if the distinguished commanders of the Confederate army were alive and war was declared they would have to, if they served at all, serve in the ranks. An effort will be made in this Congress to repeal this statute.

The democratic committee held its meeting in Washington on the 21st and Chicago was selected as the place for holding the next democratic convention and the 21st of June as the time. It is generally understood at Washington that Chicago was selected through a combination made by Hill, Gorman and Brice and there is a very vigorous kick upon the part of some of the delegations that were here trying to secure the location elsewhere.

The democratic mountain, consisting of Messrs. Crisp, McMillan and Catchings, has labored over the rules of the new House for about six weeks and the little mouse has crawled forth. The democrats want to adopt some of the rules of the Fifty-first Congress, but, after having so vigorously denounced them, they could hardly do this but came as near it as they possibly could in one or two things. The very men who clamored so in the Fifty-first Congress for free debate have prepared a rule and offered it to the Fifty-second which, if adopted, will be as effectual in cutting off debate as any of the rules of the Fifty-first Congress. There is no doubt but what the rules will be adopted on Monday, though one distinguished Democrat says he shall move to strike out portions of them and substitute the rules of the Fifty-first Congress, because under the rules offered, not only will debate be strangled, but no business permitted except what the committee on Rules desires.

Levi Myers, the lumber king of Fosston, was in the city on Saturday last.

Al Vine is fixing up a room in the new Reckett Block for a meat market.

Louis Ellington took a run up to McIntosh on Tuesday—ground-hog's day.

Wheat opened out on Monday at 71 for 1 hard. A slight drop since our last report.

Eli Austin has gone to Battle Creek, Mich., for a course of treatment in the sanitarium.

Mrs. Bert Duntley was taken very ill last Saturday but was very much better on Monday.

Tom Morris is getting into his new shop in the Reckett Block this week. It will be a daisy.

Mr. Anderson, of the Tribune, got his right forefinger severely pinched in the engine on Monday.

Ole P. Renne was up from Bindal on Tuesday and called in to make The Journal man happy.

The young folks of the Presbyterian church go out to S. M. McKee's this evening for a social time.

Fred Davis was called home from school on Monday by the serious illness of his parents, who live at Euclid.

The new Commercial Hotel to be built next summer, will be the finest hotel in Northern Minnesota, it is said.

The new Reckett block begins to look like business with the tenants taking possession of their elegant new quarters.

Mr. A. E. Brush came over from Grand Forks on Tuesday and took the train for his home at Angus on Wednesday morning.

Tom Wallace dropped into our den last week to chip in 20 bushels of barley for those who suffered by hail. Tom's heart is in the right place.

Charles Spurgeon, the celebrated English preacher, passed away on Monday at the age of 58 years. Mr. Spurgeon was one of the deepest thinkers of the age.

On Tuesday morning Peter Cornelius came in after Dr. Dunlop to go out to see his little daughter who was very sick. The doctor pronounced it a case of pleurisy.

You bet that ground hog could see his shadow on Tuesday, all right enough, if he was fat enough to cast a shadow, so s'pose we must look out for six weeks good solid winter yet.

Theodore Greenhalgh went out to Maple Lake this week after some fine seed wheat he had secured out there. The idea of changing seed wheat once in a while is a good one.

John L. Hanson died of La Grippe last week and was buried on Saturday. He was for many years a resident of this city. His brother came up from Superior to attend to his affairs.

Theodore Greenhalgh reports the arrival of a fine boy at his house on the 22d ult. The cigars we sampled when he made the report last Saturday were of the best brand obtainable in the city.

There is a rumor to the effect that one of our dentists is soon to take a partner. We are not going to tell which one it is as we promised not to—and it may not be so. How is it Doc, Henaultway?

The Journal regrets to learn that our old friend, H. F. Elfrink, of Argyle, has La Grippe. We know how to sympathize with the victims of that disease having been through that mill ourself. It is no funny business.

Hon. Wm. Carlton passed through the city on Tuesday evening en route for his old home in Wisconsin where he is summoned to testify in a law-suit. Carlton says they are all looking for a big immigration into Polk County next spring.

O. D. Rood, the city laundry man, is putting in a new 16 horse power steam engine in order to keep up with his growing trade. Rood is one of those hard-working men who deserves success—and we are glad to note this evidence that he is attaining it.

Joseph Tagley was down from Woodside last Saturday and was among those who dropped in to encourage us with the remark "keep'er a coming," and dropped his nickel in the slot for that purpose. John reports lots of wood up that way ready for shipment.

Chris Houston desires to call attention to the notice of the meeting of Crookston Alliance, which is to be held on Saturday afternoon next at two o'clock and urge upon all members the great importance of being in attendance as business of importance is to be brought before the meeting.

The Ladies Relief Corps gave a fine banquet in the I. O. O. F. banquet room on Tuesday evening. Receipts about $75.

Geo. Vine gets another carload of hogs from below this week. For choice meats of all kinds go to Vine's Robert street meat market.

A. M. Childs will open an office in this city as soon as he can make arrangements and deal in life insurance for the New York Life folks.

Crookston Alliance will meet on Saturday, Feb. 6th, at the city hall at 2 p.m. A large attendance is requested as business of importance is to be transacted.

At the Congregational church next Sunday the pastor will preach at 11 a. m. on "Christians Riding after the Hon. Mr. Satan's Four-in-Hand." S. S. at 12:5; J. S. C. E. 3:30 p. m.; union services in the evening. Rev. O. H. Elmer will preach at 7:30. All cordially invited to these services.

The Mable Snow Company that give one of their pleasing and entertaining performances at the Grand Opera House in this city on Tuesday, February 9th, is said to be one of the strongest and best attractions of its kind on the road and no doubt the house will be packed, as Crookstonites have not seen anything quite in this line of amusement for some time.

Chas. S. Attix, of Mentor, spent the Sabbath in the city. From Mr. Attix The Journal learns that the Maple Lake Improvement Co. will commence operations at once by putting up and filling an ice house near the site for the new hotel which is to be completed in time for the coming season. The company will put in sufficient money to make the resort a success from the start.

The following clipping, relating to the death of the brother of Mr. M. E. Bartlett, of this city, was taken from the local paper published at Uvalde, Texas, the home of the late C. E. Bartlett:—

"Mr. C. E. Bartlett died at the residence of Mr. Joe Brown last Monday night at 10:45 o'clock. He had been a resident of this country for nearly twenty years and always stood high in the estimation of the people who knew him. He served several years in the ranger force, and has since been engaged in the sheep business. His unexpected death Monday night was a painful shock to his many friends here.'

Jos. Laframboise and J. B. Sauve are doing good business in Ontario, at least we should judge so from the reports we see of them in every paper in the province. These papers are filled with the reports that Laframboise and Sauve give them of the crops of Polk County, and they freely predict that those gentlemen will be accompanied by a large colony when they return home in the spring. Similar reports come from others who are proclaiming the wonders of this country in other places, and it does look like Polk County would see an immigration similar to that of the seventies. Well, let 'em come. We have lots of good land awaiting their arrival.

Edward Lanctot dropped in last week just as The Journal was going to press and added to our hail list 20 bushels of oats and 20 bushels of barley. This week the list has grown considerably, but yet it falls far short of reaching the demand. Several new cases have been called to our attention, some of which are in urgent need of help—who cannot go on without it, and while we have set our stakes at nothing less than seed and feed for all who were struck, we shall not be satisfied unless we succeed in supplying the most needy. Is it possible that Polk County farmers will allow a few of their number to be driven to the wall for the lack of only about 1,000 bushels of wheat, about the same amount of barley and perhaps 2,000 bushels of oats? Minnesota contributed most nobly to the starving poor sending a whole shipload of flour to their assistance, and that was well; but here we have a few cases among us that need a little aid just as badly as do those poor Russian peasants, only not nearly as much of it, and the work, it seems to us, goes fearfully slow. If every farmer in the county would put in only a few bushels there would be more than enough; or if one or two farmers in each town would spend a few hours among his neighbors in procuring subscriptions the work would be easy and the amount soon raised. Let us take hold of this work in earnest and then for the future let us not rest until a system of hail insurance is devised that shall render all aid in this manner unnecessary in the future. Why, we know farmers enough in Polk County who are perfectly able to pull this thing through and we believe perfectly willing to do so, if they would take hold of it. A postal card and a minute's time is all that is required to inform The Journal what you are willing to contribute to this cause. Shall we hear from you?

S. B. Palmer was up from Lockhart on Wednesday and gave The Journal a pleasant call. That Mr. Palmer's heart is in the right place is evidenced in the fact that, though he lives in Norman County, his name is added to our hail list. He has taken the agency for the Lewis gasoline engine, and our readers will doubtless hear more from him later.

J. B. Bren dropped in on Tuesday to encourage us a bit and succeeded in doing it. Bren Bros. run a threshing machine every fall, but last fall they broke all threshing records by pounding out 92,000 bushels of grain in 60 days. They put up their machine about Dec. 31st, but expect to start it again as early in the spring as it is possible to run, in order to finish out what is left up there, which is about 20 per cent. J. B. says he threshed many 30 bushel crops of wheat and says the crop was the best general average he ever saw raised in that neighborhood.

Goodwin Leppert, of Wylia, dropped in last Thursday to put that subscription ahead a peg and contribute 10 bushels of oats for the victims of hail Good enough. We should like to hear from others up that way and secure enough contributions to make a load, or several. Mr. L. says that there is a good bit of threshing yet to do up that way and this fact, no doubt, is one reason why our hail list grows so slowly.

Comrade John Lyndall, was up from Norman County on Saturday and dropped $1.50 in the till to help us along. Comrade Lindall applied for a pension several years ago but as yet gets no shekels. He has an excellent case and will get the money after awhile, and when he does it will be a goodly wad. Adjutant Carruth, of Col. Cobham Post, put a spoke in his wheel that will do him good, as he does for every deserving comrade.

Mossefin & Lindell, Props.

A number of our friends have kindly remembered us on subscription during the past week for which we feel very grateful. Many others have written us that they will attend to the matter when they thresh—for all of which we are duly thankful. We are aware that some have been unable to thresh and we have tried to be very patient this fall, though very much needing all that is due us to enable us to settle our losses by hail and to add to our outfit certain machinery that our large and steadily growing list renders absolutely necessary. We do not intend to put on any frills with the money we receive, but we intend to devote every cent of it toward making a better paper, and this is for the interest of our patrons. We do not intend to be gross in this matter nor do we expect our patrons to accomplish impossibilities, for as we simply ask them to do all they can for us this fall (which we consider reasonable), and if each one will do that, we promise that he will not regret it.

Big Attraction Coming.

The Mabel Snow Opera company holds forth in the Opera-House, Tuesday evening, February 9th. This show is well spoken of by the press in general. There are twenty-five members in the company, and they are all artists in their profession. The entertainment they give never fails to draw crowded houses after the first night. The following is an extract from the Minneapolis Tribune in regard to the company: "Mabel Snow's Spectacular Burlesque company made a hit at the Pence and greatly pleased the large audience. It is a very neat, clever and compact performance. The opening act, The Artist's Models, represents some of the masterpieces in sculpture in a most pleasing manner, the songs are catchy and the jokes really funny. In the olio hits were made by Kherns and Cole, two very comical Dutch comedians; the Griffith sisters, a duo of French high kickers, who threatened to raise the roof; the Alcotes, very clever sketch artists, and the Ahems, two very daring gymnasts. The burlesque called Adam and Eve created roars of laughter, while the pretty young (really young this time) girls in marches, songs and dances, choruses, etc., were nice to look upon and listen to."

Let The Good Work Go On.

Since last issue The Journal has received letters by the score, mostly on the subject of subscription, and as a personal reply in each case would require more time than we can spare we make this general reply. The Journal has only asked for fair and square treatment from its friends, and no person, with a spark of manhood left in him can object to that. We have always made great efforts to accommodate our friends, cheerfully carrying them along when they could not pay, even when we have had to borrow money to do so, and now that the time has come when The Journal really needs the help of its friends we do not think it unreasonable to expect them to make extraordinary efforts in our behalf and we shall be satisfied if convinced that they are doing so, and everyone in that class need have no fears of our making them extra expense or trouble. In 1890 our statements were not sent out until December; in 1891 they were sent out early in October, yet our receipts last year were very much greater than they have been so far this, and 1890 was not nearly so good a crop year as 1891 was, but the promises we are receiving are encouraging and we are led to hope that our collections will be satisfactory which they certainly will if our patrons will show a disposition to do their best for us. We have done the best for them that our facilities will allow and we are ambitious to do better for them and are making arrangements to obtain greater facilities for our work and need the help of all to accomplish it. If every one in arrears could chip in the amount due we could easily accomplish our designs and we do not deem it unreasonable to ask such to write us just what they will be able to do for us so that we may know just what to depend upon. We shall give all such a reasonable time to respond before we proceed to extremidies so that no one can accuse us of taking an unfair advantage. We certainly do not wish to wrong any one, and no one who intends to deal squarely and honestly by us need have any fears, but we would like to know from each one personally what he intends to do.

Proceedings of the County Board.

AT THE MEETING CONVENED JAN. 22ND.

Financial statement read and ordered published.

County orders and warrants paid in 1891 examined and destroyed.

The bids of the following named banks, as depositories of the county funds, were accepted and bonds approved, viz: 1st National Bank of Crookston, Merchants National Bank of Crookston, 1st National Bank of East Grand Forks, and Bank of Fisher, all 3 per cent on daily balances and the Citizens' Bank of McIntosh, 4 per cent.

The bids of the Scandia-American Bank of Crookston, the 1st National Bank of Red Lake Falls, and the Bank of Fertile were accepted provided the said banks furnish suitable bonds and present them at the next meeting.

Application of W. F. McLennan, of Angus, for correction of personal taxes was granted.

The bridge committee reported in favor of building an iron bridge at Thief River Falls at a cost of $7,800, that being the bid of the Wraught Iron Co., of Canton, Ohio, and auditor and chairman were authorized to enter into contract with said company for the work.

Commissioner DeMers offered the following resolution which was adopted.

Be it resolved by the board of county commissioners of Polk County, Minn., that the sum of $3,000 be appropriated out of the county road and bridge fund and that the bonds of Polk County for the sum of $3,000 be issued and sold for the purpose of constructing and building an iron wagon bridge across the Red Lake River at Thief River Falls in said county, and said amounts so appropriated to be used together with the sum of $1,000 appropriated by the village of Thief River Falls, and the sum of $450 appropriated by the Legislature in the year of 1891, and be it further

RESOLVED—That we approve of the location of said bridge as recommended by the committee.

A. C. Rhinehart offered the following resolution which was adopted, viz:

Whereas, pursuant to an act passed by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota and approved on April 21st, 1891, that the boary shall issue the bonds of Polk County in the sum of $3,000 for the purpose of building a bridge across Red Lake River at Thief River Falls in Polk County, therefore be it

RESOLVED—That the county auditor be and is hereby directed to advertise for bids for said bonds, the bonds to be issued in series of $1,000 each and to run for ten years.

The bond of Christianson Bros., abstractors, referred back asking a proviso to be inserted as follows: "and to make good any losses which persons or corporations might suffer through any errors of consequence appearing in the abstracts furnished by said Christianson Bros., as such abstractors."

The appointment of W. N. Dixon as assistant supt. of schools was approved.

The following resolution was adopted:

RESOLVED—That the report of the county surveyor, locating the Crookston and Gentilly county road be accepted, and the County directed to record said road in accordance therewith, and, be it further

RESOLVED—That the county commissioners do hereby assess and determine the damages sustained by reason of the location and establishment of said Crookston and Gentilly county road, over the lands of the following owners, and do hereby assess and award the same as follows, viz:

To Edward Lanclot, on lot 1, section 25, Tp. 150, R. 46, $20.

To Charles Olson, on lots 4, 5 and 6, section 24, Tp. 150, R. 46, $1.

To Frank Lefevre, on south ½ s w ¼ sec. 24, Tp. 150, R. 46, $1.

All other owners having released damages as it appears on file in auditor's office.

Petition of Ole Mortenson and others for attaching secs. 29 and 30 in Tp. 154, R. 49, and sec. 25 in Tp. 154, R. 50 to school district No. 207 was granted.

The following resolution was offered and adopted, viz:

RESOLVED—That that portion of sec. 1, Tp. 150, R. 49, lying north of Red Lake River, be, and the same is hereby detached from Bygland township and attached to the town of Huntsville, in accordance with a petition on file and acted upon favorably at a previous meeting of this board, it appearing that proper notices having been given the chairman of supervisors of the respective towns named of this proposed change in the boundaries of said towns and no remonstrance having been filed by either of the towns affected, it is hereby ordered that the portion named above be hereafter recognized as part of the town of Huntsville.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Feb. 1.—Two events of much interest to our people and to a considerable number outside have occurred the past week. They were the visit here of the members of the Northwestern Retail Lumber Dealers' association and the talk to the citizens, by Jas. E. York, the well known iron man, upon the making of steel in this city.

The lumbermen numbered over 300 and came from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, North and South Dakota. They were given a reception by local lumber manufacturers and dealers and the Jobbers' union. Before arriving here on Thursday they visited the big Cloquet mills and one or two logging camps. While here they looked over the big saw mills at West Duluth, and saw not only two or three of the latest improved mills and some of the largest, but also two iron factories where saw mills are made. Duluth is so important a lumber center that this visit was an appropriate one. Unlike most other lumber centers this one is becoming more important every year, and it is to this city and the immediate vicinity that much of the Northwest as well as a considerable portion of the East must look in the future for their lumber supply. The industry is constantly increasing and is a most important factor in the growth of Duluth. What it will become may be seen by the information given by well informed men, that there are to-day in the Duluth district, most of it directly tributary to the city, about 6,000,000,000 feet of standing pine. The visitors went away well pleased with their day's visit and its results. They were not only entertained, but also proved in their minstrel performance good entertainers.

Mr. York is the patentee of a valuable method of making structural steel, and is one of the most foremost men of his line in America. He has recently organized a company to manufacture the steel, and is looking to Duluth as the most desirable location of the big plant he and his associates will erect. He consented to address our people on the subject of iron and steel making especially in regard to Duluth as a great iron center. After a history of the development of the iron and steel trade, he compared the cost of manufacturing at different points. He showed that it was much cheaper to manufacture pig iron from the Lake Superior ores than from the Alabama, for one ton of the former is equal to two of the latter. Chicago produces pig iron from Lake Superior ores at $14 a ton, and Duluth can produce it cheaper. He said "The recent discoveries in the Mesabi Range are of great interest to Duluth. I have been informed by a reliable gentleman that contracts can be made for ore at Duluth that will not only permit the successful manufacture of iron and steel, but will permit the shipping of pig iron to both Chicago and Pittsburg." Mr. York sketched the history of the making of Bessemer steel and the grand results of Bessemer's invention, which had enabled the production of steel rails at $30 a ton, had doubled the carrying capacity of freight cars and lowered the rates of freight 50 per cent in 20 years. His process, the open hearth, was equally important. The Bessemer cannot utilize scrap steel that comes back into the market and 75 per cent of this material comes back. He is satisfied that he can buy steel scraps at Duluth $4 a ton cheaper than at Pittsburg. After showing where he would find a market he closed by saying: "If the products of Lake Superior manufactured into steel give a value of $200,000,000, you can form some idea of the possibilities of this location when this material is put into many diversified articles that take in the use of wood and steel." HAYS.

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present—Jerome, Marshall, McGlogan, Walker, Steenerson, Cromb.

Aldermen absent—Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Marlette, Schmidt.

CALL OF THE ACTING MAYOR.

CROOKSTON, Minn., Jan. 26, 1892.

A special meeting of the City Council will be held at the city hall at five o'clock p. m. to-day, to make arrangements to purchase a jail site and park, and provide for the payment of the same.

JOHN CROMB,
President City Council,
Acting Mayor.

At a special meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 26th day of January 1892, Alderman Walker offered the following resolution, which was seconded by alderman McGlogan:

Resolved, that the city purchase the following described parcel of land for a jail site and park purposes, for the sum of eight thousand four hundred dollars, viz.: Beginning at the intersection of the northerly line of Second Street, in the city of Crookston, Minnesota, if extended, with the westerly line of the right of way of the Duluth, Crookston and Northern Railway; thence northerly in a curved line to the right, with a radious of 766 77-100 feet and along said right of way line two hundred and four (204) feet; thence westerly in a straight line to a stake at the southwest corner of the land described in deed from M. C. Zwickey to Martha A. Wright, which deed is of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 47, page 285, of deeds; thence southerly on a line drawn at right angles to said northerly line of said Second Street, if extended eleven (11) feet; thence easterly on a line drawn parallel to said northerly line of said Second Street, if extended forty (40) feet; thence southerly on a line drawn at right angles to said northerly line of said Second Street if extended one hundred and fifty (150) feet to said northerly line of said Second Street, if extended; thence easterly along said northerly line of said Second Street if extended one hundred and twenty-six (126) feet to the place of beginning.

And resolved further, that the city officers be, and they are hereby instructed to issue the orders of the city payable out of the Improvement Fund for the purchase price of said tract of land, in the sum of eight thousand four hundred dollars, upon the delivery of a warranty deed for said tract of land by the owners thereof, Scott and Braley, to the City Clerk for the use of the city.

Upon the call of ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Jerome, Marshall, McGlogan, Walker, Cromb.

Steenerson asked to be excused.

Aldermen voting in the negative—none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the President of the Council.

Passed this 26th day of January, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 26th day of Jan. 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
Acting Mayor.

Attest: E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

M. R. Brown, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in this issue, has probably sold more horses in this county than any other man ever did. He came to Crookston in the fall of 1878, and after a thorough examination of the then village and surrounding country concluded to make Polk County his future home and, investing every dollar he had in the world he thus identified himself with our interests in as substantial a manner as a man can. He has ever been zealous in any movement calculated to enhance the interests of the county putting in many a dollar in the effort to enlighten outsiders upon the advantages of this county as a place to reside and has been instrumental in bringing many people to the county, and he tells us that he expects next spring to see more than ever before. He early saw the necessity for good teams here and having advantages for buying such that not everybody possesses, he has been able to bring into the county horses that no one need be ashamed to own. Being a great lover of a good horse he is seldom deceived in one, and a horse, to meet his approval must needs be all horse. He takes especial pride in the business and when Mr. Brown recommends a horse to be "all right" you can come pretty near betting that that horse is all right. As usual, Mr. Brown will be prepared this spring to supply the demand for good horses in Polk County and THE JOURNAL takes great pleasure in recommending its readers to go and see what he can do for them when they need a team of good work horses or mares. In case you buy of Brown and should happen for any cause to be disappointed you always know where to find him. When you buy of foreign dealers you don't always know where to find them if you should happen to want them bad.

HUBBARD ITEMS.

HUBBARD, Jan. 27, 1892.

The farmers held a meeting at the Fossos school house a short time ago for the purpose of discussing the advisability of buying Mr. Kolden's stock of merchandise and starting a co-operative store. Owing to the severe weather very few were present. They will probably hold another meeting in the near future.

Miss Tilda Berg, who taught the fall term of school near the post office, is now attending the Normal school at Moorhead.

Union Sunday school services every Sunday in the school house near John J. Ellington's, at 2 p. m. Come and learn what man is to believe concerning God, and what duty God requires of man.

Miss Matilda Johnson closed a very successful term of school in district 19 last Friday and has been engaged for the spring term at an advanced salary.

A Norwegian school was started here on Monday last by an experienced teacher.

Good Market For Oats

Having had a fine oat crop swept away by hail in few minutes time we are obliged to buy oats to supply our farm teams, and we will be glad to pay the highest market price to any who are owing us several years subscription. We shall need about 1000 bushels and will take them as fast as offered. Bring on your oats and get your receipt. [31-tf.]

Work Horses & Mares.

FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES AND MARES, GO TO

M. R. BROWN.

The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878 and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him. You can always find Brown, and always find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than and dealer in the county. He is now prepared to supply the demand for GOOD teams—he handles no other, and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, Jan. 21st, 1892.

In the matter of the estate of William G. Cooke, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of H. E. Cooke, administrator of the estate of William G. Cooke, deceased, representing among other things that he has fully administered said estate, and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of his administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered that said account be examined, and petition heard, by this Court, on Monday, the 15th day of February, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office in the city of Crookston, in said county.

And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 21st day of January, A. D. 1892.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-two and 49-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Eugene Boulie and Melvina Boulie, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the twentieth day of August, 1890, at 3 o'clock p. m., in book 52 of mortgages, on page 393.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and ninety-six and 4-100 dollars, (496.04), with interest on four hundred and eighty-one (481) dollars thereof, at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south half of the northwest quarter (s½ nw¼) and lots three (3) and four (4), all in Section two (2), of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of four hundred ninety-six and 4-100 dollars ($496.04) and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars Attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, executed and delivered by Ida D. Van Tuyl and John E. Van Tuyl, her husband, mortgagors, to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company," mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of November, 1889, with a power of sale therein contained, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1889, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in book 51 of mortgages, on page 265, and whereas said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars and interest thereon from its said date at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, due and payable on the first day of January in each year. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable January 1st, 1891, and default having also been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable on January 1st, 1892, and both of said defaults still continue, and no part of said principal has ever been paid. And whereas the conditions of said mortgage are such that if default be made in the payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage or interest thereon when the same becomes due, then the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall thereupon become due and payable at once.

And whereas both by the terms of said mortgage and the election of said mortgagee hereby made the whole amount secured by said mortgage both principal and interest accrued to this date is now due and payable.

And the amount now claimed to be due and which is due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage, including interest in accordance with the terms of said mortgage is the sum of six hundred and ninety-nine and 95-100 dollars. And no action or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, which by reason of the defaults aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: The west half of the southeast quarter and the east half of the southwest quarter, both of the above described tracts being in Section ten (10), Township one hundred and forty nine (149), Range forty three (43), in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and containing 160 acres of land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on Tuesday, the 23d day of February, 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy and pay the amount which will then be due upon said mortgage according to the terms thereof, and interest and fifty dollars attorney's fees as provided by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

McIntosh Times: The Scandia Alliance of Knute township is on record as the first alliance in this vicinity to contribute to the relief fund for the starving Russians. The alliance is a small one but its members contributed 143 bushels of wheat and $16.25 in cash. The wheat was ground into flour free of charge at the McIntosh roller mills, and was shipped yesterday over the Great Northern Railway Line which carries all shipments to the relief fund free.

That was, indeed, a very laudable thing to do, but would it not have been fully as much so to have devoted it to those in our own county who lost all their grain in the hail storm of last summer? Of course, we have but few who were unable to provide for pressing wants, but it is a fact that there are some who, had they not been helped, would have been in as bad a condition as the starving Russians, and while the immediate wants of such have been attended to, they still lack for seed and feed for their teams. The object of THE JOURNAL fund is to provide seed and feed for those extreme cases and at the rate at which the list is growing we are confident that we can accomplish it—by next fall. We would really like to see grain enough subscribed by March 1st to supply their needs. Will we see it?

St. Paul Globe, Feb. 2d.

Ex-Senator, Halvor Steenerson, of Crookston, spent yesterday in St. Paul looking after some legal matters. Mr. Steenerson was teased by many of his friends over his reported combination with the Sage of Nininger, but to all he declared he was not guilty.

"I am after no office and I am not making any combinations with Donnelly or any one else," he said with a smile. "I have too good a business at home to think of officeholding, and I propose to stick to it."

"But you are reported to be an Alliance man?"

"I shall read all the platforms next year," replied the Crookston statesman, "and then vote as I think best."

"What do you think of Senator Davis' chances of succeeding himself in the senate?"

"I think he ought to go back. He is an able man and deserves a re-election. He will have to make some big gains in the next election for members of the house, but if there is any doubt about his being returned it is time for good men to get out of politics."

"How many republicans will be sent to the house from Kittson, Marshall, Polk, Norman, Clay, Becker, Otter Tail, Grant, Douglas, and other counties in the western part of the state, Mr. Steenerson?"

"Well," remarked the tall pine of the Red River Valley, "there were but few in the last legislature from these counties, and I am of the opinion that the farmers have not been losing much of their strength."

Importing Industries.

New York Press.

The McKinley law continues to act as an efficient agent in bringing about the importation of industries. The additional duty which it imposes on satins, foulards and the finer grade of cottons has had the natural effect. A huge mill for the manufacture of these goods is to be erected in Adams, Mass. The capital of the new manufactory will be $1,000,000, and it will give employment at American wages to 800 persons. The new enterprise will create a profitable home market for the American sea island cotton. It is one more illustration of the tendency of a wisely framed tariff to develop home manufactures along new lines.

Why Chili Apologized.

New York Press.

The fact grows plainer every day that but for the uncompromising attitude of the United States government and the vigorous preparation for action by the United States navy the Chilian apology for the murder of our seamen and the open insult of the Matta circular would never have been made. Cable dispatches show that the war party in Chili was powerful and bitterly aggressive. The navy and the half savage masses, who have been trained to think Chili the strongest nation on either American continent, were bent on war. Only the conviction on the part of the Chilian Government that all the vast resources of the United States would be called into play if necessary to enforce the just demands of the Republican administration of Washington brought about the tardy offer of redress. There is good reason for believing that up to a comparatively recent date the Government of Chili entertained the idea of forcible resistance. The desparate attempts of Chilian agents in Europe to buy a squadron of powerful warships and their extensive purchases of ammunition and materials of war abroad confirm this idea. If the administration had shown the slightest sign of faltering in its determination to maintain the honor of the nation and secure the safety of American sailors in foreign ports, if the whole American nation had not unmistakably indicated its purpose to support the administration, the Chilian oligarchy would have continued to defy the United States, reparation for the foul wrong to our flag would have been contemptuously refused and American citizenship abroad would have been made, not a shield, but an invitation to insult. The Chilians did not yield until the United States government had made preparations for promptly concentrating a formidable fleet in Chilian waters and the certainty of the President's message to Congress was as well known in Santiago as in Washington.

These are facts which no amount of partisan misrepresentation can obscure. Peace with honor is the direct consequence of the unvarying Republican policy of maintaining the national dignity and the rights of American citizens at all times and under all circumstances; and the three men to whom the gratifying result is chiefly due are Benjamin Harrison, James G. Blaine and Benjamin F. Tracy.

The New French Tariff.

New York Press.

At midnight last night the new French tariff went into force. Hereafter the leading republic of Europe will stand side by side with the great American republic in the ranks of protection. The French tariff is eminently and essentially protective. The increase of revenue is, of course, important, but the principal aim, and the one chiefly discussed in the Legislature, while the tariff was under discussion, was the protection of French industries from foreign competition. The French tariff is avowedly intended not merely to build up industries, for in the competition of skill France need not dread the rivalry of any other nation. The simple fact is that the French people, exceeded by none in business energy and in thrift, have decided that the welfare of the workingmen and workingwomen of France demands that they shall be protected against the labor of other countries, and in this decision France is in line with nearly every other civilized nation in the world except Great Britain; and even in Great Britain the protective sentiment is rapidly gaining headway.

Chili.

New York Press.

The terms upon which the United States Government will consent to regard the controversy with Chili as closed have been made public. They are simple, definite and eminently just. The United States accepts the withdrawal of the Matta note and the apology tendered by the Santiago government for the murderous assault upon our seamen at Valparaiso. The amount of pecuniary indemnity to those dependent upon the murdered men is to be decided by friendly negotiations between the two governments.

The dispatch sent to Mr. Egan shows the desire of the President and his Cabinet to make reparation as easy as possible for Chili. Having won the main point at issue the United States can well afford to deal magnanimously with the smaller republic. There is no wish in this country to humiliate Chili unduly. The administration will undoubtedly show as much generosity in settling the final terms of the affair as it did courage and firmness in insisting upon the vindication of the nations honor and full atonement for the insult to the flag.

Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

NATURALIZATION—THE PROCEDURE.

Having in former talks discussed in whom the power of naturalization is vested and who may be naturalized, we shall now consider the procedure; and first as to the preliminary declaration of intention. Before an alien can become a citizen, he must take certain steps, prescribed by the federal laws, the first of which is, that he shall declare upon his oath before a Circuit or District Court of the United States, or before a District or Supreme Court of the Territories, or before a Court of Record of any of the States having common law jurisdiction and a seal and a clerk, that it is his bona fide intention to become a citizen, and he must declare that he renounces his allegiance to any prince, potentate or state, and particularly naming the prince or state whereof he is at the time a subject or citizen. This declaration must be made at least two years prior to the time of his admission to citizenship. It has been held that the declaration may be made before city, police and county courts of the various states, when such courts are courts of record and have a clerk. In a case arising in Tennessee, a Probate Court was held incompetent. In admitting aliens, State courts in the part they take, act as United States courts, being a sort of agents of the government for this purpose. The declaration may be made before the clerk of the court under the law and not necessarily before the court itself. It was held in a federal case that a clerk of the United States court had no authority to take the alien's declaration at the private residence of the party and for that purpose to carry the records of the court from the clerk's office to such residence. After a foreigner by birth has thus declared his intention to become a citizen, he is regarded as having secured to himself and his children, who are minors, the rights of a naturalized citizen, except so far as pertains to voting. The declaration having been made, must be recorded and the original affidavit, or a copy properly certified by the clerk or deputy clerk, attested by the court's seal, is competent evidence of the declaration. After the declaration of intention to become a citizen has been properly made and recorded and two years has elapsed, final proceedings may be had for admission to citizenship. These proceedings must be had before such court as described above.

In the first place, an alien must declare on his oath that he will support the Constitution of the United States. That he renounces and abjures all allegiance and fidelity to every foreign prince, potentate or state, particularly naming the prince, potentate or state, of which he was before a citizen or subject, and he shall renounce any hereditary title or order, if he has borne any such title, or been a member of any order of nobility. This oath when taken confers the rights of citizenship and an order of court in admitting him is not essential. He must take the oath at the time of his admission. It is not sufficient that he took both oaths at the time of his giving notice to become a citizen. He must, of course, prove that he has made a preliminary declaration, which is to be proved by the record, and that he has resided within the United States five years at least, and within the State or Territory where the court sits for one year, and that during that time he has behaved as a man of good moral character, attached to the principles of the constitution of the United States and well disposed to the good order and happiness of the same. It should be noted that the oath of the applicant is in no case allowed to prove his residence. It must be proved in court by the testimony of witnesses. The oath of an alien, as to his good moral character, should be corroborated by other evidence. One alien cannot vouch for another. All the proceedings, including the court's action thereon, must be recorded and the record is conclusive evidence of the fact recited. The naturalization of an alien confers upon him the privileges of a native citizen, save only such as withheld from him by the Constitution of the United States. The principal disability is the following: Under article two, it is provided that "No person, except a natural born citizen, etc., shall be eligible to the office of President."

THE COMMON LAW.

How many of the readers of this question understand the meaning of the oft-used phrase, "the common law?" We say, "Such and such is the rule at common law;" "The common law is so and so, but statute law is otherwise." I fear the vast majority of people, including a very respectable number of practicing lawyers, do not know the full import of the phrase, if, indeed, they even have a tolerable idea of its meaning. The reason for the failure to comprehend it is easily found. It is not something that may be defined. Justice Swayne denominated it "reason dealing by the light of experiece with human affairs." Blackstone called it "Nothing else but custom, arising from the universal agreement of the whole community," or, in another place, he says, it is "Custom handed down by tradition, use and experience." It is something that grows and expands with new ideas of right and justice. The common law of one country may not be the common law of another country. We are accustomed to use the phrase "the common law" as referring to the common law of England, because, when our ancestors came to this continent they brought with them this common law, and claimed it as their right. What was this common law of England, and what can now be said to be the common law of the United States? In the earliest days of the history of law in England, we find certain laws recognized and in force throughout more or less extended districts, the origin of which is obscure. They are generally customs of immemorial usage grown to be recognized and enforced as law. They have originated thus as edicts of kings or enactments of councils or legislative bodies, records of which are lost in the obscurity of the past. These well established usages became authenticated by the decisions of judges from the earliest days, modified and enlarged to suit the growth of ideas and the emergencies of advancing civilization. They form the great body of the English law, finding their authority not in parliamentary enactments, but in their immemorial and continued usage and the sanction of courts from the earliest days.

When our ancestors landed on these shores they brought with them the common law of England, and adopted it so far as it suited the conditions of their new life. The war of the revolution grew out of the infraction on the part of the Government of England of the common law rights of the colonists, who, although colonists, were none the less Englishmen. Up to the signing of the Declaration of Independence the common law of England was as much a part of our system of jurisprudence as it was that of Great Britain. Strictly speaking, the United States has no common law. The Constitution declares that the judicial power of the United States extends to all cases arising under the Constitution, the laws of the United States and treaties. There was no principle which pervades the Union and has the authority of law that is not embodied in the Constitution and acts of Congress. However, as the common law was the substratum on which the Constitution was founded, we must go to the common law for a definition and an interpretation of its terms.

All of the States, with the exception of Louisiana, have adopted the English common law as its local law, subject to statutory alterations, and only to such extent as suits its conditions. This will effectually answer the complaint of many who cannot see the necessity in the study of the law or of spending so much time on study of the common law of England from the Commentaries of of Blackstone. When it is remembered that this magnificent body of unwritten law (so-called because in its origin not so far as known the subject of legislative enactment) was the law of the colonies prior to the Revolution, was the birthright for which the great war for independence was fought, is the source of the interpretation of our constitution, our laws and our treaties, in so far as they use words and expressions to which the common law alone gives a meaning, became the law (subject to statutory changes) of all but one of the States of the Union. We are prepared to assign it the place it deserves in the estimation of the student—the foremost and best.

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

It seems to be decided, as far as a majority of the Democrats in the House can decide anything, that the "McKinley Bill" shall be attacked in detail. For instance, a New England Democrat will present a bill demanding free hides and free wool. He will do this because his constituents have the plant and can make shoes and clothing from the imported articles and charge a larger profit for the product than they could upon the raw material. As that really bright man in Ohio, Governor McKinley, says, they wish to drop the tax from the wool on the sheep's back and keep it on the purchaser. Mr. Springer, chairman of the ways and means committee of the house, has ideas of this kind also. He wants to have salt made free of import duty. Of course, in a matter of this kind, the expense to the individual is nothing, and so, for the sake of the argument, it is well enough to admit that Mr. Springer's bill, if made law, would save a cent a year to each householder in the United States. But, if this is a matter of principle, and if the Democratic party is a party of principle, why should not some of these things appear in the party platforms, instead of coming up for discussion in the House to disturb business, when there is no possibility of such schemes becoming law?

If there is one thing more than another that has given the Republican party solid and enduring support among the people, it is the straightforwardness with which its platforms are written. The Republican party believes in protection, for example, and says so every four years, and nominates a protectionist for President and elects him. The Democratic party in its platform, as in its present course in the House of Representatives, shuffles and equivocates. It has not had a manly declaration as to tariff in any platform since the rebellion. It doesn't dare to have one. By shifting and evasion it catches at times the support of dissatisfied Republicans or secures alliance with bodies of undetermined men in various States, and gains an occasional victory, as in Kansas two years ago, and as in the national when Cleveland was elected. But beyond the talk of "tariff reform," which may mean much, little or nothing, as the local conditions happen to be, the party really has nothing to go on. The present session of congress will show, doubtless, the twenty odd meanings that individual Democrats give to the wards "tariff reform," and will open the eyes of tens of thousands of voters, especially in the West, who have been led away in the past.

As a matter of news, important or otherwise, it may be stated upon authority that the Alliance in Congress is reduced to three members—Simpson, Watson and Otis. The others go directly to the Democracy, or, rather, stay there. The three named, if going that way, are more deliberate in their movements. Anyway, however, all the influence they have is Democratic.

There is a movement in Washington which has hardly taken form as yet, but which has an appearance of vitality, to give vigor and tone to "Civil Service reform." The machine reform has gone on regularly for years, but the work has not really been satisfactory even to the friends of the present commission. Whether from lack of general support, from incapacity or unfitness of members, or from other cause or causes, their has been dissatisfaction. The idea is to put new men in charge and in otherwise popularize the reform idea.

Considerable Snow Tuesday afternoon—and evening.

The editors of the State are in session in St. Paul this week.

G. H. Palmer has moved his office into the Reckett block.

Charlie and Will Attix came in from Mentor on Monday evening.

J. G. McGrew went to Fertile last week to prosecute liquor cases.

The train on the Northern Pacific was four hours late on Monday morning.

The U. S. Land Office is removed into the Reckett block on Second St.

E. E. Abbott, of Mentor, gave this office a pleasant call on Monday evening.

Call and see that fine line of dress goods now on display at Sture's in the opera block.

A. M. Childs has secured rooms in the Reckett block, over Tom Morris' jewelry store.

Cleveland's Minstrels will appear at the Opera House on Friday (to-morrow) evening.

Gus Felsing was in from Maple Lake last week and made THE JOURNAL a pleasant and profitable call.

Wheat started in on Monday morning at 70 cents for 1 Hard. The best-informed look for higher prices soon.

Iver Krohn has decided to go to his farm at Rindal until spring and may conclude to be a granger for awhile.

Work upon the new railroad bridge was commenced this week and will be pushed until the bridge is completed.

H. G. Mitchell, of Woodside, came down with a carload of wood on Monday evening, remaining over Tuesday.

Geo. Vine gets another carload of hogs from below this week. For choice meats of all kinds go to Vine's Robert street meat market.

Hib. Palmer has been under the weather—but that don't signify, you can't down a lawyer and keep him down.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational church meets with Mrs. Fegan Thursday afternoon of this week.

On the 9th inst. Senator W. D. Washburn introduced a bill for an appropriation of $75,000 for a public building in this city.

The Mabel Snow Company drew a large house at the Grand on Tuesday evening. The performance as a whole was light.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Copeland arrived Sabbath morning on a visit to friends in the city. Mr. C. was formerly a resident of this city.

T. G. Thompson and Charlie Robbecke returned from St. Paul on Sunday morning where they had been doing jury duty for five weeks.

A very enjoyable time was had at the M. E. church parlors on Friday evening of last week. The sociable was a financial as well as a social success.

Our pleasant weather took a tumble to itself and came up cooler and more confident this week. We may now confidently expect spring to arrive—some time.

The Northern Pacific contemplate a change in time at an early day. They also talk of putting on a day train which would be a great convenience to our business men.

The ladies of the Congregational church society organized a raid up to John Wyand's on Monday evening. An enjoyable time is reported. About 70 people enjoyed the outing.

Walt Lee went to Minneapolis last Friday to see about the new machinery and on Saturday wired head miller, F. W. Bugg to come down. Bugg went down via N. P. on Saturday evening.

We need a little help from some of our subscribers just now and we will make it pay you large returns on the investment. Let us hear what you can do, please, those who have not reported.

There was had a pleasant sociable at the lodge rooms on Saturday evening. After work the call was sounded from labor to refreshment in the dining hall and a good social time enjoyed by all.

Owing to the fact that the glass in the M. E. church windows were badly broken upon their arrival the work of putting them in must be delayed until they can be sent to the factory for repairs.

Charlie Jefferson's little boy was severely hurt on Sunday by a runaway. Comrade Jefferson informs us that the little fellow sustained no serious injury, and save various and sundry scratches is all right.

M. R. Brown will be ready by Saturday to show you as fine a lot of horses and mares as were ever brought to this market. Go to his new stables on Main street and look them over. It is better to deal with reliable home dealers than with transients.

Farmers are thinking this year. This fact gives the ordinary scheming politician the shivers but everybody interested in good government is not worrying for when men begin to think and plan then you see that good government follows.

The Kramer case, from Mentor, on trial before Probate Judge Benson on Tuesday, resulted in sending Kramer back to his claim. The doctors could not find sufficient indications of insanity to warrant them in sending the man to the asylum.

Sheriff Grundysen went down to Stillwater on Monday evening after W. E. Munsell, who was court reporter for Judge Mills during Capt. Von Bornstad's absence. It is alleged that one or two orders which Munsell cashed for services were irregular.

Mr. M. R. Brown left for a business trip to Iowa on Friday evening of last week. He expects to return this week with a carload of fine solid work horses and mares to supply the demand of all those needing good horses for the spring's work. Before you buy see what Brown has.

E. O. Flanders returned last Saturday from his trip to New York in the interests of immigration and by next summer sometime we suppose there will be nobody living in the section he visited—they will all be happy Polk County grangers by that time. At any rate there will be lots of 'em here—if all come who said they would.

The annual meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic for the State of Minnesota occurs next week in Minneapolis. Col. Cobham Post will be well represented. Should any of the comrades require reduced hotel rates they will find it to their advantage to address Ira De Camp at the Hotel Brunswick, Minneapolis. Ira will take care of the boys and do it right.

Wm. Wylia came down from Black River on Monday with a man whom he had found badly frozen near a haystack. He intended to put the man in the hospital, but, as that institution was not quite ready he has to be cared for elsewhere. The physician who examined the man expresses the hope that he will recover all right with possibly the loss of some fingers and toes.

Edward George and wife returned last week from a visit with his mother in Rochester. It will be remembered that Mrs. George was convalescing from a long siege of typhoid fever when she went and Ed. was also very much out of health, but we are pleased to know that both are now in excellent health and Ed. will now settle down to business with his accustomed vigor.

Geo. Bunzy and Frank Steelman came down on Monday evening bringing bringing the man Kramer, who was said to have been so badly frozen awhile ago, to have him examined before Judge Benson as to his mental condition. If the man was as badly frozen as reports indicated he has recovered in a wonderful degree as he is as lively and chipper as any man to-day.

Some men high in authority in Alliance ranks think they are completely fooling the farmers and just having everything their own way. Well, maybe they are—just now, but never mind, the farmers are thinking and it was a very wise and noble man who once said "you can't fool all the people all the time." Farmers are thinking and reasoning among themselves and no harm can come of that.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co. have taken possession of their new quarters in the Opera house block and will be ready to supply the wants of all needing farm implements as soon as spring opens. They will begin to receive their goods at once and as they buy for spot cash will be prepared to give the largest discounts of any house in the Northwest. Mr. Larsen is well known to our readers, having done business here before.

The Message, which has been the organ of the Baptist church in this city, came out last week under its new management. R. H. Battey, the editor and proprietor, has had sufficient experience in editorial work to enable him to get up a very readable paper, which he is doing. The paper will be devoted to the interests of church work in the Northwest and we predict for it a successful career, and recommend JOURNAL readers to secure a copy.

Good Market For Oats.

Mrs. D. T. Herriott was in the city on Tuesday and THE JOURNAL acknowledges a pleasant call. Mr. Herriott was for a long time a prominent citizen of Polk Co., but is now a resident of New Castle, Pa. His wife is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. H. B. Budd, of Edna.

Attorney A. A. Miller is undoubtedly good authority on points of law and his counsel no doubt sound, but when it comes to piloting a sleighload of ladies out to John Wyand's he is off, 'way off. At least he was on Monday night, so far off that he did not reach Mr. Wyand's until about 10 o'clock, at which time he arrived from his wandering to and fro on the bleak prairie. As near as we can figure it he went about 'steen miles further east than need be, however, he kept going until he won his case.

They Made a Hit.

CLEVELAND'S MINSTRELS TOOK FARGO BY STORM SATURDAY NIGHT.

Grand Forks Daily Plaindealer:—"Cleveland's Minstrals gave a performance in Fargo on Saturday night to the largest audience over in the opera house, the "Standing Room Only" sign being displayed before seven o'clock. The show made the biggest hit ever made by a minstrel company in Fargo and the papers are enthusiastic in its praise. Owing to the lack of room the elaborate first part could not be properly staged, but at the Metropolitan the stage room is ample and the performance will be given in its entirity. The singing donkeys, Jack and Jill, created a furore."

The company appears in Winnipeg for the first three days of this week, appearing here on Friday next.

A traveling man, giving his name as H. Claudius, and claiming to represent A. Bauer & Co., wholesale liquor dealers, of Chicago, was arraigned before Justice C. S. Spendley on Wednesday of last week, charged with committing an unmentionable crime. The day was spent in examining witnesses behind closed doors and the case adjourned until Friday for summing up. On Friday the man was committed to await the action of the Grand Jury. It is lucky for him that deed was not committed in some countries or he would have danced at one end of a tight rope ere this.

Mrs. F. L. Durand received a telegram last Friday announcing the dangerous illness of her father, and left for Wisconsin on Friday evening. Fred. went with her as far as St. Paul and remarked to our reporter: "While in St. Paul I tried to enlighten the natives down there as to the resources of the Red River Valley and succeeded in getting one man interested to such an extent that he returned with me, bringing his wife along to look the country ouer, and should he find it as I represented he may conclude to stay and grow up with the country. His name is Mr. George Copeland and I think he would make a right smart settler and our people up here would like him real well. His brother John (at my earnest request) a few years ago took a claim, built a house on it, plowed a good deal of it up (the land, not the house) and I have often heard him say that he made almost enough out of it to pay half of the expense of running it; but then, John had a railroad on his hands at the time—John always would fool with railroads, and he has now become President of one railroad—association. So far George seems to like this country real well and I have great hopes that he will settle down—somewhere."

(Communicated.)

EDITOR JOURNAL.—The Times in its last issue has an article on the advantages to be derived from a government ship canal from the great lakes to New York City. Such a work would be of incalculable benefit to the Northwest, as it would lessen the transportation of our wheat and flour more than one-half. but why build a canal from Lake Ontario to New York City? Why not deepen and enlarge the Erie canal from Buffalo to Troy? As compared with the expense of an entirely new canal, the cost would be trifling, and it would have the advantage of being shorter and all in American territory. By the other route we shall still be compelled to send our vessels via the Welland canal through British territory and subject to any amount of tolls the Canadian government might see fit to exact. Again, under existing treaties, but one war vessel is allowed on each lake. Should a war break out between England and the United States, (and such an event is liable to occur at any time) Great Britain, by her admirable system of canals, could send a fleet of ironclad war vessels to the lakes on short notice and our entire lake coast would be at their mercy. With the Erie canal enlarged so that vessels drawing from 15 to 20 feet of water could pass through, we could have a fleet on the lakes as soon as England and meet them on an equal footing. It should not be forgotten that during the last war with England, one of the most important if not THE most important naval battles, was fought and won by Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry on lake Erie. It is important that the United States have a system of defences for our lake as well as our sea coast. Buffalo, Chicago and Duluth with the minor cities and towns along the lakes need defences as well as Boston, New York, Philadelphia and other seaports. It seems to me that petitions from each congressional district throughout Minnesota and the Dakotas, as well as from all the lake cities should be forwarded to their representatives at Washington, asking congress to take some action in this matter immediately.

THE OUTING OF THE SWELLS.

A letter, said to be written by James G. Blaine, declining to allow his name to be brought before the convention in Minneapolis next June, is going the rounds of the press. The candidacy of James G. Blaine for President has been, so far, more of the nature of a spontaneous demand for the man by the people than anything else, and we do not believe that Mr. Blaine will ever refuse to use his best endeavors in the interests of the people in any capacity in which they may call upon him to act. With Blaine, the success of the Republican party is reasonably sure; without his name at the head of the ticket success is problematical.

Red Wing Argus:—Rev. Conrad F. L. Risch died at his home near Huntingburg, Ind., on Tuesday, Ind., on Tuesday, Jan. 26th, aged 91 years, 1 month and 16 days. Mr. Risch was born in Germany, but came to this country in 1848, and settled in southern Indiana. He resided for over three years near Crookston, in this State, and was actively connected with the work of the Lutheran church until a few years ago. His wife and four children survive him, the latter being Mrs. Julia Spitzer, of Huntingburg, Ind., Henry Risch, of Euclid, this State, and Herman and Gustav Risch, of this city.

The answers we have received to our notice to delinquent subscribers, in our issue of January 28th, have been many and very satisfactory, yet there are a few who still remain as mum as oysters—they seem determined to force us to use extreme measures, at least their silence implies that much, and that is just what we don't like to do. We are compelled to incur considerable expense this spring in order that THE JOURNAL may keep up with and ahead of the procession and we have money enough due us on our list to PAY CASH for all the material we need if we should proceed to force collection of all long past due subscriptions. We do not imagine that we have one subscriber on our list who does not intend to settle his account some time, but the fact of our hail losses added to the fact that we are bound to put in added facilities in our work compels us to push our collections more vigorously than we ever have before, and compels us to find out from every one what he can do for us and no reasonable man can object to this request. If a person does not pay us but writes us stating when he can, or offers to give us negotiable paper, then we have something to bank on—we know what we can do and THAT is all we ask and that much we must insist upon. Every dollar received now will go right into the business to improve the paper and our patrons thus get the benefit of it. Let us hear from you, please.

The illustrations of the Review of Reviews is as timely in the February number as in any preceding issue. The frontispiece is a fine portrait of Cardinal Manning. In the Progress of the World are portraits of Senators Cullom and Palmer, of Illinois, Lord Hartington, Joseph Chamberlain and Mr. Collings, M. P., the late Price Albert Victor, the Princess May of Teck, the late Emile de Lavelaye, Mr. G. W. Childs and Mr. A. J. Drexel of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Ballington Booth of New York, and a striking likeness of Walt Whitman with a characteristic autograph post card. In the record of Current Events are portraits of the novelist Guy de Maupassant, the late Khedive, the new Khedive, and the late Wolcott Balestier. The cartoon department is as interesting as ever, and the character sketch of David B. Hill begins with a fine full-page portrait of Mr. Hill, which is followed by another striking likeness from a favorite photograph, and by portraits of Mr. Dana of the Sun, Mr. Howell of the Atlanta Constitution Senator Gorman, Mayor Grant of New York City, Mr. Richard Croker, the chief of Tammany, and a large number of striking cartoons reproduced for the most part from Puck and Judge. Portraits of Mr. Edgar and Col. Reeve of Minneapolis, of Count Tolstol and his daughter, and of Madame Novikoff accompany the article upon the Russian famine. The article upon the London Polytechnic and its Chicago excursion contains three portraits and ten other illustrations. Mrs. Humphry Ward's portrait accompanies the review of her new book, and the review of the first year of the "Darkest England" social scheme is well illustrated. Thus the Review of Reviews for February is a pictorial as well as a journalistic and literary review and summing up of the preceding month.

Cleveland's Minstrels.

The Grand Opera House will be occupied Friday evening, Feb. 12th, by Cleveland's Consolidated Minstrels. Everybody and everything are promised to be absolutely new, and not only to possess novelty, but genuine artistic ability. Manager Cleveland is always alive to the wants of the people, and he fully appreciates the facts of the case, that seeing the same old faces and hearing the same old gags is more than tiresome. This season he commences in a glow of unusual brightness with a great congregation of mirth provokers, singers and a host of foreign specialists. The stage settings and effects will be fully up to Mr. Cleveland's standard of sumptuous stagings. A special feature has been made of the vocal corps, which, it is promised, will eclipse any of Mr. Cleveland's former efforts. The sale of seats and boxes is now in progress.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Feb. 8.—The visit of Secretary Thompson of the Chamber of Commerce to Washington, in the interest of the lake channels and the harbors at the head of Lake Superior, has resulted in much good. His addresses before the congressional committees have been commented upon far and wide, and there is reason to believe that congress will not turn a deaf ear to our needs. A correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch says the figures of the lake commerce, indisputable as they are, have the fascination of a fairy tale.

The secretary of war has appointed Col. O. M. Poe, of the engineering corps, chairman of a board of engineers to examine the plans of the proposed bridge across the canal entrance to Duluth harbor. A hearing will be had either at Washington or Detroit.

Members of the Wellington Steel company of Findlay, Ohio, were here Saturday, looking for a site on which to erect works to replace their Findlay plant, which was recently destroyed by fire. The company wants 25 acres of land and is greatly attracted to Duluth by its splendid situation as an iron manufacturing point. The company will employ nearly 1,000 men.

Good progress is reported in the efforts to locate the New York structural steel works here, and it is probable that this great institution will find a home in Duluth.

Two new pits have been opened on the Cincinnati mine on the new Mesabi range and both show a fine body of ore. They are important as establishing a greater extent of the big ore bed than had previously been shown up. Nearly enough work has been done now to show that the Cincinnati has as large a body of ore as the Bewabik.

The contract for the building of the Duluth, Mesabi & Northern has finally been signed, and the contractors, Donald Grant and Foley Brothers & Guthrie have already begun to push things.

Wheat has again begun to move this way and receipts are running from 100 to 150 cars a day. As the time for the opening of navigation approaches this movement will be considerably increased.

Duluth has just gone through the turmoil of a very exciting municipal election. It resulted in giving the city a Democratic mayor, Chas. d'Autremont, and a Republican council. The new government will be a good one.

The Moorhead Institute for the Cure of Drunkenness and the Opium Habit

Is meeting with excellent success. It has treated several cases with satisfactory results and has several cases under treatment at the present time. The treatment used is "The Silver Ash" remedy by Dr. O. J. Gronendyke, of New Albany, Ind., and is proving all that is claimed for it, and Dr. Darrow and H. D. Scott, who have established the Moorhead Institute, consider themselves extremely fortunate in securing this remedy. They are responsible parties and guarantee a cure in all cases that are placed in their hands where directions are implicitly followed, and there is an honest and earnest desire on the part of the patient to reform. All patients placing themselves under the care of the Institute will be dealt with in an honest, straightforward manner and treated skilfully. Any who are addicted to the drink or opium habit, who desire to reform, will find this remedy a support that will sustain their resolution as nothing else will. Many have dear relatives or friends who are destroying their prospects in this world and their hopes of salvation in the next, by their unfortunate appetite. Let all such be assured that there is yet hope for them if they will make the resolve and faithfully try this remedy. Apply in person or address

World's Fair Notes.

Director-General Davis has declared that all applications for space ought to be presented by July 1, 1892.

The French steamship line, Havre to New York, has agreed to return free all exhibits which it brings to the Exposition at regular tariff rates.

Herr Wermuth, the Imperial German World's Fair commissioner, has already received nearly 2,000 applications for space from the intending exhibitors of his country.

The California World's Fair state commissioners have authorized the formation of a Woman's Board. Each commissioner will appoint one member of this board. Each member is allowed $1,000 a year for travel'ing expenses.

The North Carolina legislature failed to make a World's Fair appropriation. Whereupon the state board of agriculture announced that it would undertake to provide all necessary means and superintend the collection of an exhibit that will be creditable to the state. It is the intention to have the state building at the exposition a reproduction of the state capitol.

Of the $5,000,000 of bonds, which the city of Chicago voted in aid of the Exposition, $3,000,000 have been sold in New York at par and accrued interest, and the Exposition treasury has been replenished accordingly. The terms of sale are regarded very satisfactory. They are equivalent to a premium of one-third of one per cent. on the first million, two-thirds on the second, and one per cent. on the third million.

The Exposition authorities have tendered to the shoe and leather manufacturers a site for their desired building in which to make a united exhibit of the leather industry. A site was selected twice before, but had to be withdrawn owing to changes in construction plans. The site now offered is near the lake shore, not far from the dairy building. There is little doubt that the leather men will accept the site and, if they do, they will put up a building 150x600 feet, costing $100,000.

The King of Italy has appointed a World's Fair commissioner. Italy, it is believed, will yet formally decide to participate in the Exposition. It is already assured that its participation, even if only informal, will be of no mean description. Exceptionally fine exhibits in sculpture and painting are promised.

A practical, working business college, which is purely an American institution, will be one of the exhibits at the Fair.

New South Wales has asked for 300,000 square feet of space.

The watchmakers of Switzerland, at a recent convention in Berne, decided to make an exhibit at Chicago of their finest and costliest watches, but not to attempt any competition with American manufacturers in cheaper grades. They have applied to the Swiss Council for financial and other aid to enable them to make a creditable exhibit.

In Colorado's exhibit will appear a very complete showing of the flora of the state. Miss Alida P. Lansing, who has been in charge of the matter, gathered more than 1,000 varities last summer, including fifteen or more which had never been classified.

A cablegram states that the French government is about to ask the chamber of deputies for an appropriation of 3,500,000 francs ($700,000) for the French exhibit at Chicago.

Georgia, like Texas and South Dakota, is trying to raise a large portion of its needed World's Fair fund through the instrumentality of the school pupils and teachers.

The Grand Rapids, Mich., furniture manufacturers will make a united exhibit and want half an acre of space, in which to display it.

Church and State.

New York Press.

Following close upon an editorial article in The Press, pointing to Cardinal Ledochowski as likely to be the chief adviser of the next Pope, the cable brought the news of the Cardinals appointment as Prefect of the Propaganda, an office made vacant by the death of the late Cardinal Simeoni. This is one of the most important places near the Vatican, and the official occupying it has a broad authority in dealing with the United States, Great Britain and other countries in which the Catholic is not recognized as a state religion, and which are treated as missionary ground. The appointment will give to Cardinal Ledochowski unlimited opportunity for making himself known to the world in general and the Catholic world in particular, and thus preparing himself for a greater task should the future have such in reserve.

The position of the Papacy in Europe is extremely delicate. The state connection, which has been regarded as almost indispensable, is proving in many ways to be an embarrassment. In France, for instance, as shown in the recent prosecution of the Archbishop of Aix, the government assumes to treat the prelates and clergy as officials, subject to the same control and direction as others receiving pay from the public treasury. In Germany the church has succeeded, after many years of struggle in getting rid of the more oppressive restrictions imposed by the Falk laws, but even now an educational measure supposed to be chiefly for the benefit of Catholics and supported by the Kaiser, is meeting with powerful opposition. Dr. Miguel, the Kaiser's favorite Minister, who, however, is not willing to forget his Huguenot traditions, has, it is understood, resigned rather than to appear to indorse a bill so obnoxious to his religious principles, and the agitation throughout Germany threatens to be serious.

Austria has not deviated from the strict adherence to the Holy See, but matters are different in Hungary. There the government, indorsed on Friday at the polls, has taken a firm and determined stand against clerical independence, and apparently neither remonstrances from Rome, nor ecclesiastical influences at home, can swerve it from the course determined upon. In Italy, while reports are afloat of reconciliation between the Pope and the King, there seems to be no official assurance on the subject, and fuel is just now added to the long standing antagonism by a summons addressed to leading cardinals to testify in a civil court, a summons of which they have refused to take any notice. This incident does not look like conciliation.

In Russia the Catholics as well as the Jews are being persecuted. The government has issued orders that no new Catholic churches shall be built, and that when those now existing become dangerous for occupation they shall be closed. This, of course, means the gradual extinction of Catholic public worship. Besides, there is a good deal of actual individual persecution of Catholics in Russia, and members of that faith forced from their country by ill treatment have mingled with the tide of Jewish emigration.

Sweden, the most Protestant country in Europe, while barely prosecuting Catholic worship, has recently enacted a measure intended to prevent the spread of that faith. Spain, in its period of decay, adheres to the church of which it was the champion in its centuries of power. In Central and South America the Catholic church is more or less embroiled with the various governments on account of a former or existing state connection.

As a matter of fact the Catholic religion appears to flourish best in the United States and other lands where it has no relation whatever to the state, and where the support of the church is wholly voluntary. Here, religion unfettered, finds ready and liberal sustenance not at the hand of the state, but of worshipers who testify their devotion to the church by willingness to support it. After awhile, the moral which these facts convey may be studied to advantage in those countries where the church is still bound in subjection to the state.

In Good Time.

New York Press.

The alleged Democratic scheme to get up as a party dodge an international silver conference to be held during the World's fair has apparently fallen into the waste basket of the committee room and the party is marching on to the free coinage precipice at double quick speed. The World's fair silver conference deceived nobody except at first, for any man with eyes in his head could see at a second glance that it was only an effort to postpone a troublesome issue until after the Presidential election.

It is fortunate that the mask has fallen off so soon. If it becomes so plain nine months before election that nothing can be expected of the Democracy in the line of currency legislation except a crazy and dangerous determination to dify conditions and to follow theories framed in the interest of speculators and against the interest of the people, there is time to educate the people in the significance of this attitude before they are called on to vote.

The point that the Republican press of the whole country should keep on making and driving home in this: The silver speculators want free coinage without an international ratio expressly for the sake of the profit that will go into their pockets by virtue of the difference between seventy-five cents' worth of silver coined free of charge into "a dollar" and a real dollar, a dollar's worth of gold in the form of coin. Of course that is the very reason why the people should not want free coinage without an international silver treaty. Such a treaty would give to us a sound bimetallic currency by advancing the price of silver, so that the silver dollar agreed on would be really worth a dollar. Of course, in that event free coinage would be of no considerable profit to the big silver speculators. That's why they do not want it. But it would mean a good price and a steady market for the product of our great silver mining industry, as well as a currency in which the workingman could buy a dollar's worth of goods for the wages of a dollar's worth of work. The workingman has sense enough to know that if he is hired for $3 a day, legal tender money, and if there is free coinage without a treaty with other nations, he will be liable at any time to find that, in consequence of heavy gold exports, the price of what he buys today for his $3 will have been put up to $4. And he will still be getting $3 a day. Wages won't go up. Oh, no! And the butcher and the baker and the candlestick maker won't be allowed to say, "Your dollar is worth only seventy-five cents; we won't take it for more." They will have to take it as a dollar. But marking three dollar goods up to $4 will amount to the same thing.

The National Debt of the United States.

New York Press.

Estimating five persons to each family, census bureau calculations demonstrate that the federal debt of the United States amounts to $78.15 per family. On a similar basis of calculation the debt of Great Britain is $337.60 per family; of Austro-Hungary, $354.20, and of France, $581.75. Germany has no statistics from which to figure out accurately her debt per family, but the indebtedness is estimated at $400. It is one of the notable features of the financial stability of this nation that the national debt per family is so low, and it is the subject of comment that while the ratio of national debt to families has decreased steadily, the national wealth has been growing faster than that of any nation on the globe, and our capital and resources have improved more rapidly than those of any other nation.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 7th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 18th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, executed and delivered by Ida D. Van Tuyl and John E. Van Tuyl, her husband, mortgagors, to the "Union Central Life Insurance Company," mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of November, 1889, with a power of sale therein contained, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1889, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in book 51 of mortgages, on page 265, and whereas said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars and interest thereon from its said date at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, due and payable on the first day of January in each year. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable January 1st, 1891, and default having also been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable on January 1st, 1892, and both of said defaults still continue, and no part of said principal has ever been paid, And whereas the conditions of said mortgage are such that if default be made in the payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage or interest thereon when the same becomes due, then the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall thereupon become due and payable at once.

And whereas both by the terms of said mortgage and the election of said mortgagee hereby made the whole amount secured by said mortgage both principal and interest accrued to this date is now due and payable.

And the amount now claimed to be due and which is due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage, including interest in accordance with the terms of said mortgage is the sum of six hundred and ninety-nine and 93-100 dollars. And no action or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained which by reason of the defaults aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: The west half of the southeast quarter and the east half of the southwest quarter, both of the above described tracts being in Section ten (10), Township one hundred and forty nine (149), Range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and containing 160 acres of land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on Tuesday, the 23d day of February, 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy and pay the amount which will then be due upon said mortgage according to the terms thereof, and interest and fifty dollars attorney's fees as provided by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and 85-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Peder H. Mesedalen and Karl Mesedalen, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the tenth day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 246.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred ninety-two and 81-100 dollars ($692.81) with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (684) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section seventeen (17), Town one hundred and forty-nine, (149), Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Council Proceedings.

Proceedings of a regular meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston, held in the City Hall on Tuesday evening, February 9th, 1892.

Meeting called to order by president Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present—Buhn, Jennings, Childs, Jerome, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen absent—Marshall, Steenerson.

The minutes of the previous meetings were read and approved.

The committee who were appointed by the council to wait on the County Treasurer and get what money had been paid for city taxes since the last settlement, reported that they had done so, and had secured the sum of $5,000.

The City Attorney presented a written opinion of the Attorney General on the question of liquor licenses. On motion the same was ordered spread on the records.

CROOKSTON, Minn., Feb. 9, 1892.

To the Honorable, the City Council of the city of Crookston:

GENTLEMEN:—In response to the desire expressed by your honorable body in its resolution of the last regular meeting, on the 13th ult., I wrote the Attorney General of the State requesting his opinion regarding the limit placed by the existing law of the state upon the issuances of licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors by the city council. On the 15th ult. I received from Attorney General Clapp the letter which I herewith present to you. As we have in our city annual charter elections, the limitation specified in the opinion of Mr. Clapp applies to us and our licenses should be issued as he therein specifies.

Yours very truly,
MARTIN O'BRIEN,
City Atttorney.

ST. PAUL, JAN. 14, 1892.

Hon. Martin O'Brien, Crookston.:

DEAR SIR:—If under the charter of Crookston, annual charter elections are held, a license issued now would expire twenty days after the next charter election. Sec. 8, Chap. 5, Gen. Laws 1887, provides that no license shall be issued for a longer term than one year or for a period beyond 20 days after the annual election in such village or city next ensuing of the date of the license. The question has not been before the Supreme Court but some of the District Courts have held that the proviso should be construed as if it read "nor" where the word "or" is found.

Yours very truly,
MOSES E. CLAPP.

Moved by Alderman Childs, that the chief of police be instructed to inform all parties who hold licenses from the city of Crookston to sell intoxicating liquors, of the construction of the law placed on it by Attorney General Clapp. There being no second to the motion the president ruled that it was not before the council.

A communication was read from Alfred Savary relating to taking his team from the street and putting it in a livery barn on the 18th day of January. No action taken.

The finance committee reported as follows:

GENTLEMEN:—Your finance committee beg leave to report on bills held in abeyance from last regular meeting as follows: That said bill number 815 is correct and should be paid, and bill of G. A. Ralph and the report of Justice Spendley be referred to the council without recommendation, Bill number 808 of J. E. O'Brien be allowed at $8.76, and bills number 818 and 819 of C. W. W, P. & L. Co. are referred back without recommendation.

Respectfully submitted,
A. C. SCHMIDT.
R. G. MARLETTE.

On motion the report was accepted and the bills reported upon favorably ordered paid.

A copy of a permanent injunction relating to the $50,000 bonds of the Duluth, Crookston & Northern Ry. was presented.

The bond of O. Ducharme as constable was accepted and approved.

Alderman Marlette offered an ordinance repealing chapter 3 of ordinances entitled "An Ordinance to Codify, Consolidate and Amend the General Ordinances of the city of Crookston, and all ordinances and parts of ordinances amendatory thereof."

AN ORDINANCE.

At a regular meeting of the City Council of the city of Crookston, held the 9th day of February, 1892, the following ordinance was offered by Alderman Marlette:

An Ordinance repealing Chapter III of an ordinance to codify, consolidate and amend the general ordinances of the city of Crookston:

The City Council of the city of Crookston do ordain:

SECTION 1. That chapter III of an ordinance of the city of Crookston, entitled "An ordinance to codify, consolidate and amend the general ordinances of the city of Crookston," and all ordinances and parts of ordinances amendatory of said chapter III are hereby repealed.

SEC. 2. This ordinance shall take affect and be in force from and after its passage, approval, publication and recording.

Upon the call of ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the President of the Council.

Passed this 9th day of February, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 9th day of February, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
Acting Mayor.

Attest: E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

A petition was presented relating to houses of ill fame in Chase's addition. On motion the same was referred to the ways and means committee.

New business then being in order, Alderman Childs offered an ordinance entitled "An ordinance relating to houses of ill fame within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston," which was taken from the table.

Alderman McGlogan moved to amend seconded by Alderman Jennings, that twenty-five dollars be substituted where fifty dollars appears.

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Jennings, McGlogan, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—Buhn, Childs, Jerome, Marlette.

Amendment declared carried by the President of the Council.

Alderman Childs moved to amend the amendment, that the amount be placed at $45 instead of $25. No second.

Alderman Childs raised a point of order on the amendment which was that it should pass with a vote of a majority of all members of the council.

Chairman declared the point not well taken.

Alderman McGlogan offered the following ordinance:

At a regular meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston held the 9th day of February, 1892, Alderman McGlogan offered the following ordinance:

AN ORDINANCE

Relating to houses of ill-fame within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston:

The city council of the city of Crookston do ordain:

Sec. 1. Any person or persons who shall within the corporate limits of the city of Crookston, keep a house of ill-fame, or house resorted to for the purpose of prostitution and lewdness; and all persons, male or female, who resort to such house of ill-fame, shall on conviction thereof before a justice of the peace of said city, be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars, or imprisonment not to exceed ninety days, at the discretion of said justice of the peace.

Sec. 2. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to demise, let or hire, any house or other building, buildings or premises within the limits of the city of Crookston, to any person or persons for any of the purposes mentioned in the first section of this ordinance, and if any person shall knowingly offend against this section of this ordinance, he, she or they, upon conviction thereof, before a justice of the peace of said city, shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution for every such offence.

Sec. 3. Any person, male or female, who shall, within the corporate limits of the City of Crookston, resort to any house of ill-fame for the purposes of prostitution or to associate with a prostitute or prostitutes, or who shall procure another to resort to any house of ill-fame for the purpose of prostitution or to associate with prostitutes shall, for each such offence on conviction thereof before a justice of the peace of said city, be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution or by imprisonment not more than thirty days in the discretion of said justice.

Sec. 4. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in so much as they may be inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Sec. 5. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval, publication and recording.

Upon the call of ayes and nays, the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—None.

Upon this vote the president declared the ordinance carried.

Passed this 9th day of February, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 12th day of February, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
Acting Mayor.

Attest: E. C. CARRUTH,

Our Washington Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 15, 1892.

The Democrats must be in desperate straits and recognize that fact when Mr. Fithian introduced a resolution with a string of whereases longer than the moral law, setting forth the necessity of putting agricultural implements on the free list. This, of course, is intended to capture the farmer vote, but does Mr. Fithian or any one else suppose that there is any farmer in the United States who is such an infernal fool as to believe that the putting of agricultural implements on the free list will lower the price of these implements. There never has been for twenty years and there never will be for a hundred years an agricultural implement imported into the United States. There is not a country that manufactures an implement, that if it was imported and a bounty offered for it, an American farmer would use. This kind of buncombe in Congress will not win any votes to the Democratic party, but it does show that the party is in a bad condition and knows it.

The question raised by Senator Stewart, sometime ago in the Senate, is now in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and will probably go very soon to the Supreme Court of the United States. Some time last fall three well known gentlemen offered a silver brick of the necessary fineness and weight at the Philadelphia mint and asked for its coinage into silver dollars, offering to pay the rates charged. The superintendent of the mint refused to coin this silver into money, saying that there was no law for it. An appeal was taken from his decision to that of the Director of the Mints at Washington, and he affirmed the decision of his subordinate at Philadelphia; another appeal was taken to the Secretary of the Treasury and he made the same statement, and now the parties are in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia asking a mandamus from that court to compel Secretary Foster and Director of the Mints, Leech, to coin that silver into money; this brings up the whole question, and it matters not what the Supreme Court of the District decides, it will go to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The withdrawal of the Louisiana Lottery from the fight in that State has not settled the differences between the Democratic party there. The lottery and anti-lottery tickets both continue in the field. The anti-lottery men have just received a large shipment of arms, openly sent to the chairman of their committee, and the chairman of that committee says there is no concealment and no attempt at concealment, that if the votes cast for their candidates are not counted they intend to see that they are if it requires arms to do it. This is very illustrative of Louisiana methods, and it may be that the Democrats, who a few years ago were engaged in shooting down the Republicans to prevent them from exercising the privilege of franchise, and who have since been swindling them out of their votes will now go to shooting each other and swindling, if possible, each other out of their votes. Retributive justice follows them close, and the overthrowing of law and the constructing of mob law, as has been done in Louisiana, always reacts.

The rules have been adopted in the House, and the Holman amendment, putting riders on appropriation bills along with the balance. The object of the Holman amendment is to put on the appropriation bills each one of Mr. Springer's little tariff bills, and in that way to force the Senate to accept them and the President to sign them. The Democrats of the House may prepare themselves to sit in session until the third of March, 1893 if this is their game, because if the Senate should give way and accept these appropriation bills with tariff repealing riders on them there is a man in the White House who will not give way, but will let the appropriations go until they come to him in proper form to be signed.

There has been a great deal of talk, and it was particularly the case during Gen. Grant's administration, of Republican nepotism. An examination of the record of the secretary of the senate shows that seven senators have their sons as clerks of the committees of which they are chairmen, and five of these senators are democrats, who hold the committee by courtesy, as the senate is republican. A further examination would show that several of the senators have their sons as private secretaries; one had his wife and some have their daughters. Of course it is no nepotism, because it is democrats who do it.

3 Northern 60.

Mrs. W. E. Slocum has been quite ill with tonsilitis.

Wheat dropped off a cent on Wednesday, opening up at 71.

Mrs. Geo. W. Tice, of Mentor, was in the city on Monday evening.

Mrs. Geo. W. Peake is convalescent from an attack of pneumonia.

The thermometer indicated 28 below at 6 o'clock on Monday morning.

The N. P. Express office has been moved into the the Reckett Block.

Only two more weeks of regular winter yet—but what will the spring time be?

If you want to borrow money call on J. W. Wheeler at the Scandia-American bank.

Fred Anderson has been getting up a lot of green elm sawed stove-wood lengths.

H. B. Parker, representing a Boston paper house, was in the city on Wednesday.

Mrs. Chris Houston, who has been sick for some days is reported convalescent.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Miller returned on Saturday morning from a short visit to Fargo.

Gilt edged farm loans wanted. Call on J. W. Wheeler at the Scandia-American bank.

Geo. Vine still continues to cut up corn-fed pork to the delight of his many customers.

See A. Humphrey's ad. elsewhere in this issue and write him for particulars on farm lands.

Wheat took a spasm and opened up three cents higher on Tuesday morning, reaching 72.

Wm. Price, of Edna, died suddenly at that place last week and was interred here on Tuesday.

W. C. Andrews, representing Wright, Barrett & Stilwell, of St. Paul, was in the city on Monday.

The Ladies' Relief Corps held a session at their hall in Odd Fellows' Block on Monday evening.

See the new ad of Larsen, Carpenter & Co. and give the boys a call when you want a square deal.

Alderman A. C. Schmidt was celebrating the arrival of a fine girl baby at his home on Saturday last.

Meetings are being held every night this week at the Presbyterian church and much interest manifested.

W. E. McKenzie, of The Times, went to St. Paul on Monday evening to attend the Democratic love-feast.

Ed. Bivens has been confined to his room with rheumatism for some days. Has had a pretty hard time of it.

Wheat opened out on Monday morning at 69 cents for 1 Hard. A gain of one cent on Friday's closing price.

S. L. Dobson returned last week from a trip below, enjoying the sights and scenes of Minneapolis by gaslight.

Miss Mabel Duntley returned from Euclid on Monday evening. She reports the sick ones at Mr. Davis' doing nicely.

Anton R. Erickson has been appointed special administrator of the estate of John L. Hanson, who died a few weeks since.

Mr. and Mrs. James McAnulty, of Dugdale, spent the Sabbath in the city with their children who are here attending school.

Go to Geo. Vine's meat market in Robert street for choice cuts. Geo. had one himself a week or so since but he don't sell that kind.

F. L. Hampson, formerly editor of the Norman County Herald, favored THE JOURNAL with a pleasant call on Friday of last week.

A consignment of exhibits for the Exposition—the first received from a foreign country—arrived at Chicago Jan. 26, from Japan.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Copeland, after a pleasant visit with friends and relatives in this city returned to their home in St. Paul on Thursday.

Crookston Alliance held a regular meeting on Saturday last. But few were in attendance so no business of importance was undertaken.

Bert Duntley expects his brother from Michigan about March 1st. The young man, if he likes the country, will become a resident of Polk County.

It is announced that the imperial band of Emperor William of Germany will attend the Exposition, having already obtained permission to do so.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings and Mrs. J. V. E. Wyatt left for Minneapolis on Monday evening to attend the annual meeting of the Ladies Relief Corps in that city.

The prospects are that more building than ever before will be done in this city next season, and all of a permanent [illegible]

Supt. V. D. Carruth and assistant Supt. Dickenson have been busy visiting schools. Last week they visited the schools on the east side.

Iver M. Johnson writes us to ask if the $3.00 sent us last month was received. It was received on Jan. 13th and our printed form of receipt sent in paper.

John Lester was on the sick list last week but is now all O. K. again. John says he was "clean out of his mind all day Sunday but has got it all back again."

Walter Lee brought up a span of fine steppers when he returned from Minneapolis last week. Also a new safe for the mill wherein he can deposit stake money.

Comrade Geo. Holt went down to Minneapolis on Tuesday evening to be present at the annual State encampment, to represent Col. Cobham Post therein.

Parties living along the railroad, however remote, need not hesitate about subscribing to our hail fund as arrangements for shipment are now being made.

Alderman & Sylvester have done so much business in the hardware line this winter that they have worn their floor all out and were obliged to lay new flooring this week.

The last issue of the Warren Register mentions the serious illness of T. R. Davis, an old-time resident of Warren, and this week the news that he is dead reaches THE JOURNAL.

Wheeler loans money on farm security. He is too busy to write up an ad for this issue, but if you will call he will not be too busy to tell you what he can do for you in that line.

Dept.-Sheriff M. Losey went out east after Paul Matthey, accused of selling mortgaged property. Matthey secured the services of Martin O'Brien to defend and his case was set for Wednesday afternoon.

C. L. Hanson was up from Valley on Tuesday. Mr. H. says farmers in his neighborhood have their threshing all done—got their plowing done last fall and are now ready for spring's work as soon as it comes.

Mrs. Rose has rented the whole of the third story of the Reckett Block, a portion of which she will use as a restaurant and the balance for sleeping rooms. She has gone to St. Paul to purchase furniture.

Mrs Bert Duntly went up to Euclid on Tuesday morning to see how the sick ones are getting along. Her father, Mr. M. Davis, has been very sick and the others more or less so, but they are reported very much better.

E. M. Walsh reports two important real estate deals this week. The Barnes property on Broadway to A. Chabot, and his lot on the corner of Broadway and Fletcher to Martin Finseth who will build a business block thereon.

Last week W. A. Marin advertised a lost horse in these columns and on Tuesday he came up after his horse, having found him by means of his ad in THE JOURNAL. He says it always pays him to advertise in THE JOURNAL.

C. C. Bartlett, formerly editor of the Fertile Journal, was in the city on Monday. Mr. B. is looking for a job in Polk County again. Having been away for two or three years he finds that there is no place like the Red River Valley.

It has been decided by the powers that be to hold the annual district encampment of the G. A. R., which was voted to this city at Moorhead last June, on July 4th, 5th and 6th next. Crookston will do herself proud on that occasion.

Very interesting revival services are in session at the Presbyterian church this week. They are union evening meetings by the Congregational and Presbyterian churches, Rev. Messrs. R. H. Battey and O. H. Elmer preaching alternate evenings.

Policeman Ellingbo was kept busy on Tuesday night taking care of the exuberant spirits that did much abound. Ellingbo comes as near being a whole police force as one man can. When he sees a noisy crowd, faith he surrounds them and runs 'em in.

The Scandia American bank folks have been re-arranging the interior of the bank with a view to the better accommodation of their growing business. They have not lost sight of artistic points in the deal and neatness and beauty still reign supreme.

C. P. Swanson was down from Bray on Friday of last week. He has purchased a horse-power and will put in the balance of the winter threshing, or so much of it as is necessary to complete what remains to thresh, which he estimates at one-fourth of the full amount raised.

Commissioner L. P. Hunt will be in the city next week to see about raising our proportion of the World's Fair fund. It shouldn't be a hard matter to do, as every other place where the call has been made has responded promptly and Crookston should not be behind in the good work.

Next Sunday, Feb. 21st, at the Congregational church, Mr. Battey will preach at 11 a.m., subject: "What is it, Lord!" Sabbath School after the sermon. Union services in the evening, Rev. O. H. Elmer preaching the sermon at 7:30. All kindly invited to attend church here next Sabbath. Come early and join heartily with us in the [illegible]

Writing in response to our statement of last week a McIntosh friend says: "I regret not having remitted for THE JOURNAL which is an ever welcome visitor to our household. I think you have more patience than many ordinary mortals." Thanks, friends. Like all ordinary mortals we like to be appreciated.

Last Friday evening the Epworth League of the M. E. church gave a social in the church parlors. A large number were present and and enjoyed a fine program. Especial mention should be made of the recitation of Miss Hill, who delighted the audience, and all wished for another opportunity to hear her.

Our list for hail sufferers grows slowly but the prospects are more encouraging as we know of several who will chip in later. Meanwhile any who feel like helping out a goood cause can drop us a postal card stating the amount they are willing to contribute and their name will be added to our list. Let the good work go on.

Hugh Thompson:—How does your hail list prosper? I had made up my mind to give 40 bushels of wheat to the Russian sufferers but I believe THE JOURNAL is right on that question that charity should begin at home and so what I do this year will be done for our own citizens. You may put me down for 25 bushels of wheat as a starter and if you need it later I will raise my ante. We certainly should encourage all who have the ambition to go ahead and raise grain.

Mrs. C. Snyder received a telegram on Monday announcing the serious illness of her father, and together with her husband left for the old home on Monday evening.

An auroral display was witnessed last Saturday night that has seldom if ever been excelled. At about 6 p. m. a broad crimson belt spanned the heavens from the northwest to the southeast forming a bow of beauty indescribable. We notice by the papers that the same phenomenon was witnessed in many states, more or less vividly. It was a sight long to be remembered.

A weary individual sought shelter in a storm porch on Tuesday night about 10:15, where he lay sweetly sleeping until policeman Ellingbo could be hunted up when he was given more comfortable quarters. It took about one hour and fifteen minutes to find a policeman, as Robinson was sick and Ellingbo was busy on another case. He rounded 'em both up.

A man named O'Brien was brought down from Fosston on Monday evening under arrest, charged with having set fire to a bed upon which he was sleeping. The Fosston tangle-foot must be red-hot for not long since we read of an Indian who loaded up with it and was burned up before he could be rescued and now comes this case where a man's breath sets the bedding on fire.

Judge Benson went down to Fergus Falls last week and brought back O. A. Larson who was committed to the insane asylum last May. He says the hospital is the best conducted of any in the State, and the patients are in excellent hands. They seem to regard the Superintendent, Dr. Bartlett, very highly. A large addition is nearly completed, and when ready, about 200 patients from St. Paul will be received.

Read the manly letter of President Mitchell, on our last page. Mr. Mitchell makes some very wise and timely suggestions in connection with the efforts being put forth to secure seed and feed for those who lost their crops last season by hail. If every sub-alliance should act upon this suggestion the work would be light and the amount donated by each need not be very large. Here is an opportunity for practical work. Shall it be improved?

Cleveland's Minstrels drew a big house on Friday evening and gave a fine entertainment, but had to cut down their program fearfully to allow them to leave on the N. P. train at 10:15. The management should not contract with any show that has to leave that soon as their patrons pay for the whole program and are entitled to it—good or bad—entire and the result will be that people will not go for fear they will not get what they pay for. We have mentioned this before.

Not long since THE JOURNAL published a circular letter from parties in New York offering to sell counterfeit money and elsewhere in this issue we re-produce an account of how they came out, taken from the Minneapolis Evening Journal. People are not giving away fortunes in this day and age of the world and whoever is fooled by these captivating circulars is not wise. If these chaps had the kind of money they claim to have they could dispose of it to better advantage than by selling it at such discounts.

The ladies of the Relief Corps are making preparations to give a grand ball on the evening of Feb. 25th, at McKinnon's Hall. It is known that next year the annual G. A. R. Encampment will be held in this city and the object of this ball is to provide funds for that affair and every citizen of Crookston, who takes a pride in his city, should help on the good cause by buying at least one ticket. Every other place where the Encampment has been held has done itself proud and Crookston must not be behind.

One of our city papers not long since repeated the rumor that Will Kops had gone insane over business matters. Elsewhere we give space to a letter letter from C. DeBruyn Kops, Will's father, which shows how much truth there is in the rumor. It is singular how such reports obtain. We clip the following from the Hot Springs Graphic. We also note in the list of arrivals at the ten hotels that the list of arrivals at the Hotel Pullman leads the list in number. There don't seem to be anything very "crazy" about this showing:

"The Hotel Pullman is doing a business that is a very flattering tribute to the enterprise and growing popularity of its manager, Mr. W. C. Kops. For the past month its accommodations have been taxed and the prospects bid fair to a continuation of its present era of prosperity."

FRAUD RUN DOWN

"Green Goods" Operators Caught at Their Own Game.

A MINNESOTAN'S DETECTIVE WORK

HE ANSWERS THEIR SUMMONS TO MEET THEM IN NEWBURY, N. Y.

ACCOMPANIED BY A PINKERTON.

THE SWINDLERS ARRESTED AND SENT TO JAIL—THEIR PURPOSE EVIDENTLY WAS ONE OF ROBBERY.

Minneapolis Journal.

BRCINARD, Feb. 13.—The country in the northern part of the state, and especially in this locality, is being flooded with circulars from "green goods" men, nearly every man in this city having received one during the past four weeks, These circulars purport to be of a strictly confidential character and lead the recipient to believe that he has been singled out by the writer through some mutual friend as the person to handle counterfeit money.

Edward Mahan, a gentleman who formerly resided in Brainard, but who is now located at Little Falls, received one of these circulars and a short time ago concluded to answer it out of curiosity. Accordingly he telegraphed in Cipher to J. S. Stone, 178 E. 120ts st, New York, as directed, and as soon as the mail could bring it came the answer enclosing a $5. $2 and $1 bill. The instructions told Mr. Mahan to come on immediately and he would be met at Newburgh, N. Y., where the business would be transacted in a certain room at a hotel named in the letter. Mahan was to telegraph to the New York address again as soon as he reached Buffalo, and when he reached Newburgh he was to know the man by his hat and a telegram which he was to have in his hand with large characters thereon written in green ink.

After getting this letter, his curiosity was greatly aroused, and he thought that he might be able to run these thieves down for the public benefit. He took the $5 bill to a national bank, and with his day's deposit he shoved it under the window, but the cashier did not detect anything wrong with it, and Mr. Mahan called his attention to it, saying he was a little suspicious of the bill, but it was thoroughly examined and the bank expert pronounced it genuine. However, he did not leave it. That night he telegraphed the Pinkerton detective agency at Chicago the facts, and received word back to come on there immediately, which he did the next day.

Stopping only between trains in Chicago, where he was joined by a detective, the two journeyed east. At Buffalo, Mr. Mahan followed the instructions and telegraphed ahead that he was coming, and the detective disguised himself, it being understood that they should keep apart from that time until the final windup came. At Newburgh, he got off the train and walked along the platform, when he was suddenly jostled and, looking around he saw a man who said, "Excuse me, I thought I knew you," and in his hand was this telegram with the "green ink" characters, by which he was to be recognized. The two walked along and entered the hotel together and the fellow said to him: "I'm sorry, but the old man couldn't get away and you will have to go down to New York and see him, if you have the money and are prepared to do business." They ate breakfast and the capper paid for it and also for tickets to New York, to which place they journeyed together, but without speaking, the instructions being for Mahan to keep 100 feet behind on their way from the car to the "business" place. In the meantime the detective was keeping a reasonable distance behind the two.

The capper wound around among the buildings in the vicinity of the river and finally started down a narrow alley, and here the detective hailed two policemen, who were given the tip. Mahan followed his man down the alley and when he saw him walk up a plank and unlock the door of a warehouse, which rested on piling over the river, his heart almost failed him, but as he saw the detective in the vicinity he went in and the door was shut behind him, and he found himself in a large unlighted room. His situation was not an enviable one, but with a gun in each coat pocket he thought he would be able to hold his own for a short time.

Just as the capper called to his confederate in another room, the policemen broke open the front door and the two men tried to escape, but were captured. There was nothing in the building that indicated a "green goods" establishment, neither of the men having any money on their persons, nor could any trace of such a thing as a counterfeit bill be found. Each of the men had a good-sized slugshot, which was the only weapon they possessed. The men were tried and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary on the charge of using the mail for swindling.

Mr. Mahan fully thinks that their game was to get him into the building and there he was to be knocked down and robbed, as he had telegraphed them he had $500 to invest, and he feels a certain degree of satisfaction to think he got out of it as lucky as he did, and also that he didn't undertake to run the "green goods" men to earth alone.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 11th, 1892.

ED. CROOKSTON JOURNAL.—

DEAR SIR:—An anonymous report has been circulated in your city concerning my son "Will." The report states him to be insane in Cincinnati, owing to business troubles. The fact is Mrs. Kops, with our youngest boy Frankie and myself, have been his guests, for the past eight weeks in Hot Springs, at the popular Hotel Pullman, of which he is the successful manager. This hotel, although not the largest, is certainly one of the best conducted in the city and commands the most desirable patronage. It is the most centrally located of any and does the "commercial business" when the big resorts close for the season. No one here but has a good word for the Pullman and its popular manager. Among our fellow guests while here we had the pleasure to number several from the Northwest: P. B. Baker, Barnesville, conductor on the N. P.; Chas. Leonard, Grand Forks, traveller for a Minneapolis grocery house; Mr. Egge, Minneapolis, ex-sheriff of Hennepin Co.; also a Mr. Woodruff, St. Paul, connected with a silk house. The hotel accommodates 150 guests. We are now on the point of returning home and report a very pleasant sojourn here. The weather has been delightful, with indications of a change at present. Kindly refute the unfortunate report which has gained publicity in Crookston, and call attention to the fact that the "paper" in which it first appeared could easily have ascertained whether the report were true or false by writing to us at Grand Forks and thereby could and should have avoided causing us this annoyance.

Very respectfully yours,
C. DE BRUYN KOPS.

A Novel Proposition.

The Pioneer Press Co. of St. Paul, Minn., makes some remarkable offers in connection with its weekly edition. Election time is approaching as well as seed time. Of course every household desires the Weekly Pioneer Press during the campaign, and the publishers propose to reciprocate by giving their subscribers a benefit in the seed line. Following are their offers of northern grown, tested seeds furnished by L. L. May & Co., the leading northern growers:

Offer No. 1.—"Ladies' Collection."—Everyone sending $1.10 will receive the Weekly Pioneer Press one year and a collection of flower seeds, amounting at catalogue prices to $1.10. Included in this offer are Pansy, Nasturtium, Sweet Pea, Poppy, Mignonette, Petunia, Phlox, Forget-Me-Not, Snap Dragon, Candytuft, Siline, mixed, etc. 13 packets in all.

Offer No. 2—"Vegetable Garden"—Everyone sending $1.20 will receive the Weekly Pioneer Press one year and 20 packets of garden seeds, prepaid. Every gardener needs this package. Onion, Cabbage, Beet, Lettuce, Tomato, Radish, Corn, Parsnip, Pea, Cucumber, Turnip, Pepper, Water and Musk Melon, Celery, Carrot, Cauliflower, Endive, Spinach and Leek seeds are included. The seeds alone cost $1.40 at regular prices.

THE PIONEER PRESS CO.,
St. Paul, Minn.

The thing to do, if you want a good all round magazine, is to subscribe for Peterson. It will only need a glance through the March number to convince every woman of this. Peterson is the newest old magazine extant, and is nowaday one of the handsomest as well as one of the very best. "Posed For Her Picture," is the portrait of a child so lovely that she will win every heart. "A Windy Day," is a striking contrast in subject though equally attractive in its way. The celebrated French astronomer Camille Flammaron, contributes a brilliant paper called "News From Other Worlds." "Something About Aprons," is a useful and entertaining article. There are two excellent serials and "A Chapter on Clocks," is a charming paper and the illustrations of quaint time pieces most interesting. Fashion and Household departments are alike full and complete. Terms two dollars a year. Address Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

In sending out our statements last week it seems that we sent to one or two who had written us in November. We thought we had kept perfect tab on all from whom we had previously had a satisfactory understanding, but it yet seems to be true that mistakes will happen in the best regulated families. We trust our friends will overlook our zeal in view of what we desire to accomplish. Our statements last week were designed to remind some of a fact that they seem to have quite overlooked and also for the purpose of becoming better acquainted with a few whose subscriptions have become moss-covered worse nor the old oaken bucket you read about that hung so well, (we'll wager it "hung" no better nor longer than some we wot of,) and we want to say right here that we propose to get better acquainted with some of them, in a quiet, friendly way, if they will allow it or by requiring them to meet us in some office in Crookston hereafter to be designated, if we must, for we are DETERMINED to place our business in somewhat more satisfactory shape and we are determined to get a new press and power to run it,

AND PAY CASH FOR IT,

if it is in the power of man to do it, and we want to do it peaceably and in a friendly way if we can possibly, but WE PROPOSE TO DO IT or know why we cannot. We have an idea that there is enough due us from parties whom we imagine could just as well pay as not if they chose to accomplish our desires, and all we propose to do is to try and find out how near right we are in that.

Money, Not Food.

IS WHAT SUFFERING RUSSIA WANTS, ACCORDING TO A CONSUL.

ST. CLOUD, Feb. 28.—Geo. A. Freudenrich, the Swiss consul at Odessa, Russia, under date of Jan. 4, replies thus to the inquiries of his wife, who is here, concerning the famine in that country: "Yours of Dec. 29 came duly to hand a couple of days ago. As far as the starving Russians in the northern provinces are concerned, they are starving merely for the want of proper organization on the part of the authorities. Plenty of grain was raised in the south of Russia to feed the whole country, and if they had provided cars in time things would have been different. All along the northern Caucasius thousands of bushels of wheat are rotting (or were a few weeks ago) in sacks, waiting for transportation, while in the north hundreds of cars were sidetracked doing nothing. Such is Russia and ever has been. I say, on the contrary, don't send any provisions, but send money, and that to the committee of which the hereditary prince imperial, Nicholas, oldest son of the czar, is the head. Provisions will not be taken care of, and will be wasted after reaching Russia. There is plenty of wheat in the country to keep all the mills going if the wheat was only properly distributed around to the places where it is needed."

SONS OF VETS, TO ARMS!

The time for the Annual Encampment draws on apace; the young ladies of the Relief Corps are organizing a drum corps for the event and what are you doing for the cause? Wake up! Fall in! Re-organize your camp and get ready to join the big procession. Since the camp was first organized many, who were then "kids" are now on deck ready to join. Hi, there, Capt. Glenn, Lieut. Mason, Lieut. Mix, get a move on you or the drum corps will be ready to drum you out of camp first you know. Seriously now, the boys should catch on again and organize another camp. We believe there is plenty of material to be had for a good strong one. What do you say, boys?

EDITOR JOURNAL.—I have noticed for some time past that you have been trying to enlist the sympathies of the citizens of Polk County in a substantial manner to aid our unfortunate fellow farmers who have suffered the the loss of their entire crop by hail, or so nearly an entire loss as to prevent them from cultivating their farms the coming season without aid; and that you suggested that the Alliance take the matter up. While I fully recognize the propriety and justness of that suggestion, I have no authority to request the Alliance to take any action. But, in the interest of those who have suffered the loss of their crops by hail and will be unable the coming season to work their farms unless they receive aid, and believing that our unfortunate fellow-citizens should first receive our sympathies and aid before extending them elsewhere, I would therefore recommend that each sub-Alliance in the county appoint a committee to solicit and receive, not only from the members of the Alliance but from all citizens in their respective localities, contributions of seed, feed or money to help those that otherwise would suffer severely or entirely lose their homes. it would require but little from each one to enable the unfortunates to once more having bright prospects of retaining their homes, which are so dear to all.

H. G. MITCHELL,
Pres. Polk Co. Alliance.

HUBBARD ITEMS.

An Old City.

Old cities are not common in the West. In the eastern states of the Union are places which boast quite a respectable antiquity for the New World, but outside of the original thirteen colonies, most cities have been founded within the last half century. A notable exception among the larger western cities is St. Louis. The first recorded settlement, in the way of laying out a town, was by Pierre Laclede Liguest, a Frenchman, in February, 1764. At the time he supposed he was taking possession of the site in the interest of his native country. It was not until some months afterwards that he learned of the Treaty of Paris, in the previous year, by which the territory west of the Mississippi was ceded to Spain. In 1800 it became French again, until the financial necessities of Napoleon compelled him to sell it to the United States for $12,000,000, a purchase for which Thomas Jefferson was roundly abused at the time. Now St. Louis is one of the most beautiful, prosperous and stately cities in the Union. To reach it, for business or pleasure, The Burlington, with its line skirting the Mississippi, is the only route worth considering. For rates, tickets, maps and time tables, apply to your home ticket agent, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

THE MERCANTILE AGENCY.

There are few persons but are effected directly or indirectly by the mercantile or commercial agency. It may be said to wield a powerful influence in enlarging or restraining the business of the country, in the making and unmaking of credit upon which business largely rests. Its influence, extent and power have become so great that few people can act independent of it without more or less serious results. It has become so powerful and so useful a part of modern business life that a statement of the law regarding it and its relations to the general public may be interesting and profitable. And first a few words with respect to the history of the American system of mercantile agencies. It originated, says Errant, with a commercial traveller by the name of Church, who at first kept notes of information acquired on business trips which he permitted others to use, but eventually devoted himself to this work alone in the employ of certain New York houses. His success suggested to Louis Tappan the idea of establishing the first mercantile agency at Few York in 1841, which was shortly followed by Woodward & Dusenberry's Commercial Agency. Tappan's venture finally developed into the R. G. Dun & Co. agency. The "improved mercantile agency," organized a few years later than Tappan's, by J. M. Bradstreet, was finally incorporated as "The Bradstreet Company," and was the first concern to publish a book of rating. Special agencies, confining their reports to particular lines of business, have become numerous. In England such establishments are known as trade protection societies.

The business of a mercantile agency consists in collecting and furnishing to subscribers information relating to the credit, character, responsibility and reputation of merchants, and so extensive has become the system that no one, no matter how mean and humble is his little shop, but has his "size" taken, his business photograph struck off and kept for display in the agency books. Many questions of law have arisen of public interest respecting the rights and duties of the agency and how far it may go in thus entering upon a man's premises and taking notes with which to make up his credit proportions. We shall in future papers treat first of agency reports as "privileged communications;" second, as to contracts which limit the agency's liability for negligence; third, as to the liability of one who informs the agency, that is where one makes false representations of his solvency or where the representations are made by third parties.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication Jan. 14th, 1892.)
(Last publication Feb. 25th, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-two and 49-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Eugene Boulle and Melvina Boulle, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of August, 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the twentieth day of August, 1890, at 3 o'clock p. m., in book 52 of mortgages on page 323.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and ninety-six and 4-100 dollars (494.01), with interest on four hundred and eighty-one (481) dollars thereof, at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south half of the northwest quarter (s½ nw¼) and lots three (3) and four (4), all in Section two (2), of Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of four hundred ninety-six and 4-100 dollars ($496.04) and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five (25) dollars Attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Jan. 7th, 1892.]
[Last publication Feb. 18th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage, executed and delivered by Ida D. Van Tuyl and John E. Van Tuyl, her husband, mortgagors, to "Union Central Life Insurance Company," mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of November, 1889, with a power of sale therein contained, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1889, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in book 51 of mortgages, on page 265, and whereas said mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars and interest thereon from its said date at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, due and payable on the first day of January in each year. And whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable January 1st, 1891, and default having also been made in the payment of the sum of forty-eight dollars interest due and payable on January 1st, 1892, and both of said defaults still continue, and no part of said principal has ever been paid. And whereas the conditions of said mortgage are such that if default be made in the payment of the principal sum secured by said mortgage or interest thereon when the same becomes due, then the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage shall thereupon become due and payable at once.

And whereas both by the terms of said mortgage and the election of said mortgagee hereby made the whole amount secured by said mortgage both principal and interest accrued to this date is now due and payable.

And the amount now claimed to be due and which is due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage, including interest in accordance with the terms of said mortgage is the sum of six hundred and ninety-nine and 93-100 dollars. And no action or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover said debt or any part thereof secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained which by reason of the defaults aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: The west half of the south-east quarter and the east half of the southwest quarter, both of the above described tracts being in Section ten (10), Township one hundred and forty nine (149), Range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and containing 160 acres of land, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Said sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on Tuesday, the 23d day of February, 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy and pay the amount which will then be due upon said mortgage according to the terms thereof, and interest and fifty dollars attorney's fees as provided by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Grand Forks Herald: The schism in the alliance camp over the binding twine trust seems to widen. Jerry Simpson is after Loucks, Wardell and Crose, of the South Dakota Alliance, in this vigorous fashion:

> The alliance made a narrow escape from getting into the hands of a gigantic trust. In my opinion there were men in the alliance anxious to sell the order for a consideration, and because I ferreted out their scheme and exposed them, they have followed me with deadly enmity ever since. Had this cunningly devised scheme gone through, as some persons conspired that it should, what a spectacle the alliance with its motto, "death to combines," would have presented to the world? The National Union's name is "Dennis" to use a common expression, as far as the alliance is concerned, and no one need vex their souls because they fear that the order has fallen into the hands of knaves and fools.

Jerry doesn't say whether Loucks, Wardell and Crose, who still defend the twine trust, and acknowledge their connection with it, "in a business way," are knaves or fools, but in Jerry's judgment the South Dakota alliance must have fallen into the hands of one or the other of these delectable classes of worthies.

Our Duluth Letter.

From our Special Correspondent.

DULUTH, Feb. 17.—That business has been improving here very much of late is very evident. Merchants all report trade good, all the manufacturing establishments are running on full time with good orders ahead, the wheat trade is larger, and money is easy. Architects report their business excellent and that present conditions indicate a large amount of building during the coming summer.

There was quite a good sale of lots yesterday in the new town of Merritt, which has been started in the midst of the big new mines on the Mesabi range, the Cincinnati, Canton, Biwabic, Kanawha and Hale. The purchases were mostly by parties who will erect business houses there. The growth of iron mining in that locality will demand a large town, and this one seems sure of a great future. It will be to the Mesabi what Tower and Ely are to the Vermilion, Hurley, Bessemer and Ironwood to the Gogebic and Negaunee and Ishpeming to the Marquette range.

The continued bright reports from the new mining country keeps public interest aroused and there is much buying and selling of iron stocks. It was feared at one time that the rich deposits there and the splendid chances for money making might lead to an epidemic of wildcat companies, such as passed over the Gogebic in its early days. This is hardly possible now. People are more conservative than they used to be, and more prone to investigate. It so happens, too, that nearly all of the land in the iron belt is owned by strong men, financially, or by companies, who purchased it for the pine timber, and these parties are very generally refusing to sell or lease to any but good, solid parties, who will not countenance wild booming and speculation.

A party of capitalists from Louisville, Cincinnati, Chattanooga and other places interested in the Cincinnati and Chicago mines, reached here to-day and will go to the Mesabi to-morrow to examine their properties. The work on the former mine shows that it has about 1,000,000 tons of ore in sight, with every prospect of making as rich a mine as now exists anywhere. The Chicago will be developed at once. Its land is about as valuable as there is on the range and it has a large amount of it. Several of the new mines will be ready to ship ore as soon as railroad connection is made.

Scientific Miscellany.

EXPERIMENTING WITH COLD.

The laboratory of Prof. Pictet, at Berlin, is designed for the investigation of the effects of cold. The refrigerating machinery, driven by several powerful engines, keeps the objects under observation at any temperature between 20 degrees and 200 degrees below zero as long as may be required. The cooling is effected by the evaporation of liquids, and is divided into three stages, each with its special apparatus. For the first stage is used the mixture of sulphurous carbonic acids known as "Pictets fluid," which is condensed at a pressure of about two atmospheres in a spiral tube cooled by water. Oxide of nitrogen (laughing gas) is the liquid chosen for the second stage. It is condensed at a pressure of 10 or 12 atmospheres in a tube kept at about 80 degrees below zero by the action of the first circuit. For the third stage air is employed, and passes into the liquid state at a pressure of 75 atmospheres when the temperature is kept at 135 degrees below zero by the other circuits. The evaporation of the liquified air gives a cold of about 200 degrees below zero. Absolute zero is placed at 273 degrees below zero C., but Prof. Pictet regards 255 degrees below zero as about the lowest attainable artificial temperature. One of the effects of great cold has been the conversion of quicksilver into beautiful fern-like crystals. Glycerine also has been crystalized; and cognac has been given by freezing the peculiar mellowness commonly attained only by long keeping. The most important result thus far, however, has been the purification of chloroform, the crystals that form in the commercial chloroform at about 86 degrees below zero being almost absolutely pure.

MAGNESIUM LIGHTING.

A new magnesium lamp, devised by M. Dronier, burns without attention for regular periods of 24 hours. A pound of magnesium is consumed in about 100 hours, giving a light equal to that of 130 pounds of candles, 80 pounds of petroleum, or somewhat more than 100 cubic yards of gas. The advantage is offered of freedom from risk of fire. The present running expense of the lamp exceeds 30 cents an hour, but with the anticipated great reduction in the cost of the metal, lighting by magnesium may be made fairly economical.

PROJECTED RAPID TRANSIT.

The schedule time for cars on the proposed electric railway between Vienna and Buda-Pesth is expected to be 75 minutes for the entire distance of 150 miles. As planned, the road will have two main power stations, with 100 sub-stations, but with only three or four stopping. Each car will be about 130 feet long, fitted with four bogie trucks, and an electric motor at each end will receive current through contact wheels running on conducting rails. The ends of the cars, to diminish air resistance, will be shaped like those of a ship.

POWER FOR SMALL BOATS.

The novel feature of a new electric boat, the idea of a French engineer, is a sea-water battery. The zinc and copper plates are under the boat and can be raised or lowered by pulleys, serving as a kind of keel while at the same time driving a propeller by means of a motor.

THE MAGIC OF MODERN SCIENCE.

In a paper on "The Ignis Fatuus of Photography," Mr. A. Adolphe mentions the following as among the specialties which modern men of science are seeking as a means whereby their results may be indirectly turned into gold. 1. The artificial production of the diamond from carbon, which means the crystallization of carbon. 2. A prevention or cure for epilepsy and consumption. 3. The complete combustion of coal, of which but 5 per cent is now available. 4. Photography in natural colors. 5. The direct utilization of solar heat, and the ebb and flood. 6. The production of "attar of roses" from worthless substances. Even the alchemist's original dream of direct and genuine transmutation is being revived, for the indications are increasing that the present elements are not the simple substances they have been supposed, and should gold prove to be a compound its artificial production would be but a question of time.

JAPANESE LACQUERING IN EUROPE.

The juice of the lacquer tree (Rhus vernicifera) is the natural varnish upon which depends the famous lacquer work of the Japanese. Specimens of this tree were brought from Japan 16 years ago and planted in the Botanical Gardens at Frankfort, where they have flourished and have yielded seeds from which thrifty young trees have sprung. This place now has 34 healthy trees 30 feet high. To determine whether the juice is affected by its changed condition, Prof. Rein has sent samples to Japanese artists for trial, and is having comparative analysis made by eminent chemists. If the reports are favorable it is expected that the lacquer tree will be quite extensively planted in Germany, and that Europeans will be instructed in the lacquering of wood by some worker from Japan.

WEIGHT OF LIGHT.

Prof. Oliver J. Lodge calculates that the impact of light-waves from the sun produces a pressure on the moon's surface of about 1,000 tons. In a total eclipse of the moon this force is withdrawn, but since the total attraction of the sun on the moon is to be estimated in millions of tons, this slight apparent diminuation gives no appreciable effect. Upon a very small body, however, the pressure of solar light might be equal to, or even greater than, the attraction of gravitation. Such a body need not be infinitely minute, but of a size comparable with that of a grain of dust. It is conceivable that the dropping off of comets' tails on their approach to the sun is due to this action.

REMAINS OF BIRD GIANTS.

Bones recently found in New Zealand are estimated to represent 500 specimens of the moa. This immense wingless bird, now extinct, seems to have been hunted and eaten by the early inhabitants of New Zealand, and is believed to have stood at least 10 feet high. Madagascar had another giant wingless bird, whose eggs—10 or 12 inches in diameter, three times the size of those of the ostrich—have been discovered.

Immigration.

New York Press.

There are immigrants and immigrants. Sweeping condemnation of those who come to this Republic to better their condition is absurd, and it would be equally as absurd to deny that a proportion of the immigration is undesirable. Emigrants seldom belong to the higher social class in the countries from which they depart. Unless they are assisted paupers they seldom belong to the lowest. It requires something of energy, ambition and aspiration to tear loose from one's native land and seek more favorable circumstances under a foreign sky, and perhaps among people of a different tongue. The worst of the population of any country are more disposed to vegetate than to emigrate. A Scottish poet pictures the Highland lad reclining on his native heath, reflecting on his bleak and hopeless surroundings and exclaiming:

"I'll hie me ower the heaving wave,
And win myself a name,
And in a palace or a grave
Forget my Hieland hame."

That boy had an ambition above his fellows, and he was the type of a valuable immigrant. He might never achieve a palace, but he would be very likely to become an excellent citizen and win a comfortable home. Such immigrants are far more common than is generally supposed. From Great Britain, Ireland, Germany, Scandinavia and other countries they come, and have been coming these many years, and they have had no small share in building up the American Rebublic to be the most prosperous nation in the world.

We also receive many of the undesirable kind. As a rule these do not emigrate with any intention of permanent citizenship. They come to make what money they can and then go back to live in the land of their origin.

"Put none but Americans on guard," ordered General Washington, in a time of peculiar peril, "or foreign born soldiers who have families in the country to whom they are known to be attached." This, after all, is the true test for the foreigner who seeks the advantages this Republic affords. Is he prepared to make it his permanent home, to take an interest in its welfare and qualify himself to do his duty as a citizen? In a word, does he wish to become an American in all that the term implies? If so, and he is morally and physically qualified, he ought to be welcome.

Country Newspapers.

The Century.

Although country editors are nearly always poor, there are plenty of persons who believe that half the paragraphs in a country newspaper are paid for with enormous bribes. There are always two sides to every question, and whichever side an editor falls on, the partisans of the other accuse him of being "bought." It is little wonder, therefore, that the editor is seldom a popular man; I never knew one who was, and I never knew one who was not often accused unjustly. Probably the people believe in bribes to editors because it is a very rare editor who does not accuse his opponent of being a bribe-taker, creating a prejudice against themselves and their calling. Lazy and incompetent editors nearly always explain the success of their more vigorous opponents by declaring that they carry on a system of blackmail. I once visited a large city, the newspapers of which I had long admired almost with reverence, and was surprised to hear a citizen say, that what the city really needed was better papers; they would bring "eastern capital." Every citizen of a country town wants his locality "boomed," to the end that he may sell his fifty-dollar lot for five hundred; he can appreciate how a really good paper might aid him in this, and because his lot does not advance in value as he thinks it should, he has a grievance against the editor. He longs for an editor with some "snap" in him. I don't know what "snap" means, but I know this is the quality usually thought to be lacking. There are more great men in every country town than really exist in the entire nation, and if they are not recognized, the local papers are of no account. I was once bothered a good deal by a certain man who said he could clean more chickens in an hour than any other chicken-cleaner in the world, and he wanted the fact mentioned. Men who are never suspected of greatness by other people accuse themselves of it to the editors, and when they refuse to mention this greatness, they are told that their columns contain a great deal of stuff not half so interesting. It has occurred to me that when a citizen of a country town becomes drunk, the first thing he does is to hunt up the editor to tell him what is the matter with the community.

An Elastic Month.

The month which closes next week we may call elastic, because every fourth year it is stretched to accommodate an extra day. A good many hundred years ago it was found that the solar year was about 365¼ days in length, and that occasionally it would be necessary to add a day in order to keep up the average. Forty-nine years before the birth of Christ, the extra day was assigned to February as being the shortest month, 28 days. In the original arrangement of the calendar by Julius Cæsar, January, March, May, July, September and November consisted of thirty-one days each, while February had twenty-nine, and April, June, August and December were thirty-day months. In leap years February had thirty days. When Augustus Cæsar came to the throne, he felt affronted that the month of August, named for him, had not so many days as July, called after Julius Cæsar. Accordingly he issued a decree that August should have thirty-one days, and consequently February was shortened to twenty-eight in ordinary years. This is leap year, and hence the above may be interesting, but we wish further to say that be the months long or short, the elegant fast trains of The Burlington leave most of the principal cities of the West every day in the year. For tickets, rates, maps, etc., ask any railroad ticket agent, or apply to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul Minn.

The Anarchists of Xeres.

New York Press.

The people of the United States have just cause to abhor the enemies of society who are called by the name of anarchists. They are as dangerous foes of liberty as an Ivan or a Nicholas, for they would destroy the fabric of orderly government, without which true liberty is impossible. Here there is no excuse for their teachings or practices, and popular opinion demands and approves the sternest measures in compelling their obedience and punishing their violation of the laws of the land.

But the Spanish anarchist, so-called, seems to be a different sort of person. In Spain a widespread popular sentiment is evidently in sympathy with the agitation against established authority, and the four men executed at Xeres were regarded as martyrs by hundreds of thousands of their countrymen. In the leading cities of Spain shops were shut and workingmen remained away from their daily employment in order to protest against the action of the government in putting these men to death. Manifestly the victims represented a powerful force that threatens the foundations of the Spanish monarchy.

The common people of Spain are thoroughly discontented. They are ground down with poverty and taxes. Their political privileges are but the shadow of a free constitution, and they have not been educated to a calm and law-abiding assertion of their rights. Bound, for years under a haughty despotism, their awakening is not a gradual vindication, as in England and Germany, of the power and deserts of the masses. It is a violent and angry movement, accompanied by such acts as have brought about the tragedy of Xeres. Instead of preventing, the punishment of these men seems more likely to hasten the inevitable revolution.

Monarchy presents its most absurd aspects in Spain, where a child in short clothes is the nominal chief of the state; and it may be added that the Spaniards owe no loyalty to a system which has reduced their country from immense wealth to comparative penury and which continues to saddle an already overburdened state with a throng of unnecessary office-holders.

Members of the Farmers' Alliance in Kosciusko County, Ind., at a recent meeting in Warsaw, decided to assess themselves weekly to provide a fund to defray their expenses for a visit to the World's Fair. About 400 farmers and their wives will compose the visiting party.

Iowa, in its exhibits at the exposition, will show the various forms in which corn products are useful as food, and also the processes of their preparation.

H. Gloster Armstrong, of London, is in Chicago, making application for space upon which to show a reproduction of the Tower of London, or rather the most interesting portions of it, such as the "White Tower," "Beauchamp Tower," "Tower Green," "Traitors' Gate," etc. He represents a company willing to expend $250,000 in the enterprise.

The Illinois state exposition Board has set apart $40,000 as a special fund for the encouragement of live stock exhibits at the Fair. The fund is apportioned as follows: horses, 37 per cent; cattle, 30 per cent; hogs, 15 per cent; sheep, 12 per cent; poultry, 6 per cent.

The Sultan of Turkey has consented to the erection of a mosque at the Exposition grounds for the religious services of Mohammadans who attend the Fair. It is reported that $3,000 will be expended in its erection.

The bureau of music has issued letters of invitation to all the important choral societies in the larger cities asking them to co-operate in forming the grand chorus of 2,000 voices; which will render standard oratios at the ceremonies dedicatory of the Exposition buildings.

FARMS FOR SALE!

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

For a small cash payment and a mortgage for the balance at seven per cent; payable annually, you can buy either of the following fine farms. They were taken on foreclosure and those prices only slightly exceed the amounts of the loans there have been on them.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 71.
1 Northern 70.
2 Northern 64.
3 Northern 60.

District court convenes next Monday.

Pat Russell has moved into the new Reckett block.

Chas. Westerberg has rented the Scandinavian hotel.

Clerk of the court, Nels Muus, went to St. Paul last week.

There will be lots of fun at the races on the ice to-morrow.

W. C. Lee has been purchasing city property heavily of late.

Rev. S. H. Barteau, of Stephen, was in the city a few days last week.

Bert Bivens was down from Argyle to spend the Sabbath with the folks.

Monday was an extremely warm day and the snow disappeared rapidly.

Andrew Eiken has purchased the Hurlbut property on Huston Avenue.

Don't forget the Ladies' Drum Corps Ball, at McKinnon's Hall, this evening.

Judge Benson went up to McIntosh last Friday and spent the night with friends.

Gilt edged farm loans wanted. Call on J. W. Wheeler at the Scandia-American bank.

Geo. Vine still continues to cut up corn-fed pork to the delight of his many customers.

County Attorney Holston started for St. Louis on Friday evening of last week to attend the convention there.

Pat Casey, of Parnell, was adjudged insane before Judge Benson last week and sent to the asylum at Fergus Falls.

The steppers were out in force on Monday. Everybody who has a speedy horse had him out on the ice trying to beat everybody else.

The Queen City Band gave one of their pleasant open air serenades on Saturday evening. That begins to look like summer-time.

Those horses at Brown's are going off like hot cakes. He sold 8 head on Monday and it wasn't such an awful good day for sales either.

Will Waggoner, of Fisher, bought a span of fine young mares of M. R. Brown on Monday. They go elsewhere to look but they go to Brown to buy.

J. J. Ide comes to the front with seed grain for the unfortunate ones who lost their crop by hail, and says he will do some rustling in his neighborhood for them.

Call at Brown's stables and see those choice working mares he brought home with him last week. Two carloads of them and he intends to keep the market supplied fully.

S. Engebritson, of St. Hilaire, dropped in on Wednesday morning to condole with us in our grip business. Says the big crops of last year put the farmers in pretty good shape up that way.

Mr. Hallock, of Edna, chips in his mite this week for the benefit of the hail sufferers. There is room for many more on that list. Let us hear from you by card or any convenient way.

Real estate in the city seems to be enjoying quite a boom in these days. Property is changing hands at very good figures compared with that of a few years past and yet it is not high.

The editor of THE JOURNAL had an attack of La Grippe on Monday. Dr. Just was called who prescribed "Homeopathic Soup." After having got away with that we feel purty gude, thank you.

The Devil's Auction drew a big house at the Grand on Tuesday evening. Although the company left on the Northern Pacific train, they gave their full performance. The train was held for them.

R. A. Harris, of Sleepy Eye, Minn., was in the city last week selling a patent rigging to keep the cold out of houses. Mr. H. was once a jeweler, and knows something about the business yet.

Andrew Eiken has accepted a position with the Crookston Mercantile Co., and his smiling countenance may now be seen behind the desk in Anderson & Ringdahl's. Andrew will make friends wherever you put him.

From a letter received from comrade E. A. Bradish, formerly of Fisher, we should judge that he does not like it down there in Wisconsin. Better come home, comrade Bradish, and catch on with our coming spring boom.

John Quisnell, one of the supervisors of Grove Park, was in the city this week in the interest of the Kramer estate. John has been supervisor in that town for several terms and we are told that he makes an excellent official.

Only a few more of those horses at Brown's, but more on the way, to arrive next week. Several, who expected to buy out of this lot, and thought they would wait a few days to give the horses a chance to recuperate after their trip, were surprised to find when they did go, that they were nearly all sold. When you want Brown's horses you want to be in time.

Go to Geo. Vine's meat market in Robert street for choice cuts. Geo. had one himself a week or so since but he don't sell that kind.

Wheeler loans money on farm security. He is too busy to write up an ad for this issue, but if you will call he will not be too busy to tell you what he can do for you in that line.

M. R. Brown returned last week with two carloads of choice grade Percheron mares which he now offers for sale at his new stables on Main street. They are as fine a lot as we have ever seen brought to this country and if you want a choice team you will do well to go and see them.

Tom Harris:—"It begins to look like an early spring but I don't know but it would be best for the country after all to have a late spring—in that case very much land could not be put in and it would have to be summer-fallowed. This would mean better crops for a long time to come.

The Sheriff's office has been kept busy looking after the wayward ones of late. Dept. Sheriff Losey is, comparatively speaking, a "light-weight," but they don't want to play him for a spring chicken. He'll be very liable to fool 'em as he did several good sized husky fellows not long since.

Mr. Welter, who recently purchased the Herriott farm at Beltrami was in the city on Monday, and after looking the field all over carefully went to M. R. Brown and bought four fine young mares. Mr. Welter is a new man in Polk County but it seems that he knows good korses when he sees them.

The jail at Fosston took fire and burned up on Saturday last. A drunken man had been put in during the morning hours and it is supposed that he set the bedding afire in attempting to light his pipe. After the fire died out the body of the man—what remained of it—was taken out and the coroner summoned.

D. McMillan, of Edna, dropped in to see THE JOURNAL man on Monday to set that subscription ahead a peg and also to add his mite to our hail list. That list begins to loom up encouragingly but there is lots yet to if we accomplish our object. Let them come in as long as there is a patriotic man in Polk County.

S. L. Dobson: "It would be a good thing if farmers would dispose of the oats they are raising and secure only the White Russian or side oats which are longer, heavier and better every way besides yielding far more per acre. They would make money by making this change and many of them are already doing it."

Rev. R. H. Battey will occupy his pulpit, morning and evening, next Sunday at the Congregational church. Morning sermon, "Christ in His Church;" evening, "Alpha and Omega." Very cordial welcome extended to all. Strangers invited. Time of service 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Invite your friends to this church and come yourself.

G. F. Carpenter: "Look here a minute, I have a local for you. Larson, Carpenter & Co. are cleaning their windows. This is the first opportunity we have had since we moved in, having been kept busy adjusting things and selling machinery. What lines are selling best, oh, drills mostly, but we are selling some wagons and everything else we carry and we anticipate a great rush later on. So we propose to be ready for business as fast as it comes."

Joe Jarvais came up from Fisher on Monday to pay his personal taxes and that duty performed he went around to Brown's stables to see those horses THE JOURNAL has been telling about. He was so well pleased that he bought a fine span of mares to take home with him. He had no idea of buying when he went in, but those were too good a thing to miss. We notice that where an old settler wants anything in horseflesh he always goes to Brown, whom every old settler knows to be perfectly reliable.

A communication from a Mentor correspondent contains the following: "A fine display of fireworks took place on Maple Lake Saturday night last. Crookstonites have been wishing for a general "clean-up" of fish houses to give the fish a chance to replenish the lake. We believe they got their wish Saturday night. It seems the fishermen were more careless than usual, leaving much fire in their stoves, which caught into their furniture and, the wind being favorable, and cleared all the fish houses off Maple Lake. We havn't heard so far of any deaths in the fire."

In "The Millionaire," which is to be presented at the Grand Opera House, Crookston, Thursday evening, Feb. 25th, Dan'l Sully has found a play worthy of his abilities as an actor, and one which furnishes him an excellent opportunity to display to effect his notable success as an Irish dialect comedian. In this play no other Irish comedian has succeeded in doing, namely, portraying faithfully the type of Hibernia's sons that we meet with in the every-day walks of life, exhibiting, together with the well-known wit and geniality a refined sentiment and lofty purpose that are not sufficiently credited on the stage to a nationality which possesses each to a marked degree. All next week, Criterion Comedy Co.

Cleveland run agin' Blaine once afore,
And Cleveland came out ahead on the score,
But ye bet yer boots it'll be so no more
'Cause Grover ain't in it.

We've had but one dem. in twenty-eight years,
And that's why the parties are so by the ears,
But this time, to everyone, it kinder 'pears
That Grover ain't in it.

Last time they kept it a-goin' 'bout free trade,
But this time, you bet, they'll be put in the shade,
Where they'll enjoy their free lemonade.

T. H. Bjoin's Old Stand, Opera Block. CROOKSTON.

On Thursday evening of last week Mr. L. P. Hunt met a number of our citizens at the city hall and gave them an address upon the needs and intentions of the committee. He stated that Polk County's share of the $100.000 the commission is trying to raise is $1,100 and after he had talked awhile a committee was appointed to get signatures to notes amounting to $600. While the whole amount could have been secured by pledge right there and then, it was decided better to raise $600 in Crookston and the balance in the different villages of the county so that all could have an opportunity to help along the good cause.

Last Sunday was an interesting day at the Congregational church as about every Sabbath is. But especially were the evening services worthy of mention. The Presbyterians were present, pastor and people, and the church parlor was crowded at the young people's meeting at 6:30, while the audience room was completely filled an hour later for the regular evening worship. Rev. O. H. Elmer delivered a very plain and forcible gospel sermon on the subject of "Harden not your hearts." An excellent feature of the services was a wide-awake musical service led by Mr. D. E. Jones, of Minneapolis, and supported by about a dozen of resident musicians. Some said it was the finest singing they had heard in Crookston churches for years, and a number rendered by Mrs. Adams was highly appreciated. Mr. Battey conducted the services and several made a public profession of religion when he made the appeal for any to do so for the first time.

For Sale.

I have for sale at my farm, 6 miles northeast of Crookston, a few choice young mares ready for farm work or driving purposes. Call early for choice.

160 ACRES in Town of Godfrey. Good land, near railroad. Only $5.00 per acre.

160 ACRES Town of Gervais. This land is on the Red Lake River. Some good timber and partly improved and is cheap at $9 per acre.

ANOTHER piece in Town of Gervais, four miles from Red Lake Falls. $950.

320 ACRE FARM in Parnell, six miles from Crookston, well improved, good buildings. Can be had for $3,000.

TWO good farms in town of Fanny, two miles from railroad station. Partly improved. Only $6.00 per acre.

320 ACRE FARM only one-half mile from St. Hilaire and is offered at $8.00 per acre, easy terms.

160 ACRES in Town of Crookston, four miles from city, and only $1,000.

ANOTHER piece in same town, well improved and can be had for $1,350 on easy terms.

320 ACRE FARM in Town of Kertsonville, two miles from railroad station, partly improved. Cheap—no mistake. Only $1,200 and on easy terms.

TWO good farms in Town of Liberty, 160 acres each. $750 buys either.

320 ACRE FARM in Town of Roome. Fine state of cultivation. Good farm buildings. 170 acres ready for seeding in spring. Dirt cheap at $4,000, one-half cash, balance to suit. Stock and farm machinery can also be bought cheap.

TWO good farms in Town of Louisville can be had for $950 each. Easy terms, long time.

This is the Cap-sheaf of All!

520 ACRES land, 3 miles from Fisher, all under cultivation, 420 acres ready for seeding. Good farm buildings. Good water. $22 per acre takes this, and will throw in 20 head horses, 7 harnesses, 7 wagons, 4 binders, 2 mowers, 2 rakes, 4 gang plows, 2 harrows, new press drill, 2 sleds, 2 cows; full set Blacksmith tools and small farm implements. $6,000 cash and balance long time at 7 per cent.

Homeopathic Soup.

Take a robin's leg,
Mind, the drumstick merely,
Put it in a tub,
Fill with water nearly;
Set it out of doors
In a place that's shady;
Let it stand a week;
Three days, if for a lady;
Drop a spoonful of it
In a five-pail kettle,
Which may be made of tin,
Or any baser metal;
Fill the kettle up,
Set it on a-boiling.
Skim the liquor well
To prevent it oiling;
One atom add of salt,
For the thick'ning one rice kernel,
And use to light the fire
The Homeopathic Journal.
Let the liquor boil
Half an hour, no longer;
If 'tis for a man
Of course you'll make it stronger;
Should you now desire
That the soup be flavoury,
Stir it once around
With a stalk of savoury.
When the broth is made
Nothing can excel it;
Then, three times a day
Let the patient smell it.
If he chance to die,
Say 'twas nature did it;
If he chance to live,
Give the soup the credit.

—Edinburgh Medical Review, 1837.

Fergus Falls Daily Journal:—The Criterion company played to a large house and made an excellent impression Friday night in "Under the Gaslight," and will undoubtedly have a much larger house to-night, which it deserves. Among the actors are several of unusual strength and ability. To-night the play is "The Wedding March," a brilliant comedy which always pleases the audiences. Among the specialties, which will include several musical novelties, Miss Mabel Davidson will give a skirt dance on roller skates. Miss Seymour, the leading lady of the troupe, has traveled with Maggie Mitchell and Joe Jefferson, and is an actress of fine ability.

Will be at the Grand Opera House for one week, commencing Monday, Feb. 29th.

Leander Richardson's play of "The Millionaire," which will be seen at the Grand Opera House, Thursday, Feb. 25th, gives Dan'l Sully an opportunity to do some excellent work, and this opportunity Mr. Sully improves. The part of James O'Brien is strongly drawn and effectively presented. It is a different type of Irishman from that usually seen upon the stage and shows the son of the Emerald Isle rounded out by a residence in this free country, and what it is possible for industry, shrewdness and straightforward dealing to accomplish. The dialogue of the whole play is well written, and teaches a good, wholesome lesson of the necessity of honor in business as well as in the social relations of life. "The Millionaire" was seen here last year and was greatly liked by our theatre-goers. All next week, Criterion Comedy Co.

R. Kramer, the man who was brought before Judge Benson not long since, to be examined as to his sanity, died on Saturday of last week on Judge Benson's farm in Grove Park. A short time after his return to his home in Grove Park he was taken sick and managed to get to Mr. Benson's farm, where he was put to bed and given proper care. After his death the sum $112.10 was found carefully sewed into his clothing, about $70 being in gold. This is the case that not long ago the Times hauled the people of Grove Park over the coals about, claiming that they allowed their paupers to freeze to death. It would seem that the old man was something of a miser instead of being the poor abused pauper represented. He was a man about 76 years of age of whose past life little if anything is known, and whether he was entirely sane or not is a question that will never be settled. However the poor old man has gone to his rest and will in the future trouble no one.

THE MARCH MESSAGE.

JOURNAL readers are interested in good things. Their attention is therefore called to the forthcoming March issue of "The Message," which we hope to place in their hands March 1st. The former issues of "The Message" has consisted of eight 4 column pages, 15 inches long. The March number will have twelve, 4 column pages, 16 inches long. Very few additional advertisements have been inserted, but over FOUR FULL PAGES OF CHOICE READING MATTER have been added. Three other churches have joined the federated helpers of "The Message" this month, making seven in the church calendar for March. Rev. J. J. Edwards, pastor of the Crookston M. E. church, tells Message readers how to live the triumphant life in his excellent article upon "Growth." Some stirring thoughts suggested from real life will interest temperance workers. A few short selected articles fairly burn in one's breast as he reads. Now, friends, "The Message" is zealously christian and religious in word and influence, but not a whit sectarian. Its prime motive is to herald the good work of all Christian laborers in this region, and give them all, irrespective of creed or church preference, hints and thoughts of helpfulness. All JOURNAL readers are most earnestly asked to subscribe for "The Message" and thus help thousands to greater gladness and victory in doing life's constant labor successfully, and help us to make this wide awake religious Monthly of the Red River Valley a yet greater success. Sample copy free by writing to or calling upon the undersigned.

R. H. BATTEY,
Crookston, Minn.

A visit to the breeding stables of Peterson Bros. Warninger & Co. one day last week convinced us that Crookston has some trotters to be proud of. But we will let the boys tell what they have by quoting the following from their catalogue. First on their list we find the handsome stallion

Ham Nut, 16797.

He is a handsome gold bay, will make a horse about 16 hands high when matured, built on the Nutwood and Hambletonian model as can be seen by the tabulation of his pedigree. Has more crosses to Hambletonian 10 than is generally found. He has 3 crosses through Abdallah 15, 2 crosses through Volunteer 55, which are two of Hambletonian's 10 best sons, also one cross to Pilot Jr., 12 through his best producing daughter Miss Russel, the dam of Maud S. 2:08¾, Nutwood 2:18¾ and several others. Two crosses to Mambrino Chief, 11, the founder of the great Mambrino family, one through his best son Pambrino Patch, 58, the greatest brood mare sire the world has yet produced. Nor is this all. He has three crosses to Andrew Jackson, 4, through Abdallah's, 15, dam, Katie Darling. Andrew Jackson, the sire of Henry Clay, 8, and he the founder of the Clay family, also the sire of the dam of Geo. Wilkes, 2:22. Now we have sifted the pedigree of Ham Nut, which proves that he has blood and speed lines of all the most noted families that can be found in the history of the trotting horse.

Rose Valley Chief, 15481.

Foaled in 1883; bred by Commodore N. W. Kittson, St. Paul, Minn. He is standard and registered, No. 15481, under rule 6, which is the highest standing a horse can attain by breeding. Handsomely formed, jet black, which never fades, has the best of disposition, stands 15¾ hands high, well muscled, with feet and legs like iron. A very speedy, free and smooth gaited trotter. Can road ten or twelve miles an hour with ease. Has never been handled for speed except two months in his three-year-old form. Could then show quarters in 39 and 40 seconds. A careful examination of his pedigree will show blood and speed lines that are seldom equaled. His sire, Blackwood Sr., has a record of 2:22½ and is also the sire of six with records from 2:20½ 2:30. His first dam, Playmate, by Administrator, record 2:29½, is the sire of nine with records from 2:19 to 2:30, he by Hambletonian, 10, the sire of over forty with records of 2:30 or better, and the grandsire of Jay Eye See, 2:10, Maud S, 2:08¾, Sunol, 2:08¾, Palo Alto, 2:08¾, Arion, 2:10¾ as a two-year-old, and over one thousand others. Rose Valley Chief, by right of inheritance should beget speed out of any mare fairly well bred, and if not a trotter the foal would be certain to have style and action. We have one of Rose Valley Chief's get, a very nice looking young mare that can show a 2:50 gait and has never been trained.

Gold Coin.

Light chestnut with long silver mane and tail. Will make a horse over 16 hands high and weigh about 1250 pounds when fully matured. A very high-headed, stylish mover with plenty of bone, muscle and ambition. Gold Coin has every individual characteristic that makes a trotter. His size, finish and way of going will please the most critical observer. He has shown speed enough to satisfy us that he will make a fast trotter if given an opportunity. Mr. Wilson, a trainer and driver who handled Gold Coin about six weeks in his two-year-old form, says that he will equal, if not surpass his sire's record of 2:23½ if properly handled.

Spring Styles for Ladies.

Our lady friends who wish to be properly and fashionably dressed would do well to glance over the monthly Fashion Letter in "La Mode de Paris," "Album des Modes," or "La Mode," the favorite fashion journals. This letter is one of the best on the subject with which it deals, explaining particularly the styles prevailing or coming in fashion. Ladies would do well to patronize these journals, which are not only reliable, but are now considered the standards of fashion wherever they are known. The Practical Lesson on Cutting given each month in "Album des Modes" and "La Mode de Paris" is intended to explain fully how to make the new styles as soon as they appear. The series of lessons has been produced under the direct supervision of Mr. A. McDowell, the inventor of the well-known Garment Drafting Machine, which has proved such a boon to thousands of dressmakers, and has made the cutting and perfect fitting of ladies' garments an easy task to all. "La mode" is a good family journal, price $1.50 a year. "La mode de Paris" and "Album des Modes" are intended for more general use, the subscription for each being $3.50 a year. To every subscriber for either of these journals who pays a year's subscription in advance will be given a Premium Book on "Dressmaking Simplified," valued at $5.00. Failing to obtain these journals from your news agent send for them direct to A. McDowell & Co., 4 West 14th Street, New York.

Ship your wheat to O. Tharaldson general agent of the Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association, at Duluth, and make from 4 to 7 cents a bushel. For further particulars as to membership, &c., inquire of L. K. Hassel, Grand Forks, N. D. [25-tf]

BELTRAMI ITEMS.

BELTRAMI, Feb. 20th, 1892.

Our state senator must be very anxious to secure his renomination when he writes to his town committee here not to let the grass grow under their feet so early in the season. Why, man alive, we don't expect any for two months yet.

B. F. Raieck, of Vineland, bought the largest bill of lumber that has been sold to any one party here for years.

A nephew of Oliver Dalrymple of North Dakota, has bought the Kimberly farm.

All of our people were sorry to learn of the sudden death of William Price on the 13th inst. The immediate cause was an injury he received while at his work about four years ago. He had been in the employ of the Great Northern R. R. Co. here for the past nine years. He was a loving husband, kind father, faithful employe and good citizen. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn his loss. The family have the heartfelt sympathy of all who know Mr. Price, and we shall miss his pleasant greetings for many a day.

EDNA.

HUBBARD ITEMS.

HUBBARD, Feb. 20, 1892.

The winter term of school in district 5, closes March 3d.

The Angel of Death visited the fireside of Mr. and Mrs. T. Amunson last week and carried off their infant daughter.

The ladies sewing society of the Lutheran church raised $85 at their sale on Saturday last which they will use in furnishing the church.

Henry Simon has sold his half section of land to A. Thompson for $5,000. We believe he could have got more by holding it a while longer.

Hayes Bros. have given 100 bushels of wheat for the Russian sufferers and 20 bushels for the hail sufferers. We should be pleased to hear of others from this town following their example.

NEILSVILLE.

Maple Bay Items.

Our village blacksmith is pounding iron to beat—well, the ring of his hammer can be heard far and near—but principally near, and the fame of his horse-shoeing reaches beyond our little hamlet even unto the four corners of the county.

The Scandinavian Lutheran Society is building a fine cosy parsonage at the Bay. This is a deserving and thrifty church.

Sam Furan, of Dugdale, has purchased 11 lots at Maple Bay. Sam says the iron will be laid on the Pelican branch of the Great Northern this spring. Looks as though Sam believes in showing his faith by his works.

The farmers are drawing their wood to the prairie as rapidly as possible. Lots of wood cut this winter, and the price has been somewhat better than usual. As a whole, the year of '91 has been a prosperous one for our farmers, especially such as have woodlands and who have been fortunate enough to have dry wood for sale.

Our mill project seems to be lying dormant just at present—more's the pity—but your correspondent has hopes that it will be revived again and pushed to a successful issue. It could be if our farmers were only sufficiently alive to their best interests. The facts and figures have been so fully presented to every one in this locality that no one can excuse himself by saying that he knows nothing about it. The cost to no one could exceed $100 and there is no other investment offered them whereby they can hope to reap so rich returns. Your correspondent has no doubt but that there will be a flouring mill at Maple Bay at an early day, but whether the mill will be owned and controlled by the farmers remains for them to decide.

If you desire it I can send you regular communications in the future.

MAPLE BAY.

[Of course we desire it. We should be more than pleased to hear from the Bay every week.—ED. JOURNAL.]

BRAY, Minn., Feb. 22, 1892.

ED. JOURNAL:—I noticed in your last issue an item stating that I had purchased a new horse-power for my threshing outfit, and intended to finish up what threshing remained to be done in this vicinity. I started up for a trial on my brother's place on Friday last with poor success, and on Saturday morning we began again and everything progressed finely until about noon, when the driver, getting too warm on the power, and having his back turned to the pinion, proceeded to pull off his overcoat which caught in the cogs between the pinion and the bullring, breaking the latter in two places and cutting the coat badly. The threshing was finished at once.

C. P. SWANSON.

The Criterion Comedy Company, under the direct management of Mr. H. A. Morton, will open a week's engagement at the Grand Opera House, Monday, Feb. 29th. This company carries fifteen artists, and produces in its repertoire that large spectacular play, "The Sea of Ice." The scenery of the "spectacle"—it is practically that—is the best ever shown in a similar production and has been painted expressly for Mr. Morton the cost of the same being $1,250. It, with the mechanical effects—all of which work as smoothly as one would wish—make up the most acceptable display. Taken altogether the "Sea of Ice" is one of the very best specimens of the old time spectacular entertainment. Don't forget the date.

When H. G. Mitchell was in last he spoke rather discouragingly of the prospects of the mill project at the Bay, on account of the apathy of the farmers in relation to it. This is a matter of surprise to THE JOURNAL in view of the great importance of a mill to them. If a grist-mill was built and properly handled it would be worth many times its cost to each individual shareholder, even though he had to give his $100 as a bonus—which he does not. We hope that friend Mitchell and his co-workers will not get discouraged and let this matter drop, for the mill is a great necessity to that vicinity, and if they build it it will be a far more durable monument to them than would be a marble or granite monument. They should keep in view the many hardships and discouragements under which the farmers have labored and the fact that last year was somewhat easier, and keep pegging away. THE JOURNAL is anxious to see that mill built and built by the farmers, as it would be worth a mint of money to them. Keep the ball rolling, Mitch, and call on us for anything we can do for you in the good cause. We believe you would have a better show for success than ever before if you try it again this year.

Good Market For Oats

Having had a fine oat crop swept away by hail in few minutes time we are obliged to buy oats to supply our farm teams, and we will be glad to pay the highest market price to any who are owing us several years subscription. We shall need about 1000 bushels and will take them as fast as offered. Bring on your oats and get your receipts.

A despatch states that a silversmith in Monterey, Mexico, is engaged on a work in silver which when completed will be an exact reproduction of the Agricultural building now being built on the exposition grounds, Chicago. It will be eight feet wide, will contain a quantity of silver valued as bullion at $10,000, and when finished will be valued at $20,000.

It is now the intention to have in the fisheries building a restaurant devoted as far as possible to the exclusive serving of fish. Fish dinners, and fish, fresh and salt, served in every edible style, will be a popular feature, it is believed, and will give visitors an excellent opportunity to know the merits of fish for food.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, Feb. 24th, 1892.

In the matter of the estate of Lars. J. Hagen, deceased.

On receiving and filing the petition of John L. Hagen, of town of Queen, of the County of Polk, representing, among other things, that Lars J. Hagen, late of the town of Queen, County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 20th day of February, A. D. 1892, at the County of Polk, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this County, at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this County, and that the said petitioner is a son of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Ole Nelson and Ludvig Olson granted.

It is ordered that said petition be heard before this Court on Monday, the 21st day of March, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock A. M., at the Probate Office in the City of Crookston, in said County.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 24th day of February, A. D. 1892.

By the Court: C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.

THE MERCANTILE AGENCIES.

In a previous paper we discussed briefly the character, origin and history of the mercantile agency. We shall now consider some of the questions arising out of their peculiar relations to the public.

As stated, the business of a mercantile agency is to collect information relating to the credit, character, responsibility and reputation of merchants for the purpose of furnishing the information to subscribers. The most important question that has arisen relating to this kind of business is to what extent are the reports sent out by mercantile agencies privileged communications—that is, how far are such companies protected in giving information affecting the credit of business men from liability for damages in case of false statements.

As we shall use the term "privileged communication" frequently, let us understand its meaning. It is such a communication as is made in good faith, upon any subject in which the party communicating has an interest, or in reference to which he has a duty, public or private, either legal, moral or social, if made to a person having a corresponding interest or duty. No legal liability attaches to such communications, unless malice be shown. It may first be said that the publication of false defamation by a mercantile agency to the world at large is not privileged. So that such publications affecting the credit of business men as are made by agencies and scattered broadcast, or put carelessly or indiscriminately before the public, are neither justified nor protected.

Agencies are not in the habit of being thus prodigal of their information, however. The most common form of giving information is that of publishing books of ratings, or weekly or daily sheets of business changes, failures, mortgages, judgments, etc., and furnishing the same to all their subscribers regularly. The question has arisen, is an agency liable for a false report on a merchant so made to a large number of subscribers, only a few of whom are interested in that merchant. There is no question, it may be said, of the right of the agency to furnish reports as privileged communications to persons known to be directly interested in that merchant, or to such as ask for a report on such merchant, but how about the communication going to hundreds of thousands of subscribers who are not interested, and do not ask for the information and do not need it. Refer to our definition of privileged communication. It must be made to a person having a corresponding interest or duty in the subject. I am a jobber in hardware. My agency sheet to-day tells me that my neighbor, who is a retail hatter, has failed. I have not sought nor can I find any use for the information. It is interesting gossip to me—nothing more. Suppose the report is false. Can the agency hide behind a "privileged communication", when brought to defend an action? The weight and majority of decisions deny the agency's right to do, and such may be considered the law. The first case that arose was in Massachusetts. It was brought by a merchant against one Russell, who conducted the "Boston Mercantile Agency." Here Russell reported the incorrect and unjust information to only such subscribers as were interested in the merchant. The court held that the communication was privileged. (Billings vs. Russell, 8 Boston Law Reporter, 699.) The next was a New York case, which may be called the leading case on the subject. In this case one Church printed and furnished to merchants who had no immediate interest in the standing of the firm on which the report was made, but who wished the record for future reference. The information was in a printed book furnished to all who became subscribers to it. In this case the court held the communication not privilened, and the case has been several times reaffirmed in New York. (Taylor v. Church, 1 E. D. Smith 279.)

The court said that if the publication had been in answer to an inquiry from a merchant interested and had been nothing more than an answer to this application it would have been privileged, but as having been not only to such as sought information against that merchant, but to all its subscribers indiscriminately, it was not as to such other subscribers "privileged." This decision was upheld in New York in Ormsby v. Douglas (37 N. Y., 477.) In the case of Sunderlin v. Bradstreet (46 N. Y. 188) it was shown that Bradstreet published a false statement that a certain merchant had failed. The publication was in a weekly sheet furnished to all subscribers alike. It was held not privileged. The court said a communication is privileged when made in good faith, in answer to one having an interest in the information sought, and it will be privileged if volunteered, if the party to whom it has been made has an interest in it, and if the parties stand in such relation as to make it a reasonable duty, or at least proper, to give the information. The publication in this case to those not interested in it was officious and unauthorized and not privileged. The decisions of the federal circuit courts are in line with this decision. Erber v. Dun, 12 Feb. Rep. 526; Trussell v. Scarlett, 18 Fed. Rep., 214; Locke v. Bradstreet & Co., 22 Fed. Rep., 771. For other cases we might refer to King v. Patterson, 49 N. J. L., 417; Woodruff v. Bradstreet, 83 Hun. (N. Y.,) 16; Com. v. Stacey, 8 Phila. (Pa.) 617; Bradstreet v. Gill, 72 Texas, 115.

A further discussion of the subject may be found in our next paper.

The "Odd Fellows' Grand March" and the "Air Ship Waltz" are two of the latest compositions of Isaac Doles, Indianapolis, Ind. Both are musical gems. They comprise five pages each, sheet music size, besides illustrated title page; not difficult in execution, but beautiful in composition, and sell at 40 cts. each. By way of introduction, Mr. Doles will mail them to any address on receipt of ten cents per copy, when accompanied by this notice. Address, Isaac Doles, Indianapolis Ind., U. S. A.

World's Fair Notes.

A bill appropriating $300,000 for the state representation at the Exposition is now pending in the Iowa legislature. A preliminary appropriation of $50,000 was made at the last session. A bill for $300,000 is also pending in the New York legislature.

The province of Ontario, Canada, will make an extensive mineral exhibit. Canada has asked for a total of 100,000 square feet of space in the various buildings.

Charles Hansel, consulting engineer of the railroad and warehouse commission of Illinois, has been commissioned to promote the interests of the Fair in Europe by urging railway companies and manufacturers to become exhibitors. Mr. Hansel will sail for Europe soon, and expects to spend several months in Great Britain and on the continent.

In response to an invitation the Illinois Society Sons of the American Revolution has decided to furnish a company to participate in the parade incidental to the dedication exercises in October, 1892. The men will wear continental uniform.

The women of Nebraska have undertaken to furnish the hammer with which Mrs. Potter will drive the last nail in the Woman's Building when it is dedicated October 12 next. The nail, it will be remembered, will be furnished by the women of Montana, and will be an elaborate production, composed of gold, silver and copper. It is proposed that the hammer be made of the native woods of Nebraska and inlaid with gold, silver and pearl.

It is reported that it is the intention of the Government to establish at the Exposition grounds a complete post office, equal in capacity to that required by a city of 200,000 or more inhabitants, and to operate it, not only during the fair but for several months previous to the opening and after the closing. A government post office inspector is now on the grounds perfecting plans and estimates. It is believed that the number of exhibitors will be between 150,000 and 175,000. To these mail will be delivered hourly. Mails, sorted on the mail cars, will be dropped at the grounds from incoming trains whenever possible. At a rough estimate, this Exposition post office will require about 800 employes and entail an expense of about $250,000 on the part of the government.

Ceylon will conduct a tea-house on Midway Plaisance.

The Crown Prince of Italy, according to Director Higinbotham, is greatly interested in the Exposition, and says he will visit it.

Regulations for exhibitors in the several departments of the Exposition have been issued and can be obtained by all intending exhibitors by applying for them, either in person or by mail.

The enormous steel trusses to sustain the roof of the manufactures building are about to be erected. These trusses are the largest ever made for architectural purposes. They span 368 feet and rise to a height of 211 feet. The contract for them calls for about $460,000.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of eighty-eight and 85-100 dollars, interest now due upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Peder H. Mesedalen and Kari Mesedalen, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the second day of December, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the tenth day of January, 1890, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 246.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of six hundred ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, ($692.81) with interest on six hundred and eighty-four (684) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the sixth day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼), of Section seventeen (17), Town one hundred and forty-nine (149), Range forty-two (42) in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of six hundred and ninety-two and 81-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated January 6th, A. D. 1892.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.

4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Cranks' Money.

The political omnum gatherum in this city last week resolved in favor of more money. That was one great cry, the other topics mentioned being treated as of but subsidiary importance The convention recommended the convention recommended the consolidation of all political elements in advocacy of the demand that "money" shall be issued by the General Government in sufficient quantity to carry on the business of the country, and that such "money" shall be made full legal tender for the payment of all public and private debts. Apparently the movers and indorsers of the address fancied the latter provision is all that is necessary to make the "money" they ask for acceptable and good for its face, no matter in how large quantity it may be issued. They ought to know that the same thing has been tried many a time and oft, and with the uniform result of failure.

The people who are requested to indorse this cranky demand should be duly posted as to the real nature of the thing asked for.

1. The "money" proposed to be issued is not gold, silver, bank notes, or redeemable greenbacks, but simply "fiat paper." The demand is for a lot of bills, each of which bears on its face a statement to the effect, "This is a dollar," or fifty, or a hundred, or any other named denomination. The paper so inscribed is to be absolute "money," expected to be taken for what it is intrinsically worth, the same as if it were gold or silver.

2. There is no hint or intention or purpose to redeem any of this "money" in coin at the demand of the holder, or in any other valuable or tangible thing. the people who take it in exchange for the products of labor are expected to be satisfied with the assurance that "it is money," and ask no questions.

3. This "money" is to be a full legal tender on all public and private debts, but is it to be a legal tender on private debts that are expressly made payable in coin? If so, that would be a gross violation of contracts; and beyond all question the courts would hold the tender of all such irredeemable shinplasters to be void. The stuff could only be tendered in payment in the absence of specific contracts for payment in real money.

4. The moment the fiat bill passed the people would prepare to discount the "money" to be issued under its provisions. By the time the first $100,000,000 of it had been issued and loaned to the Alliance men the paper would not have a purchasing power of more than 50 cents on the dollar. When a billion of the stuff had been "loaned" to them its purchasing power would be down to 10, or perhaps not more than 5 cents. The fact that it was not redeemable at the will of the holder, or at any time, or in anything, would destroy its purchasing power. Then the now foolish Alliance cranks would be among the first to discover the fact of its shrinking value, and would refuse to sell their farm produce in exchange for the ukase fiat trash. They would insist on good money as a condition of parting with their property. They would be among the first to despise and repudiate the material issued at their express solicitation and for their especial relief. After having done a vast amount of mischief, causing untold commercial confusion and a complete financial panic, the whole wild scheme would evaporate with all the evil odor of an expiring polecat, and the discarded stuff might well be called thereafter not wildcat, but "polecat money."

The redemptionless stuff wanted by the Alliance would be a bad failure from the start, and grow worse with the laps of time after its issue. It would not pay old coin debts to begin with, and that discrimination against it would soon take away a large part of its supposed purchasing power. It could only be handled at a decided discount at the best, and from that the credit of the stuff would go rapidly from bad to worse till very soon nobody would be willing to exchange labor or its products for for the paper which had no security behind it. Then the poor, silly, ignorant, deluded tools of the Alliance leaders would curse their own folly as bitterly as do the people in Argentina who were misled by a similar delusion, and are now loaded down with "money" which will not purchase anything they want to buy.

We clip the above from that usually sound, level-headed sheet, the Chicago Tribune, and we must express a feeling of surprise at the many false statements contained therein. It is very evident that the Tribune does not love the Alliance not even a little bit, but that does not justify that great sheet in losing its head and indulging in such gross misstatements. The statement that the farmers, as a rule, desire any such wildcat schemes to prevail is false on the face of it, whatever a few self-styled leaders in the alliance may say. The farmers demand an "honest dollar" and enough honest dollars to prevent a few speculators cornering the market at the expense of the balance of mankind, and this is right. They only demand that the government shall provide enough honest dollars to do the business of the country in an honest manner, and is there anything wrong with that? When a farmer demands that the government shall pursue such a course as shall give him an opportunity to obtain a sufficient amount with which to carry on his business, he at once becomes a scheming villain in the minds of some, an the extra amount of money he demands is called "cranks' money!" The Tribune is off its base in this matter. The farmers are THINKING and they are not going to be led into any wild schemes of designing sharpers. That they may be misled into a few errors is possible, but ridicule and abuse of them as a class will not avail to convince them of their mistakes, and it should never be indulged in. The farmers only demand such things as shall elevate them and their business, and the sooner the rest of mankind recognizes the fact the better for all concerned. We notice that some money sharks are fearfully worried just now lest some of their golden opportunities should pass away, and they are using every means at command to prevent this dire calamity. It is true that there are some designing persons just now trying to use the farmers as a stepping stone to political offices but it will not take them forever to locate them and give them their deserts. The farmer is awakening to his own interests, and while he may be a little bewildered at first and make some awkard moves, he is all right at core and will soon discover who are his friends and he will cleave to them, and don't you forget it!

The Postal Laws Respecting Newspapers.

About two years ago Messrs. George P. Rowell & Co., of New York, the publishers of Rowell's Newspaper Directory, and several other publications of great value to concerns wishing to do business with the newspapers, started a very unique weekly, both in form (12 mo.) and name (Printers' Ink).

It was a new idea all through, and like new ideas generally, required large capital, much experience and utmost push to make it go. The publishers had to educate people and make a market for the publication. To what extent they succeeded may be judged by the fact that its editions now exceed 80,000, and the business probably $200,000 per year. We doubt if any publication published once a week is read with more avidity. In fact we have seen it in many instances carefully preserved just as monthly magazines are preserved so highly is it valued.

Now, after allowing the publishers to proceed on these lines for several years, the Post-Office Department rules that the journal is not a legitimate newspaper and cannot be admitted to second-class rates, but as third-class matter.

The postage on the issue of January 13th, amounted at third-class rates to $805, besides the labor of attaching 80,500 stamps to that number of papers. At second-class rates the proper charge for postage would be $69.72, making a difference in the cost of mailing this one issue of $733.24. In other words, about $3,627 a year as second-class matter, against $41,860 as third-class. In the meantime Rowell & Co. are paying this enormous sum under protest, until the Department can further consider the case.

Of course it is outrageous that the law is so ambiguous that the Post-Office authorities themselves can blunder in construing it, as they do according to the whim of the person in charge of the matter, and it ought to be changed immediately in justice to those compelled to suffer by such ambiguity.

If Printers' Ink is not a newspaper, then there is not a weekly newspaper in the country. We believe it at present the best read and most carefully preserved journal in existence, and entitled to all the privileges accorded any newspaper by the postal laws, and hope to see the wrong done the publishers righted without delay.

Washington and Lincoln.

In spite of superficial differences, many and striking, there was between Washington and Lincoln a really close and remarkable similarity. On the 12th of February this country, with a degree of unanimity that grows more marked year by year, celebrates the anniversary of the birth of him whom James Russell Lowell called "the first American." Only ten days later, in accordance with venerable and universal custom, we do honor to the memory of the man whom Henry Lee called "first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen." It is well to study briefly the seeming contrasts and the essential resemblances of these two great Americans.

Everybody will quickly think of their dissimilarities. Washington was of patrician blood and breeding, or as nearly so as was possible on this hemisphere. Lincoln sprang from the plainest of plain people. Washington inherited wealth, Lincoln was born in poverty and nurtured in privation. Washington was reserved in manner. To the multitude he seemed dignified to the verge of coldness. Even in the society of intimate friends he was seldom vivacious, though no man ever had a warmer heart. Lincoln was full of the freemasonry of a nature that attracts congenial spirits and wins an affectionate following. He was the delight of village store loungers in youth as he was of listening audiences in mature life; yet aimless loungers and eager audiences alike were attracted by the subtle nobility of character, the inspiring loftiness of thought that shone in his quaint stories and his impassioned speeches. Washington was preeminently a man of ideas; though each acted grandly and thought deeply. Washington inclined toward conservatism, Lincoln toward radicalism; the one was Federalist by nature, the other was a Republican by instinct; though both were at once cautious and progressive. Washington's career was more complete, Lincoln's more intense and tragic. One lived to round out the measure of life's achievements, the other was cut off at the threshold of that peaceful administration which, had his life been spared, might have furnished the parallel to his great exemplar's work in binding up the nation's bleeding wounds.

Yet they were wonderfully like each other in many most significant respects, personally, historically and providentially. To begin with, that which was least important yet not unimportant, beauty were physically magnificent men tall, strong, impressive to the eye and memory to every beholder. Their stalwart frames had been made rugged by contact with nature in her rougher moods. They were woodsmen and travelers in the forests. They had slept many a night under the open sky. They knew how to ride, to climb, to swim and to shoot. Washington received the thanks of the Virginia House of Burgesses when but a youth, for his gallantry and skill in bringing back his pioneer warriors through 600 miles of wilderness, after Braddock's defeat. Lincoln, while yet in early manhood, saw service as a captain in the Blackhawk war.

They were essentially one in their love of liberty and hatred of oppression. Washington expressed the wish and the hope that means would be found for abolishing slavery by law. Lincoln's soul was stirred to the depths by the sight of black men and women driven in chain gangs to the auction block in New Orleans. They were one in their modesty and their patriotism. Both were impelled by the admiring confidence of their fellow citizens to assume the responsibilities of public trust. They were equally calm, resolute and serenely hopeful in the midst of difficulties, dangers and defeats. Their qualities shone brightest in darkest hours. They believed in the ultimate triumph of the right. They were forgiving to enemies and steadfast to friends. They were sagacious, far seeing, wise in counsel. They were consummate judges of human nature, and knew how to surround themselves in the cabinet and the field with great statesmen and great generals. They were always popular in the best sense.

Washington experienced the shortsighted hostility of some good men and the envious intrigues of many bad men. Readers of revolutionary and past revolutionary history are surprised to discover how ferociously he was assailed. Lincoln was derided and slandered even by men of his own party, and his own administrative household.

Washington and Lincoln had this thing in unison: They were superlatively great in war and in peace. The genius for military affairs and for civil affairs is rarely found in a single person. General Butler said in Boston on the 12th inst. that Lincoln's military plans were shrewder than those of even the most distinguished commanders whom the President selected and upheld to carry on the war for the Union. This testimony is but confirmatory of a belief that has been steadily growing for a long time, and is sustained by the most recent developments of hitherto unpublished evidence. In like manner Washington's judgement on matters of statesmanship was again and again proven sounder, profounder than that of men about him who were justly renowned for acumen and learning as administrators, lawmakers or diplomats.

Well may a nation that owes to Washington and Lincoln in inestimable measure its liberty and unity celebrate their natal days, keeping their names in unfading remembrance from generation to generation.

The Difference.

New York Press.

The following letter has just been received by the Press:

To the Editor of the Press;

SIR—Please explain to me the difference between the Republican and Democratic doctrines. I will be a voter next week, and wish to do my duty at the next election. FOREIGNER.

New York, Feb. 20, 1892.

The difference between the Republican and the Democratic position on questions of public policy is vital and fundamental. The two dominant issues now before the country are the tariff and the currency. Our correspondent declares that he desires to do his duty in the forthcoming Presidential election, and we assume that it is his purpose to become a patriotic American citizen in all that the term implies. This being the case, his attention is called first to the fact that the Republican party believes in protecting American industry. It believes that the United States should be industrially independent and well as politically independent; it aims to develop the manufactures of this country so that Americans shall buy the products they use from Americans; and it purposes, by means of a protective tariff, to secure the home market to American producers, create a constant demand for labor and assure to every American workingman, native or naturalized, steady employment with the highest wages possible under the most favorable industrial conditions. The policy of protection has been amply tested in American history, and it has never failed to increase the prosperity of the nation and the wages of the workers. Under the Republican McKinley law manufactures of all sorts have been stimulated, the demand for labor at a higher rate of wages has been increased and the prices of products have been diminished to the consumer.

The Democratic party believes in free trade. It would throw down the tariff barrier and place the American workingman in direct competition with the foreign toiler who receives less than half the American rate of wages. It decreases American manufactures and increases importations of foreign goods. The Democratic free wool bill now before Congress is framed, as Springer, the Democratic leader in the House proclaims, to bring about "a very heavy increase in the importation of woolens," thus displacing American woolens and lessening the demand for American labor. The Democracy is committed to the destruction of the McKinley law, the crippling of American industry and the reduction of wages of every laboring man in the United States.

Second only to the tariff is the currency question. The Republican party's doctrine, enunciated in its platforms, proclaimed by its President's maintained with unswerving fidelity throughout its history, is that the workingman's dollar shall always be worth 100 cents. The Republican doctrine demands that all dollars shall be equally good; that the value of the currency shall not fluctuate; that the coin or the bill that the laborer receives shall be worth exactly as much next Saturday night as it was last Saturday night. The Democracy believes in "cheap" money. The Democratic coinage measure now before Congress provides that the United States shall repeal the law that enables the holder of the paper dollar to exchange it for a gold dollar if he chooses. It provides for the unlimited coinage by the United States of dollars that are worth only seventy cents; and if it should become a law every wage worker in the country would be paid in dollars worth only 70 per cent of the dollar he gets now.

This is the difference between the parties on these great issues. The same difference extends through all their history. The Republican record is as glorious as the Democratic record is shameful. The Republican party was the foe of human slavery. The Democracy was its champion. The Republican party crushed the rebellion and saved the nation. Half the Democracy fought in arms for slavery and disunion; two-thirds of the other half antagonized the government and declared the war a failure. The Republican party carried through the Homestead law, the measures for specie resumption, the laws for pensioning wounded veterans against Democratic opposition. Its achievements for the past thirty-two years constitute the grandest portion of American history. It has fought persistently for a free vote and a fair count. In a majority of the States of the Union it has enacted secret ballot laws that secure the humblest voter from intimidation or interference. The Democracy has opposed these laws. The Republican party is essentially a party of progress. Republicanism is Americanism. Democracy is its opposite.

The difference between the two is such that no intelligent voter who wishes to do his duty in the next election can hesitate in his decision.

Our First Congress.

On the 4th day of March, 1789, the first Congress of the United States of America began its first session. Though we sometimes date our national existence from July 4th, 1776, when the Declaration of Independence was promulgated to the world, that was really only the establishment of a confederacy of independent states, for the single purpose of freeing themselves from the domination of the British crown. Under this compact the Revolutionary War was fought, but after peace was gained, the particular interests of the separate states began to clash, and it was evident that the general government needed larger powers if the country was to amount to anything among the peoples of the earth. Our existence as a consolidated and powerful nation may therefore properly be said to have begun in 1789. The history of no nation can show such a growth in 103 years. And but a small part of our 65,000,000 people would be here were it not for railroads, for the centre of the continent could not be populous without them, and the bulk of the population is in the central portion of the country. Foremost among these transportation systems is The Burlington which gives the Northwestern people quick and easy communication with the East, South and Southwest. For tickets, time tables, maps, etc., call on your nearest ticket agent, or address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Chief Walker Fearn, of the foreign affairs department of the Exposition, in a recent report to the director-general, says that the interest in the Exposition is already great and is rapidly increasing in nearly every foreign country. Foreign participation as shown by exhibits will be exceedingly complete and gratifying.

The Northern Pacific Express office was robbed of $500 on Friday of last week by an employe who had been but two days on duty. The manager delivered him the package in the absence of Mr. White, the regular agent, and took his receipt. Later it transpired that a robbery had "happened" and it was then discovered that two first-class tickets for California had been nipped by the same frost. The man has not reported as yet.

Deacon R. Bain, of Fisher, dropped in to cheer the printer on Friday last and also to contribute to the relief of the hail sufferers. The Deacon bears his great age well. Looks as hearty as he used to when a resident of this place.

We are promised Mentor items occasionally. Thanks, we shall be more than glad to get them and will give 'em "right of way," "run of column," or any other choice location. Send 'em along and they will do your place a great deal of good.

The Register of Deeds office is kept busy nowadays recording the deeds of the many farms that have been bought recently. There have been more deals of this kind within the past three or four weeks than at any time since 1877; and still the work goes on.

The jury in the case of Johnson vs. Olson brougut in a verdict of $50 for plaintiff. In this case the plaintiff, an old man, sues his two sons to recover certain personal property, which, it was alleged, the defendants wrongfully and with malice prepense did distrain, sequester and appropriate to their own use against the statutes in such case made and provided and never mind the old man. The strong arm of the law and the 24 arms of the jury did award unto the old man the sum of $50.

In the case of H. Steenerson vs. the Waterbury Company the jury brought in a verdict for plaintiff in the sum of $500. This action was brought to recover for services in the case of Waterbury vs. Buse.

If you intend ever to purchase city property now is the time to catch on for it is now at the lowest ebb it has been for some time or will be again in years if ever. Secure a home while lots may be had cheap.

The Ladies' Relief Corps ball at McKinnon's Hall on Thursday night was well attended and the receipts were close to $100. The net receipts will go far toward establishing a fine (and handsome) drum corps.

O. C. Bergland has been offered $20 per acre for his farm 7 miles southeast of the city. O. C. is not breaking his neck in his haste to accept. This farm is in Fairfax and is a good average sample of Fairfax farms.

Mr. R. Fairweather, of Euclid, was in town on Friday of last week. He is a little apprehensive that this kind of weather forebodes a late spring, although, he says, it is not impossible that it might thaw out and last.

Geo. Vine has sold his meat market on Robert street to Barnes & Slocum and will engage in buying cattle, hides and pelts. George was one of the best men in the business and we hope he will do well in his new avocation.

County Attorney Holston settles down to business in the court room again all the same as though he was not a recent delegate in the great St. Louis convention. Holston is bound to attend to business if he don't lay up a cent.

See what Mr. Brown has to say about those horses in his letter elsewhere in this issue and then go and see the horses themselves to-morrow. Don't wait too long if you want a fine young team of mares as such horses don't have to wait long for sales.

Tom Bjoin expects to start for Iowa this evening after a carload of horses, some of which are for his own use and some for sale. Since renting to Larson, Carpenter & Co., T. H. Bjoin has his office in the corner room up stairs, adjoining Steenerson & Stanton.

The Criterion Comedy Co. opened the week at the grand in "Under the Gaslights." As the manager publicly stated that he had no particular use for newspapers he will hardly expect us to go into ecstacies over the performance. They play each night this week.

After trying it alone for awhile Barnes & Slocum have climbed into the ship again—partnership, and will hereafter be found at the old stand on Robert street ready to serve the people. They have bought Geo. Vine's meat market also and will try their hand at choice cuts.

The lad who took the horses from East Grand Forks was indicted by the Grand Jury on Monday afternoon and brought before Judge Baxter who appointed P. G. Falardeau to defend him and ordered him arraigned on Tuesday morning to plead. He is an innocent looking chicken.

The majority of those from whom we desired to hear in the matter of those subscriptions have reported, and yet there are a few from whom we have not heard. To those who have kindly reported we say "thanks," and to those who have neglected to do so we would ask if you think our patience will endure forever?

The Criterion Company filled the Grand Opera House on Monday and Tuesday evenings. The company seems to be as good as the average traveling troupe, and the fact that they play to crowded houses seems to indicate that people like their work. The performances are certainly worth the moderate prices charged.

The Press notes the arrival of at least a dozen men who will go into busines at Thief River Falls. Verily Polk County is coming to the front lively and the falls is no unimportant factor. That paper also says the Carl Kretzschmar's little baby boy was recently christened "Carl." That's what we told you his name would be, didn't we?

We are trying to arrange for publishing a story of thrilling interest, called "The Great Hesper," which we expect to issue in supplement form. Look out for it. Don't lend it to your neighbors; tell them to subscribe for themselves and get the story and lots of other good things. The story alone, in book form, would cost you the price of THE JOURNAL.

Engineer Jack Bunnell enjoyed the exercises at the grand opera house on Thursday night. Said the running of that engine over the trestle reminded him of the first engine ever run over the bridge into Grand Forks, which the same, Jack drove her—and was presented by the citizens of Grand Forks with a fine clock for his cab. Jack says that was a big day.

Ignatius Donnelly, president of the State Alliance, is answering the attack of Senator Hompe through the Fergus Falls Journal. Mr. Donnelly will publish a series of six letters, which promise to be very interesting reading, judging from the first one, which appears this week. The Journal will be sent to you during these letters for 25 cents. Address Journal, Fergus Falls, Minn.

At the Congregational church next Sunday, March 6th, there will be no sermon at the morning service, but as it is communion Sabbath, the first half hour will be devoted to a service of song, prayer and brief scripture exposition, followed by the admission of members and the Lord's Supper. Evening sermon, "What is Your Life?" All invited.

Dan Sully, who appeared before a Crookston audience for the first time on Thursday last, captured the crowd—and it was a crowd too, almost every seat being occupied. Dan takes the Irish character to perfection and there was not a stick in the whole business. As a whole the entertainment was highly enjoyed and the audience well pleased.

HORSES.

Here You Have It! Here You Have It!!

Mr. M. R. Brown writes THE JOURNAL from Ames, Iowa, under date of Feb. 27th as follows:

ED. JOURNAL: "I will be in Crookston on Friday, March 4th, with the best load of grade Norman mares that was ever in Polk County. They are from four to six years old, low down, blocky built and weigh from 1,400 to 1,700 pounds each. They are so large that 16 head fills the largest car closer than 18 head of ordinary horses does. I can say of this lot that it is as fine a lot as I ever shipped and that I can show them with pride, confident that they will suit the most particular."

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

The Grand Forks News says: "The News leads all others do but follow. Fisher raised $1,100 for the World's Fair exhibit. Crookston has her notes for $600 in bank!"

Oh, rats! That looks like it. The assessment for the whole of Polk County was only $1,100, of which amount the city of Crookston guarantees $600, the villages dividing the balance among them.

Engineer Jack Bunuell went out on Friday morning with a bran new engine, No. 214 which came up from St. Paul that morning for Jack's especial use. We 'spect Jack will be so awfully stuck up that he can't afford to call on poor neighbors like impecunious printers any more. Never mind, Jack, don't put on lugs; we may buy us a little ingine ourself one of these days; then we'll race you.

Chas. Vine lost a valuable horse on Wednesday morning. He had about 800 pounds of meat in his wagon driving up the hill on Main street. The horse pulled it up all right, showed no signs of distress and at the top of the hill stopped to blow a minute. Directly he commenced to shiver, fell and died in a few minutes. Charlie bought the horse of Chris Anderson only a few weeks ago.

S. L. Collins will receive a carload of fine young mares on Friday's freight and will be ready to show you as fine a lot of young horses as ever stepped in Polk County. Mr. Collins has been in this city ever since we had a city, has bought and sold hundreds of horses in that time, is one of the best judges of good horse flesh in Polk County, and every man who has ever dealt with Collins knows that his word is as good as his bond. Go and see this fine lot of animals.

If the people of the Eastern, Middle and New England States fully understood the advantages this country enjoys there would be such an immigration here this spring as was never before seen. Here the same exertion required to keep body and soul together there would make a man independent in a few years, and if he should come with a very little capital to start on so much the better. Very many who came here with nothing a few years ago have now a good farm and are in good circumstances.

Last week, one Carl Swanson stole a span of horses from L. E. Larson, of East Grand Forks, took the team to Fertile and traded them for one horse. Sheriff Grundysen soon learned of the whereabouts of the team and went down and raked them in, whereupon the man in whose possession they were found organized a secret detective force consisting of himself, took after the man and by an unerring instinct followed him until he run him to earth, whereupon he resolved himself into a full fledged officer, arrested Mr. Man and brought him to this city. The $200 State reward for catching horse thieves will amply repay him for all the inconvenience he suffered in the deal.

A paper is in circulation asking the Great Northern railroad authorities to erect new depot and freight buildings this spring, in view of the fact that the raising of the tracks will necessitate some changes. Mr. E. M. Walsh makes an excellent suggestion as to a site for the depot with hotel in connection therewith; and that is to take the Sherman house property on the corner of Main and Robert streets, add enough to make 150 feet fronting Main street, thus acquiring a tract 150 by about 160. This would give ample room for a magnificent hotel and depot building and is not so very impracticable after all when you come to think of it. It would be a very graceful thing for the company to do.

A case of extortion was related to us last week by a citizen of Maple Bay which looks more to us like a case of downright robbery than anything else. A man borrowed a sum of money in the summer of '91 on what was called 10 per cent straight. He gave a mortgage for the principal sum bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, then a second mortgage to secure a note for 4 per cent of the amount, due November 1st '91. When the latter note became due he had not quite enough to meet it, and owing to bad weather had been unable to thresh, so he wrote the company stating the circumstances and promising to do his best to meet the note at an early day. A few weeks thereafter, not having heard from his first letter he wrote again but got no reply so he concluded everything was all right and got his threshing done just as soon as possible, sold his wheat and came down on Thursday to pay his note, and to his surprise found that the mortgage had been foreclosed. We call this about the meanest thing of the kind we ever heard of and it looks like a deliberate attempt to steal the farm or to cause the man a great deal of needless extra expense to save his little home from the sharks. It is such cases as these that sours the dispositions of most mortals and makes them regard everything as through a glass darkly, and there should be some remedy provided to prevent the possibility of like occurrences.

LIST OF LETTERS remaining unclaimed at the Crookston, Minn. Post Office, for the week ending Feb. 27, 1892:

Bentson, L. D. [illegible] Knudson, Miss Julia Olson, Miss Emma [illegible]

Persons calling for the above please say advertised. WM. B. DAWLEY, Postmaster.

Read the noble letter of John D. Knudson, elsewhere in this issue. It makes one's heart warm to read such sentiments, as it convinces one that real genuine christianity is not entirely extinct in the heart of man. In stating the cases of these men whom THE JOURNAL seeks to relieve, John omitted to say that some of them have lost crop after crop until this disaster made the fourth crop totally destroyed, and now all they have left is their farms, their teams and an indomitable determination to try it again if they can procure seed and feed for their teams. They could in no way have gone through the winter without help from their neighbors and some of the business men of Crookston, who have given them groceries and provisions and clothing. If they can now secure grain to sow they have a chance to catch up and live amongst our people, but if they don't the most of them will be absolutely obliged to sell their teams, give up their farms and go to some new country and try it again. We have been trying to arrange with the Great Northern Road to ship all contributions from points on their line in Polk County, and we have assurances that this will be done, although the company has not issued official orders to that effect as yet. Mr. Knudson's suggestions are wise and timely and are just what are needed at this time to stir up an interest in this matter that shall bear excellent fruit. Why, can it be possible that for the lack of a few bushels of grain each, the farmers of Polk County will allow a few of their number to be driven out of the county? We mistake the material of Polk County farmers if it is.

AUCTION SALE.

The undersigned will sell at his farm in the Town of Roome, on Wednesday, March 16th, 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m., the following property to-wit: Four good work horses, 1 heavy mare with foal to an imported horse, 1 pair yearling colts, 2 cows, 1 heifer. 2 farm wagons, 1 two-seat spring wagon, 1 pair sleighs, 1 cutter, 1 16-shoe drill, 1 field roller, 2 setts harrows, 8 plows, 1 cultivator, 1 fanning mill, 2 mowers, 2 rakes, 1 sett blacksmith tools, 3 setts harness, household furniture, also 1001 other small articles too numerous to mention.

Terms—All sums of $5 and under, cash; on all sums over $5 time will be given until November 1st, 1892, on good approved notes bearing interest at 8 per cent per annum. A discount of 5 per cent will be given on all sums over $5 for cash. [46-47] CHRIS. KERN.

Mentor Items.

The Journal is a welcome visitor to our homes weekly.

Our proprietor of the young Dalrimple farm who went down to Steele County last fall, has returned with a blooming bride and Messrs. Moe & Buhn's cigars were well tested. The boys say the cigars were all right, but if the beer don't soon come a storm might burst over Dalrimple before he expects it.

The new cottage at Mentor is drawing near completion. Pete promised to do the thing up brown. We can look for our oyster supper in due time. Brace up, Pete, don't get nervous.

We are expecting a lively time this coming summer on the banks of our Maple Lake. Lots of lemonade and ice cream for G. Deniston is rolling up the ice to beat the Dickens.

The underbrushing has been going pretty lively for the past two weeks, The brush or poles being hauled to various places on the prairie, to be burned at the time that best suits the jayhawkers, leaving room for business to start in earnest on the new town site.

We would like to hear a little more about the old man Kramer, whose death occurred a few days ago. If he was buried as a pauper or rolled in the ground like a dumb brute, or are the reports false?

Wood hauling has been pushing rapidly here this winter, but unless more snow comes the teamsters will have to strike at other work.

If you havn't room in the JOURNAL for the Mentor items you know where the scrap basket is.

MENTOR GRIP.

The Song of the Democrat.

BY FRED W. DAVIS.

PRELUDE.

When you chance to meet a dem. upon the street
He will draw you 'round the corner and kindly pay the treat,
And preach to you his politics and show you this and that,
And then wind up by singing "The Song of the Democrat."

SONG OF THE DEMOCRAT.

If you will vote for us next election,
We will diminish your tax
By rooting out the pension laws
And breaking old veterans backs.
We'll cause things to be cheaper
By putting in free trade,
And upon home industries
We will make a raid.

CHORUS—Which is joined by the bartender and red nosed gentlemen about the bar; also by a rich baritone in the shape of a prolonged howl from a scrawny, brindle bird dog at the door.

Oh! Yes! You bet we'll run things fine,
On that point do not fear.
We'll cross Mason and Dixon's line
And give the confederate cheer.

Oh! We're in for free coinage
And all the other schemes
That tend to destroy a government,
And rob the treasury's beams.
We want to put high tariff
On the things we do not use.
And put upon the free list
The things that we produce.

CHORUS—

We want our favorite, (Cleveland,)
Of old confederate fame.
To win a large majority
In the next campaign.
In short, we'd like to demoralize
This government's whole foundation,
And hand it over, "head and heels"
To the "John Bull" English nation.

CHORUS—

At the conclusion of this song the democrat politician proposes a horn in honor of the democrats' "golden calf," (figuratively speaking) which the red nosed gentlemen are not loth to accept, after which they all disperse and the baritone, with a satisfied expression on his face and a tear of silent joy in his eye, sneaks off down a neighboring alley.

The Republican State Central Committee met in St. Paul on Tuesday to set the day for the State Convention to elect delegates to the National Convention. The day fixed was May 5th. Polk County is entitled to 9 delegates.

BOON TO FARMERS.

They can get $1.00 per Bushel for Their Wheat by Running Alliance Mills.

BLAKELY, Minn., March 1.—J. H. Johnson, the owner of a 50 barrel flour mill here and a devotee of farmers' alliance doctrines has created a good deal of comment in this neighborhood by issuing a letter to the farmers urging them to organize a farmers' alliance milling association. He has printed and circulated thousands of his three column documents, the burden of which is to show that the farmers of the Dakotas and Minnesota have lost $28,000,000 on the wheat of the last crop up to the ninth of December, 1891. He then proceeds to show the farmers their folly in not building their own mills and thereby securing $1 per bushel for their wheat with a ton of feed per hundred bushels together with some minor advantages. Any community that can deliver 75,000 bushels of wheat, he says, can thereby keep a fifty barrel mill running for a year and the mill can be built for almost $7,000. That, Mr. Johnson says, will secure $1 a bushel for every bushel of wheat raised by the shareholders. Mr. Johnson would allow 50 cents a barrel for the handling of the flour, and the agents he would send abroad to dispose of it would be the farmers' sons.

OATS WANTED.

S. L. Dobson wants to secure all the oats in Polk County that are suitable for his business, for which he will pay the highest market price.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, } ss.

The State of Minnesota, to George Herbet, defendant:

You are hereby summoned to be and appear before the undersigned, one of the Justices of the Peace in and for said county, on the 31st day of March, 1892, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at my office in the city of Crookston in said county, to answer to Nathan P. Stone and D. N. Taylor, co-partners as Stone & Taylor in a civil action. Should you fail to appear at the time and place aforesaid, judgment will be rendered against you upon the evidence adduced by said Nathan P. Stone and D. N. Taylor, co-partners as Stone & Taylor for such sum as they shall show themselves entitled to.

Given under my hand this 27th day of February, 1892.

McINTOSH, Feb. 26, 1892.

ED. JOURNAL:—In your issue of the 18th inst. I notice a communication from President H. G. Mitchell of the Polk County Alliance, in which he recommends that each sub-alliance appoint a committee to solicit aid to our unfortunate fellow citizens who lost their crops by hail last summer, and as a consequence of such loss are utterly unable, without aid from their more fortunate fellowmen, to proceed with the cultivation of their farms, and as a result will loose their homes. I heartily approve of Mr. Mitchell's recommendation and would add: Let it be done at once; let every sub-alliance appoint their committee and the committee take action in the matter immediately. There is no time to be lost; seeding time will be at hand soon. It is a noble idea to help the starving Russian, but when your neighbors need help I think it more proper that they should have your attention first. Another word; I believe that "charity should begin at home." These men who lost their crops last year, came here to build up this county and help you to bear the burden of taxation. They lost their crops last summer, you may loose your crop next summer or some other time in the future. No one fully realizes the situation these men are in until they have had a taste of it themself. All the business men in the county should take hold and help this matter along for the simple reason that the success of business men depends on the success of the tillers of the soil. If you are a minister of the gospel, you certainly should be the leading star in advocating this important necessity to your brethren. If you are a Christian take hold and do what you can and show us a little practical christianity, for it is this kind of christianity the world has been short of and needs to practice more in the future than what has been done heretofore. You may say: I am too poor to help any one; all I can do is to try and get along myself, and I cannot do anything for these people who suffered from hail. To these men I will reply that there is not a single farmer in Polk County (I mean those who did not loose any of their crop) but what they can give at least one bushel of wheat or two bushels of oats, if not any more, and if every one would proceed in this manner and do what they could, give as much as they could afford, it would be no difficulty at all to collect a sufficient quantity of grain to supply these unfortunate men with feed and seed so as to enable them to go on with their farming operations.

J. D. KNUTESON,
Sec'y Polk County Alliance.

Walter C. Lee has been prominently mentioned as a candidate for mayor at the coming election. Mr. Lee has been for some time a prominent citizen of this city and is a man thoroughly identified with her interests, a man of broad and liberal views and such a man as should at this time be at the head of our municipal affairs, and if Mr. Lee would accept the thankless position our citizens would do well to nominate and elect him. This is saying nothing against our worthy present mayor who has filled the office two terms very creditably to himself and the city.

World's Fair Notes.

A parade, participated in by 24,000 bicyclists, may be a sight at the Exposition. Efforts are being made to bring about that result.

The Pennsylvania coal operators want to construct a building entirely of anthracite coal at the Exposition, and to have 50,000 tons of best anthracite on exhibition.

Balsa Brothers, the largest cigar manufacturers in Mexico, will make an extensive exhibit at Chicago, in 1893, and Loring Olmstead, who has charge of one of the largest tobacco plantations in Mexico, which is the property of the Bank of London, and situated in the State of Puebla, will make a very interesting exhibit, illustrating "hacienda" life in Mexico. Mr. Olmstad was formerly an officer in the United States navy, and is a graduate from the Annapolis Naval Academy.

The horticultural department of the Exposition is planning to have a magnificent rose garden in which will be fully 50,000 plants, besides large groups in special areas. The garden will be of classic design with temples, arbors, archways and trellises.

The Rhode Island World's Fair board contemplates having its exposition building at Chicago combine the best architectural features of its State capitol at Providence, together with those of the old capitol building formerly occupied at Newport.

A bill making a World's Fair appropriation of $50,000 and authorizing municipal and county authorities to make additional appropriations for the same purpose has been introduced in the Virginia legislature.

New Hampshire, as a delightful place of summer resort, will be demonstrated by a portion of the exhibit made by that State at the Exposition. At least such is the present intention, and summer resort proprietors, editors, railroad officials and others have been invited to a conference to decide upon the best plan for accomplishing that end.

A state World's Fair conference, presided over by commissioner Lindsay, was recently held at Louisville, Ky., with about 250 representative citizens present from all parts of the state. The Governor's recommendation that the legislature make a liberal World's Fair appropriation was unanimously indorsed and $100,000 was named as the sum deemed necessary for creditable representation. It was recommended that 15 per cent. of this sum be devoted to the collection of an exhibit illustrating the resources and history of the state with a view of first showing it at the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the admission of the state into the Union, to be held at Lexington, and afterward including it in the exhibit to be taken to Chicago.

Some Swiss painters, at Geneva, are painting a large panorama of the Bernese Alps, with the intention of bringing it to Chicago for the World's Fair. The panorama will measure 51 by 345 feet and cost $300,000. The sketches for the panorama were taken from the summit of the Mannlichen, 6,600 feet high.

The resources and industries of the state of Mineas Geraes, Brazil, will be shown at an exhibition which opens at Ouro Prato on June 15, 1892. The best of the exhibits will be brought to Chicago later.

The Governor of Dutch Guiana has appointed a commission of 13 to superintend the exhibit which that colony will make at the Fair.

A New York advisory committee of artists has been selected, which will pass judgment on the admissibility of American works of art offered at New York as exhibits at the Exposition. This committee embraces Eastman Johnson, R. S. Gifford, W. M. Chase, J. C. A. Ward, August St. Gaudens, J. G. Brown, H. Bolton Jones and F. D. Millet, all of the National Academy.

The British royal commission for the Chicago Exposition is endeavoring to form a typical collection, illustrating British metallurgy for the British section, and it is now applying to owners and managers of metallurgical works, asking for specimens of each of their principal metallurgical products, and also for specimens illustrating various processes. Dr. E. J. Ball, the instructor in assaying at the Royal College of Science, South Kensington, has undertaken to classify and arrange the collection which, when complete, will doubtless be fully illustrative of the condition of metallurgy in the kingdom. At the close of the Exposition the collection will be presented to an American museum.

The president of Ecuador has decreed that the governors of each state of the republic shall collect and forward to Quito exhibits of all kinds illustrating the riches and the productions of their several states. The Archbishop of Ecuador has issued an order to the bishops and priests throughout the republic directing them to do the same, and also to collect and forward everything which may be in their keeping illustrative of the history of the country suitable to exhibit at Chicago. The consul-general of the United States in Quito has directed the consuls and vice-consuls and consular agents at different points in Ecuador to assist the governors of states in every way possible in the matter of collection of articles relating to commerce with exterior countries. The entire exhibit so collected and exhibited in Quito during the National Exposition will be forwarded intact to Chicago.

A Berlin despatch states that Emperor William is greatly interested in Germany making a fine exhibit at the Exposition, and that he has personally urged Krupp, the noted gun-maker, and Schlutow, manager of the shipbuilding works at Stettin, to exhibit the latest and best products of their vast industries.

The Society for the promotion of Physical Culture and Correct Dress has applied for nineteen hundred square feet of floor space in the woman's building to make an exhibit. The exhibition by the society will be by means of statuary, photographs, pictures, and cases containing costumes. The application says as the aims of the society are educational it would prefer not being classed with reforms or charities.

A British woman's committee has been selected to superintend the representation of the work of English women at the Exposition, and to co-operate with the board of lady managers. The committee has for its president Princess Christian, third daughter of Queen Victoria, and includes the Marchioness of Salisbury, Baroness Burdett-Coutts, Countess of Aberdeen, Lady Churchill, Lady Agnes Buren, Lady Brassy, Lady Jeune, Lady Knutsford, Mrs. Fawcett, Mrs. Priestly, Mrs. Forsythe and others.

Robert Mitchell, Secretary of the Polytechnic institute, is in Chicago perfecting arrangements for 2,500 or 3,000 members of the institution visiting the Exposition. They will be brought over at the rate of 200 a week in parties of 50 in charge of a conductor, and will spend two days in New York, two in Washington, one at Niagara Falls, and six in Chicago. The expense per individual for the round trip will be about $115. The Polytechnic conducted similar parties to the Paris Exposition.

In the Washington State exhibit will be included a representation of the methods used by the Makah Indians in catching salmon and other fish. The exhibit will include boats, lines, hooks, seines, harpoons, etc.

The Connecticut members of the board of lady managers have undertaken to raise by contribution a fund with which to pay for a fine bust of Harriet Beecher Stowe. This will be their contribution towards the adornment of the walls of the woman's building. Copies of Mrs. Stowe's literary works will also be contributed.

It is reported from Argentine Republic that strong pressure is being brought upon that government to increase its World's Fair appropriation from $100,000 to $800,000.

Notice of Sale Under Decree.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. District Court, 14th Judicial District.

Karl Sletten, Plaintiff, vs. Carl Ulsteen and Julie Ulsteen, Defendants.

In pursuance to a judgment and decree of the Court in the above entitled action, dated February 1st 1892, a certified copy of which has been delivered to me with instructions to enforce the same, I, the undersigned sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, shall expose for sale, as the law directs, at the front door of the District Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, on Friday the 8th day of April, A.D. 1892, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, the real estate and premises described in said judgment and decree, to wit: The south-west quarter of the north-west quarter of section twenty (20), township one hundred and fifty-three (153), range forty-three (43), in the County of Polk, Minnesota, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said judgment, together with the costs and expenses of such sale.

Dated February 5th, 1892.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication, January 21st, 1892.]
[Last publication, March 3rd, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty and 16-100 dollars, interest which is due at the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Alphonse Paridis and Elmira Paridis, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guarantee Company of Hartford, Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of October, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of November, 1889, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 48 of mortgages, on page 52.

And whereas the said The Loan and Guarantee Company, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and forty-six and 82-100 Dollars, with interest on nine hundred and twelve ($912) dollars thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the 18th day of January, 1892, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-east quarter (ne¼) of Section thirty-four (34) Town one hundred and fifty (150) of Range forty-two (42), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston in said County and State, on

SATURDAY, THE FIFTH DAY OF MARCH, 1892,

at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and forty-six and 82-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated January 18th, A. D. 1892.

UP GOES TWINE!

AN ADVANCE OF THREE TO FOUR CENTS A POUND.

Bigger Profits for the Trust.

Last Year $1,400,000 Was Made in Clear Surplus.

WHAT WILL IT BE THIS YEAR?

The Advance Will Be An Additional Burden on the Farmers That Will Be Resented.

Minneapolis Journal.

Amid all the mists which surround this question of the supply of binding twine for the farmers of the Northwest, one ugly peak pokes up its head to-day. It is brought into plain view by the fact, developed by the Journal this morning, that there is to be a strong advance in the price of binding twine.

As a matter of fact the advance is already on, the price having been put up in the past few days. It will be advanced still farther before the wheat is ripening on the prairies of the Northland. During the fiscal year ending Oct. 31st 1891, the National Cordage Company which some of the interested parties are beginning to believe is a most healthy octopus, made a profit of $1,406,813.45, paying out $1,300,000 in dividends. This is on the authority of the company itself, and it is not likely that too large a profit would be announced. The indications are that the cordage company and the other companies not merged in that concern will be able to show a still larger dividend when the coming year's business is cleaned up.

Last year the farmers could buy their binding twine for from 7 to 12 cents per pound. This year they will have to pay from 10 to 15 cents per pound, and if it does not go higher than that they may consider themselves lucky. President Waterbury, of the National Cordage company, says in the report which he made to the annual meeting held in Weehawken, N. J., three weeks ago, after enumerating the absorption of a new establishment, and the consequent reduction in the cost of production;

"Through these advantages, secured by the control of many mills, and their management under one direction, the company hopes to be enabled to secure an increased margin of profit without increasing the prices of its product to the consumers."

Just how much there is in this statement may be gleaned from the fact, as above stated, that the price of binding twine has already advanced and will still go on higher.

The National Cordage Company now owns and controls 49 different plants. T. B. Lindsay, of Lindsay Bros., the representatives of the Plymouth Cordage Company, of Plymouth, Mass., a company which has not gone into the combine, admitted to a Journal man that the raise was on. He said that they had been advancing their prices for some time and were likely to still farther advance them. He said the fact was they had sold about all the twine already that they cared to; they didn't particularly care about selling any more. He paid his compliments to the Farmers' Alliance folk who propose to go into a combine of their own to secure a lower rate.

W. J. Dean, well known in agricultural circles, confirmed the reported raise. He said that his firm bought their supplies as they needed them. He was unqualifiedly opposed to gambling in binding twine as he was to gambling in wheat. Mr. Dean thought the advance would probably be from 3 to 4 cents per pound, at least, over what the price was last year.

While to the farmer of 50 acres the advance in price will not mean a very great extra expenditure of money, yet he will feel it just the same. No small farmer cares to have even a third increase in the cost of his twine. To the large bonanza farmers the increase is a matter of serious moment. It takes the merest novice in figures to see that if the National Cordage Company made a profit of over $1,400,000 last year, it won't be losing enough to reduce it to beggary when it increases the selling price of its product by from 20 to 30 per cent at no increase in cost. President Waterbury said at the annual meeting above referred to that $1,400,000 profit "merely represents the profits of the mills formerly owned by the company, whereas now its manufacturing capacity has been very largely increased and its earnings should be increased accordingly." Benjamin Seaward, the comptroller of the company, says that the results of the business for the past year has been "fairly satisfactory." For the next quarter ending Jan. 31st, the comptroller estimates that, after deducting expenses, rentals and all fixed charges, the profits will be found sufficient to pay the entire annual dividend of $400,000 on the preferred stock, a quarterly dividend o $250,000 on the common stock, "besides," he adds, "leaving a large surplus."

These facts the Journal has from an indisputable authority—the cordage company itself. These facts, taken in connection with the announcement that the price of binding twine is being advanced, add a significant chapter to the current cordage tale. As Minneapolis is one of the principal twine markets of the country the advance has a peculiar local interest.

THE NEW PARTY.

Midway News.

The third party struggle at St. Louis, this week; the bolt in the New York Democratic convention, and the wide spread dissatisfaction among Republicans regarding the high-handed manipulation of the self-chosen bosses, both in state and national politics, are all evidences of the process of disintegration now going on in political circles. The old Greenback party is breaking up; the Single Tax party is breaking up; the Woman's Rights party is breaking up; the Prohibition party is breaking up; the Farmers' Alliance is breaking up; the Republican planet has many times cast from itself its mugwumpish meteors, and now the old rock-ribbed and rock-bottomed Democratic world is giving signs of decay. This decay and this disintegration, however, is not a mere process of putrifaction, wherein the disintegrating elements at once lose themselves in space, but rather the decay of seeds in fertile soil which promise to bring forth new fruit. Careful observers outside the realms of the various political machines, commonly called parties, have not failed to discover the alarming extent to which personal greed actuates their movements. These careful observers in all parties have noticed, in fact, that the most active men in their respective organizations but use the sacred principles underlying the foundation of the republic and the preservation of popular liberty as a means for the advancement of selfish ends, and hence the disintegration in all parties. These careful observers, to be sure, are themselves more or less divided among themselves on account of self interest, but they all realize that the preservation of the political authority within the hands of the people is the first essential to their own welfare and happiness, so that when they see one or two or three self-appointed leaders undertake to rule and govern regardless of the consent of the governed, they naturally rebel. This rebellion is now going on in all parties and in all sections of the country. It has been going on more or less for years, it is true, but one feature of it which must not be overlooked is the present tendency on the part of all the disintegrating portions to come together. The St. Louis meeting is but an aggregation of dismembered elements from the old parties. Some were broken off on account of the old parties' attitude in protecting the liquor evil; some were broken off on account of the old parties' partiality to the bondholders and national banks; some were broken off on account of the old parties' partiality to large employers of labor; some were broken off on account of the old parties' partiality to railroad, telegraph, warehouse and milling corporations, and still others were broken off from the old parties for the simple reason that they were not taken into the machine there, and given an office. Thus we have the Prohibition party, the Greenback party, the Labor Union party and the Farmers' Alliance, each movement seriously impeded, however, by demagogical leaders who but use the honest sentiments of their followers as trading stock with the old parties. There are certain considerations underlying all this, however, that are worthy of attention.

1. The liquor evil appeals to the old parties for protection on account of the money there is in the traffic—it tends to concentrate wealth.

2. The national bank system, and our interest-bearing bond system upon which it rests, appeals to the old parties for like reason—it tends to concentrate wealth.

3. The consolidation of industry into few hands, and the subjecting of the employe to the employer, too, appeals to both of the old parties because it tends to concentrate wealth.

4. The railway, warehouse, milling and mining combinations also appeal to both of the old parties, and these, too, tend to the concentration of wealth.

The tendency of both the Democratic and Republican parties, then, as now constituted, is in the same direction—the concentration of wealth. The tendency of all four of the new parties, the Prohibition, the Greenback, the Labor Union and the Farmers' Alliance is in the opposite direction and lead toward the dissemination of wealth. Here, then, is found a fundamental principle upon which both of the old parties tend to unite on the one hand while all four of the new parties tend to unite on the other. Wealth gives power, and power enables one to acquire wealth. The concentration of wealth for the development of the earth's natural resources is popularly admitted as right and proper, because in that the masses share with capitalists the benefits of concentration. But the concentration of wealth for the mere purpose of obtaining arbitrary power over the masses is generally feared and will be generally opposed in this country. The abuse of the powers of wealth, in the hands of corporations as well as in the hands of crowned monarchs, is what causes dissatisfaction among the masses; dissatisfaction causes disintegraton from the old parties, until, after a time, as we observe to-day, the disintegrated parts unite and form a new party. If the old parties continue to make the acquirement of wealth and power the chief end of their endeavors, dissatisfaction will increase, the disintegrated parts will be forced to unite for the common good until a new party comes into power. The only hope of the old parties is to place such restriction around accumulated wealth as will keep it into legitimate employment, that is, as Andrew Carnegie says, keep it as a trust fund, in the hands of individuals though it be, for the development of such arts and industries as will promote the good of the whole. If the old parties permit wealth to be squandered in extravagant and luxurious dissipation, then a new party will come in power. The liquor evil must be abated; the cupidity of the bondholders must be restricted; the cruelty of the employing classes must be controlled and the monopolistic tendencies of the channels of transportation must be governed. Upon the course of the old parties on these questions depends the rise of the new party. If the old parties do not meet the popular demand on these essential points statesmen will some day arise, brush off the vagaries and extravagancies put forward by the shallow demagogues now at the head of the disintegrating forces, reorganize them upon a solid basis, and lead them into power. The old parties have reached their crisis. They must either leave off their narrow scramble for spoils and offices and rise to the dignity of true statesmanship or suffer themselves to be supplanted by a new party.

The Phrenological.

The new speaker in the house of representatives leads in the Phrenological Journal and Science of Health for January. He looks the characteristic commonly ascribed to his surname. Dr. Lowber talks well but briefly on Moral Science Made Practical, and a good description of the ancient Syrian methods in art and industry, with illustrations, follows. Dr. Amariah Brigham figures as one of the immortals who helped along in the early days of American Phrenology. A right noble looking man was he. A poem on February is about the average magazine verse. How Phrenology Saved Her Reputation appears to be a true sketch, and A Teacher's Testimony is in a similar vein. A Review of Phrenological Doctrine is the work of a scholar, the social and selfish faculties being considered. Governing Children, On Using Both Hands, and Let Us Live with our Children are conspicuous features in "Child Culture." Modern Football is practically and sensibly scored by H. S. D. Why a Vegetarian and The Little House are right to the point, and the latter deserves special circulation all through the country. If its advice were opeyed there would be little grippe. The Notes in Phrenology show a clever hand in selection and arrangement; they are very instructive. And so, for that matter, are all other departments of this admirable number of the veteran monthly. Published at $1.50 a year, 15c. a number. Address the publishers, Fowler & Wells Co., Pubs., 777 Broadway, New York.

The March Wide Awake is a timely and attractive issue of the favorite magazine. Its frontispiece, illustrating Miss Brastow's characteristic story of "A March Mood," capitally suggests the lingering snow of the departing winter, and there are March pictures and poems suitable to the season. The most important illustrated discriptive articles are Mrs. Stanton's brief but interesting description of Gray's Forest—the famous tract of the Burnham Beeches near to London, and the quaint churchyard of Stoke Pogis, where the writer of the immorthl "Elegy" was laid away, and Miss Eliza Ruhamah Scidmore's capital account of a visit to the palace of a Chinese noble. To this she gives the Chinese title, "Chin, Chin, Huana Ta-ta!" and the "Chin Chin" will be enjoyed by old and young alike, so delightful a glimpse is it into a high-class Chinese home. Mrs. Harriet Maxwell-Converse concludes her entertaining chapters on Iroquois life with a spirited account of the Indian children's "Fire-Fly song"; Lieut.-Col. Thorndike contributes to his series of "One Man's Adventures," an account of his startling experience "As War Correspondent," when his sagacious dog saved his life, and Mrs. E. F. Bonsell tells of the elephant's bath at the Philadelphia Zoo. A bright and spirited story is one by Mrs. Edith Perry Estes, well known among Boston newspaper women, entitled "My Spanish Princess." Rebecca Mays Nadal tells a capital historic tale of King James V. of Scotland, under the title, "The Goodman of Ballengiech;" Margaret Johnson has a girl's story, "The Red Necklace," to which Jessie McDermott has given some quaint, old-fashioned pictures; Mary Catherine Crowley also tells a frontier story of two generations back, "The Lost Darning-Needle of Fitzroy," which Miss Kirk has furnished with a pleasing picture, and there is a humorous story of "How Joey Rang the Bell," by J. T. Harbour; a funny account of an encounter between "A Boy and a Bear," by Caryl D. Haskins, and also one of the over-confident young Oriental, whom people called "I know." The serial stories, "Jack Brereton's Three Month's Service," by Maria McIntosh Cox, and "The Lance of Kanana," by the entertaining story teller who conceals his identity under the Arabic "Abd el Ardavan," are both of them absorbing, and one scarcely knows which is the more exciting—the suspense that filled the Brereton home (as it did so many others) after the defeat at Bull Run, or the remarkable ride across the Arabian desert to deliver the caliph's message to Kahled the Invincible. The poetry in the number is from such verse-makers as Herbert D. Ward, who sings of the loyalty of a beautiful Collie; Elsie Kendall, who has a capital doll poem, "The Woes of Noll;" Jane Ellis Joy, Mary Catherine Crowley, Clara Doty Bates and others. The Men and Things department is full of entertaining things worth remembering, while the Odd Business Paper by Mr. Bridgman introduces the reader to the wonderful "Museum of Marvels." There is reading matter enough, and pictorial matter enough in the March Wide Awake to last the boys and girls for a long time, for everything in the magazine is worth the reading and the rereading which its army of admirers will give it. Wide Awake is published at 20 cents a number, $2.40 per year. At the newsdealers. D. Lothrop Co., Publishers, Boston.

One of the remarkable features of the Exposition will be a series of religious congresses from August 25th through the month of September, 1893. The chairman of the general committee, Rev. John Henry Barrows, of Chicago, has associated with him members of sixteen different religious organizations. They have invited the representatives of all the great historic religions to confer together and to show what light religion has to throw on the great problems of the age. Their plan has met the approval of Mr. Gladstone, Cardinal Gibbons, the poets Holmes and Whittier, Archbishops Ireland and Ryan, Professor Drummond, Professor Godet, of Switzerland; Rabbi Maybaum, of Berlin; President Washburn, of Robert College, Constantinople; Justice Ameer Ali, of Calcutta; Bunyin Nanjie, a learned Buddhist, of Japan, and scores of the leading scholars of America and Great Britain.

Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

THE MERCANTILE AGENCIES.

In a former article I pointed out the law in New York, and that which is generally followed, to be that the reports of mercantile agencies are privileged communications, exempting them for liability for statements otherwise libelous when, and only when, such reports are made to subscribers having an interest which the law will recognize in the information given; and this interest must be more specific than that which subscribers have in all persons reported, and must be an interest in the particular concern or business concerning which the report is made.

The rule is the same where the reporus are made in cipher.

The mere statement in a printed report that persons interested in a certain person named are invited to call at the office of the agency for information, and nothing more, is not libelous.

A New York case in 1888 decides that a false agency report, to the effect that a judgement has been rendered against a person, naming him, is not libelous per se, and that, without proof of special damage arising therefrom, the agency is entitled to a verdict, the argument of the judges being that this of itself is not sufficient from which to infer unsoundness of financial condition.

On the same theory a Maryland case holds that to publish falsely of a man that he has given a chattel mortgage is not libelous per se, without proof of special damage.

A United States Court case arose in 1867, where the question at issue was whether the defendant, Tappan, could employ in his office some twenty clerks who had access to records in which were written items affecting the credit of merchants, the business of these clerks being to copy these records and communicate their contents to customers in answer to inquiries, and still enjoy immunity from liability on the ground of privileged communications. Justice Nelson, delivering the opinion, observed, that if the defendant himself had communicated the report in good faith and to a proper person, it might have been privileged, but the publicity given the report in the defendant's office by recording it in a book to which others, though clerks, had access deprived it of its privileged character. Courts generally, have refused to accept this doctrine, and it may be considered as settled that the agency may use any number of clerks necessary to the transaction of its business, and the recording of information in books to which such persons have access, does not deprive the communication of its privileged character.

For cases upon this subject we refer to Beardsley v. Tappan, 5 Blatchf. (U.S.), 497; King v. Patterson, 49 N. J. L., 417; Erber v. Dun, 4 McCrary (U.S.), 160. It would seem that in Canada the law as to the liability of mercantile agencies is the reverse of that in this country.

It seems to be held that no report by an agency is a privileged communication whether made to an interested subscriber or not.

Viewed in the light of the general trend of decisions made in our courts, it would seem that Judge Cooley, in his work on Torts, has stated the law incorrectly in saying that "if one makes it his business to furnish to others information concerning the character, habits, standing and responsibility of tradesmen, his business is not privileged, and he must justify his reports by the truth."

Dr. Francis Wharton has perhaps erred in the other direction when he states that communications when made to subscribers, are interested in the communication or not. The subject will be pursued further in our next article.

Through misinformation a "World's Fair note" recently stated that the Island building would combine the architectural features of the present capitol building and of the one formerly used at Newport. Such is not the case. The structure will combine the features of the "old stone mill" at Newport, which is of unknown origin and which is alluded to in Longfellow's "Skeleton in Armor," and those of the "Arcade," a business building in Providence erected about 65 years ago.

Connecticut held an enthusiastic World's Fair meeting at Hartford on Washington's birthday, ex-Governor Waller presiding. A committee of sixteen, two from each county, were appointed to look after the State's representation at the Exposition. Sixteen lady managers were also chosen. Subscriptions being called for, $50,000 was pledged on the spot. It is expected that the legislature, when its deadlock is broken, will reimburse the subscribers.

Collins will sell you good work horses at the right price.

County Commissioner Stortroen's wife died last week.

The old familiar rattle of wagons is again heard in the land.

The case of Wentzel vs. Charron was decided in favor of the plaintiff.

This looks like an early spring. If the river breaks up that settles it.

N. B. Soper, of Andover, secured a team of those fine mares of Brown last week.

A runaway on Main street caused a flutter of excitement on Monday. Nobody hurt.

If you want people to know what you are doing advertise your business in THE JOURNAL.

Teachers examinations this week in the school house, on the corner of Main and Fifth streets.

The case of McManus vs. Halvorson, on trial last Thursday, was decided in favor of Halvorson.

Fred Anderson and Guy Halvorson represented the business men of Crookston in St. Paul last week.

Will Waggoner come up from Fisher last week to see that carload of mares and bought a pair of them.

Misses Nellie and Abbie Brewster, of Fisher, were in the city this week attending the teachers' institute.

Judge Mills arrived last week and assumed his place in the court room and Judge Baxter left for his home.

With this kind of weather threshing can soon be resumed in earnest and lots of it done before spring's work.

Gomer Evans, of Angus, joined Col. Cobham Post at the last meeting Friday evening. The Post is growing encouragingly.

Comrade Snyder says he saw more mud during his two weeks sojourn in Indiana than he sees here in a whole year.

Mr. Welter, the new proprietor of the Herriott farm at Beltrami, purchased two span of those fine mares at Brown's last week.

The democrats have called their convention for March 25th, at the court house. Had an idea they would forego that luxury this trip.

H. Buchholz, of Heiberg, Norman Co., writes us that he intends to go to Idaho this spring. Mr. B. was formerly a prominent citizen of Fertile.

Harmon Osterloh, of Euclid, bought a fine team of mares of M. R. Brown last week, He went everywhere to look and went to Brown to purchase.

E. E. Abbott was in from Grove Park last week and gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call. Mr. Abbott reports much sickness in that town this spring.

If this fine weather don't catch cold we may reasonably expect an early spring. Snow going off rapidly and the river shows signs of breaking up.

Adolph Wentzel, of Fisher, was waiting for the arrival of that carload of mares at Brown's and bought a pair almost as soon as they were unloaded.

Ed. M. Peterson was down from Fosston last week and dropped in to square up on subscription account. Ed will go back to the town of Roome to live this spring.

W. C. Lee was adjudged insane and taken to Fergus Falls last week for treatment. While the case is extremely serious his many friends here are hoping for the best.

In the past week subscriptions have been coming in nicely. This gives us encouragment in our work. We wish all could appreciate fully how much help it really is.

Mayor McKinnon returned on Friday morning from a three months visit to Canada. With him came Dr. Watson, who will hang out his shingle and try life in Polk County for awhile.

T. McLennan, one of the leading farmers of Angus, bought a span of those mares of Brown last week. The best farmers all go and see what Brown has got to offer before they buy.

E. M. Walsh:—"No very large deals in real estate to report this week, young man, but I have some irons in the fire that will surprise you later. That is all I can say at present."

Our Maple Bay correspondent did nicely as long as he held out, but as the Dutchman said when his wife died "he lasted too quick already." Don't get weary in well doing. Let us have some more.

Those horses that S. L. Collins spoke about in last issue arrived all right and S. L. invites all who are looking for GOOD horses to call and look his over. If it is a cheap plug you want don't call at Collins' barn.

Dan. McDonald sports a regular Scotch cap. In it Dan. looks every inch the braw' Scot he is. It is said that Mayor McKinnon brought that cap back with him from the old country, though we can't say how true that is.

Call at Charlie Vine's for your choice cuts.

See Brown for choice work horses at reasonable figures.

The 15th of March is rapidly approaching and one or two to whom we wrote requesting an answer by that time will comply with our request OR THAT OF SOME OTHER MAN. A word to the wise should be sufficient.

We should like to hear from a few more farmers on that seed wheat business. Is it possible that this matter will be permitted to go by default? We ought to have four or five times as much on our list as appears there.

S. B. Palmer was up from Lockhart and sold one gasoline engine to be delivered as soon as it can be shipped from the factory in Chicago. The Lewis gasoline engine is said to be the best engine of the kind in the market.

If this proves to be the opening of spring it is just what the country needs. If farmers can get to plowing in a short time and keep at it the unfavorable fall weather will be counterbalanced in a measure. Let us hope that such will be the result.

Comrade C. Snyder and wife returned last Friday morning from their sad visit to the old home. Her father had died before their arrival and they only arrived in time to attend his funeral. Comrade S. says grip seems more fatal down there than here.

Having been practically laid up with La Grippe for the past two weeks our correspondence has been necessarily delayed. If our friend at Euclid will send us in a few items, as suggested, his request will be cheerfully complied with just as soon as we can get around to it.

Mayor McKinnon:—"I have good reason to believe that improvements for our city are under contemplation that will be worth thousands to the city. That is all I am at liberty to disclose just now but I can say bide in patience a wee bit time and you will see movements that will rejoice your heart."

Miss Emma Verronneau left for Chicago on Tuesday evening for goods for the new firm and expects to be gone about a week. While in Chicago she will thoroughly post herself up in all of the latest styles and be ready to supply the ladies of Crookston and vicinity with everything needed in millinery.

The Great Northern road ships wheat free for the Russian sufferers but don't seem willing to assist in aiding cases of destitution on its own line. With their assistance enough grain could be raised to help out those who lost their all in the great storm of last summer but without it it will be impossible.

Chas. Vine has taken possession of the old Jacobus building, fitted it up in elegant shape and moved his meat market therein. He is now ready to greet his many patrons and friends at the new stand and to supply all their wants in his line. When you want a choice steak or roast call on Charley.

Dr. Just went out to the residence of Aaron Cooke, in Fairfax, on Sunday, to attend to Mr. C. who was threatened with pneumonia. As Mr. Cooke is a man over 80 years old, much apprehension was felt until the doctor pronounced it a mild cold and gave him some medicine that helped him to get around all right.

Last week an individual was about the streets offering to sell a flute at a very low figure and finally did sell it to J. S. Stadsvold. One person to whom it had been offered saw the name of D. H. Beecher on the flute and wired Beecher, who answered requesting that the chap be detained. On Monday Chief Hennessy came over and got the enterprising flutist.

It is rumored that the Alliance has asked Judge Mills to be an independent candidate for re-election as judge. If that is so that is where their head is level and if he should not decide to do so why not endorse him anyhow? We opine that the Judge, if he runs for the office will be a mighty hard man to beat anyhow, as there seems to be no opposition to him in the district.

On Tuesday evening it set in to rain and rained quite hard until 9 or 10 o'clock when the rain turned to snow, accompanied by a high wind. On Wednesday morning the wind was still quite high, various and sundry signs were found out of place and a few fronts and chimnies suffered somewhat. Up to the hour of going to press we have heard of no further casualties.

S. L. Collins will sell you a good team right. Everybody who knows Collins, knows that he buys only good horses and that he sells at reasonable figures. In fact Mr. Collins' reputation is at stake in his business, a fact that he well knows and will do as much to protect as any other man. Our home dealers are the men to trust. Collins is a home dealer.

S. Waring, of Excel, Marshal Co., was in the city last Wednesday. He is one of a company that purchased a Clydesdale last year and they want to engage a good groom for the coming season. Mr. Waring has an idea that a cheese factory would pay in his neighborhood and is talking of putting in one. We can see no reason why such an institution, properly managed, should not pay well.

Speaking with Mayor McKinnon on the mayorality question, he said: "You may say to your readers that I am not a candidate for re-election, and while I feel grateful to the citizens of Crookston for the manner in which they have stood by me, I feel that my private business demands more of my personal attention than I can give it if in a public office. What I would like to see would be to have our people sink every other consideration in the effort to bring to the front and elect some live, stirring man, one who is fully alive to the interests of our city and I will take off my coat and work to elect such a man. I shall still retain my interests in Crookston and shall in the future, as I have tried to do in the past, work for the advancement of her best interests."

M. R. Brown arrived from Iowa on Thursday evening with that carload of mares, mentioned in our last issue, and they proved to be fully as good as recommended, at least we should judge so from the fact that on Saturday afternoon, less than two days after their arrival, every one of them was sold, and those who went to Brown's stables on Monday to purchase were disappointed and will have to await the arrival of the next lot which will be some day next week.

Duluth News: There has never been any such thing as a "billion dollar congress." Democratic falsehood is the only ground on which that charge can rest. But it can be demonstrated with mathematical accuracy that there is a five-cent Democratic house now in session—one that while running at an expense of over $7,000 a day puts in such costly time debating propositions to reduce the appropriation for soap and saddle blankets for the cadets at West Point.

Mr. M. R. Brown started on Tuesday night for Iowa after two carloads of horses. It seems as though he could not keep up with the demand but he says he will give it an awful good try if there are enough good horses left in Iowa to do it. He is very particular when buying to get only the best and only such as he can take a just pride in recommending. When you buy of Brown you never get left.

Ole Meldohl was down from Drayton, N. D., last week. Ole has had a severe time with his knee for six or eight months but is now able to travel on it. For awhile last fall it was feared that he would have to suffer the amputation of that leg but happily that calamity was avoided and Ole is a happy man. He says he can secure wheat contributions for the hail-sufferers here, among his neighbors and that he intends to do so.

The Criterion Company played their engagement in the city last week and then played out. One serious mistake they made was playing a week. They should have selected one good play, thoroughly learned that, dispensed with their prompter and tried one night stands. It is said that the manager lit out Saturday evening leaving the company to get out as best they could—and the walking ain't very good either just now.

Mr. Hammond and Frank Ward, of Bismarck, were in the city this week and gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call. They expressed great pleasure at what they saw of our city and say that they see no reason why Crookston should not become the leading city of the Red River Valley, when the pine upon the Reservation is thrown upon the market. They were very favorably impressed with the showing we have made and predicted a great future.

Invitation to everybody to attend service at the Congregational church next Sunday. Rev. R. H. Battey will preach at 11 a. m. on "The Gulf Stream of Christ's Religion." Union services in the evening, in which four churches unite. 6:30 p. m. sharp young people's fraternity meeting, led by Mr. Battey; 7:30 platform temperance meeting—speakers Mr. A. A. Miller, Mr. Robert Stanton, Mr. McCaslin and Rev. J. J. Edwards. The members of the four church choirs are requested to meet for rehearsal on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in the parlor of the Congregational church. The parlor will be thrown open to the main audience room for use on Sunday evening and a large company can be cared for. A warm welcome for all. Let us have a grand meeting. Young men, especially, invited.

We are determined to get better acquainted with the owners of one or two names we have on our list. If they cannot appreciate the gentlemanly treatment they have had at our hands we have an idea that there is a kind of treatment that even they can appreciate. We are very loth to adopt that method but we can do it if forced to as we are determined to be better acquainted with these people. There is still time to save unpleasantness of any kind. We only ask for honest treatment and we consider that we are fully entitled to that.

In an interview with a JOURNAL reporter Mayor McKinnon said that he had enjoyed a very pleasant visit at the old home although he was kept very busy answering inquiries in relation to this country and, said he, 'I expect to see more people enquiring for lands in Polk County this spring than ever before. I was surprised to find out how well Crookston has been advertised. When I was there on a visit several years before, very few knew where Crookston was, anyhow; now everybody seems to know a good deal about it. To the Great Northern railroad company belongs much of the credit for this state of things. Mr. Whitney has managed this business during the past winter and it has been well done. I saw evidences of his work everywhere I went. If every one of the agents received the encouragement that I did we may expect an overwhelming tide of immigration within the next three months."

A New Millinery Firm.

Miss Emma Verronneau and Mrs. Thomas Adams have entered into a co-partnetship and will shortly open a millinery store probably on Second street. Mrs. Adams is a lady possessing excellent taste and judgment which eminently fit her for the business, and as for Miss Verronneau, it is needless to introduce her to JOURNAL readers who have known her since she was a resident of Crookston. For six years she has been trimmer for Mrs. E. E. Bangs and we venture the remark that there are none better in the business. She is thoroughly competent and an expert in her line. THE JOURNAL wishes the new firm abundant success and feels confident that they will achieve it.

England Under Protection.

New York Press.

When the commanding position of England in manufacturing is adduced as evidence of what free trade has done, it should not be forgotten that her supremacy in this respect was attained through stringent protection to all her industries. Take the linen manufacture for example. From an old book printed in Edinburgh in 1783, entitled "A Collection of the Acts of Parliament Now in Force Relating to the Linen Manufactures" we learn that a royal bounty of a penny a yard was paid on English and Irish linens valued from 6d. to 12d. a yard by act of Parliament in 1743. In 1748 British subjects were prohibited from importing or wearing foreign cambrics and French lawns under a penalty of a fine of £5 for each offense. The same penalty applied to those selling or offering for sale the foreign fabrics. In 1769 additional duties from a farthing to 2d. per ell were levied on foreign linens and a penny a yard was added on Holland white lawn. It was further provided that £15,000 per annum should be devoted from the revenue derived from these duties to be paid in bounties for the encouragement of raising and dressing hemp and flax in the kingdom.

This is only one instance out of hundreds recorded on England's statute books. In short, the United States never had anything like the prohibitive duties under whose shelter Great Britain's great industries took root, flourished and attained maturity. It was under protection that England became supreme in manufacturing. Since she adopted free trade she has relinquished the palm to her protected American rival.

A FARMING PARADISE.

Appraiser Rhinehart Now at Work on Red Lake Reservation.

Grand Forks Herald.

Jake Rhinehart, of East Grand Forks, who is conducting the examination and estimates of lands in the White Earth and Red Lake Indian reservation, which are to be thrown open to settlement is home for a few days. There is now a force of six men at work which will be increased to nine when spring opens They have completed appraisements of four townships in the White Earth reservation and are now at work on townships 149, 150 and 151, ranges 39, 40 and 41, in the Red Lake reservation where they have twelve townships in all to explore. The land gone over by them in White Earth is heavily timbered with pine with a small mixture of other woods, but where they are in Red Lake the country is admirably adapted to the purposes of agriculture. It is mixed prairie and brush land and it can all be brought under cultivation with comparatively little difficulty. The townships mentioned lay between the Clearwater and Lost Rivers, this side of Red Lake, and Mr. Rhinehart states that it is as fine a country as any in the Northwest, which is saying a great deal. A great many intending settlers already have their eyes upon that section and we may expect a rush there which will be a small edition of the settlement of Okloboma when the lands are open to settlement.

STRANDED THESPIANS.

MANAGER MORTON OF THE CRITERION CO. SKIPS WITH THE RECEIPTS AT CROOKSTON.

Grand Forks News.

The woes of dramatic troupes are sometimes even more harrowing than the mock scenes of misery they enact upon the boards to make the dewdrops of human pity fall in dainty scented kerchiefs. It seems to be the fate of all some time or other to be stranded. Yesterday morning there arrived in this city from Crookston the charming little soubrette of the Criterion Co., Miss Mabel Davidson of St. Paul, and with her came her friend, Mrs. Elsie Kaye, sister of Arthur Rockwell of the C. St. P. & K. C. R. R. These ladies now are the guests of Miss Ettie Franks, who was a schoolmate of Miss Davidson, and it is highly probable that Miss Davidson will favor Grand Forks with some delightful feats of fancy skating at the Palace rink this evening and during the week, while they are here.

Miss Davidson called at the News sanctum and her eyes snapped sharply as she related the circumstances of the collapse at Crookston. The Criterion Theatre Co. had been under the management of Mr. Seeley at Wahpeton and Barnesville—but at the latter place he left, going to his Lyceum bear garden in Duluth. "All he knows is pumpkins and horses," said Miss Davidson. "He didn't know anything about theatres. He wrote us a salty letter after he deserted us. It covered 26 pages and charged us with being incompetent. Oh, it was a great roast! When Seeley left us we took our advance agent, H. A Morton, alias Geo. Lays (which I pronounce lies,) as our manager. We had no salaries after we left Wahpeton, and it was rather a motley crowd. But we thought we would stick together and do the best we could to redeem the company. I was the soubrette, and could have gone home to St. Paul at any time, but the excitement of the situation interested me, and if I had left them they would have been stranded. At Crookston we hoped to get out of our trouble. We had all learned our parts well, and as Miss Ray Germaine (Maud Strausser, of Argyle,) had friends there and it being court week, we anticipated much success. We did have a big house on Monday night. Unfortunately we had no competent stage manager and one of the papers boomed us away up to the skies. I trembled for our company when I read these notices, for I knew we could not come up to them. The other rival paper pitched into us, being adverse to the managers of the managers of the theatre, Messrs. Arnold & Columbus, who are nice gentlemen, however. It was an old trouble, the Times wanted 24 tickets for each show, I believe, and the managers conceded twelve. You see there was nothing immodest about them. Well, they did roast us fearfully, but we played to good houses. For the last evening we were to put on the "Sea of Ice," and wedding march. The scenery would cost $50, and it would have been a big success but the "Sea of Ice" was not to be seen. We were powerless, only to go on with the play. Morton was in the office and took the proceeds. I think their must have been $250 above expenses during the week. We went ahead with our part, but when the sea of ice failed to materialize, the gallery gods froze on to the fake and guyed us mercilessly. I I was so mortified I didn't know what to do. Meantime we heard the manager had gone. (Two members had followed him to the 10 o'clock N. P. train and saw him freeze on to the rear end of the sleeper, saying "ta ta" to us. Oh, the villain! You give it to him, I think he must have gone to the coast for his health, poor fellow! Well, we worried through the sea without the ice, but most of us felt as if we wanted some ice put to our heads. For myself I cared little, as I can do other work. But the remainder who are left there at that place, I pity them. In fact, it is exciting. Such experience! Yes, I will remain here this week and probably give a skating exhibition at the rink.

The People's Party

Meet and Resolve to Take Control of the City Government.

AND RUN THINGS IN THE INTEREST OF THE PEOPLE.

On March 5th the People's Party Club met and passed the following resolutions:

1st. The People's Party believes that the laws and regulations enacted for the good government of the city should be strictly enforced; that any attempt on the part of officers or private citizens to evade the laws or to shirk the performance of their duties is subversive of good government, and should be unqualifiedly condemned; that a law unenforced is worse than no law, and that any enactment which the public in general do not respect should be repealed.

2d. We advocate that all institutions which are in their nature public and for the common benefit, ought to be owned and controlled by the public. Therefore, we believe that the city water works and electric light plant should be bought and be under the strict supervision of the city.

3d. Having unlimited faith in the prosperity and growth of the city of Crookston and the resources of the surrounding country, and recognizing the natural advantages which the city enjoys, we urge the advisability of securing a suitable piece of ground by the city for a public park, and of making other improvements in accordance with the demands of an enterprising people. We recommend that a suitable fire ordinance be passed, prohibiting the erection of inflamable buildings within the fire limits.

4th. As our city charter is defective and incomplete in many respects, we favor recommending a revision thereof, or a new charter granted in its stead, by the next legislature; we believe also that the city ordinances should be compiled and published by the city, so that law abiding citizens may inform themselves as to what ordinances are in force and effect.

5th. We believe that he who works for the city in a public office should have compensation therefore in proportion to the amount of work and degree of responsibility. Electing a citizen to office without compensation is putting a premium on dishonesty. Therefore we believe that the mayor of our city should receive a reasonable salary. And every independent and separate office of the city should be elective, therefore as the office of city attorney and city comptroller are with regard to duties connected therewith independent of supervision by any other department of the city government, the incumbent thereof should not be dependent upon any other city officer for his position, but that he should be elected by a direct vote of the electors of the city.

6th. When the city enters into any contract for labor to be performed for the city, a minimum rate of wages shall be determined upon, and the resident laborers of our city be given a preference to be employed first. Said terms to be part of the contract, and the city shall be liable to the laborers for their hire.

7th. That the city council shall petition the next legislature to the effect that the contract system be abolished.

8th. The Peoples Party of Crookston, unqualifiedly condemn all such trickery, quibbles and craftiness as resorted to by a majority of city council in the jail site scheme, such action of public officers to evade the law and cheat it out of its supreme authority, is deserving only of contempt of every honest and law abiding citizen, and ought to be looked upon as treachery and anarchy pure and simple.

9th. The People's Party of Crookston heartily endorse the platform adopted at the St. Louis conference Feb. 24th, 1892.

Adopted by the People's Party club of Crookston, Minn., March 5th, 1892.

BELTRAMI ITEMS.

BELTRAMI, March 5th, 1892.

Roads are in a bad condition. Overhead it has been delightful weather for several days, very much like early spring. Wild geese and ducks are here and many spring birds.

H. B. Budd is the happy father of a young daughter who arrived February 29th. He is putting up the cigars very liberally to the boys. Mother and daughter are doing well.

Frank Haight and wife have removed to the J. Wells farm. He is overseeing it for J. W. Frank is one of the rustling young men whom all wish success.

Mr. and Mrs. Welter gave a New England supper March 2nd, the most enjoyable event of the season They also had music and recitations. A recitation, "The Fire Fiend," by Miss Media Welter, was well rendered, as was also "The Latch String," by Miss Katie McMillan; select reading, by Mr. Norwood; impromptu, by Jas. Murphy; singing, by the Beltrami glee club, with Miss Media Welter and Mrs. Whitemer presiding at the piano. The proceeds netted $10.75, for a new organ in the Beltrami Sunday school. All felt the better for being there and all left with good wishes for the prosperity of the Welter family in this their new home.

The Minneapolis Journal has no equal. Besides the fullest daily report of the most important events The Journal gathers up every Saturday all the unique things, the deaths and marriages of well known people and the gossip of the Northwest. Nothing ever gets away.

Mentor Items.

Snow is almost gone and wagons have got a-rolling once more.

A smile is to be seen on Pete nowadays. His cottage begins to look as though he might cross the lines any day.

Our town caucus and farmers' alliance meeting were held on Saturday of last week in Pete's new house. The nomination of town officers went off very smoothly. There are prospects of a good election. The main topic seems to be "town hall," and some think this is just what we want, a hall and store combined, on the grounds of competition. Now what better do we want than Pete, a good square fellow, an obliging merchant and a hardy Norseman; one who has never turned his back on the needy or failed to carry over those who fell behind. Now let us say: Come, boys, and stand by the one who has helped us when we were in need, and not say every man for himself and the devil for the whole of us.

Our Mentor pugilists had another round on Saturday of last week. It proved to be more wind than pluck. It's pretty hard to tell who has the least sense, the one who bought the alcohol or the one who stole it.

The sociable which took place at D. Fulton's on Friday of last week was a grand success. A very pleasant evening was spent. Mr. and Mrs. Fulton deserve much credit; they know how to make the most of everything, but the play of "Nedle's-eye" excused Dave for kissing the other man's wife. The receipts of the evening amounted to $9.35, which spoke well for the host and hostess.

Don't forget to go to the social at Frank Steelman's on Friday, March 18th. We hope Frank will be relieved entirely of the grippe by that time.

Thor Halderson has purchased the farm formerly owned by W. Dennison, of Woodside, for the sum of $300. The farm consists of 80 acres, from which the timber is mostly taken off.

Thor Halderson intends to make Woodside his place of residence.

Whether W. Dennison intends to live retired or invest in real estate at Maple Bay we are not prepared to say. Our best wishes follow one of our old timers.

The Dowagiac Shoe Drill

Has Gained the Reputation of being

The Best Seeding Machine

And the many points of superiority over other Drills on the market, entitle them to the nome they hold as the "King of Seeding Machinery." For sowing in rows close together—5 inches—others are 6 and 7 incher—ease of operation, lightness of draft, we recommend them to any careful, investigating farmer. They will not clog; we warrant them to work where a seeker will work. They are well built, durable and are sold as low as their excellent quality will admit.

We have some special BARGAINS IN HARROWS. 150 tooth 4-horse Boss Harrow, $22. 101 tooth 3-horse $15. 77 tooth 2-horse, $11. We have a nice line of disc and lever Harrows which will arrive this week.

Our full spring line of Rushford Wagons, Grand Detour and Scandia Plows are beginning to come in. We have also the well known Minneapolis Binder, Walter A. The Review of Reviews for March fully maintains the extraordinary interest of its monthly portrait gallery. Its frontispiece is a fine picture of the late Mr. Spurgeon. In the "Progress of the World" the best of Grover Cleveland's new photographs is reproduced, as is also the newest and best of Postmaster-General Wanamaker. There is an excellent portrait of Mr. Blaine, a very fine one of President Harrison, another of Justice Fuller, another of the late Justice Bradley, of the Supreme Court. There appear the faces of Chairman Bland of the Coinage Committee; the late John Jay Knox; Judge Foster of Chili; a full page of the late Duke of Clarence; a full page of his brother George, the present heir to the British throne; a large portrait of the late Benjamin Scott, for fifty years Chamberlain of the city of London—the grand old man of municipal England; a new engraving of the young Khedive of Egypt; a most striking full page portrait of Father Anderledy, a generalissimo of the Jesuits; a half-tone standing portrait of Clemenceau, who has just overthrown the French cabinet; an engraving of M. De Freycinet, the defeated French premier; an engraving of M. Chadourne, lately expelled from France; one of Lord Vivian, the new English minister to Rome; a good portrait of the distinguished philanthropist, Lady Sandhurst, who lately died; a fine portrait of Professor R. T. Ely, the head of Wisconsin's new School of Economics and Politics. In connection with the Polytechnic excursions to the World's Fair are new portraits of Mr. Douglas Hogg, Mr. Robert Mitchell, and, what is rarely seen, a portrait of Mr. D. L. Moody. The character sketch of Mr. Spurgeon has a fine sitting portrait of Mr. Spurgeon in his library, and a full page showing Mr. Spurgeon in his pulpit in the days of his prime, 30 years ago. The character sketch of Cardinal Manning has a large portrait of the late Cardinal, and the sketch of Sir Morell Mackenzie has a sitting half-tone portrait of that eminent physician. In the Leading Articles of the Month appear excellent portraits of Mr. Hamilton W. Mabie of the Christian Union; Editor Flower, of the Arena; Professor Virchow; the late Khedive; M. Durnove, the Russian Minister of the Interior; and Heinrich von Sybel, the great German historian. In the New Book department is a good portrait of the novelist Thomas Hardy. In the Record of Current Events are drawings of President Diaz of Mexico, and his troublesome fellow-citizen, Garza, the insurrectionist. Certainly this great array of fine illustrative portraits is worth more than the price of the magazine.

World's Fair Notes.

An Ohio World's Fair commissioner has estimated that the exhibitors from his state will spend upwards of $5,000,000 in the preparation of their exhibits for the exposition.

The California building at the Fair will be an imposing structure of the "old mission" type, 110 by 500 feet, with a dome, and costing about $75,000. It will be surrounded by a hedge of Monterey cypress.

Denmark will spend about $5,500 in showing to visitors, as a leading feature of its World's Fair exhibit, a Danish dairy, complete and in operation. The dairy interest is one of the most important in Denmark, and the most approved methods and mechanical appliances are utilized in the diaries of that country.

W. L. Libby & Sons, of Toledo, intend to erect, on Midway Plaisance, a factory, in which the manufacture of cut glass can be seen, from the furnace, on through the cutting, finishing and decorating departments, until the finished product is turned out. The factory plans call for a structure 125x200 feet, of stone, iron and glass, and with imposing dome. The firm intends to spend $40,000 on the building alone.

Vermont will have a building at the Exposition without drawing on the state appropriation for the cost of its erection. One hundred substantial citizens have guaranteed $10,000 for that purpose, each one pledging himself to pay $100.

Italy will make no governmental display at the Exposition. The king, however, has recognized the Fair by ap appointing a commission, and Minister of State Rudini has informed vice-president Bryan and director Higinbotham that the government will encourage individual exhibitors in every way possible. He intimated that it would even pay for the transportation of all exhibits. Mr. Higinbotham reports that there is throughout Italy much enthusiasm over the Exposition and that the painters, sculptors and manufacturers of artistic wares are hard at work on intended exhibits.

The governments of Norway and Sweden have, respectively, asked for World's Fair appropriations of $61,288 and $58,600. In Norway a number of private citizens are raising a fund of $10,720 with which to build and send to Chicago a counterpart of the Viking ship which was exhumed near Sandefiord a few years ago.

Michigan's building will measure 100x140 feet and be three stories high. It will be constructed of Michigan material, which with the furnishings will be donated. Though but $20,000 of the appropriation will be devoted to its erection, it will in reality be a $50,000 building.

Baron de Berlepsch, German minister of commerce, has written to the chamber of commerce of Crefeld, the principal place in Prussia for the manufacture of silk goods, that the Emperor ardently desires that there should be as fine a display as possible of German silks and velvets at the Chicago World's Fair. A majority of the silk and velvet manufacturing firms in the Rhenish provinces will comply with the wishes of the Emperor, whose interest in Germany's share of the exhibition is having a stimulating effect in all directions.

Special World's Fair commissioner Alexander Campbell has returned from Australasia and reports that great enthusiasm over the exposition is felt in that part of the world. New South Wales, South Australia, Victoria, Queensland, New Zealand, Tasmania are all making extensive preparations for their representation, and splendid exhibits are reported sure to be sent. Three new steamers between Sydney and San Francisco are about to be put on.

Remenyi, the well known violin virtuoso, has made application for a space of not less than 400 square feet in which to exhibit his great collection of rare African ethnological specimens. The selection, which comprises over 1,500 carefully selected specimens, has been formed during the last forty years, and is beyond question the most perfect of its kind. It is especially rich in the ancient regal symbols in use among the Zulus, including sceptres, royal bracelets, which were used instead of crowns, and other emblems of hammered silver, of carved and polished ivory and of rhinoceros horn. The royal bracelets are especially interesting. They are hollowed rings made from transverse sections of huge elephant tusks and, until his death, were never taken off, after once placed on the arm of the king. There are also several splendid specimens of the exceedingly rare and beautiful royal silk mantles of the sovereigns of Madagascar, three hundred and more years ago. These mantles are curiously adorned with broideries of metal and of uncut precious stones and of feather work. Every specimen in the collection is perfect and unique of its kind.

Mr. Barilusow, of St. Petersburg, Russia, a dealer in fine oriental goods, intends to exhibit in the Exposition rare carpets, shawls, hangings and textile fabrics from the far orient. He will furnish a number of rooms in rich oriental styles representing the residences of the wealthy Mahometans of Asia, and by way of contrast the tents of the nomad tribes of the Kirguiz Tartars. Some of the apartments will be in the style of the Caucasus, others in the Bokkara and Chiva styles. The furniture and decorations for these apartments have been for the most part collected at great expense in the remote orient. Suirnow & Co., of the same capital will exhibit a complete suite of apartments of a "Boyar," or wealthy Russian noble of the XII century, and also the cabin of the rich Russian peasant of modern times. Each of these exhibits will be in a separate pavillion of distinctively Russian architecture. The great samovar factory of Toula, Russia, will send to the Exposition a large exhibit of its products. It will also erect a great tea-saloon that will be a great reproduction of the most luxurious of these establishments to be found in the great cities of Russia in the early part of this century.

The Light of Other Days.

The date when man first discovered how to supply himself with artificial light must be very far back, but many generations went by before he had anything better than torches for out-door use, and for in-door conveniences a wick floating loosely in a vessel of oil. Gas, as an illuminant, is not old, the electric light is the invention of yesterday, while there are thousands of people not yet three score and ten, whose youthful lessons were learned by the feeble gleam of a tallow candle. In the country households the manufacture of a weekly or monthly supply of candles came as regularly as wash day. The soldiers of the late war remember "star" candles very well, but doubtless few can tell whence the name. The discoverer of a process to separate glycerine and fatty matters from stearic acid in the making of candles was the Frenchman DeMille, whose factory in Paris was located at the "Barriere de l'Etoile"—barrier (or gate) of the star—and from this circumstance his manufactures were known as "star" candles. The days of such illuminators are gone, and the luxurious cars of our modern railroads are lighted by gas or electricity. To many eyes, however, the electric glare is unpleasant, but all are satisfied with the soft yet brilliant illumination of "The Burlington's" vestibuled train by the "Frost Dry Carburetor System." For tickets over this popular line, or any information, call on local ticket agents, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

How It Works.

Farm, Stock and Home.

The other day there were owned and for sale in a certain large grain market 5,000,000 bushels of wheat to be delivered to purchasers a few weeks hence. There were also on the market men enough, speculators and all, to buy that much wheat on the conditions named. The trading began, wheat was offered at a price satisfactory to buyers, purchases were made until each buyer had exhausted his ability to buy, each had enough, or all he had money to pay for, and the trading stopped. The buyers were happy, thinking they had bought all the wheat for sale that day, and that to-morrow the prices would therefore be higher. But what was their astonishment to learn at the close of the day that not a bushel of the five million had been touched; that the demand for that day had been supplied by mythical wheat, by "wind," and that the original wheat, augmented by another day's receipts, would be on hand to-morrow to depress prices. The real wheat also found at the close of the day's business that the wind was in sufficient quantity to exhaust the capacity or disposition of the buyers for that day, they failed to realize an expected profit, and resolved to buy no more real wheat except at a price that would protect them against the sales of mythical wheat. In the meantime the men who sold what they did not own did it in the expectation that they could at time of delivery buy wheat enough lower than they sold for to make a handsome profit, and all their efforts during the succeeding weeks will be devoted to bringing about that result. Such is wheat gambling, and such its effect on producers and legitimate dealers.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Chicago Tribune:—THE POLK COUNTY (Minn.) JOURNAL prints in full a Tribune editorial denouncing the crank demand for cheap money, and hints that it misrepresents the farmers of the country. It says that as a rule they do not desire any wildcat schemes to prevail, whatever a few self-styled leaders in the Alliance may say, and that the farmers demand an honest dollar, but want "enough honest dollars to prevent a few speculators cornering the market at the expense of the balance of mankind." It says the farmers are not going to be led into any wild schemes of designing sharpers, though it is possible they may be led into a few errors, but that "ridicule and abuse of them as a class will not avail to convince them of their mistakes." The article quoted does not contain a single reference to the farmers, as such. It denounced the wild schemes of the Alliance leaders assembled in convention at St. Louis, and said that if those plans were adopted "the poor, silly, ignorant and deluded tools would curse their own folly as bitterly as do the people in Argentina, who were misled by a similar delusion." There was no statement that these dupes are farmers, or that any particular number of them belong to the agricultural class. It is pleasant to be assured by good authority that the great mass of the farmers in the Mississippi Valley do not desire wildcat schemes to prevail. But the Tribune did not say anything to the contrary, as THE JOURNAL must be free to admit, if its editor will carefully read over again the article to which he refers.

A Land of Fruits and Flowers.

No where else in the world are there found more fertile valleys, more beautiful flowers or more fragrant breezes than in the tropical Central American State, Costa Rica—never warmer than 75 degrees, never colder than 65 degrees. The water supply is pure and abundant, the soil is extremely fertile, successive crops being grown each year without affecting it. On the coast is raised bananas, rice and coconuts; on first plateau and valleys, sugar cane and cotton; higher up tobacco, cochineal, cactus indigo. Here are the coffee lands. No country on the globe can compete with Costa Rica in the raising of coffee—40 acres of coffee trees will pay greater than a 1,000 acre grain farm and you can live in a beautiful southern country where fruits and vegetables mature every month in the year.

A splendid chance for the poor man, for the man of moderate means. You cannot afford to let this opportunity go by.

The eyes of the world are now turned toward this country. The Nicaragua canal will be built and this fair country will be quickly populated. You must not wait until others have secured the best lands and locations.

City Clerk.

A LIVELY BOOM.

Pioneer Press.

The excitement of those interested in Minnesota iron producing lands is now at white heat. The great flurry over the discoveries of the Gogebic range in Wisconsin did not equal the activity that has followed the disclosure of Mesaba's wealth, for it is believed that, both in quantity and quality of product, these newly opened mines will surpass anything in the country. And so, after a year or two in which speculative activity has been dammed up and preparing to rush with redoubled energy down the first channel to be opened, people have gone wild over the new source of wealth. The whole country is full of prospectors, and every acre of available land is being sought for. Companies are organized by the score, and several millions of corporate capital appear daily on the records of the state. Each piece of property is abundantly stocked, either with or without examination and development, and investment and trading in these stocks go on at a lively pace. There are busy times in Northern Minnesota in these days, and Duluth is fairly overrun with the people who have come prepared to win a fortune by the bold stroke of a day.

Neither the presence nor the absence of booms can alter the essential facts, which are that the existence of immense quantities of iron ore, of the finest quality and the most perfect adaptability to manufacturing purposes, in the northern portion of Minnesota, from the Vermillion and Mesaba ranges westward, has now been demonstrated. Just what these properties will turn out to be when more carefully worked none can say, but there is iron ore enough in sight to make this probably the first state in the Union in iron production. It is true that day is still some distance off. The capabilities of but few of the mining properties have been tested. Time and capital are needed for development. Out of all the numerous concerns whose stock is bought and sold upon the market, there will be, in the Mesaba, as there was in the Gogebic excitement, a comparatively small number that settle down, after trial, into handsome and paying concerns. The rest will be forgotten.

It would be a good thing for the public to remember this just now. There is no profit to anybody in a run of speculative fever, and the discoveries are real enough, the possibilities of wealth which they open up are great enough, to be accepted in soberness, without the excitement of the boom. Let people who are already dabbling in iron stocks or who are tempted to deal in them exercise a little caution. The iron is there, in quantities as great as represented, and the future of this state will be all that the most enthusiastic picture it. But, in the present state of the matter, no one can know which will be the great properties, and where the big money will be made. It will be the better for us if this splendid good fortune shall not tempt us to make it the basis of a speculative movement that can only retard instead of advance our prosperity.

Maple Bay Items.

March 7th, 1892.

The new parsonage is going on rapidly. The Lutheran minister is living in the Halleckson house until it is completed.

The woodpecker, chickadee and snowbird are taking in the fine weather. The robin has not made his appearance yet. Sleighing is done except the kind John McMahon calls "tough." John had the misfortune to lame one of his horses. The cut bled badly but a little dry flour and a bandage soon stopped it.

The Hon. Mr. Lommen came out last Friday and gave the Alliance an encouraging address, for which they gave him a vote of thanks.

The Godfrey Alliance meet again on the 19th.

Interests Growers as Well as Manufacturers.

New York Press.

It cannot be impressed too strongly upon wool growers that their prosperity depends first of all and above all upon the prosperity of wool manufacturing. If they sell their product at all they must sell for consumption in American mills. No one ever heard of a foreign manufacturer coming to this country after raw wool for his factory.

The democratic plan for dealing with wool and woolens, as outlined in the wool bill recently agreed upon by the Ways and Means Committee, would, if put in operation, not only subject our wool growers to the destructive competition of cheap Australian and Argentine wools, but would also reduce the demand for wool of any kind in American mills. Mr. Springer himself acknowledges that he expects an immense increase in imports of manufactures of wools under the low rates of duty proposed by him.

He must also agree that such an expansion of imports will restrict the output of American made goods. That it would do so we know from experience. In 1840 the demand for wool from American mills was 3.4 pounds per capita. After 1846 manufacturers of wool were treated by our tariff laws much as Mr. Springer wishes to treat them. The result was that in 1860, after twenty years, the requirements for home manufacture had not increased but still remained 3.4 pounds per capita. From 1860 to 1880, under protection, our requirement for home manufacture nearly doubled, reaching six pounds per capita.

There is a lesson and a warning here for wool growers and manufacturers alike. Their interests in tariff legislation cannot be divorced.

The Beginning of Spring.

Perhaps you think you know when spring begins; when you shed your fur coat and see the grass coming up. But unless you are familiar with the old-fashioned almanac, it would be safe to wager that you do not know that spring begins to-day. On this day the sun enters the zodiacal sign of Aries, or the Ram, and the vernal season is with us again. In the latitude where the inventors and principal users of the zodiac (they have been dead a good while) resided, this was about the date they began to plow, and they opened the spring campaign by offering a sacrifice to the gods for a prosperous year. The sacrifice usually consisted of a ram, and he was given a place of honor in the zodiac as a sign of spring. But though it is hardly spring here yet, it is time to look up a location for the summer's work, and if you are thinking of moving to the fertile wheat fields of North Dakota, the corn-raising prairies of Nebraska and Kansas, or the mines and ranches of Colorado, South Dakota or Wyoming, The Burlington is the line over which you can get there with speed and comfort. In fact, if you are going anywhere, this is really "the only." For tickets, time tables, maps, and any information, call on any agent of this or connecting lines, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Jackson Park will retain as one of its permanent attractions the buildings which Japan will erect for its headquarters at the Exposition. The building will be modeled after one of the most famous and architecturally unique of Japan's ancient temples, and with its surrounding garden will cost $70,000. About 40,000 square feet will be occupied. The South Park commissioners have accepted the offer of S. Tegima, representative of the Mikado, to give the structure to Chicago on condition that it be kept permanent and in repair, and that one room in it be devoted to a public exhibit of Japanese works which the Japanese government agrees to replenish from time to time.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

Crookston, March 17, 1892.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 71.
1 Northern 70.
2 Northern 64.
3 Northern 60.

Go to Wheeler for money.

Miss Nellie McAvoy has gone to St. Hilaire to learn telegraphy.

A. Humphreys, an attorney from Minneapolis, was in the city last Thursday.

Wm. Hammond left for Bismarck on Monday evening. He is much pleased with Crookston.

Will Cleary left on Sunday evening for Oregon City, Oregon, where he has secured a lucrative situation.

Charlie Vine is not doing any bragging but he is just simply selling the choicest cuts in the market. Try him.

H. D. Pinkerton came over from Michigan City last week on a business trip and to visit relatives and friends in the city.

Martin Haugen, a livery man of Fertile, and Tom Ellis, a farmer, paid THE JOURNAL a pleasant call on Friday of last week.

E. Roberts is rejoicing in the arrival of a little farmer boy at his house, which event occurred last Friday. All doing well at last accounts.

Warren is to have another bank. H. L. Melgaard, of Argyle, A. Grindeland, of Warren, and H. Steenerson, of this city, are interested.

Alderman Schmidt's little daughter died on Thursday of last week and was buried on Saturday. The little one had been ailing about a year.

Chas. Rapp and wife, of St. Hilaire, have engaged passage for the old country on the steamer Etruria and will leave New York on March 26th.

Tom Bjoin returned last week from a trip to Iowa where he went after a carload of choice work horses—and got them. He has a few to sell.

Mrs. Chris Houston continues to improve very slowly. She has had a very severe siege but the prospects for her ultimate recovery are good.

In his suit against the school district in the 5th ward, Frank Deming was beaten on the point that he had no written contract with the district.

Every one should try and attend the Congregational church next Sunday night and hear Rev. Mr. Battey's new lecture, "The Royal Treasures of Life."

Ben Clements was up from Little Falls this week. We shouldn't wonder if Ben intends coming back to Crookston to go into business in the near future.

Dr. A. Nelson was up from Fertile last week attending the meeting of the Republican county committee. The doctor reports a successful business year.

Mr. R. P. Herrick returned on Sunday morning from a visit to New York looking very well. Mr. H. says it seems good to be back to civilization once more.

W. A. Marin sends in a list of 21 subscribers to THE JOURNAL hail fund from Melvin post office, this week. Mr. Marin has been doing excellent work in a good cause.

Mrs. J. B. Copeland, Mrs. I. U. Jennings and Mrs. C. E. Sawyer entertained their lady friends at a "tea" at the residence of the former, on Thursday and Friday of last week.

Uncle John Ross says that was the wildest wind-storm he ever saw, but, he said, "it was the last kick of winter. The farmers may now get their plows ready for they soon will have a chance to go to plowing.

Andrew Nelson was over from Grand Forks this week visiting friends and looking up business. Mr. Nelson carries a large stock of monuments, gravestones, &c., and says he is doing a large business this year.

Wilson & Thompson have been fixing up the interior to their place, put in new mirrors and fixtures and will repaper and renovate generally. When completed they will have one of the neatest places in the city.

The latest reports from Walter O. Lee are to the effect that there is a vast improvement in his condition and strong hopes are entertained of his ultimate recovery. His many friends are earnestly hoping for the best.

Brown Knudsen, Brown A. Hovik and four other farmers were up on Monday looking about with a view to purchasing a dozen drills or so. Mr. Hovik informs us that Garfield farmers have raised a fund for the hail sufferers.

Ed. Ross was out on the street again on Monday. At the time of the accident at the Reckett block it looked as though Ed. would never be able to navigate again without the aid of an artificial leg, but he is going to be almost as good as new.

The article that we reproduce from the Pioneer Press this week is timely in view of the great iron excitement at Duluth. People don't want to lose their heads and invest in everything offered in the line of mining stocks—in fact they should be extremely careful how they invest at all.

Andrew Eiken visited the Zenith city last week.

Wm. Davidson was in from Keystone farm on Monday.

Tom Bjoin opened the week by selling one horse on Monday.

I. U. Jennings is getting in a large stock of very fine furniture.

See Wheeler if you want to obtain a loan right. Office at Scandia-American bank.

Try Charlie Vine's meat market once. He will make it an object for you to call and leave an order.

Charles Johnson was convicted of burglary and sentenced to a term at the penitentiary at St. Cloud.

Furniture can be bought at I. U. Jennings' store, No. 21 Broadway, at lower figures than ever before offered in this city.

Billy Davis, Bert Duntley's barkeeper cut his right hand severely last week handling a barrel. He will be liable to be laid up some time.

Sylvester & Finseth are putting up a temporary building on Broadway for their machinery business.

This week M. R. Brown receives another lot of fine horses which may be seen at his new stables on Main street. Call early for choice.

The late District Commander, O. D. Parker, was in the city on Tuesday, shaking hands with such of the comrades as he could meet.

G. W. Richardson was found guilty of burglary last week and sentenced to a term in Stillwater. He was taken to Stillwater on Tuesday night.

Tom Kelley intends to build a foundry on Main street, opposite Brown's new stables. He had commenced the work but the wind of last week levelled the frame to the ground.

Tom Hunt met with an accident on the Fosston line on Friday. Some way in jumping off the engine he sustained a simple fracture of one leg. Tom will not fire any more for some days.

"Do you know" that J. W. Wheeler has money to loan at reasonable rates and no long waits for the money to come from some place? He has it on hand ready for delivery as soon as the papers are made out.

The Fierce & Albright Comedy Co. opened a week's engagement at the Grand on Monday night in "Woman Against Woman." This is an excellent troupe and will no doubt fill the house each night. In their repertoire are some of the best plays now before the public.

Green goods circulars still continue to circulate in this county notwithstanding one gang was recently broken up in New York. THE JOURNAL receives a circular from a friend in Mentor this week. No JOURNAL reader will be caught by such chaff, as the game has been too thoroughly exposed in these columns.

Ole E. Rude lost a cow and three calves last week, frozen in the storm. The cow was the only milch cow he had and the loss to Ole is a severe one. He is one of the men who lost his crop by hail last fall. Ole has little left but his teams, his farm and his ambition. Such men should be helped by generous neighbors.

Oscar Strand came down from the woods on the Clearwater last week where he has been during the winter acting as stable boss in a lumber camp. Says the cut was unusually large this winter but owing to the recent warm weather which took the snow off they will be unable to bank all of the logs. Oscar added his name to THE JOURNAL list.

Comrade A. Burnam brought in four potatoes, called Ben Harrison, for THE JOURNAL man to sample. Their combined weight was eight pounds and they were the finest potatoes we have seen this year. Comrade Burnam is one of the successful farmers of Polk County and is now talking of building a large and comfortable farm house.

"Passion's Slave" was the play at the Grand on Tuesday evening. It was a new play here and well played. Each purchaser of a ticket gets a number and on Saturday evening, a riding horse, saddle and bridle will go to the holder of the lucky number. Matinee at two o'clock on Saturday, at which 12 dolls will be given to the little girls holding the lucky numbers.

Chip o' The Old Block was the play put on at the Grand Opera House on Saturday evening. It is a light comedy farcical skit without any plot to speak of and when well presented is quite amusing. We notice that there are some in our city who seem quite carried away with this sort o' thing, but more who do not seem to enjoy that style so well.

Mr. T. Christianson was held up on Thursday evening by a foot pad and relieved of a silver watch. Later on policeman Robinson ran the fellow in who denied any knowledge of the affair, but the police followed the affair up and found a man who had seen the prisoner digging in the snow near the water tank, and upon search the watch was found buried in the snow.

A man named O'Brien, from St. Hilaire, went into Alderman & Sylvester's hardware store last Thursday and asked to look at some revolvers. When he thought he was unobserved he quickly secreted one of them, but not quick enough, however, and he was raked in by the police, who found another revolver upon his person loaded for bear. He seems to have a decided penchant for hardware.

John Kops has gone east to purchase 800 pianos for Kops Bros., of Grand Forks. This indicates that the firm has been doing a large business and expect a larger next year. Their trade extends throughout the entire Northwest as far west as the coast and they are a perfectly reliable firm.

Next Sunday there will be no morning services or Sunday school at the Congregational church, as the church will attend the dedication services at the M. E. church. The J. S. C. E. at 3:30 p. m.; Y. P. S. C. E. at 6:30 as usual, and at 7:30 Rev. R. H. Battey will deliver a new lecture entitled "The Royal Treasures of Life."

A Large Foundry.

Nine years ago the coming summer a little plant was put in on Clements' Addition and a small foundry business commenced by Morrisey Bros. Very soon finding that these quarters were limited and that their growing business required a more central location they moved their plant to Sampson's Addition, putting up larger buildings where they remained for several years when J. E. bought out his brother's interest, his brother having caught the western fever and had to go. Two years since J. E. purchased a site near the Great Northern depot and removed the plant to it, and last fall's business convinced him that he would have to still further enlarge and put in more machinery if he would keep up with the procession. Being just that kind of a man he made his arrangements accordingly and a few weeks ago started out on a visit to the great foundrys of the country in Cincinnati, Milwaukee and Chicago, at which place he tarried for some weeks and purchased a lot of machinery for his Crookston foundry which will enable him to do all kinds of saw mill work, agricultural implements and, in fact, anything and everything in his line, as he says his shop will be completely equipped with everything necessary. The new material will be along in a few days and as soon as the weather permits, alterations in the shops will be made. Mr. M. says while in Chicago he visited the Exposition grounds where the work of putting up buildings is already in progress and some of the buildings well along. He says the Expo bids fair to be a big thing.

Leaders in Low Prices

Don't forget that M. R. Brown will be on deck again this week with another lot of those choice, heavy mares. It will cost you nothing to go and look them over, but if you buy you are sure of making a good bargain. The fact of his having sold so many car-loads this spring proves that Brown's horses are good ones and his prices satisfactory.

Mr. R. Casmey, of Euclid, called in on Monday to set that subscription ahead a peg and report observations on his Winnipeg trip, from which city he has just returned. He says the storm was evidently very much harder in Manitoba than here and he saw evidences in the bodies of horses and cattle strewn along quite numerously. He saw some wheat in shocks and lots of wheat in stacks along the road. Mr. C. gives it as his opinion that wheat in stack will all be unfit for seed even if it can be threshed in time, which is doubtful.

By invitation of the young people of Thief River Falls, Rev. R. H. Battey will deliver two lectures, one at the Falls and the other at St. Hilaire, on Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week. The lecture Monday night at the Falls will be "Sister, Daughter and Lover," and Tuesday, at St. Hilaire, "Brother, Son and Lover." These are two of Mr. Battey's best lectures of the course of twelve Sunday evening lectures delivered at the Congregational church in Crookston last year and which were attended by full houses for a period of three months.

The new Methodist church is now ready for occupancy and will be dedicated next Sunday. The audience room with its new carpet, pews, pulpit, &c., is attractive and cheerful. Rev. C. H. Stocking, of First Church, Duluth, a man of considerable ability, together with the Presiding Elder of Fergus Falls district, and others, will be present to conduct the dedicatory services. The Congregational, Presbyterian, Baptist and Norwegian Methodist churches of the city have all received a special invitation to participate in the services. A general invitation is extended to everybody, and all will be gladly welcomed. Services at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. A good time is anticipated. Come and enjoy it.

Always on hand, anything you want in the line of choice fresh meats, at Charlie Vine's.

Hallock News: Dr. Thomas, the famous Crookston dentist, had a good run of business this week. Several persons were anxiously awaiting his arrival on Tuesday, and new patients took up all his time as long as he staid. All who have had occasion for his professional services speak in high terms of commendation of his skill.

At the People's Party meeting on Saturday night the following ticket was put in the field:

For Mayor—Frank Ives.
For Ald. at Large—Elias Steenerson.
For Treasurer—A. P. Hanson.
For Clerk—P. M. Ringhahl.
For Assessor—T. B. McManus.
For Aldermen—
  First ward—I. Simmons.
  Second ward—Wm. Munch.
  Third ward—W. E Kelsey.
  Fourth ward—J. O. Sargeant.
  Fifth ward—A. McGregor.

Vermontville (Mich.) Echo: While at the depot the other evening we met Mr. A. N. Hixson, who went west from Portland, Mich., eleven years ago and settled at Crookston, Polk Co., Minn. He says he did not have a dollar when he settled there, but now has a farm of 1,750 acres, with 1,270 acres under cultivation, a steam thresher, twelve self binders, a power feed mill, good house, barns, granaries and other buildings necessary for such a farm. Last year he raised 15,000 bushels of wheat, 2,500 of oats, 3,000 of barley. He believes that no other country in the world can surpass the Red River Valley.

THE STORM.

The storm of last week, while it was the most severe one of the season, and in fact for several years, did not do as much damage in Crookston as has been reported by some papers. A few signs were blown down, a plate glass in Sture's store broken, one in W. D. Wilson's store, a part of the front to Charlie Vine's meat market, also a part of the front of Rasmusson's hardware store demolished. Tom Kelley's new foundry, just being built, was wrecked, and a tin roof or two took wings and fled. The average amount of damage was comparatively small for such a high wind as that was.

A Good Temperance Meeting.

Last Sunday the four churches, Baptist, Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian, of Crookston, united in holding a temperance meeting at the Congregational church. It was well attended, the main audience room and the parlor being full. Short, stirring addresses were delivered by Messrs. R. Stanton, A. A. Miller and C. McCaslin, and pastors J. J. Edwards and R. H. Battey. The main thought of each address was total abstinence for the individual and close every saloon by the enforcement of good laws. Much good is done by holding such meetings as the one last Sunday night.

The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, that no delegate will be admitted to a seat in the Convention unless such delegate resides in the town or precinct which he represents.

The foregoing call was agreed upon by the Republican County Committee at a meeting held in the City of Crookston, March 11th, 1892.

A. A. MILLER, Secretary. A. D. STEPHENS, Chairman.

Euclid Items.

Alley Carlton, of Angus, returned from the pinery Friday.

Twelve cattle perished in the storm of Wednesday night in the ditch of the N. P. track, also two near Angus. This was undoubtedly the worst storm of the season.

Bert Chapin arrived from Michigan on the morning train Friday. His brother, R. S. Chapin, of Crookston, accompanied him as far as that city. Bert will become a resident of Polk Co.

Ed. Duntly, who recently arrived from Michigan, has hired out to M. M. Davis & Son for the season, and means to grow up with the country. That's right, young men of Michigan, there's room for thousands more of you.

Henry Stuhr bade farewell to a nice new $3.50 stiff hat Wednesday which took its way toward Crookston, so if any of the Crookstonites see a bran new hat walking around on three leg, Mr. Stuhr would be very much obliged to have you inform him of its whereabouts.

Euclid has blossomed out with a reporter which I am afraid will also be like the Dutchman's wife which "lasted to soon yet already."

New goods constantly arriving at E. Taylor & Co.'s.

F. Tiedt doing a big business.

Brother Harrington has got back from a visit to the old home where the geese go in winter.

E. Taylor & Co. Company talk of putting a 40-foot addition on the back of their store to accommodate their increasing trade.

Ole Nelson is now moving into town. I suppose Ole will be quite a dude hereafter.

We hear twine is going up. If it is that confounded Cordage Company ought to be hung with a piece of their own goods.

Denis Losey will move out on the farm next week and become a granger once more.

If I write no more, you need not cry,
Good-bye! old JOURNAL, good-bye!
For I know there's none for me to sigh,
Good-bye! old JOURNAL, good-bye!
Bye, JOURNAL, bye, oh!
Not very long though,
I'll be there to-morrow;
Good-bye! old JOURNAL, good-bye!

Mentor Items.

MENTOR, March 14, 1891.

Our roads are in bad condition since the storm of last week.

The storm of Tuesday night and Wednesday of last week was the most severe witnessed in this place in eleven years. We have not heard of any particular damage being done, except the wrecking of Messrs. Moe & Buhn's store house.

A resident of Mentor, so we are told, in seeking a safer nook, saved his life but lost his rubbers.

John Buhn is still at his post packing eggs. He is an experienced hand at the business. John, don't count your chickens before they are hatched.

A grand entertainment was held at the residence of Mr. D. Overholt on Saturday evening of last week, for the benefit of the ladies' relief corps. A very pleasant evening was spent by all. The entertainment was good and the refreshments genuine. At 12 m. the company dispersed, returning to their homes in high spirits. Who will be the next hospitable man to open his door for the good cause?

[illegible]

somebody else's girl. Come one, come all, and have a good time.

Iver Halderson is about to move from our midst. We regret to see one of our good neighbors leave us. This move will be Grove Park's loss and Woodside's gain.

The wood camp belonging to T. H. Bjoin has at last broken up. Cye stuck to his knitting very good this winter, but we wonder if the profits will balance the losses. As Cye has used up three axes and nothing left but the handle of the fourth, we think he ought to peck away all summer, and see if he could make it better in warm weather.

The following are the officers elected at the recent town election:

Supervisors—A. Cleveland, chairman; Chas. Attix, John Quesnell.
Town Clerk—E. E. Abbott.
Treasurer—John Tice.
Justice of the Peace—Geo. Swift.
Constable—B. VanGordon.

MICK.

MELVIN ITEMS.

The election is over, no broken bones but an occasional sore scalp. This is a year, however, in which to locate the sore spot, and avoid getting hit, in the same place next year.

The recent storm was the worst known in five years, and coming so unexpectedly, it caught some stock unprotected. E. B. Durdall lost one fine ox which wandered about on the prairie and was found dead six miles from home. C. W. Davis lost two oxen and one calf. At this writing he has found one ox and the calf dead, and no trace of the other. Henry Manki lost one yoke of oxen and others are in quest of cows, calves and sheep.

The change of weather has nipped the prospect of very early seeding, but the farmers can haul the wood they expected to haul next summer, cut, split and pile it, and make the housewife happier.

During the recent fine weather some of the farmers who did not get their grain threshed last fall, tried threshing, but they are unable to sell their wheat, it being so damp. The elevator men cannot give more than No. 3 for wheat threshed now, which, had it been threshed last fall, would have graded No. 1. This early in the season there is from two to three layers of sheaves in the bottom of each stack that are badly damaged, and it now looks as if one-sixth of the grain stacked on level land would be destroyed for market if left till after seeding, and if threshed before will be too damp to sell. It looks very discouraging for those who have not threshed.

If all the towns in the county will get a move on, as it were, the hail sufferers will not be forced to the wall, and be obliged to go out of business for lack of seed grain.

Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

THE MERCANTILE AGENCIES.

We have seen in my three previous papers on the subject of Mercantile Agencies that the law as generally laid down in this country is to the effect that reports of mercantile agencies are privileged communications—that is, such communications as exempt them from liability for statements otherwise libelous, when, and only when, such reports are made to subscribers to the agency having an interest in the information given. We have also found that this interest must be a specific interest, that is, not such an interest as subscribers have in all persons who are reported, but an interest in the particular concern or business concerning which the report is made. That the law in Canada would seem to be almost the reverse; in other words, that no report by an agency is privileged, whether made to an interested subscriber or not. Frequently agencies make contracts with their subscribers by which the latter assume the responsibility, risk and liability for negligence or incorrect statements on the part of the agency's employes in procuring, collecting and communicating the information. Such contracts have been upheld in two cases, which are the only ones we find, both in Pennsylvania, and one against Dun, and the other against Bradstreet. There are statutes in many of the States which provide that in order to maintain an action against a person for a representation concerning the character in trade of any other person, it is necessary that the representation be in writing and signed by the person sought to be charged. Where it has been sought to apply this statute to mercantile agencies in cases where their reports are not in writing, there has developed a difference of opinion on the part of the courts which leaves the question unsettled. One view is that the agency waives its right to take advantage of the statute by its original contract with the subscriber. Another view is that the agency is liable, not upon the representation, but upon the contract, and that no statute requires the latter to be in writing. Statutes of this character are found in Alabama, California, Indiana, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Oregon, South Carolina, Vermont and Wyoming, and cases upon this subject are the following: Sprague v. Dun, U. C., 899 Q. B., vol. [illegible] Swany v. Phillips, [illegible] 67.

gain credit, makes to the mercantile agencies a false statement as to his business character and ability. In such cases one who has been defrauded by reason of his relying upon these representations, may maintain an action of deceit against such merchant. A fraudulent intent upon the part of the merchant must be clearly shown, and the representation must be so nearly connected with the transaction in which the plaintiff alleges that he was deceived as to make it plain that the defendant intended the representation to be relied upon in that transaction. It would, no doubt, be interesting to attorneys throughout the country to know how far they are protected in responding to requests made by mercantile agencies as to the responsibility of merchants. Very little has come before the courts to help in determining the question. There is a case reported in the Albany Law Journal, first volume, page 323, tried in September, 1870, before a circuit court in New York, in which the attorney received a letter with printed questions from J. M. Bradstreet & Son's agency, inquiring as to the standing, character and financial ability of a party named Sherwood. This letter he answered. Sherwood sued the attorney for libel, because of matter contained in that answer. The judge charged the jury that the communication made by the attorney to the agency was not privileged, and it was laid down that the protection which is given to the proprietor of a mercantile agency in reporting the standing of a party to one of its subscribers, is not given to the country correspondent of the agency. It would seem, however, that any ruling that would hold the agency irresponsible in the matter, would also protect the country correspondent, who is nothing more nor less than a clerk or agent of the agency for a particular purpose. Indeed, it is almost the sole and universal method employed by agencies to obtain the information which they furnish to their patrons, and it is hard to see where any justice lies in holding the one responsible and the other not, and we believe if the question ever comes before the higher courts, as indeed it would seem strange that it has not, the decision will be the reverse of that before quoted.

In our next we shall treat of the liability of the mercantile agencies doing a collection business.

Maple Bay Items.

Last Wednesday's storm is said to have been the severest one ever experienced in Minnesota.

The conference held in the new Lutheran church at Aldahl last week was well represented by the Maple Bay people.

Misses Carrie and Estelle Hunter, who have been attending school in Fertile this winter, returned home in time to enable Miss Carrie to attend the teachers' examination.

Miss Bertha Moen is home from Crookston on a visit to her parents.

Our election held at the school house in Dist. No. 90, resulted in electing the old board with but little opposition.

Rev. Sorensen was the guest of Rev. Oefstedal during conference.

Miss Nettie Hunter, who has just finished teaching a successful term of school in Dist. No. 190, and returned to her home, has been suffering from la grippe.

The storm put a stop to the work already commenced on the parsonage.

Rev. S. E. Sorenson and family are now occupying the old store building until the completion of their new house.

Miss Matie Godfrey is home from Crookston, where she has been attending school for the past two months.

Miss Carrie Hunter has been very sick since her return from Crookston, but is now convalescent.

Sen. E. E. Lommen delivered a fine address to the farmers of this town, on the 4th inst. We regret the slim attendance which was probably owing to insufficient notice.

BLIZZARD.

[From Our Regular Correspondent.]

We spoke of the birds singing, but their songs were soon silenced, and with most of them, forever.

The worst storm we have seen in thirteen years swept over this part of the valley on the night of the 8th and day of the 9th. The loss of property has been considerable, though no loss of human life heard of as yet. J. Garstner, town of Godfrey, lost 8 head of cattle, 5 cows and 3 young cattle; T. G. Lee, 1 steer; Mr. Davis, town of Onstad, 1 ox and 1 cow; Mr. Al Wade of Tilden, 1 fat hog and 20 chickens. Reports say the loss in Terrebonne will exceed 50 head of cattle.

Mr. P. W. Horton met with a sad accident some weeks ago. A small twig scratched his eye and he caught cold in it, which resulted in its loss. He has been confined to the house five weeks but is improving now.

World's Fair Notes.

New Jersey has increased its World's Fair appropriation from $20,000 to $70,000.

The Russian government has adopted a very liberal policy toward the Exposition. Information has been received at headquarters that the minister of finance, with the approval of the emperor, has decided to pay all freight charges on Russian exhibits for the Fair, to insure the exhibits and to decorate the Russian section. The imperial porcelain factory is making ware of special designs to be shown at the Fair.

Austria will make a fine exhibit of glass, porcelain, bronze, leather, artistic iron and cabinet work.

The "Independent New York Schuetzen," considered the elite corps of German-American sharpshooters, have decided to attend the Exposition in a body. The organization has in its membership many prominent business men. It has made two or more shooting tours in Europe, on one of which it was entertained by Price Bismarck.

The Bethlehem Iron Company, of South Bethlehem, Pa., will make an extensive exhibit, including steel rails, a battle ship shafting 125 feet in length, guns, projectiles, an armor-plate ingot weighing 100 tons, and various naval appliances. The company will also erect a full-size model of its famous 125-ton steam hammer, said to be the largest in the world. It will be to all appearances a perfect duplicate in every respect. It will span the main avenue of Machinery Hall, and will rise to a height of ninety feet. At the last Paris exhibition great attention was attracted by a similar model shown by the Creusot works, but representing only a 100-hammer.

E. Sayderheim, horticulturist to the Emperor of Austria, has written from Buda-Pesth that he will contribute to the Exposition's floral display a collection of the rarest roses, embracing 200 standard, 200 half-standard tree roses and 400 rose bushes.

Mrs. Frona Wait, one of the lady managers of California, has offered to finish in redwood one of the large reception rooms in the woman's building.

The French goverment, through the efforts of Minister Whitelaw Reid, has agreed to permit the exposition authorities to send into France, free of duty, electrotypes of buildings and other exposition matter intended for use in French papers, to stimulate interest in the fair.

A cablegram states that Switzerland will not be officially represented at the exposition, but that the government will examine the representations of citizens desirous of exhibiting and will consider the question of granting a subsidy to enable them to do so.

The exhibit which Illinois women will make in the woman's building will be a model hospital, conducted entirely by women. The women physicians and surgeons of the State and the Illinois training school for nurses will manage the matter. Three rooms in the woman's building have been assigned for the exhibit, and the state board has appropriated $3,000 to defray the expense.

A heroic statue of Columbus, by Louis St. Gaudens, will stand before the main entrance of the administration building.

The Illinois Woman's Ceramic Association has secured space for an exhibit in the Illinois building.

The Queen Isabella Association will not have a pavilion or club house on the exposition grounds. Its application for space for such pavilion has been rejected by the grounds and buildings committee, on recommendation of chief of construction Burnham, who urged that no space could be spared for buildings of the private club house description.

A choral hall, 160x260 feet, will be erected near the horticultural building. There Professor Tomlins, with 2,000 trained voices, will furnish rare choral music during the exposition. The Welsh International Eisteddfod will occupy the building for a week.

Hayti has appropriated $25,000 for its representation at the exposition. Fred Douglass has been appointed commissioner to represent that country.

The grand entrance to the mammoth manufacturers' building will be decorated at an expense of about $12,000.

The total amount reported appropriated by foreign nations and colonies for their representation at the exposition, so far as heard from, is $3,951,053. Quite a number of those which have decided to participate have not yet made appropriations.

The Illinois state board of agriculture has offered a number of prizes ranging from $50 to $250, for the best exhibits shown at the state fair, to be held at Peoria in September. From these exhibits the board will make many selections for the World's fair.

A bill protecting foreign exhibitors of patented articles from all possible prosecution for infringement has peen passed by the senate and is pending and reported sure to pass in the House. The bill reads as follows:

"That no citizen of any country shall be held liable for the infringement of any patent granted by the United States or any trade-mark registered in the United States where the act complained of is performed in connection with the exhibition of any article or thing at the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago."

M. Seranno, Mexico's special World's Fair commissioner, who visited Chicago a short time ago and made a thorough inspection of exposition progress and affairs, has made to his government a report exceedingly favorable to the exposition. He advocates an elaborate participation by Mexico. President Diaz has expressed himself in favor of making a fine showing of Mexico's progress and advantages rather than of her relics and antiquities.

The Newport, R. I., artillery, which celebrated its 150th anniversary several months ago, and claims to be the oldest active military company in the United States, will attend the World's Fair. It visited the Centennial at Philadelphia and attracted much attention.

The U. S. Treasury Department has decided that machinery imported to the exposition from foreign countries, either wholly as an exhibit or to be shown in connection with the illustration of some manufacturing process, shall be admitted free of duty. Any raw material imported for use in such process must pay regular duty, however.

The lady managers are in communication with Mrs. Aubrey H. Smith, of Philadelphia, who compiled a book of interesting and valuable statistics for the centennial concerning the intention of the Woman's board to take up the work begun by Mrs. Smith, and bring it up to date, showing the advancement of women in philanthropy during the last decade. The lady managers have already collected much supplimentary data of an international character, and are consulting Mrs. Smith as to the best methods suggested by her experience in arranging the available materials.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.

4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

At Minneapolis.

New York Press.

The time has come when the eyes of the Republican party naturally and properly turn toward Minneapolis with comprehensive glances East, West, North and South to see who and where the men are from whom a selection may fitly be maid to lead the party's hosts to victory next November for the threefold cause of protection of home industry, honest money and the purity of the ballot box. Such a survey of the field is entirely in order. The ground is not pre-empted. The survey is open to every member of the party. Each one has an equal privilege to form and express an opinion. Very different is the Republican situation from that in the Democratic party, where the wishes of the voters are calmly ignored and all schemes for capturing the Chicago nomination are laid on the assumption that the dicker and deal of a few "leaders" will be meekly accepted by the rank and file.

It is certain that there is not one of the Republicans commonly spoken of in connection with the office who would not, if nominated, command the united and enthusiastic support of the party. The list is so long that we can do little more at this time than to call a partial roll of the illustrious names.

There is John Sherman, Ohio's senior Senator, every inch a statesman, with a record of achievement in the halls of legislation and in the Presedential cabinet that has few paralells in the history of this or any other country, a man of spotless character, vast attainments, splendid ability, whose principles are sound to the core, whom the people of the whole country know, admire and trust.

There is Senator Allison of Iowa. He was a leading candidate for the nomination four years ago. The secretaryship of the treasury was later offered to him, and his refusal to accept that great office was a disappointment to the nation. He is one of perhaps a half dozen members of the Senate who have rightfully earned the proud title of a great Senator. He has no enemies in either party, and his friends would be numbered by many millions at the November ballot boxes if his name were to be presented to the American people for their suffrages.

General Alger, of Michigan is a man after the veteran soldier's own heart. There was no more gallant fighter for the imperiled Union than he. He was faithful, able and brave. That is a record made on many a field of battle, attested by his comrades in the ranks and by his superior officers. Partisan abuse or personal malice cannot rob him of the esteem in which he is rightly held as one who did noble duty at a time when the nation's life was menaced.

Another possible nominee is Senator Cullom, of Illinois. To him the country is indebted for the first comprehensive and successful attempt to solve that great problem of adjusting the conflicting interests and rights of the people and the vast appliances of trade and transportation with which all business enterprises are so vitally connected. The interstate commerce law is no doubt imperfect. But after many years of trial it has proved to be far better for both the railway corporations and the masses of the people than was the system or lack of system which existed before this measure grappled with abuses and contentions that at one time threatened to produce commercial anarchy. The distinguished Republican Senator from Illinois has other titles to fame. As the representative of one of the greatest states in the Union his conduct has been marked by progressive conservatism, good sense, incorruptibility and tireless endeavor to promote the welfare not only of his own section of the country, but of every state, every territory and every citizen.

No review like this could be complete without some consideration of possible "dark horses." There are several of them, and they are not so very dark either. In such a list, Robert Lincoln, our Minister to England, must be mentioned first. He worthily bears a name forever peerless in American history. Another possible dark horse is Governor McKinley, whom Ohio no less and no more than the whole United States, delights to honor. Yet another is the fearless, brilliant, brainy Tom Reed, whose name elicits storms of applause in every Republican assemblage from Portland, Me., to Portland, Ore.

We have reserved for mention, last of all, the name which leads all others in the popular mind at this time—the name of Benjamin Harrison. Any one must be blind to the signs of the times who cannot see that the President has a long lead in the race, if such an expression may be fitly used in a case where there is, strictly speaking, no "race," but only a friendly comparison of views and a desire on the part of all that the prize shall be adjudged to him whom the people shall deem, upon the whole, the wisest selection. What a day, a week, a month or three months may bring forth no man can tell. At present the clear outlook is for President Harrison's renomination. The reasons are cogent. To many minds they seem conclusive. He has nobly borne himself in his great office. He has been guilty of no blameworthy acts. He has committed no serious mistakes. But his claims are far from resting on a merely negative foundation. His course is marked by every element of administrative statesmanship. It is strong, safe, judicious, faithful to the principles of the party, in line with the best interests of the country. In each great emergency he has shown himself equal to every demand. Witness the Italian, the Chilian and the Behring Sea complications in which the President has championed with equal wisdom and firmness the cause of the United States. Witness a series of judicial appointments that commands even the reluctant admiration of political opponents. He is to-day the main bulwark between the business interests of 64,000,000 people and financial chaos through the free silver coinage lunacy.

In short, the fact that Benjamin Harrison has given to the country one excellent administration is the best possible guarantee that he can be depended upon to give to us another.

THE IRON BOOM.

Seen Through Our Own Goggles.

Marshall County Leader.

DULUTH, March 8th, 1892.

LEADER:—Of all the indirect benefits to grow out of the development of the mineral resources of northern Minnesota, it is quite clear that none will be more far-reaching or exceed in importance the benefit to Red River Valley farmers. It means a network of railroads connecting an empire of producers with multitudes of consumers, a constant market near at hand for all kinds of farm products, closer rail connection and cheaper transportation between the granaries and Duluth elevators. The speculation incident to this development, of which the present mining craze here is an illustration, means immense fortunes to some men and poverty to others, but the man who pins his faith and money to real estate in Marshall, Kittson and Polk counties assumes no risk and is absolutely certain of a permanent and increasing benefit. Just now there is an obvious lull in the wildcat speculation of two weeks ago that becomes almost profound quiet. The papers do not admit it for reasons easily divined. The store clerks, newsboys and light weights have their pennies pretty well in and tied up in cheap snide stocks, but the heavy artillery is just being loaded. The existence of immense ore deposits extending west nearly to Red Lakes, easily accessible and cheaply worked, is demonstrated and as usual the most valuable properties have been quickly absorbed by capitalists. Probably fifty mining companies have been formed already and of the number perhaps a dozen have real substantial merit fully demonstrated and will do an actual and profitable business. Most of the others amount to prospectors stock and are very uncertain.

Immense areas of land have already passed into the hands of some of these companies, either under lease or in fee. One has 7,500 acres and another nearly 5,000, while one of the best selling and highest stocks is on a lot of only 160 acres.

Thousands of men are scurrying through the woods of northern Minnesota in pursuit of the fickle goddess and discoveries within the next few months of other wealth than iron would not be unexpected. The existence of coal beds is a tradition that may soon be verified and it is already claimed that petroleum has been discovered and the land upon which it is found has been acquired by the discoverer. It would not be surprising even if some of these indefatigable explorers in the ardor of their search should entirely penetrate the jungles of Cook, Itasca, and Beltrami counties and, emerging on the western slope, discover to the world the golden grain mines of the Red River Valley in Minnesota. I have suggested the thought to certain Duluth people as "a tip to let them in on the ground floor," to appropriate a favorite expression here, and they admit it may not be mere fancy.

H. SMITH.

Are You Going?

Twenty million visitors, at least, are expected at the Columbian Exposition, and whether you expect to be one of them or not, as an American, naturally you are interested in the preparations for the grand event. A splendid paper in Demorest's Family Magazine for April, "The Evolution of a Great Exposition," is the best thing of the kind that has yet been published. From it you may learn all the interesting points about the coming World's Fair, and the illustrations are simply superb, including a comprehensive view and the plan of the grounds, pictures of all the magnificent buildings, and portraits of some of the leading officers having it in charge. "A Talk about Trees and Arbor Day" is a timely and deeply interesting paper, profusely illustrated with pictures of the favorite trees planted in different sections of the United States, so accurately delineated that each may be easily recognized when met with; "German without a Master" furnishes invaluable suggestions for the study of that useful language; "The International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons," a paper by the general secretary of the central council, Mrs. Mary Lowe Dickinson, gives facts and figures most charmingly interwoven; "A Snap Shot at Washington Etiquette" furnishes an insight of the rules that govern society at our national capital; "Easter Legends and Customs" is specially interesting, and "Easter Novelties" furnishes suggestions for all the Easter gifts one may want to make. Besides, there are splendid stories, every department is full of good things, and there are over 200 handsome illustrations; and every month's magazine is just as good, and the subscription price is only $2 a year. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 E. 14th St., New York City.

What to Wear and How to Make it! Important questions at this season which ladies can have satisfactorily answered in Peterson for April. There will be found every pretty and useful novelty, from an out-door costume to a spring wrap for the little daughter. "The Colonel's Stratagem," by Robert B. Graham, is a very clever story and is beautifully illustrated. "How Olga Met Ivan," by May Florence Alt, is the finest poem we have seen by this rising young poetess, and is admirably adapted for recitation. "Flower Lore," by Mrs. E. A. Matthews, is a charming paper. "A Strange Country," by Sidney Ross, and "Old Time Thimbles," by Harriet Latham, are among the most interesting articles in any magazine for the month, and their illustrations are noticeably fine. The entire contents are far above the average of periodical literature. Peterson steadily progresses in beauty and excellence. No wowan's fireside is complete without this popular periodical. A sample copy will be sent for five cents. Terms, $2.00 a year. Address, Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

The Maryland World's Fair Board is planning to show in the Maryland building a reproduction of the surrender of his commision by George Washington. The report of the board to the legislature asking for an appropriation of $100,000, states: "It has been suggested by His Excellency the Governor, and the suggestion has met with much favor, that the old senate chamber of the state house be reproduced in our building, and that a group of 32 figures be made to represent the surrendering by Washington of his commission, which took place in that historic hall. Such a tableau would attract many visitors and serve as a feature of great interest. The act is almost unique in the history of the world—a successful general in the flush of victory laying down his sword and retiring to the duties of a homely and quiet life after vanquishing the greatest power on earth in a long and bloody war—and is something to be admired as well as wondered at, and every son of our grand old commonwealth should feel a personal pride when he thinks that a deed so noble was done on the soil of his native state and beneath the roof of his state capitol."

Farming for Health.

May be very fine, and you will no doubt grow strong and be happy with nothing but a hoe, a back number plow and a shot gun seeder. But if you are

Farming for Wealth

You should have the latest snd best tool in the on the market. For instance you want first a DOWAGIAC SHOE DRILL, and as you probably did not get your plowing all done last fall you also want a Grand Detour Plow, a Little Giant or Scandia Gang. We have them to sell and would liketo show you their merits.

—OUR TIME AGAINST YOURS.—

There are several other things you ought to have but you must have these now soon. We have a nice line of Harrows that we are selling cheap; also Wagons, Buggies, Engines, Threshers, Etc., Etc.

A Land of Fruits and Flowers.

No where else in the world are there found more fertile valleys, more beautiful flowers or more fragrant breezes than in the tropical Central American State, Costa Rica—never warmer than 75 degrees, never colder than 65 degrees. The water supply is pure and abundant, the soil is extremely fertile, successive crops being grown each year without affecting it. On the coast is raised bananas, rice and coconuts; on first plateau and valleys, sugar cane and cotton; higher up tobacco, cochineal, cactus indigo. Here are the coffee lands. No country on the globe can compete with Costa Rica in the raising of coffee—40 acres of coffee trees will pay greater than a 1,000 acre grain farm and you can live in a beautiful southern country where fruits and vegetables mature every month in the year.

A splendid chance for the poor man, for the man of moderate means. You cannot afford to let this opportunity go by.

The eyes of the world are now turned toward this country. The Nicaragua canal will be built and this fair country will be quickly populated. You must not wait until others have secured the best lands and locations.

THE CENTRAL AMERICAN MINING AND IMPROVEMENT CO., OF ST. PAUL, MINN.,

Are arranging to place a colony of Northwestern people in Costa Rica, and this company will give full information concerning the country, its resources, both vegetable and mineral, and rates of transportation. OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

Crookston, March 24, 1892.

Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 69.
1 Northern 68.
2 Northern 62.
3 Northern 58.

Go to Wheeler for money.

District court has adjourned.

Begins to look like spring again.

Mrs. VanArnam returned last Friday.

If you want to rent a farm call and see us.

Alderman Buhn is re-shingling his blacksmith shop.

Go to Brown's stables and see those horses—just arrived.

Our Euclid correspondent comes to the fore in elegant shape this week.

T. K. Torgerson is up from Lake Park with a view to renting a hotel.

See Wheeler if you want to obtain a loan right. Office at Scandia-American bank.

Now is the time to purchase a valuable team and BROWN'S STABLES is the place.

Rev. R. H. Battey went up to St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls this week to lecture.

Charley Vine is kept as busy as a bee cutting up meats to supply his increasing trade.

What buildings are erected in the city this year will be of a more permanent character than ever before.

J. W. Kelley was down from Mentor on Monday. Says we may now announce that spring is here for a fact.

Comrade S. Snedecker was in from Mentor last week and called to chat with THE JOURNAL man a little while.

See ad announcing combination sale elsewhere in this issue. Big chance to stock up or buy machinery at your own prices.

F. E. Barnum, of the Times, has rented a house on Elm street, taken possession thereof and will hereafter live at home.

C. H. Saake has moved his family into rooms up stairs in the old Markham block, which property he recently purchased.

J. E. Harris returned last week from a visit east. Said lots of people were talking of coming to the Red River Valley this spring.

The M. E. Society gave a supper in their new church parlors on Monday evening which was well attended and a grand financial success.

And now your tickets are before you to select from. From such an array of good names we can't very well help having a good set of officials.

Everything indicates a busy, prosperous year for Crookston, with more building than ever before. And immigration promises to boom too.

W. E. Walker has secured the contract for building the new Fournet Block, and expects that work upon it will be commenced very soon.

The Norman County Herald attempts to be facetious at our expense. If the joke was not upon so pathetic a subject there would be more point to it.

J. V. E. Wyatt has moved into the new Reckitt Block and the new Baptist minister will occupy the house on Broadway that Mr. W. has just vacated.

Geo. W. Tripp and his little son were in from Mentor last week. This was the boy's first ride on the steam cars and he imagined he was being run away with.

Ed. Ross was out to see Rip Van Winkle on Saturday evening. It seems wonderful how well he got along—but then Doc Dampier is an excellent surgeon.

Geo. R. Roberts, of Stephen, dropped in to the Grand one evening last week to see Fierce & Albright. Mr. Roberts was surprised to see so fine a theatre in this city.

Brown A. Hovick sends us from Fertile a long list of contributions to our hail list which we gladly add with thanks. We would like to see our list trebled for next issue.

Mrs. Rose has her new rooms in the Reckitt Block nearly all ready and some of them already occupied. She has a very pleasant dining room and will no doubt do well.

With its last issue the Warren Register completes its fifth year. Bro. Stevens has succeeded in building up a paying business and that he is publishing a good paper is patent to all.

The Methodist Episcopal church building was duly dedicated last Sabbath, and we are told, start in free from debt. Considerable money was raised at the meeting on Sunday.

Work on Sylvester & Finseth's new building was stopped by a suit brought to test the validity of the ordinance establishing the fire limits. The suit was brought in justice court and appealed to the district court.

Bro Stevens, of the Warren Register attended the Fierce & Albright combination at the Grand Opera House one evening last week. Says Crookston has as fine an opera house, in proportion, as any the twin cities can boast of.

Testimony in the LaChapelle divorce case is being taken.

While they are going secure a valuable team of mares at Brown's stables.

M. R. Brown has returned from Iowa with another lot of heavy mares. Call and see them.

Try Charlie Vine's meat market once. He will make it an object for you to call and leave an order.

Be sure to see that your name is properly registered. This is an important feature of the new voting system.

John Alderman was called away on Tuesday morning to look after some mortgaged property near St. Hilaire, the owner of which has skipped out leaving the stock uncared for.

Louis Zange died at his residence in this city on Wednesday morning of heart failure. He was a member of Col. Cobham Post, the first one of its members to pass away. The Post met last evening to arrange for the funeral.

The county hospital is gradually filling up with unfortunate ones and we hear only good words spoken of the management of that institution so far. We are of the opinion that the establishment of this institution was a wise move.

Trefle Daoust was in from the east side on Tuesday and dropped in to gladden the heart of the printer with a paid up subscription. Mr. D. says the threshing is pretty well completed out that way, and farmers are now awaiting seeding operations.

THE JOURNAL is in receipt of a copy of the Great Falls News, published by O. M. Holmes, formerly of Red Lake Falls. The News gives evidence of having a good patronage and is a well got up, newsy sheet. THE JOURNAL wishes O. M. abundant success in his new venture.

O. J. Barnes and W. D. Wilson extend a cordial invitation to their many friends to attend a Blue Jay Tea this evening at the residence of A. A. Miller. Whatever a "blujate" is we dinna ken, but the fact that an excellent supper will be served from 6 to 10 is sufficient for us to know.

H. O. Davis writes us from East Grand Forks did we get that $2 on subscription? We did, H. O., and have been so busy with the grippe and trying to get ready for our new press and outfit that we have neglected to furnish receipt. Just the first minute we get we will forward it.

A. L. Mitchell, a former Crookstonite, arrived in the city this week for a few days sojourn. He is a general agent for the White Sewing Machine Co. and doing well. A. L. says he notices many improvements in the city since he left and says he thinks that Crookston is a good live city and bound to make still greater progress in the near future.

Chief Gonyea returned from a visit to the twin cities and resumed his duties last week. Chief Gonyea was an old friend of J. B. Bresette, who fell dead on the street in Minneapolis last week, and was within 10 feet of Bresette when he fell. Chief Gonyea saw him coming and was getting ready to greet him when suddenly Bresette fell and expired at once.

Dave Ross was quite seriously hurt on the work train on Monday. In some way he slipped and fell on the track and four or five cars passed over him, the brake beams striking and rolling him over. Fortunately he did not get under the wheels and no bones were broken, but he was badly bruised and shaken up. At last accounts it was thought that he would pull through all right.

A. N. Hixson returned on Thursday of last week from a missionary tour in Michigan and, judging from what we saw in Michigan local papers he has been pretty busy talking up the good points of this country. Hixson has done first-rate himself while here and has unbounded faith in the resources of the Red River Valley. We have not met Mr. H. since his return but we learn that he expects to see many people from Michigan this spring.

One of Mr. Hooper's horses was badly cut up by a kick recently and Mike Leguee was called for to sew up the rent. Hooper says Mike did it to the Queen's taste and we know that Mike can do that kind of business perfectly, as we had some colts badly cut up in a wire fence during the big storm of last summer. Mike went over and sewed up the rents—some of which were over 12 inches long—and to-day you wouldn't know the colts had been scratched. Men who saw the wounds soon after they were made and who have seen the colts since expressed doubts that those were the same colts—but they were all the same.

At the close of the entertainment on Saturday evening the audience chose Hugh Thompson, P. J. McGuire and A. D. Stephens a committee to superintend the drawing for the pony and then then chose little Trudie Wyatt to draw the number. To the first number no one responded, but to the second Fred Walker sung out loud enough to be heard a mile, while a handsome young lady who sat near us heaved a sigh about half as big as Fred's shout, for she had already elected us to go on the stage and get the pony for her. (that was a horse on us and a pony for Fred.) He ought to give little Trudie a nice dress or some little present for the neat way in which she won the pony for him.) We rather figured on that pony ourself but since the drawing have concluded that we should prefer a bicycle, anyhow.

THE JOURNAL is always glad to get bright, newsy letters from the different localities, but it is the invariable rule in every well ordered printing office to print no communications not accompanied by the name of the writer. Some of our good friends seem to have overlooked this fact recently. We do not insist upon publishing the name, if the writer objects, but WE MUST KNOW WHO THE WRITER IS. In the case of a news-letter, when we are pretty sure we know the name of the writer we publish the communication, but it is always best for the writer to sign his or her name. In that case the communication will be sure to appear, otherwise it is not so sure. When a person takes the pains to write a nice, newsy communication he naturally expects to see it in print, but he should not blame the printer, if the name of the writer be omitted, if he is disappointed.

The citizens convention was called to order at 7:30 p. m. on Tuesday evening by chairman John R. McKinnon. C. O. Christianson was made temporary chairman and P. J. Russell, temporary secretary. The committee on credentials reported the following gentlemen entitled to seats in the convention, viz:

FIRST WARD—H. E. Cooke, John R. McKinnon, John Alderman, with H. E. Cooke proxy for John Alderman.

SECOND WARD—T. G. Thompson, Harry Norrie, Wm. Welsh and Charlie Walters.

THIRD WARD—P J Russell and Euclid Munn.

FOURTH WARD—C. O. Christianson, A. McKinnon, E. Asseline, Louis Rivard, C. N. Lindell and W. F. Arnold.

FIFTH WARD—R. G. Marlette.

The committee on permanent organization reported recommending that the temporary organization be made permanent. On motion the convention proceeded to the nomination of officers by ballot, the first ballot to be an informal one. The name of Wm. Anglim was presented as candidate for Mayor and no other name being presented a motion prevailed to suspend the rules and instruct the secretary to cast the ballot for Wm. Anglim. For Alderman at large, A. K. Austin was proposed and no other aspirant appearing this nomination was made as before. For city clerk, E. C. Carruth, G. H. Palmer and J. V. E. Wyatt struggled through five ballots, resulting in the nomination of Carruth by a vote of 9 for Carruth, 6 for Palmer and 1 for Wyatt. For treasurer only one name was proposed, L. C. Couvrette and the secretary was instructed to cast the ballot. For assessor E. C. Davis, R. Burkhart and Wm. Arnold were put up. On informal ballot E. C. Davis received 6, Arnold 6 and Burkhardrt 4, 1st formal, Davis 3, Arnold 11, Burkhardt 2. Halvor Tvedten and Henry Shepard were nominated for constables. On motion the chair was instructed to appoint a city central committee consisting of one member from each ward.

Bert Duntly rejoices in an addition to his family—a recent addition, and while Bert was immensely pleased his better half, it seems, was not, and she kept dinging at Bert to sell it. Bert did not like the idea, so, of course, could not find an opportunity, so Mrs. B. kept on the same tune until one day, as Bert was about to go down town after dinner he gave it up and promised to sell the kid that afternoon. As he put on his hat to go, he was greeted by the bone of contention thusly: "Good bye Bert," and that broke Bert all up completely and as he fled he said to his wife: "I don't care what you do about it, but I tell you I will not sell it! There is not a thousand dollars in this city big enough to buy that parrot of me."

The celebrated masonic apron, made by the family of Gen. La Fayette and presented by Gen. La Fayette to Gen. Washington, was on exhibition at Tom Morris' store on Monday. It is the property of Mt. Nebo Lodge, No. 91, A. F. & A. M., Shepardstown, W. V. Each member of that lodge may, by giving a bond for $5,000, keep the apron for a period not to exceed one year. W. Leman, of Angus, is a member of Mt. Nebo Lodge and he has charge of the historic apron. It was taken to the Grand Lodge at its last meeting and while there some cabinet firm made an elegant frame for it and presented to the Grand Lodge and the Grand Lodge will present the frame to the Mt. Nebo Lodge. The apron was brought down from Warren by Clint. Winchester and Mr. Lamberton on Monday evening and was seen by a great many masons and others while it remained in the city.

In the various ward caucuses on Saturday evening the following gentlemen were put in nomination for aldermen:

First Ward—Fred Anderson.
Second Ward—J. E. Morrisey.
Third Ward—W. E. Walker.
Fourth Ward—Frank Jerome.
Fifth Ward—E. D. Childs.

Two of Hixson's converts arrived from Michigan this week to grow up with the country.

Proceedings of the Board of County Commissioners.

At the meeting of the board of County Commissioners on March 3rd, the following business was transacted:

The petition of Hendricks and others relating to a new school district was laid over till next meeting.

School petition of Rodflod granted. That of Lars Anderson set for hearing at next meeting.

Application of N. P. Hanson for abating taxes granted.

Also that of P. G. Falardeau for the same purpose.

The assessment of the Red River Transportation Company reduced to $2,000.

School petition of Wesley Morris and others set for hearing at next meeting.

Steps were taken to quiet title to that part of the Jacobus property on Broadway that was formerly deeded to the county.

Application of August Munn for abatement of taxes granted; also that of M. E. Kersch.

Bond of Scandia-American Bank presented and approved; also bonds of Matthews & Co., Fertile.

The assessment on the s ½ s w ¼ of section 9, Tp 150, R 42 was reduced to $260.

Bonds of Wrought Iron Co. presented and approved.

Petition from Ovid Moreau and others for a county road was laid over, also that of the county coroner in diptheria cases and a coroner's inquest, J. S. Denyer for justice fees and Sheriff Grundysen for coal shared the same fate.

The petition of the hail sufferers in the town of Fairfax for abatement of personal property taxes was refused.

The petition of Thora Walseth and Susan Anderson for abatement of personal taxes was rejected, also that of John Gratton.

The applications of Louis Fontaine, Wm. Anglim, Max Ericsson and A. J. & A. McKinnon for abatement of personal taxes 30 per cent, granted.

Bond of Christianson Bros. approved.

The auditor was empowered to issue $35 each month for Mrs. A. J. Streeter as hospital matron and $15 each month to the janitor.

The usual grist of bills were audited and allowed.

Euclid Items.

E. D. Childs was in the city on Saturday.

Vernon Warrington, general agent for the Washington Life Insurance Co., was doing business in town Saturday.

Children's entertainment in the church Tuesday evening.

It is rumored that Frank Strause is about to meet his absent rib once more.

Mr. Frich and Kellogg Johnson, of St. Paul, and Mr. C. F. Bronson, representing Finch & Skinner, also of St. Paul, were in the city doing business last week.

Harry S. Wood who was recently running the red elevator, has resigned, packed his grip and set out for Warren where he will be engaged in keeping a set of books.

H. C. Misner wishes to rent the old Griffith place, Sec. 26-27, Euclid Township.

Mr. Fargo says he is afraid we won't get to seeding until along toward May, although he would like to see an early spring on account of the scarcity of fall plowing.

C. E. Harrington's better half arrived from the East on Wednesday.

H. G. Horn is about to build a barn, which, the boys say, will cover about a quarter section of land and need about 14 carloads of nails to put it together, but Henry says it will only take two carloads of lumber to put it up.

G. Vanderbeck has put up some buildings on the northwest quarter of 22, Euclid township. He intends to make it his home.

A certain young gentleman told me with a wink like a bull's eye lantern, that he believed Mr. George Nelson and Miss Nellie Losey were about to join hands and circle to the left. That's right, George. Marriage is the common lot of man.

A gentleman arrived in this city the other day and stuck up his shingle as a harness maker, and before night he had some fifteen harnesses to repair and oil. This shows what a man with grit can do.

Willie Misner is as happy as a clam. Says he never saw business livlier in Euclid in his life.

The iron shoe shop is rushed these icy days.

Thomas Seeley, the expert telegraph operator, is still enjoying himself as of old.

Henry Tiedt intends to return to his home in Montana where he has a neat little business in partnership with his brother, in the shape of a cattle ranch. Henry has many friends here who will be sorry to see him go.

E. Taylor & Co. intend to put in hardware and dry goods when their store is completed.

Mr. P. Losey established a wood yard here some time ago and sold out his whole stock. He is now waiting for more clubs to arrive.

Dr. Chapin is rusting his high-heeled boots to keep the population in repair.

Henry Stuhr has drowned his sorrow for the loss of his old hat by love of the new one.

Now that I have done with all the news I can think of let me say a word for our little town. We live in one of the progressive cities of the Northwest, the chief business center of Polk County, where the wild rose blossoms in summer and snow balls in winter.

FRED.

MELVIN ITEMS.

The last kick of winter is rather a prolonged one, making vigorous protests against soon shuffling off its mortal coil and spring being ushered in.

Those farmers who held their wheat over, are not getting as much as they expected for it. Some are hauling and storing for the "May market," hoping they may still come out on top of the heap. But the speculators are not satisfied yet, so, until they are, we cannot expect justice.

A case of mistaken identity was that of B. Durdall's ox reported dead last week, which was found alive and well at a neighboring farmer's, while the dead ox E. B. pronounced his belonged to this neighbor.

The Peoples' party committee of the town of Onstad, held a meeting on the 14th of March, and organized a Peoples' party club. Tosten Menson delivered the dedication address, and the club passed a resolution to suppurt the Peoples' party of the United States.

The town officers elected met on Friday, the 18th of March, at the residence of H. H. Aarhus to qualify. Supervisors, John Matheson, chairman; J. P. Bullan and Peter Bakke. Town clerk, W. A. Marin; Treasurer, H. H. Halvorson; Assessor, H. B. Hofterson; Justices, C. H. Holmes and E. L. Stowe. Can they swear well? they did that day and quite freely.

W. S. Landt, our genial wheat buyer, is running the elevator alone now; his wife left for a visit to her relatives in Wisconsin.

The People's party club will meet March 28th, at the north school house in district No. 19. We expect a speaker from Crookston and a rousing big time.

GOSSIP.

MAPLE BAY, March 21, 1892.

The Farmers' Alliance met on the 19th inst. It was agreed to hold a Peoples' party meeting at the residence of W. W. Godfrey, on Tuesday, the 29th inst., and we hope there will be a rousing turnout. Come one, come all. Never mind the sneers and jeers that are pointed at you. Come forth and stand up for your own rights, and like men help to kill the big bear that has cowed you so long, and show that you are the bone and sinew of the best country the sun ever warmed. We bear the burden, then let us run our own affairs and get rid of these tricky ringsters that have lived so long on the fat of your labors while we fed on the refuse and wiped the sweat from our brows. Then I say come forth and enjoy the luxuries of our own labors.

The Rev. Mr. Sorenson, the Lutheran minister, has gone south to preach to some of his people left without a pastor.

Sam Felsing has gone to Spokane Falls to his brother-in-law, Mr. De Camp. Sam's salary is $75 per month. We shall miss him at the Bay very much. We wish him prosperity wherever he goes.

Dexter and Scott Godfrey have just returned from Motley where they have been engaged in cutting wood.

Miss Nellie Hunter has been engaged to teach in district No. 90.

Mr. Wm. Davison has sold his farm in Woodside and moved to the Bay.

D. T. Mitchell saw a wild goose flying over since the storm, but Thompson says the goose was a gander that he had tamed himself.

The ice on Maple Lake is three feet three inches thick.

Maple Bay Items.

Godfrey Alliance met on the 19th inst.

Rev. Sorensen has gone to Renville Co. on business.

Andrew Christianson, our genial chairman of the board of supervisors, has returned from Crookston where he has been courting.

Miss Bertha Moen has returned to Crookston.

Mrs. Wm. Klinger is visiting friends in Crookston this week.

N. S. Stale has rented his farm for two years and gone to Spring Valley, Fillmore Co., where his wife has been for some time under medical treatment.

Wm. Tatro visited Maple Bay last Tuesday. Mr. Tatro is one of the proprietors of the Maple Lake Belle and has been with us two summers. Welcome, Billy. Come often.

Miss Carrie Moen, who has had a week's vacation, returned to her school at Woodside Monday morning.

Rev. Sorenson has a class of thirty-seven pupils preparing for confirmation.

Eli Gustafson lost a valuable colt last week.

S. D. Felsing has gone to Spokane Falls, Wash., where he has obtained a lucrative position.

Mr. Thorvald Torgrimson, who left during the winter to attend school at Portland, N. D., and soon thereafter returned sick, is now mending slowly.

BLIZZARD.

Wanted.

A situation as foreman and housekeeper by a man and his wife. Best of references given. Call at JOURNAL office. [46-1]

Mentor Items.

We always find a welcome guest in THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.

Miss Ida Berg, who has been attending school in Crookston, has returned home.

The glee club gave an entertainment at Mr. Walker Morris' on Monday evening of last week. Herman H. Kergs carried off the prize given to the best step dancer, and every one seemed to enjoy themselves immensely. On returning home the teams took fright, causing a run which might have terminated seriously.

The entertainment at D. Overholt's on Friday night was not very well attended on account of the inclemency of the weather.

Another Justice of the Peace will need to be appointed in our town, Thor Halderson, who has faithfully fulfilled this office, having moved from our midst.

Messrs Moe & Buhn continue to do a remarkable business here. Their store is always well filled with good varieties which look very inviting. May Moe & Buhn still continue to have good success.

MICK.

Farm to Rent!

A fine farm of 480 acres about three miles from city, from 275 to 300 acres for crop, will rent with teams and machinery if desired. This is a good opportunity for a young man to make a start in farming business, or for a man and wife. Will not rent to a man with large family as owner intends to occupy part of the house. For particulars call at JOURNAL office. [59-52]

Always on hand, anything you want in the line of choice fresh meats, at Charlie Vine's.

Ship your wheat to O. Tharaldson general agent of the Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association, at Duluth, and make from 4 to 7 cents a bushel. For further particulars as to membership, &c., inquire of L. K. Hassel, Grand Forks, N. D. [25-tf]

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication March 24th, 1892.]
[Last publication May 5th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Nils S. Nilson and Cecilia S. Nilson, his week, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 24th day of December, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of January, A. D. 1889, at 10:45 o'clock a. m., in book 43 of mortgages, on page 455; and

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $22.75 that became due June 24th, 1889, $22.75 that became due December 24th, 1889, $22.75 that became due June 24th, 1890, and $22.75 that became due December 24th, 1890, $22.75 that became due June 24th, 1891, and $22.75 that became due December 24th, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to-wit: eight hundred twenty-one and 71-100 ($821.71) Dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The south half (s½) of the north-east quarter (ne¼) and the north half (n½) of south-east quarter (se¼) of Section two (2) Township one hundred and forty-seven (147) Range forty (40), containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof. All of said premises situated and being in the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston in said County and State, on the 9th day of May, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated March 17th, A. D. 1892.

The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, that no delegate will be admitted to a seat in the Convention unless such delegate resides in the town or precinct which he represents.

The foregoing call was [illegible] the Republican County Committee [illegible] held in the City of Crookston [illegible] March [illegible], 1892.

World's Fair Notes.

Bulgaria has decided to participate in the Exposition. Foreign participation, so far as ascertained up to the present, embraces seventy-two nations and provinces.

Canada has been given 68,471 square feet of space in the various buildings, exclusive of space yet to be granted in the agricultural and live stock departments.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union wants to put up a building, 70x100 feet, in the Exposition grounds, in which to exhibit the entire system of its work and to conduct [illegible] the sale of temperance drinks.

[illegible] World's Fair buildings [illegible] advanced [illegible] are fast assuming the appearance of finished structures. The rough carpentry work on them is practically done and the ornamental and finishing work is in progress. These buildings are the Woman's, [illegible], Mines, Administration, Forestry and [illegible]. The Electricity [illegible] and other buildings [illegible] advanced rapidly.

The Exposition authorities are anxious that all the States and Territories which intend to erect buildings at the Exposition, and which have not yet submitted plans for approval, do so at the earliest possible moment. Very soon a time will be specified beyond which plans will not be accepted. May 1st is the date likely to be chosen. The demand for space is so great that delinquent states are liable to lose the sites that have been assigned to them.

Lieut. Baker, of the Marine Section of the Department of Transportation, has secured a promise from the Detroit Dry Dock Company for an exhibit of a perfect model in stucco of the entire ship building plant of the company, both at its Detroit and Wyandotte yards.

Mr. Ossian Guthrie, of Chicago, together with many other scientists, declare that no more striking proofs of the glacial epoch exist in this country than are seen in the Desplaines valley between Chicago and Joliet. For educational reasons Mr. Guthrie advocates the making of an exhibit demonstrating this fact at the World's Fair, with maps, surveys and collections of geological specimens, which are abundant, so arranged as to show the lines of glacial progress. This, he estimates, would require about $10,000.

Five acres of space in the Midway Plaisance have been reserved for a nursery exhibit.

A joint bill has been introduced in Congress, carrying an appropriation of $18,000, "To procure, prepare, compile for publication and publish statistics of the moral, intellectual and industrial progress of the colored people of the United States from January 1st, 1863, the date of emancipation proclamation, to January 1st, 1893, as a part of the government exhibit, the same to illustrate the growth of liberty, morality and humanity of the United States."

The Suffolk Horse Society, England, has offered two gold medals, of the value of $50 each, for the best Suffolk horse and mare or filly exhibited at the World's Fair.

The Custer Mining Company, of Idaho, is making a very extensive collection of ores for exhibition at the Fair.

The city of Cincinnati wants to erect a building at the Exposition, to be used both as a club house and receptacle for a municipal exhibit. It is willing to expend $30,000 in the undertaking.

English women are active in preparation for their participation in the Exposition. At a meeting of the woman's committee in London, on March 3d, it was announced that Queen Victoria had promised specimens of her own work in spinning and knitting, done when she was a girl; also some of her embroidering, fine drawing and water color painting. Princess Louise will contribute some clay modeling, Princess Beatrice several paintings, and Princess Christian some embroidery. The committee assigned charge of various branches of woman's exhibits as follows: Irish exhibits, Countess of Aberdeen; Scotch, Lady Reay; Philanthropy, Baroness Burdett-Coutts; Education, Mrs. Fawcett, the writer on political economy; Hospital nursing, Mrs. Fenwick; Woman's art, Mrs. Robert Austin. Several women were selected to prepare papers on various educational and economic subjects.

It is probable that the visitor to the Exposition will have an opportunity of seeing a more extensive and finer exhibition of ancient Greek art than it has heretofore been possible to see outside of Greece. P. Cavreading, Director General of Grecian Antiquities, has written that the Grecian government has accepted the invitation to participate in the Exposition, with the understanding that it will be represented only by memorials of its antiquities. Chas. Walstein, Director of the American School of Classic Studies at Athens, states that the Grecian government has agreed to make and send to the Exposition casts of the principal works of ancient art now in Greece, together with maps, diagrams and photographs. To these will probably be added casts, and perhaps some of the originals of classic Greek art which are now distributed throughout Europe.

Two Buried Cities.

In the first century after Christ there stood near the beautiful Bay of Naples two cities, Herculaneum and Pompeii, which were noted through all the Roman world for their fashionable luxury. In the year 79, during a tremendous eruption of Vesuvius, these cities disappeared from view as completely as Sodom and Gomorrah. It was commonly reported that both cities were overwhelmed with a flood of molten lava, and the occurrence has been vividly portrayed by Bulwer in "The Last Days of Pompeii." March 24, 1737, the ruins of Herculaneum were discovered, and it was then found that this city had been destroyed by an immense flood of water which carried along enormous quantities of mud, tufa and ashes. This explains, in some degree, why so few people escaped from Herculaneum, while thousands had time to flee from Pompeii, which was buried first under a gradual shower of ashes. Mistakes and errors in regard to things out of sight are excusable, but the people of this day and section are too well informed about the railroads to commit the error of taking any other line than The Burlington when going on a journey. For rates and tickets to any point via this line, apply to your home ticket agent, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

'Round Home.

April Fool Day—to-morrow.

Commissioner C. P. DeMars was in the city last week.

The oldest inhabitants have decided that spring has come.

J. W. Benedict was down from Fosston last week visiting friends.

Sam Wallace had a severe attack of tonsilitis last week. Reported better at last accounts.

Wm. Vannett went to Barnesville last week to attend the wedding of a relative there.

The schools closed on Friday of last week for the spring vacation. Will reopen on Monday next.

J. F. Holmes, of Red Lake Falls, was attending the Democratic convention in the city last Thursday.

M. Wilson and Annie Nelson were married last Wednesday, Judge C. O. Christianson officiating.

Mrs. Chris. Muggley, of Pratt, Wis., was in the city last week to attend the funeral of her mother, Mrs. Helen Moeckel.

T. B. McManus has withdrawn his name from the People's Party ticket as a candidate for assessor and Mark Rauenbuchler's name was substituted.

The glass transoms in the Reckitt Block were all nicely lettered last week—where the rooms were occupied. A. C. Schmidt did it with his little brush.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Skinner were visiting friends in the city last Thursday evening, remaining over night. Mr. S. was in attendance on the I. O. O. F. meeting.

We have in our hands to rent a farm with stock and all machinery needed to run it. A good chance for a man and his wife to get a start. Don't want a man with a large family. For particulars call at this office.

Frank T. Haseltine, proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, writes THE JOURNAL from Madison, Wis., that he has passed a very pleasant winter recuperating and will return about April 1st ready for a big season's business. Save your orders for Frank.

The Blue Jay tea, announced in our last issue to occur on Thursday evening at the residence of A. A. Miller Esq., was well attended and netted the Congregational Church Society $25. The "Blue Jay" part of the affair was a souvenir, the letter J cut from blue cardboard. The affair was a pronounced social success.

Wm. Beck was one of those who called on Friday to say set it ahead a year. The one peculiarity with Mr. Beck is a very agreeable one for the printer. He has been a subscriber to THE JOURNAL for many years and never in that time has he missed one week of coming in to renew on the very day the subscription runs out. If every man was only built that way how happy would we be.

News from Mrs. Bucknam in Chicago states that little Clipper will have to undergo a painful surgical operation. One day last winter the child, while playing at school, fell and it would seem fractured her collar bone. Nothing was thought of it at the time but later it gave her so much pain that a doctor was called who said it was nothing serious and would get along all right. When Mrs. B. and the children went to Chicago to visit friends there a doctor was called to examine Clipper who said that the child was suffering with a fractured collar-bone and that as it had already commenced to knit it would have to be broken over again and set and this will be done at an early day.

As intimated in our last T. K. Torgerson on Thursday closed the bargain for renting the Minnesota House and will become a citizen of Crookston. Mr. T. has for a long time been one of the leading citizens of Becker County, and we predict that he will become one of Crookston's leading business men. Our friends will find T. K. a straight man to deal with in every particular, and when they require a good hostelry they will find the one that Tom keeps that kind of a hotel in every particular.

The Citizens' Ticket.

On Tuesday evening of last week there gathered at the city hall a delegation of representative citizens who had been sent there to select from such aspirants as might present themselves a ticket composed of our leading business men. Each delegate seemed fully impressed with the fact that he had been sent in there on a business mission—a business of great importance to the welfare of this city, and the way that duty was discharged indicates that their duty was well performed. The man whom they selected to head the ticket, Mr. Wm. Anglim, came to this city in 1878 and with Louis Fontaine formed the firm of Fontaine & Anglim, now one of the leading mercantile firms of the city. They bought out an established business, that of W. D. Bailey, and commenced business in a log building. Very soon their business required more room and they built one of the first brick stores in the city, this being found inadequate another change was made finally followed last fall by the erection of the handsome brick block they now occupy, which would be a credit to a much larger city than Crookston. While Mr. A. has never been prominent as an office seeker he has been an honest, upright business man and the creditable way in which his personal business affairs have been managed is an earnest of the manner in which he will strive to administer public affairs should be elected to the office for which he has been nominated. It is true he is not a professional orator, neither was Alexander McKinnon when he first took the chair, and behold how he has developed into as good, fluent and easy an off-hand speaker as we have in the city. However that may be, whether he succeeds in developing eloquence remarkably we think we can assure our citizens that the administration will be a business one if Mr. Anglim heads it. The candidate for Alderman-at-large, A. K. Austin, has showed his faith in the city by helping to build the fine opera house block, than which none finer exists in the city. No man has greater interests at stake and no man will guard them more zealously than A. K. Austin. The clerical ability of the balance of the ticket is the surest test and the fact that two of them, Capt. Couverette and E. C. Carruth were renominated for the offices which they had filled for one term should be an indication of the appreciation of the people. Wm. Arnold has creditably filled the office of county surveyor, is an old resident of Polk County and should be sufficiently acquainted with values in the city to make a good assessor. We believe he would be if elected. Upon the whole the ticket is a good one from a business standpoint a worthy of the support of every business man in the city.

Pure Food in Congress.

Action which has Resulted in the official Determination of the Best Baking powder.

The act of congress authorizing the examination of the baking powder has resulted in a most unprecedented compliment to the Royal Baking Powder. The test were made in the Government Laboratory at Washington, and the official report shows that the Royal is superior to all others in leavening strength—being over thirty per cent. above the average. The report also shows the purity of the Royal Powder and the wholesomeness of the ingredients.

This is probably the highest compliment of an official character ever paid to a proprietary article, though no more than the great army of baking powder consumers would expect in behalf of their old friend and favorite.

The result of the official examination as thus determined will of course make the "Royal" the standard for Government purchases.

Council Proceedings.

Proceedings of an adjourned meeting of the City Council of the City of Crookston, held in the City Hall on Tuesday evening, March 22d, 1892.

Meeting called to order by president Cromb.

ROLL CALL.

Aldermen present—Buhn, Jennings, Jerome, Marshall, McGlogan, Marlette, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen absent—Childs, Steenerson.

Owing to the city convention being called to meet in the city hall the council adjourned to the police room.

Minutes of previous meeting read and approved.

At an adjourned meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 22d day of March, 1892, Alderman Walker offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman Marshall:

Resolved, that inasmuch that no bids have been received to build a sidewalk on north side of Fourth street, between Broadway and Elm streets, the street commissioner be and he is hereby instructed to proceed with the least possible delay to lay said sidewalk, and make and file with the city engineer, when finished, a correct statement of the outlay incurred thereby.

Upon the call of ayes and nays, the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative—Buhn, Jennings, Jerome, Marshall, McGlogan, Schmidt, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative—none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 22d day of March, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved the 26th day of March, 1892.

ALEX. MCKINNON,
Mayor.

Attest: E. C. CARRUTH,
Clerk.

Mr. Louis Godbout presented a petition asking the privilege of moving his frame building now on lot 5 of block 12 onto lot 4 of block 12 all in Fletcher & Houston's addition.

Moved by Alderman Marshall seconded by Alderman Jerome that the petition be granted. Carried.

Mr. Arthur Dufresne presented a petition asking the privilege of using one half of the street opposite his lots, while his building was being erected, also the use of the streets while moving his building now on lot 20 block 6, down toward Spendley street.

Moved by Alderman Schmidt, seconded by Alderman Marshall that the request be granted. Carried.

Mr. E. Barrett presented a petition asking that he be allowed to use one half of the street opposite his building, also that he might move the frame building now on lot 19 block 6 across the street onto the property owned by Mr. Finseth, while his new building was under construction.

Moved by Alderman Walker seconded by Alderman Jerome, that the petition be granted. Carried.

Gaarder & Sundet presented an application to sell intoxicating liquors in the building on corner of Robert and Main streets.

Resolved, that the liquor application of Gaarder & Sundet be granted upon proper proofs of publication and that the bond accompanying the same be approved upon the payment of $500. Carried.

On motion Council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

Warren Register.—We were in Crookston Tuesday night Wednesday and Wednesday night of last week. On Wednesday evening we witnessed the play of "Hazel Kirk" at the new Opera House. We were in good company, too, as we were the guest of Bro. Cooke of the Journal and his amiable wife. The play was rendered in good style to a large audience. Crookston has an Opera House she can well be proud of. Its size and elegance was a surprise to us. Speaking of Bro. Cooke, we are reminded that he has received a new $1,700 Potter press and engine, which he will put to work as soon as he makes some necessary additions to his office building. He has also received a lot of new material, including a paper cutter, type, etc., and says he will have the best newspaper outfit in Crookston when he gets things to rights. May he live long and prosper all the time.

Money Motion.

During the discussion of the United States Banking bill in congress some time in 1885 or 1886 John Randolph, of Roanoke, who was opposed to establish a United State bank, said that he had discovered a perpetual motion, and it was very simple, being the fact that—

"Paper makes money,
Money makes banks,
Banks makes poverty,
Poverty makes rags,
Rags makes paper,
Paper makes money,
Money makes banks,

and so on forever and forever. Without speaking of the bearing of this on the present financial discussion in and out of congress it may be said that the Burlington System goes on forever increasing its mileage and that it goes everywhere, that it reaches all principal cities and towns in the West. No matter what your destination, buy your ticket over a Burlington line, and you will get there by the quickest and best route. Do you want to know more about it? Then write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Farming for Health.

May be very fine and you will no doubt grow strong and be happy with nothing but a hoe, a back number plow and a shot gun seeder. But if you are

Farming for Wealth

You should have the latest and best tool on the market. For instance you want first a DOWAGIAC SHOE DRILL, and as you probably did not get your plowing all done last fall you also want a Grand Detour Plow, a Little Yankee or Scandia Gang. We have them to sell and would liketo show you their merits.

—OUR TIME AGAINST YOURS.—

There are several other things you ought to have but you must have these now soon. We have a nice line of Harrows that we are selling cheap; also Wagons, Buggies, Engines, Threshers, Etc., Etc.

Regulating Elevators.

The Supreme Court Says It Can Be Done by States.

Grand Forks Daily Herald.

The federal supreme court has handed down a very important decision affecting the right of a state to control the charges of grain elevators at large centers or terminal points, and as parties here are interested in nearly similar litigation, it will be interesting to them.

The case arose in New York under an act of the legislature of that state passed in 1888, fixing the maximum charges of receiving, weighing and discharging grain by means of elevators and warehouses in cities of at least 130,000 population. It is known as the Budd case. Budd was indicted and convicted of charging more for elevating grain in Buffalo, N. Y., than the maximum rate allowed by the statutes. On appeal to the court of appeals the constitutionality of the law was affirmed. The ground in which the case was assailed was that the provisions of the state had been violated and also those of the federal constitution, declaring that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law. The court of appeals decided that under the peculiar facts of the case the owners of grain elevators and warehouses in Buffalo enjoyed a virtual monopoly of the business and that therefore it was subject to state control. On writ of error the federal supreme court affirmed this decision.

The question is somewhat similar to the one now pending before the North Dakota supreme court, involving the right of the legislature to fix the ratio of elevatore at all points in the state. The main difference between the cases seems to be the fact that the elevators whose charges are sought to be regulated by the statutes in this state are not at great centers where a large volume of grain must pass through them and where, by reason of the peculiar circumstances surrounding them, as in Buffalo in the Budd case and in Chicago in the Granger case they enjoy a virtual monopoly.

FARMS FOR SALE!

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

For a small cash payment and a mortgage for the balance at seven per cent, payable annually, you can buy either of the following fine farms. They were taken on foreclosure and those prices only slightly exceed the amounts of the loans there have been on them.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

Crookston, March 31, 1892.

Wheat—1 Hard 68.
1 Northern 62.
2 Northern 56.
3 Northern 52.

If you want to rent a farm call and see us.

Geo. Vine went north this week to buy hides.

M. A. Sture is quite indisposed these days. Grip.

The river will break up very soon if this weather continues.

Miss Emma Sture has returned from a winter's visit to the western coast.

Lots of work, of every kind, for everybody in Polk County the coming year.

Charley Vine is kept as busy as a bee cutting up meats to supply his increasing trade.

Miss Edith McGrew went out Fosston on Tuesday morning to visit friends for a day or so.

W. E. Slocum is fixing up the house that Rev. Mr. Whitney occupied and will take possession soon.

S. B. Palmer was up from Lockhart on Tuesday looking after business in the line of gasoline engines.

Charlie Vine is not doing any bragging but he is just simply selling the choicest cuts in the market. Try him.

Rev. R. H. Battey will exchange next Sabbath with Rev. Seth N. Wilcox, of the Congregational church of Grand Forks.

Miss Emma Sture was in the earthquake and don't like 'em pretty much. Prefers life in Polk County where such things happen not.

The ladies of the Congregational church are getting up an experience social to come off sometime in May. Lots of fun expected.

The Northern Pacific will change time on Sunday next. The train for St. Paul will leave Crookston at 7:05 p. m. and arrive in the morning at 7:27 a. m.

Bert Duntley is preparing plans for a residence in Jerome's Addition, near Wm. Thune's and will commence building as soon as the weather permits.

Farmers all predict good crops this year and good weather. We predict good prices and if all these predictions come true look out for booming times.

Miss Edith Grasse, who has been visiting in this city with Mrs. Edward George for a while returned on Tuesday morning to her home in Winnipeg.

Adolph Rauch has purchased the Hack & Gallasch corner for $5,500 cash and will erect a brick block thereon. This is one of the finest corners in the city.

A few more days of thawing weather will put the ground in fine shape for seeding. Some expect to be able to begin this week.

C. J. Knox, the Thief River Falls boomer, was in the city on Monday evening on his way to St. Paul. Reports prospects good for a large sized boom up there this coming summer.

"Do you know that J. W. Wheeler has money to loan at reasonable rates and no long waits for the money to come from some place? He has it on hand ready for delivery as soon as the papers are made out.

Mrs. Adams and Miss Veronneau are getting their stock into the building on Second street recently occupied by A. D. Stephens and will soon be ready to greet their many friends.

Fred Anderson—"I expect Ike Simmons will be the next alderman from the First Ward. I have not time to make much of a canvas and I don't think Ike is working very hard but his party is."

Eli Steenerson—"Yes I noticed that conjunction business, but it strikes me that somebody is getting a little fresh. There is nothing in the city charter that prevents a man repairing a leaky roof and as the roof to my meat-market building was somewhat leaky I undertook to repair it. Then came the injunction—I am still engaged repairing the roof."

The Belmour-Gray Comedy Company opened a week's engagment at the Grand on Monday night in "Solomon Isaacs, or Queen's Evidence." The leading parts were exceedingly well sustained and the company is an unusually strong one. Popular prices. Reserved seats on sale at Tom Morris. If you enjoy a pleasant evening try the Grand any night this week.

If foreign nations don't quit monkey with Uncle Sam, Harrison will be nominated by acclamation and re-elected with a whoop. Every time a foreign nation bristles up and makes faces at the U. S. Harrison's actions show that "Grandfather's Hat" is not an atom too big for him. His dignified attitude toward England in the seals fishery question wins the admiration of the world.

The committee appointed to meet a G. A. R. committee met at committee on Monday evening and agreed upon preliminaries for the encampment in July next. As the encampment will include the 4th of July these ceremonies will be merged in the celebration we were to have and a grand good time provided for. Look out for the best celebration ever held in the Northwest.

The roads are softening up continually.

A. C. Schmidt is painting the M. E. church building.

W. E. McKenzie and wife went to St. Paul on Tuesday evening.

Eli Steenerson is at work on the old Crookston meat-market building.

John E. Tice and J. J. Tice came up from Mentor on Tuesday's train.

J. O. McWaters called on Friday to cheer our heart by renewing for one year.

Doc. Rutledge, of the Fisher Bulletin was up on Tuesday to observe the Lady of Lyons.

Mrs. Powell and Mrs. Nailor, of Warren, are visiting in the city with their sister-in-law, Mrs. N. P. Stone.

Will Carl, brother-in-law of Charlie Vine, who has been very ill with brain fever, is reported out of danger.

W. C. Andrew gave us a call on Saturday last to see what stationary we need from Wright, Barrett & Stilwell.

Fred Anderson commenced work on his building on Broadway. It will be remodled into a neat residence building.

The new pastor for the Baptist church Rev. Mr. McDonald, has arrived and will enter upon his duties on Sabbath next.

A very brilliant aurora borealis was witnessed on Thursday night of last week. This would indicate another cold snap soon.

The little house on Main street so long used by Judge Reynolds as an office and later as a residence was moved off last week.

A. Griffin, brakesman on No. 9, had hand badly hurt on Monday evening. Dr. Dampier soon fixed the injured member in good shape.

Street commissioner Dan McDonald was busy on Monday with a crew of men flushing the gutters. An improvment very much needed.

A washout on the line west delayed the Great Northern train several hours. The train due at 7 p. m. Friday evening arrived at 1 p. m. on Saturday.

Charlie Pearson was in the city on Saturday selling cutlery for Wright, Barrett & Stilwell. Charlie is one of the best hearted fellows on the road.

Attorney D. Hattlestad was called away to Iowa last week by the news of the death of his sister at Decorah. He will be away ten days or a fortnight.

Rev. S. H. Barteau, of Stephen, was visiting friends and relatives on Tuesday. Mr. B. has just recovered from a severe illness and looks pale and thin yet.

I. W. C. Misner writes: "Send me the JOURNAL, can't keep house without it." All right. The name is duly added to the list together with quite a batch this week.

The delegates to the democratic convention at St. Paul, Alex. McKinnon, Wm. Anglim, Alderman A. C. Schmidt and Sam. Rosenthal, left for St Paul on Tuesday evening.

One of Nap. Rapin's little boys took a prominent part in the play of "Solomon Isaacs" on Monday evening. As this was his first appearance on the stage the little chap did nobly.

Iver Krohn was up from his farm in Garden last week laying in a stock of provisions for seeding. Says if this weather continues he can go to work at an early day. Thinks they will get to work generally next week.

Attorney Steenerson went down to Fergus Falls last week to defend a man charged with selling whiskey to Indians and succeeded in mixing up the witnesses so badly that several of them were indicted for perjury.

The O'Neil boys report their land drying off nicely. They got their plowing all done last fall and now all they have to do is to sow as soon as the ground is ready and it is almost ready now. They expect to begin seeding this week.

The funeral of comrade Louis Zange occurred at the Methodist Episcopal church on Friday afternoon. The Post turned out to pay the last sad respects to a departed comrade and the remains were tenderly laid to rest in Oakdale cemetery.

We have been somewhat handicapped for the past week owing to the illness of our foreman, and as you can't always step out on the street and pick up a man in this business when you want him, such an absence is generally severely felt.

THE JOURNAL is informed that the residence of F. W. Bruce, a few miles southeast of Carman, was destroyed by fire on Tuesday. During his absence the house took fire and his wife, who was not entirely recovered from a severe illness, was barely able to save her life.

Joseph Dostal was down from Tabor on Tuesday and dropped in to square up on subscription. Says that more people are coming into Tabor this spring than ever before and that there can be but little if any more railroad land yet for sale in the town. About one-fourth of the threshing remains to be done but the plowing was pretty well completed last fall. He thinks seeding will not be commenced inside of two weeks yet.

L. F. Menage,

14-89] Minneapolis, Minn.

Wm. Campbell came down from Maple Bay on Thursday to bring his little boy to consult a doctor. For about two years the boy has been a sufferer from hip disease and he does not seem to improve as rapidly as could be desired. On Friday morning Mr. C. dropped in to say he could not keep house without THE JOURNAL and to renew for the coming year.

Joseph Laframboise gave us a call on Friday afternoon to report on his visit to Canada during the past winter. He says many will leave that country during the coming season and many more would if they could sell. He thinks it would be an excellent idea if practicable for the railroad companies to run excursion trains soon after seeding, that if they did do so many would come out and see what the country can do. We think that would be a very excellent idea.

Friday was field day for subscriptions—mostly renewals. This is very acceptable to us in view of the fact that our new press and engine have arrived and we are arranging to get them set up and running at as early a day as possible and when that day comes we shall need considerable more money than we have been able to collect so far. Of course we do not expect help from those who have not threshed as yet but all who have the money handy and will kindly liquidate will lay us under lasting obligations if they will call and see us.

THE JOURNAL does not presume to be dictatorial nor to advise in the matter of voting. The two tickets are in the field—there are some good men on both of them but it may be advisable to study the platforms of the parties as far as the executive officers are concerned, the others, of course, demanding merely clerical ability are not so important—providing the ability is there. Looking over the platform of the citizens party one is impressed with the idea that it embraces the essential elements of a good business administration. Again, the character of the men selected by the citizens' convention is a guaranty of the faithful performance of the duties devolving upon them. Their interest in the welfare of the city is conspicuous in the character of the buildings they have erected and a hundred different ways. Could we ask for better evidence of good faith? Could we find it if we did? THE JOURNAL has nothing but good words to say of the candidates on the People's ticket but claims that the citizens' platform is very much the better one for the interests of our city. The ticket was placed in the field more in accordance with the principles of freedom which is the boast of the American people, because the caucuses were duly advertised and every body who cared to do so was privileged to go in and have a voice in making it. It was not put in the field by an exclusive society whose members alone knew when the ticket was to be made. The citizens' ticket was made by at least two thirds of the people of the city in caucus assembled, thus representing as nearly as may be the will of the people. We think these ideas furnish good and sufficient reason why the citizen's ticket should be triumphantly elected as we confidently believe it will be if its friends are on the alert—but they can not go to sleep and expect to elect it.

Republican Caucuses.

Republican caucuses will be held in the various wards at the usual plans on Saturday evening at 7:30.

THE JOURNAL regrets to notice the assignment of Mr. J. V. E. Wyatt. Mr. W. started in business in this city a few years ago with a limited capital and has done a good business but the unfortunate fire, by which he lost a considerable money obliged him to go more on credit and now one of the houses with whom he deals is crowding him for its money. Mr. W. thinks he will come out of it all right.

Tom Harris took the contract for moving Felix Fournet's wholesale liquor store buildings across the street and commenced operations last week. He figures that the job will take about 10 days. As soon as the buildings are well off, the work of excavating for the new block will be commenced.

We have experienced several vexatious delays which interfere with our building operations but we live in hope to see our press room completed and our new Potter press up and running off our edition by the commencement of Vol. 16. Our old Fairhaven has been a true and faithful friend but although it would run from 600 to 700 per hour it has become altogether too slow so it had to go to make way for one of the latest improved Potter presses and a gasoline engine to run it. We have our press and engine all ready to set up just as soon as we can make the necessary changes in our building which will take but a few days when we can get at it. With our press we have bought a quantity of body type, advertising type and many beautiful new faces of the very latest styles of job type and with these added facilities we think we shall be able to turn out as good work as can be done outside of the twin cities. Give us a trial. Try THE JOURNAL job rooms for job printing of any description.

MRS. E. E. BANGS

Has secured the services of Miss C. B. Hammond as her milliner. Miss Hammond comes from Edson, Keith & Co.'s Chicago pattern rooms where she has been for many weeks studying up all the latest styles and designs in millinery and she is an expert in this line. Mrs Bangs has received the finest line of millinery goods from Chicago that has ever been in Crookston, and she is now prepared to give the best style, and the lowest prices ever given in this city give her a call and see for yourself.

Euclid Items.

Mr. Easby was in town Thursday to attend to his interests here.

Paul Oseldinger lost an ox in our big blizzard. Paul is about to move out on his claim.

J. Zimmerman lost five cows in the late blizzard.

It seems that even a dog knows when he is unfit to be seen around horses. Wm. Brandt went down to Crookston and bought a span of Brown's famous mares, and returned home only to find his dog dead in the well.

E. Taylor & Co. received the brick foundation for their new building last Thursday morning. They will begin operations as soon as the weather will permit.

Dr. Chapin took a flying trip to Warren last week.

Mr. Robert Shultz gave a dance Thursday evening. Good time.

Henry Tiedt will leave for Montana about the 1st.

Every body is yanking their seed wheat over the plains to be ready for the breakup.

Casper Mosier, an old settler of 78 summers is rustling cattle trades in this vicinity.

In Euclid lives one of the most wonderful freaks of nature ever known, in the form of a gentleman who can throw his under jaw out of joint and pass his under lip over his nose within a half inch of his eyes. It is well worth going hundreds of miles to see.

The children of the city gave a delightful entertainment Tuesday evening and kept a big house in a roar of applause for more than an hour. A good deal is due to the excellent training given them by Mrs. H. C. Misner.

Robert Casmey has been out west but came back saying this country was best of all.

E. Murney has worked up all the iron in the city and is now trying to put tin shoes on horses. That won't do Ed.

There are some pretty good jumpers around the neighborhood, but they can't come up to Henry Stuhr and myself. E. J. Duntley is undoubtedly the best boxer in the vicinity.

Everybody seems to be talking about M. R. Brown's horses. Good thing to talk about, gentlemen.

Go into E. Taylor & Co's. and let H. Stuhr sell you a good hat.

Fred Tiedt Senior is very slowly recovering from a long and severe illness.

Miss Lillian Losey appeared on the stage Tuesday evening.

In the entertainment Tuesday evening a trio was given by Miss Ollie Tiedt and Miss Nellie Chapman, sopranos, and Miss Ida Teal alto, which brought down the house.

Charley Teal is very sick with pneumonia.

Mack McCracken is in the city again but is undecided whether to take the depot agency again or not.

Ole Nilson began threshing barley Wednesday.

Several wild ducks were reported to have been flying northward. If this be true spring is really at hand.

One of the most enjoyable events of the season was the company of ladies and gentlemen at W. C. Misner's Friday evening. Mr. Leman of Angus brought down the famous apron which was given to Gen. Washington by Gen. Lafayette and exhibited it to the masons of Euclid. Among the masons present were W. Leman and W. L. Davies, of Angus, H. C. Misner, Dr. J. S. Chapin, F. Tiedt, F. G. Fargo and other friends who were invited in and who felt well repaid for their trouble by looking at such a famous relic so closely connected with the two greatest generals of the revolutionary war. The apron is now the property of Mont Nebo Lodge No. 91 of Shepardsville, West Virginia. The new case presented to the above lodge by the grand lodge of Minnesota has one of the finest specimens of the engraver's art ever seen by those present. It was of solid cherry with many of the emblems and working tools of the fraternity handsomely wrought.

After all present had viewed the masonic treasures and listened to the lectures on the same by Mr. Leman, the ladies and gentlemen entertained the company with a selection of readings and songs after which refreshments were served. H. C. Misner as master of ceremonies then called on the following to respond to toasts, which they did very pleasantly. F. Tiedt, Sr., the toast, welcome; W. Leman, Mount Nebo lodge; W. L. Davies, Washington and Lafayette. A general good time was enjoyed. The program was interspersed by instrumental music by Miss Lillian Losey and songs by others in the company up to half past twelve o'clock, when all bade their their host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. C. Misner, good night and went home feeling well repaid for having lost a part of their night's rest.

Mr. Fargo and Mr. O. Stuhr went to Red Lake Falls on business Wednesday.

Ole Tonson, barn boss on the Buffington farm, had his arm badly lacerated by a vicious stallion but is rapidly recovering under the skillful treatment of Dr. Chapin.

Mrs. W. P. and Norwood Davies of Angus were in the city Thursday.

Joseph Heard, representing H. W. Hackett of St. Paul, was in the city Thursday doing business with E. Taylor & Company.

Farm.

Mentor Items.

Our snow is mostly gone and the roads are in bad condition.

Seeding here we think will soon commence. We hear D. Overholt means to start on Monday 27th.

We are informed the lumber will be on the ground this week for the erection of a new Congregational church at Mentor, and the Ladies Aid has given $40.00 towards the new building. We think our ladies are doing remarkably well for the cause.

The entertainment which took place at D. Fulton's on Friday night of last week was well attended.

Our Mentor string band gave some very fine selections which were well rendered.

We see by the McIntosh Times that "Free Grist" is much concerned in the alcohol and beer business. Some say he is a real snipe. Some say he is a near relation, while others say he is no man at all. Will "Free Grist" explain himself how eggs can be shipped without being first packed, or has he some new way of shipping? MICK.

A California "big tree" has been selected in Tulare county to be shown at the Exposition. A committee of the board of trade, after an extended tour of inspection, picked out a tree measuring 87 feet 9 inches in circumference at the base, 85 feet five feet above the ground and 65 feet at a height if sixteen feet.

More than 180 exhibitors are chronicled from Philadelphia alone.

The "San Francisco Women's California Book Exhibit for the World's Fair," is the name of a society recently

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication March 31st, 1892.)
(Last publication May 12th, 1892.)

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Jennie Kelly and Alfred D. Kelly, her husband, Mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 25th day of October, A. D. 1886, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 29th day of October, A. D. 1886, at 4:15 o'clock p. m., in book 26 of mortgages, on pages 389 to 393; and

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $25.50 that became due October 25th, 1889; $25.50 that became due April 25th 1890; $25.50 that became due October 25th, 1890; $35.50 that became due April 25th, 1891, and $25.50 that became due October 25th, 1891.

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare and hereby does declare, the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to-wit: Ten hundred Nine and 60-100 ($1009.60) Dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The north-east quarter (ne¼) of section nineteen (19) Township one hundred forty-nine (149) Range forty-two (42), containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof, all of said premises situated and being in the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

Crookston, March 31, 1892.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

A Republican County Convention for the County of Polk will be held on Tuesday, April 5th, 1892, in the Court House in the City of Crookston, at one o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing nine delegates to the Republican State Convention, to be held in the city of St. Paul on Thursday, May 5th, 1892, and also for the purpose of electing nine delegates to the Republican Congressional Convention to be held at Morris on the 12th day of May, 1892, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the Convention.

The several election precincts are entitled to the following number of delegates, the basis of representation being one delegate for each organized town or precinct, and one additional delegate for each forty votes, or major fraction thereof, cast for the Republican candidate for President in 1888, viz.

The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, that no delegate will be admitted to a seat in the Convention unless such delegate resides in the town or precinct which he represents.

The foregoing call was agreed upon by the Republican County Committee, at a meeting held in the City of Crookston, March 11th, 1892.

A. A. MILLER, Secretary. A. D. STEPHENS, Chairman.

The citizens party met at the city hall on Thursday evening of last week and adopted the following platform:

We, the Citizen's party of the city of Crookston assembled in mass convention, this 23d day of March, 1892, hereby resolve and set forth the following declaration of principles, which we believe most conducive to the general welfare and prosperity of the city of Crookston.

First, in making this declaration of principles we respectfully call the attention of the electors of the city of Crookston to the present and previous administrations of our municipal affairs by representatives of our citizens party, with confidence that all who are cognizant of the past history of our city will agree with us that the policy of the Citizens' party wisely administered, is by far the most conducive to the good government of the city.

1st—We insist that national and state politics and party lines should be entirely foreign to the election of officers in city elections, as we believe that in such cases the election of officers should be controlled solely and entirely by the citizens irrespective of party affiliations, thus assuring the selection of representative men of the best ability, and not the tools of wire-pullers and professional politicians.

2d—That in view of an increasing demand in that respect and our natural resources and rapidly increasing population, we advocate the purchase by the city of suitable grounds in which to establish and maintain under the care and control of the city government a public park.

3d—We advocate the rigid enforcement of any and all ordinances now in force in the city, so far as the same are not opposed to public sentiment and we further advocate the immediate repeal of all ordinances so opposed and which are merely dead letters upon our book of ordinances.

4th—We demand a thorough and complete revision of our city charter and the ordinances passed thereunder to the end that the same shall meet the demands of the city and have the force and validity of law.

5th—We recommend that all cases where public work is to be performed for the city of Crookston preference shall be given to resident laborers and contractors, so far as the same may be.

6th—We further recommend the passage and enforcement of an ordinance prohibiting the dumping in Red Lake River, within the city limits and above the water works, of any garbage or refuse whatsoever, and the prohibition of the location or operation of any slaughter houses within said limits and that all rules and regulations now in force and relating to the public health be rigidly enforced.

7th—We would advise that the city council take immediate action to the end that a more just and equitable contract be obtained from the Crookston Water Works Power & Light Company, for the water and light furnished to the city.

We believing that they are competent, willing and will use their best efforts to carry out the principles of the Citizens' party as above set forth. We hereby ratify and confirm the nominations made at a convention of delegates of said party held at the city hall in Crookston, Minnesota, March 22d 1892, as follows:

For Mayor, William Anglim, for Alderman at Large, A. K. Austin; clerk, E. C. Carruth; treasurer, L. C. Couvrette; assessor, W. F. Arnold; constables, H. N. Tweten and Henry Shepard. Dated at Crookston, Minnesota this 24th day of March, 1892.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication March 31st, 1892.]
[Last publication May 12th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of Eight and 25-100 dollars ($8.25) which became due on the first day of December, A. D. 1889, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Edward L. Haven, an unmarried man, to John Milton Oliver, bearing date the 11th day of July, A. D. 1888, which mortgage, together with the power of sale therein contained was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the 16th day of July, A. D. 1888, at 11 o'clock and 45 minutes a. m. in Book 36 of Mortgages on pages 329 and 330.

It is provided in said mortgage that if said mortgagor shall fail to pay any part of the sum of money thereby secured at the time and in the manner specified in said mortgage, then upon such default, the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage, may at the option of the mortgagee be declared due and payable, and the said John Milton Oliver, mortgagee, who is now the legal holder of said mortgage and of the notes thereby secured, has elected and does hereby elect and declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage to be due, and there is claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of thirty-five and 84-100 dollars ($35.84) and no action or proceeding has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Wherefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-west quarter (nw¼) of Section number ten (10) in Township number one hundred and forty-nine (149) north, of Range forty-three (43) west of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres according to the government survey, in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereto belonging; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said County of Polk, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of that day at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest and taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated at Minneapolis, Minn., this 22d day of March, A. D. 1892.

[Last publication May 12th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of ten and 50-100 dollars ($10.50) which became due on the first day of October, A. D. 1890, upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Isaie Normandin and Philomene Normandin, his wife, to John Milton Oliver, bearing date the first day of October A. D. 1888, which mortgage together with the power of sale therein contained was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the first day of October, A. D. 1888, at 1 o'clock and 10 minutes p. m., in book [illegible] of mortgages on pages 112 and 113.

It is provided in said mortgage that if said mortgagors shall fail to pay any part of the sum of money thereby secured at the time and in the manner specified in said mortgage, then upon such default the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage, may at the option of the mortgagee be declared due and payable, and the said John Milton Oliver, mortgagee, who is now the legal holder of said mortgage and of the notes thereby secured, has elected and does hereby elect and declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage to be due, and there is claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-one and 70-100 dollars ($41.70) and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Wherefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-west quarter (nw¼) of Section twenty-five (25) in Township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of Range forty-five (45) west of the fifth principal meridian containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres according to the government survey, in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereto belonging, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said County of Polk at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston in said County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on SATURDAY, THE FOURTEENTH DAY OF MAY, A. D. 1892, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of that day at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest and taxes if any on said premises and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Moorhead Weekly News:—Mr. A. A. White returned from Duluth this morning to which city he went to investigate the mining boom. Mr. White has secured 16 leases covering about 1800 acres in the Messabi range. The leases run for one year, at the expiration of which the lessee can secure a 50-year contract on payment of $100 and 25 cents per ton for the ore that is mined from each tract. The point of richest development in the range is about 50 miles almost due north of Duluth. Parties going there take the railroad going to Tower and go by wagon from Messabi station. The country is in a bad condition to travel over, of course. Mr. White states that some of the companies that have been organized have merit and others havn't much. Money will be lost as well as made in this mineral boom, but the state will reap rich revenues.

FARMERS ARE IN IT

Cass County Tillers of the Soil Join the Farmers' Protective Elevator Company.

THEY WILL HANDLE THEIR OWN WHEAT BY MEANS OF COMPANY ELEVATORS AND AGENTS.

Fargo Weekly Argus.

Last year a number of farmers about Grand Forks organized themselves into a body known as the Red River Valley anti-monopoly protective association and from that body has grown the Northwestern Farmers Protective Elevator company, a meeting for the organization of which in Cass county was held in the rooms of the Gimle society on Front steet yesterday afternoon with the Hon. Henry Peterson in the chair.

It was a crowded room which Thomas Ulven of Grand Forks, general secretary and organizer of the company, rose to address on the aims and objects of the company. In brief his remarks are as follows:

The purpose for which this association is formed is by its own selected agents at Duluth to look after the interest of the farmers by sale, shipping and storage of thear wheat and other farm products.

To be elgible to membership a person must own or run a farm and pay a membership fee of three dollars.

The members of the association are divided into five districts, each represented by a delegate, who has to look after the business of the association in his respective district and meet with the directors at the semi-annual meeting of the association, at which a general business manager will be elected. The manager has to sell the wheat at the best posible advantage, carefully inspect weight and grade, order cars if asked to do so by a member and if the railroad companies do not furnish cars acordsng to law, he will notify the board of directors of such refusal or neglect. He has the right to hire the necessary help and together with the president he must try to protect the individual members.

The association shall not buy wheat or other produce, but only sell under instruction owner, and the order for payment must be made out in the name of the owner himself.

To cover expenses of the association, 1 cent per bushel of grain sold goes into its treasury.

At every general meeting, commitees are appointed to formulate the diferent questions that will come up for action, nominate officers and also discuss the plan for building an elevator at Duluth at some time in the near future.

The officers of the association must not create debt without such action having been taken at the previous general meeting.

Postal cards giving the market price must be sent to the different stations as often as thought necessary.

The agents at Duluth or any other place must not handle the wheat or farm product of others than members; a penalty shall be prescribed for the violation this rule. Members are also subject to penalty for sending other than their own products.

The members tributaty to the different railroad stations may take such action as they find necessary among themselves, elect their own district officers, fix a place for displaying their quotation card and see that representatives attend the general meeting without any expense to the association.

When elevators are erected the surrounding members are themselves responsible for such agents as they may employ to receive and ship their products.

It is the duty of every member to work for the prosperity and progress of the association, and every member has at any time the right to inspect the books of the officers. When a member ships wheat to the agents of the association he must notify such agent of the quality of such wheat.

One leading object to be secured by the association will be to secure the shipment of the pure No. 1 hard wheat, without any opportunity of mixing it, directly to the English market and by thus establishing their grades there secure the highest market prices, amounting in many instances to quite a percentage over that of the mixed wheat usually shipped there. Many of the members of the association have large farms with extensive tracts of grain, and it is claimed that the association will probably be able to control three to five million bushels a year. The association has one receiving elevator at Ada, Minn., and is building another at Perley. It is probable several more will be erected this year at leading shipping points.

A lengthy discussion in which all of those present took part then ensued. When each had had his say Hon. Smith Stimmel moved that it was the sense of the meeting to approve of the scheme for the organization of Farmer's Protective Elevator association, which motion was unanimously carred. Secretary Ulven here produced the stock subscription sheets and obtained signatures for fifty-eight shares of stock amounting to $1,450. Chairman Peterson will appoint a committee of one in each township to solicit subscription to the stock.

The Cordage Trust's Rival.

The Belfast Cordage Company Preparing to Enter the Field.

Minneapolis Journal.

New York, March 25.—It will not be the fault of the Belfast Cordage Company, a concern that introduced itself into this country less that two months ago, if the back of the cordage trust is not broken before many months, and the farmers of the country enabled to indulge in a jubilee. It is currently reported in circles that are supposed to know, that the Irish concern, which is one of the biggest cordage houses in the world, is making arrangements to bring to this country several entire steamer loads of binding twine, and that negotiations have been all but completed for the lease of several "trans" steamers for this purpose. If this intention is carried out there will be fun in binding twine circles, and the Belfast house is not likely to get the worst of it.

The intentions of the cordage trust toward the trade continue to be a mystery. A month ago it was given out that prices would be fixed this week, but it is now stated that nothing will be done in that diretion for at least another month. Meanwhile the warehouses of jobbers and dealers throughout the country are empty, and are absolutely unable to make any contracts or sales for future delivery, and a small army of traveling salesman employed by the trust is drawing its salary and taking life easy, while the farmers are on the ragged edge of uncertainty and unable to make even a guess of what a day may bring forth. It is said that this dilatory tactics of the trust are due to the fact that they are about completing negotiations for taking in the only three houses of any account that are still outside their ropes, and that when this is accomplished a price will be fixed for binding twine for the coming season that will make the hair of the farmers stand on end and disturb their sleep.

Pope Leo XIII has written a letter strongly commending the Exposition which it is believed will have a most favorable effect in stimulating interest in the Fair on the part of all Catholic countries and communities.

CAPITAL GOSSIP.

(Special Correspondence).

WASHINGTON, D. C. March 26th 1892.

The Democratic majority in this congress avowedly set out with the intention of making a record of so-called economy for political effect, and with the prince of Cheese-parers, Holman, at the head of the appropriations committee it was reasonable to suppose that some success in that direction would be attained. But it is now apparent that the only reduction accomplished will be at the expense of the public service, and of our Naval growth. In the Sundry Civil Bill as reported to the house, Mr. Holman has lessened the aggregate over that of last year by cutting off a few clarks, and scrubwomen here and there, and by striking out most of the appropriations for public buildings. But this narrow policy is not real economy. In all places where public buildings are projected the Government is renting more or less unsuitable quarters at a very high price. Right here in Washington Government bureaus are distributed arouno in various private buildings and parts of buildings at an annual rental which is mighty big interest on the amount required to erect suitable quarters for all those growing department. But this is the democratic idea of economy and good business management. It has the outward appearance of saving a few dollars and expected to do service for campaign effect.

The only other place in which the appropriations are likely to be perceptibly reduced is in the provisions for continuing work on our new Navy and and coast defenses. It may not be many months before democratic shortsightedness in this respect is brought home to the country with terrible effect. If war with Great Britain should result from the present differences over the tendency of Canadian poachers to steal our seals, our commerce and seaport cities would be almost entirely at the mercy of English gunboats. During the past six years we have made a fair beginning towards the building up of a navy corresponding with our importance among the nations of the earth, but it is only a beginning. Our navy is still much weaker than that of any other great power, and wolud have barely overtopped that of little Chili had a conflict occurred. As against the British Navy ours is "not in it." Under such circumstances it requires a good deal of courage to twist the lion's tail in the manner President Harrison has done. Had we such Coast Defenses and such a navy as we ought to have, Lord Salisbury and all the rest of them would be exceedingly cautious how they tread on our coat tail. One or two hundred millions expended in such equipment would be well invested if they saved the country from a single war. It is much easier to spunk up and show your spirit when you are conscious of abundant strength, and the other big boys are less likely to interfere with you when they know they are pretty sure to get the worst of it.

Speaking of war, great prepartions are being made for the Grand Army of the Republic Encampment here next September. It will undoubtedly be the greatest reunion in the history of that organization. President Harrison in a message to congress recommending an appropriation of one hundred thousand dollars towards the expenses of entertainment, etc. says, "The event is one of nationel interest, and the attendance of surviving Union soldiers will probably be larger than at any encampment that has ever been held. The parade of the survivors of our great armies on Pensylvania Avenue will bring vividly back those joyful and momentous days when the great armies of the East and West marched through the streets of Washington, in high parade, and were received by our citizens with joyful acclaim." General Palmer, Commander in Chief, said recently that he found on a tour through several states great enthusiasm and other indications of an outpouring of the masses such as has never taken place since the grand review of 1865. The correspondence of the committee of Arrangements is exceedingly voluminous, and their headquarters a busy plece.

The Board of Lady Managers is making arrangments for an extensive exhibit showing woman's share in the illustration of books, in engraivng and other forms of picture production. During her recent visit to New York Mrs. Palmer consulted with a number of publishers and received considerable assistance from them. A list of distinguished woman illustrataors was secured and plans set on foot to obtain old volume and manuscripts illustrated by woman together with historical data concerning woman's share in this line of work from ancient time down to the present.

The "San Francisco Women's California Book Exhibit for the World's Fair," is the name of a society recently organized in San Francisco. The object of the socity is to collect a complete library of books by California writers, files of papers, scrapbook scattered papers and sketches worthy of preservation. These will be taken to Chicago and exhibited during the Fair. After the Exposition the collection will be given to the Golden Gate Pard Museum.

	3 Northern	53.

Wheat is up one cent this week.

A. A. Miller has gone to Chicago.

See Charlie Vine for choice meats of all kinds.

Knute Opheim was up from Fertile on Tuesday.

Dave Hatlestad has returned from his Iowa trip.

O. J. Barnes has gone east for business and pleasure.

Miss Celeste Cronkhite goes to Marshall County to teach.

Quite a snow-storm on Sunday night and Monday morning.

A. G. Gallasch was up from St. Paul on business on Monday.

The Red River is reported to be banks full and slopping over at Grand Forks.

Charley Vine is kept as busy as a bee cutting up meats to supply his increasing trade.

E. M. Stanton returned from Wisconsin on Wednesday morning to find that he is the father of a fine boy.

Dr. Watson and Frank E. Hunt came down from Red Lake Falls to attend the Republican convention on Tuesday.

Last Sunday Rev. H. F. McDonald, the new Baptist pastor, was greeted with large audiences. Hereafter there will be morning and evening service each Sunday.

"Do you know" that J. W. Wheeler has money to loan at reasonable rates and no long waits for the money to come from some place? He has it on hand ready for delivery as soon as the papers are made out.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs has secured the services of an accomplished and artistic trimmer from Chicago, and invites our lady readers to call. Opening day tomorrow, from 2 till 10 p. m.

We go to press too early to give the figures in Tuesday,s election. The ticket, made in the good old-fashioned way, where everybody had an equal voice in making it, won by good majorities.

R. A. Wilkinson came down from Hallock on Tuesday evening and went down to Fertile, on route for Red Lake Falls to arrange for right of way through that city. He says that the Pelican Rapids branch will be completed to Red Lake Falls this summer.

Will Carr, whose illness was noted in these columns last week, died on Monday afternoon and his remains were sent to St. Catherines, his birthplace, for burial. He was 19 years old and a general favorite with all who knew him. He leaves a father, mother and one sister (Mrs. Charles Vine) to mourn his death.

Mr. E. Winslow, of Liberty, gave The Journal a pleasant call on Monday. Says he has plowed about 12 acres this spring. He left with us a notice in relation to the disappearance of two ponies from his place last week. One of the ponies, the one marked like a circus pony, used to be owned by John Baumann of this city.

A week or so since the Norman County Herald thought it had a huge joke on The Journal, but in its last issue perpetrates one on itself that might be serious if followed up. We would advise the Herald man to read the postal laws more carefully in relation to what constitutes a supplement to a newspaper.

The services at the Congregational church next Sabbath on time at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Mr. Battey will speak in the morning on "After the Election—What?" and in the evening the subject will be "Do You Mean It?" A cordial invitation to the city officers and all citizens to attend the morning service. All strangers welcome. Young people come to the evening service.

A meeting of the women of Polk County will be held at the Reading Room in Crookston, Friday, April 15th 1892, at 7:30 p.m., for the purpose of forming an organization to be called The Polk County Woman's Auxiliary to the World's Fair. All its women are urgently invited to attend. By order of the 7th District committee—(Signed) Chrissie C. Stephens, Crookston, March 31st 1892.

M. R. Brown supposed when he arrived with that last lot of horses that he had the demand pretty well supplied, but such did not prove to be the case for they were all sold off in a few days and back he went to Iowa for another load which will be here this week. One secret of it is that Brown will not bring up anything that does not suit his fancy and Brown is a good judge of horse-flesh. Be sure to see what Brown has before you buy.

MRS. E. E. BANGS

Will have her millinery opening on Friday, April 8th, from 2 p. m. to 10 p.m. She will have all the novelties in millinery on exhibition. The ladies of Crookston and vicinity are cordially invited to call.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs,
No. 9, Second street, Crookston.

Crookston Honored.

The Democratic convention at St. Paul last week paid Crookston the compliment of selecting her mayor, Alexander McKinnon, as a delegate to the Chicago convention.

The millinery firm of Veronneau & Adams, on Second street, advertise their opening days on Thursday and Friday of this week. Miss Veronneau has recently returned from Chicago where she selected an entirely new stock of all the latest styles and oh, such elegant ribbons and flowers as she did get sets the average female heart in a flutter of delight. She also spent some time posting up on the latest styles and our lady readers may rest assured of securing as neat and complete a hat as she could in Chicago. Call and see.

The Republican convention met pursuant to call on Tuesday at 1 o'clock. Owing to the storm none of the delegates from the west side were present and few from the east.

The following delegates were elected to attend the congressional convention at Morris on Wednesday, May 4th: Hugh Thompson, E. O. Flanders, S. S. Stadsvold, Frank E. Hunt, Ole Dahl, A. N. Hixon, T. G. Thompson, Geo. H. Palmer and E. P. Pierce; and to the State convention on May 5th: R. J. Montague, H. L. Falk, O. Osmondson, Norman Hanson, J. D. Marshall, Ole Lukkasson, Frank Hawkins, A. A. Miller and I. O. Hillestad. The following resolution was reported by the committee on resolutions:

We, the Republican Party of Polk County, Minnesota, in convention, assembled at Crookston this 5th day of April, 1892, do hereby affirm our faith in the principles of the Republican Party, as enunciated by its National Platform.

We heartily endorse the able, patriotic and conservative administration of President Harrison and firmly believe that the interests of the Republic as also the interests of the Republican Party would be well subserved by his re-election.

We especially commend the department of state for its dignified, able and thoroughly American management of our foreign affairs.

We believe in using silver as a medium of exchange to the limit of financial safty, but oppose its free and unlimited coinage.

We favor the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

We deprecate all class legislation as dangerous in precedent and contrary to the spirit of our Republican institutions and believe that the best interests of the agricultural as of all other classes will be best subserved by the Republican party.

R. J. Montague,
Chairman.
E. D. Childs,
Secretary.

C. O. Christianson attended a meeting of the Republican League in Minneapolis last week and reports a big attendance. One evening while sitting in the rotunda at the West his attention was attracted to a group of gentlemen who were discussing the McKinley bill and the remarks of one in particular struck him, as the gentleman appeared to be a foreigner and he was telling the others the good effects the bill would have in compelling capital from the old country to seek American shores for investment. Said he: "Our company will make an exhibit at the World's Fair and will then put in a plant here at a cost of at least a half million and this may result in the establishment of half a dozen more. I tell you, you Americans do not seem to half appreciate the full significance of that bill, but I firmly believe that ere long you will see it." Speaking of cigarette making a gentleman asked him how he could figure out that cigarettes could be manufactured here, where labor is high, to compete with those made in the old country when labor is cheap? "well," said he, "you know that girls are employed in that business and in our country a girl gets very little wages and is not expected to do very much and she does not. Why, it is a fact that I have noticed frequently that one girl in a factory here will actually accomplish as much work in a day as ten girls will in the old country factories and the wages of the girl in your factory is only about double that of the old country factory girl and there is a proportionate difference in other branches of the business in your favor." After the conversation broke up and the gentlemen moved off Christianson asked one of them who that gentleman was, who spoke so highly of the McKinley bill and was told that he was a Turk, a representative of large manufacturing interests in his country. So it would seem that if the average American can see no good to him in the McKinley bill that foreigners can. Besides discussing the McKinley bill the gentlemen also spoke of the probable nominee for president, when the gentleman from Turkey said: "I was talking not long since with one of the most noted men in Paris and he said, 'There are living to-day only five great statesmen and at their head stands James G. Blaine, of Maine, U. S. A.,' and gentlemen, I believe the old Parisian was right about that."

Charlie Vine is not doing any bragging but he is just simply selling the choicest cuts in the market. Try him.

Church building and school remonstrance have been the main topic the past week.

Strong talk at present of a new store at Mentor.

The glee club gave their weekly entertainment at Mr. W. Marston's on Saturday evening. A chairman with a good programme was appointed. The leading speech on "Cousin John with his Bay Horse and White Hat" was given by Mr. Dalrymple to a laughing audience. A grand supper was given by the ladies. The music was good and sweet, but an explosion of one of the instruments caused a silence. Proceeds, $10. Mick.

Spring work will be put back by the bad storm we have been having lately, yet it did not stop the weddings that were on hand. On Thursday, March 31st, at the residence of the bride's parents by the Rev. A. G. Washington, James J. Tice to Miss Lilly Robinson. We wish the young couple all kinds of luck with plenty of this world's goods and eternal happiness in the world to come. Patsy.

Mr. Edgar Drinkwine and Miss Rose Ford were united in wedlock April 3d, 1892, at the residence of Mr. Marshall Magee, where a number of friends were assembled in honor of the event. The ceremony was performed by G. M. Swift, J. P. All present enjoyed the good things provided by the hostess. Mr. Drinkwine is one of our town boys and Miss Ford one of Crookston's ladies, engaged to teach our school for nine months, but as she has only taught six and a half months Mrs. Edgar Drinkwine will finish the term while Mr. Drinkwine is preparing their future home upon the reservation which will be opened for settlers the 15th of this month. May peace, prosperity and happiness be theirs to enjoy all their life. G. M. S.

The parties who wrote the articles in the McIntosh Times, signed "Free Grist," don't need to talk about sound judgment, although it seems to have taken those "free grists" a long time to make up their minds what to write about. We wonder where their judgment was. In the first place they say the party signed "Mentor Grip" and "Mick." We would like "Free Grist" to understand that the "Grippe" does not need any help to say what he wants to say, as is the case with "Free Grist. But we suppose you have heard the old saying, "two heads are better than one even if one of them is a sheep's head." Secondly, he says "Grippe" said he didn't know who was the biggest fool. He didn't say "fool," but if the fool's hat fits him better let him wear it. In the third place, those parties speak of strong insinuations, but if they want any names mentioned Grippe is just the boy that can do it, and that without bribing anyone. But we should think Free Grist might find a better partner for the firm than one who would tell all he knows for a cigar, as was the case not long ago. Then they talk about beer. There won't be much beer unloaded at Mentor but what Free Grist or one of the firm knows it, but Grippe would defy Free Grist or any other person to say that he ever ordered a keg of beer since he came to this part of the country, nor has he ever experienced any loss by swiping. But Free Grist seems to know more about beer than the man who makes it. When Grippe wants a drink of beer he can get it and pay for it too; he don't have to swipe it—he is not whiskey sucker enough for that yet. Would Free Grist just think whether he helped to swipe that keg of beer he spoke of last summer or was it winter they got it. The beer must have been rather stale if they kept it till summer. Mentor Grippe.

For particulars call at Journal office. [59-52]

A Noted Battlefield.

Take up your atlas and find Paducah Kentucky. At this point the Ohio is joined by the Tennessee River. Follow this stream southward—and it is directly south—across the state of Kentucky and Tennessee. You note on the way, instead of towns the names of numerous "landing." Hardin is the last county before you reach the southern boundary of Tennessee. In the western part of this county you note "Pittsburg landing." A little further southwest "Shilohville." Both places are now in country solitude, but thirty years ago day before yesterday, there were more than two hundred thousand men there engaged in a desperate battle that raged for two days with varying fortunes. You pass men on the street who had for reveille the rebel yell, as the confeds charged down in the morning, men who lay that night under the river bank at the "landing," and men who marched with Buell to reinforce Grant's army. Get them to tell you the story, and then go on a trip to the field, taking The Burlington from St. Paul or Minneapolis. For tickets, rates and information, address W. J. C. Kenyon, St. Paul, Minn., Gen. Pass. Agent.

Next week The Journal completes the 15th year. It is one of the few papers in the State, and the only paper in Northern Minnesota that has continued from the initial number until the completion of its 15th year under the same management. The past is passed and we cannot improve on that and while we have striven to make The Journal an ever welcome visitor to your homes we have not always had the facilities at hand to make it all we could wish, still, as we close the book on volume 15 it is with a feeling of pride that we look at the list of names of those who are constant readers of The Journal, and it is with a feeling of satisfaction that we review the year's business when we note the fact that that business has placed in our hands almost enough to pay for the contemplated improvements. As an earnest of what these improvements will be we mention the fact that we have negotiated for one of the latest improved styles of the Potter press, costing $1700, a gasoline engine costing $350, a power cutter, $180, and type and material enough to bring the whole amount up pretty close to $3,000. We have not taken in all that money yet, but if all who have promised to do so pay us when they agreed we shall come pretty near starting up the new outfit out of debt. We have also under contemplation other changes that will be to the benefit of our patrons of which we will speak later. Meanwhile we are putting in every minute there is in getting the new outfit ready for business. Though we have been delayed by the weather we still hope to be able to start the new volume on the new press and with the new type.

A Card.

Readers of The Journal and all others who read The Message for March saw a 12-page paper full of live thoughts for thinking people. The April number of The Message was mailed on April 2d. Here is a little "bill of fare" which we will in the April number present to our kind friends and hungry readers:

1st PAGE.

Editorial paragraphs on Our Aim, Ruling Children, the Christian Spirit, Country Sunday Schools, Class Exhibition on Sunday, Drones in Churches, Words to Young Women, etc., etc.; also an original poem by a young lady of Crookston, and a life lesson on Going Across Lots.

2nd PAGE.

Under The School Workers, words of the editor about System, How to Measure Pupils' Attainments, Aim in Teaching, Power of the Teacher's Example, Thoroughness, Gentleness, That Bad Boy, etc. Also, If I Were a Boy Again, Woman's Dangerous Age, and, Hope for the Indian.

3rd PAGE.

Poem, How Long, O Lord! by Dr. McArthur. In prose—Samples Demanded, Why Do You Do It? Speckled Chickens, The Higher Criticism as Explained by Itself, and numerous other things full of best thought and entertainment.

4th PAGE.

Devoted to The Home, a poem on I Will Not Doubt Thee. Prose articles on 12 thrilling short subjects, among which is one by Canon Farrar on Woman.

5th PAGE.

Sorrow's soliloquy, a poem; I Am vs. I Have Been, by an aged minister, and Gems of Thought, being single sentences by eminent authors.

6th PAGE.

Editorial, and a quiver full of loca arrows gaming for advertisers.

7th PAGE.

Church page—Calendars of about 20 churches of 8 different creeds. Also items of last month and plans for April in these various churches.

8th PAGE.

More personal responsibility, by a layman of the Baptist church, Crookston; A Girl's Sphere—the first of a series of articles about young people by the editor; and how the Ladies' Home Journal educates girls free at Vassar college.

9th PAGE.

Young People's page, very aptly opens with Questions, in poem.

"Can you put the spider's web back in its place,
that once has been swept away?
Can you put the apple again on the bough, which fell at your feet to-day?" Etc.

10th PAGE.

The Deacon's Sermon, Does Alcohol Warm Us, and other practical articles on temperance. Real weapons these are for earnest temperance thinkers and workers.

11th PAGE.

Christian Endeavor, a perfect drama of the good works and vigorous labors of these Endeavorers and Epworth League workers all over the city and country.

12th PAGE.

Contains some new advertisements which help to make it attractive to The Message for April.

Please do not put the sample copy sent you back in the post office. Read it and subscribe before April 10th for 50 cts. a year. After April 10th, 75 cts. to all except in clubs.

Marshall County Leader:—THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL is putting in a big new press and other things that evidence the growing prosperity of that valuable Red River paper.

St. Paul News:—The Lanesboro Journal says the political deal mapped out by Gov. Merriam, Knute Nelson Jim Hill and others will result in the defeat of the party if it is allowed to be consummated in the convention. In contemplation of the scheme, the Journal thus soliloquizes. "Oh, ye gods, what cheek! They think it is a presidential year, and that their money bags will carry them though. The people may as well open their eyes; they will have to fight this unholy combination, and may it receive the black eye it deserves.

Douglas County Sentinel:—"It will do the big Twin City political bosses no good to undertake to defeat the will of the people by sharp wire-pulling this year. they will only set up pins to be knocked down by those who are getting tired of such practices. Merriam, Davis and Washburn have served the state of Minnesota with credit to themselves and the people, but they, or their henchmen, have no cinch on the state or on the people. This fact will be demonstrated if they undertake to run things contrary to the expressed wish of the large majority of the republican voters of this state."

Euclid Items.

Frost is out deep enough for plowing but the land is too wet to commence operations yet.

Fred Tiedt tells a good joke which happened to himself some time since while doing business in Angus. A young farmer with a skittish horse drove up to the railway crossing and tried to cross, but the horse would not venture onto the track but kept dancing around in a frightful manner. So Fred, like the gallant young gentleman that he is, quickly approached the couple and offered his assistance to the lady which was gladly accepted. The lady wished to take the train and handed Fred her satchel and a small bundle done up in a shawl which Fred put under his arm and carried to the depot. When the lady ascended the platform of the coach she told Fred in a jovial voice to toss up the bundle, which he hastily did. There was a shriek from the lady, a frozen circle round the heart of the gentleman and an infant landed safely in the arms of its mother.

The first wedding wholly in the city of Euclid occurred here last Wednesday evening. Mr. George A. Nelson and Miss Nellie Losey were joined in holy wedlock by the bride's venerable father who officiated as justice of the peace. Among the wedding guests were Mr. Albert Losey, of the Crookston post-office, and deputy sheriff Marvin Losey, also of Crookston. The house was crowded with the friends of the happy couple and they spent an enjoyable which was none the less enjoyable on account of the shivaree, which was all very well with the exception of the mud-throwing which was participated in by a few insignificant small boys. The presents were valuable and also numerous and all may be immediately put to use. At 12 o'clock the company broke up, and after wishing the bride and groom a long and happy life, departed, leaving the young couple to begin life's journey together. George is a thoroughly good business man and has done away with the old-time practice of taking a bridal tour; he will move out in the country shortly and make an honorable farmer of himself.

Mr. Van Pelt, representing C. Gotzain's noted wholesale boot and shoe establishment of St. Paul, was doing business in town last week.

Several farmers attempted threshing but gave it up as a bad job until after seeding.

Mr. M. Davis has recovered from his la grippe and made a business trip to Crookston Thursday.

P. Fairweather made a trip to Crookston last week.

The town has received a carload of lumber for building bridges and repairing culverts.

A missionary tea was held at the residence of E. B. Ballues last Thursday evening. An enjoyable time was reported.

A five minutes look through a telescope north or south of the Great Northern depot will convince anyone that the hobo season has indeed arrived.

Difficulties have arisen between the teacher and pupils of late. This thing ought to be looked into. Let us have difficulties in any other place but in the school.

One Pure Baking Powder.

Which the Legislature and State Chemists Endorse, Dealers Sell, and Consumers Use with Impunity.

The Health authorities of Minnesota are proceeding to enforce the law against the alum baking powders sold in violation thereof. From the long list of such powders published in the official report of the State Food and Dairy Commission, it is apparent that the officers will be kept pretty busy in the future.

It is asserted that every baking powder sold in the state of Minnesota, with the exception of the "Royal," contains lime, alum or sulphuric acid. The official repots likewise show that a gross deception is practiced against consumers by the false labels placed upon some of the inferior brands of baking powders. These labels state that the powders do not contain lime, alum, etc., while the Government tests show such substances actually present in their composition. This is a very serious offence, and the prosecuting authorities will of course take cognizationce of it.

Meantime, the great army of consumers will go along complacently using the Royal Baking Powders—the old reliable, "absolutely pure"—which State Analyst Drew and the Food and Dairy Commission give evidence that they have found from official tests to be of the highest character as to purity, wholesomeness and leavening strength, and which is always sold for what it is, with out falsehood, prevarication or misstatement.

With the April number the Review of Reviews enters upon its second year. It has had an exceptional, if not an altogether unique, history. One year ago it was known only to a few discriminating readers, and its subscription list and news-stad sales required only a few thousand copies. Its edition the prsent month is 70,000 copies, and it is eagerly read in every State and Territory in the Union abd in every part of Canada. No extraordinary effort have been made to push the magazine. There has been very little canvassing done for it; no chromos have been given to its subscribers; no special inducements, such as an encyclopædia or a parlor organ thrown in as a gratuity or offered at half price, have been offered by the publishers. The magazine has grown to an enormous circulation and to commanding influence simply upon its merits. Its readers have liked it therefore recommended it to their friends. It owes not a little to the newspapers of the country, which have appreciated the journalistic enterprise and vigor and the enormous amount of hard, honest labor put into every number, and which have most heartily recommended it to their readers. While working in the closest co-operation with the English Review of Reviews, edited by Mr. W. T. Stead in London, the American Review is a distinct magazine, wholly and entirely edited, printed and published in New York, and in the fullest sence of the word as much an American periodical as Mr. Stead's London edition is an English periodical. The general aims and purposes, plans and methods, of the two magazens are identical, and each has the fullest access in advance to all the materials and illustrations prepared for the other. The American Review, being somewhat larger and higher priced, is more profusely illustrated. It has 20 or 30 more pages each month than the London edition. Its bound volumes, covering the past year, are a wonderful history of current action and thought, and a marvelous portrait gallery containing the faces of seven or eight hundred people of contemporary note, representing all parts of the world.

Trusts and Stock Exchanges.

Duluth Weekly News.

The big monopolies and trusts, such as the Standard Oil company, the Sugar Trust, the type founder's trust and others of the same class, cannot survive. The people are becoming aroused at the startling and steady advance of combinations and trusts and when the people grow united and earnest they always accomplish what they undertake. The rapid formation of public opinion that the time for action against monopoly and trust has come is a worning that will not pass unheeded by the men who control them. One of the potent influences at work now is the effect the popular movement is having upon trust certificates. That the purchasers and dealers in stocks are watching public opinion and using its expression in their business is veay evident.

The last letter of Henry Clews, on the Wall street situation says:

The monopoly issues have introduced an element of uncertainty in the stock market which calls for special caution on the part of exchange itself in admitting indiscriminately so-called securities to its list. Public opinion is becoming more and more decidedly hostile to whatever form of organization conspires to defeat free competition. Congress and the state legislatures find it necessary to respect this determined attitude of the people, and at no distant time the laws will be so framed that nowhere in this country will any form of corporation which aims to exersise the powers of a monopoly be able to exist under the ægis of the law. The attempts of the trusts to evade the penalties of their illegality by organizing under the loosest form of legalization to be found under state laws will become futile. The law will be constructed with a simple purpose of preventing the defeat of competition by monopolies, and that form of prohibition will be made to apply to any and every form of organization. Of this there can be no reasonable doubt.

With this prospect before our monopolies, what is the market status of their immense issues? Many of them are already illegal, and the others are destined to become so. When that result comes, the profits they are now making out of an excusive control of prices will disappear. It requires little foresight to discover that these issues constitute a most formidable danger in the future of the stock market. Any day, a new law or a desision of the supreme court of the United States may within twenty-four hours wipe out tens of millions of the market value of this illegitimate scrip, with consequence of the most far-reaching character.

When the stock or certificats of trusts canot be sold on the stock exchanges their promoters will go out of business.

Wagons are rolling around in the mud at present as the roads are very bad.

Our blacksmith got a lot of plow outfits but found he was short six lays. He thinks he will find them.

Our Maple Bay stage is jogging along on wheels with the mail. Hugh says "By gum, the roads are a terror!"

Charley Stone had the misfortune to drown one of his oxen in the slough near Child's camp at Woodside. Charley says the last he saw of him was one hind foot as he disappeared beneath the ice.

We were at the Fertile mill the other day where we were very kindly treated and accepted an invitation to dine with the family of Mr. F. Sobler. This gentleman thinks he is improving and we hope to see him around amongst us once more.

If you want the best loaf of bread you ever tasted buy the Fertile roller mill straight flour and you can have it. We believe under the skilfull hand of Otto Kankel and the wheat produced in this locality that the Red River Valley cannot beat it. A gentleman said to me the other day that he had worked in the largest mill in Minnesota and they could not make such flour. On being asked why, he answered "They have not the Maple Lake country wheat to make it of."

There are a few prairie wolves about here. One of them has his careful eye on Mr. Wm. Klinger's flock of sheep.

Joseph Sauve returned last week from Canada where he spent some weeks visiting friends and relatives. While there he purchased four grade Clyde mares which are as fine as your correspondent ever saw in this vicinity. He also purchased several bee hives filled with the busy workers and will try raising honey in Polk County.

This week Irael Laframboise returned bringing with him a fine imported Clyde stallion, four fine Clyde mares grades, (also the four belonging to Mr. Sauve) a thoroughbred Cottswold ram and some fine chickens and geese. He was nine days on the way owing to the strike on the C. P. R. and had a narrow escape from burning his car which caught fire one night from his lantern. Mr. L. was accompanied by a young man who will work on his farm this summer while he decides how he likes this country. He says that many are interested and would come if they could sell out there. He expects some to come later in the season to look the country over.

Our alliance met on the 24th to elect officers. Julian Sauve was elected president, C. T. Barnaas secretary and the old treasurer, O. Sauve. The question of merging our alliance into the Peoples Party was brought up for discussion and did not meet with universal approval. We are of the opinion that our interests can better be subserved by and through the old alliance which we do understand than by starting in on a new scheme which we do not understand.

World's Fair Notes.

Denmark has maide a World's Fair appropriation of $67,000.

A communication has been received from the British Commission asking for space to exhibit the rifle calibre gun manufactured by the Maxim-Nordenfeldt Gun company. The company wants to erect a building 80x50 feet to exhibit its guns in practice. One end of the building will be filled with sand bags, into which the projectiles of the gun will be fired. It is claimed that the arrangements are such as will insure perfect safety, and will be reproductions of a similar exhibit recently given at the Royal Naval Exposition in London. The request was referred to Chief Willard Smith of the Transportation Department, as the exhibit if allowed will come under the head of naval and marine display.

A very complete, and doubtless an eye-opening diamond exhibit, will be maide by Cape Colony, South Africa. The exhibit will inclune 10,000 carats of uncut stones, a large quantity of very fine cut and polished ones, together with all that is necessary to show the process of mining and washing. For this it will be necessary to transport to Chicago 100 tons of pulverized blue earth, 50 tons of unpulverized earth and a compleat washing machine, which will be operated by natives. The exhibit will also include a unique collection of crocidolite, special diamondiferous products, ostrich feathers, fleeces etc. It is reported that a Bushman and Hottentot in native dress will accompany the exhibit.

A continuous clam-bake will be one of the attractions which epicurean visitors will find at the Exposition.

Harper Bros., Scribner & Sons and the Century company have agreed to exhibit at the Fair illustrations showing the history of transpotation in all countries. Chief Smith expects to secure similar exhibits from foreign countries and from other publishers in this country. The exhibit will include reproductions of lithographs, original drawing and photographs.

To World's Fair committee of the North American Turner Bund has made a personal application to Director General Davis for space for a display of gymnastic apparatus literature on the subject of physical exercise and development, and representations of gymnastic organizations as well as for outdoor gymnastic exhibitions, which the turners desire to give eight days in each month during the Exposition.

Notice of Mortgage Forclosure Sale.

[First publication March 31st, 1892.]
[Last publication May 12th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of ten and 50-100 dollars ($10.50) which became due on the first day of October A. D. 1890, upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Isaie Normandin and Philomene Normandin, his wife, to John Milton Oliver, bearing date the first day of October A. D. 1888, which mortgage together with the power of sale therein contained was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the first day of October A. D. 1888, at 1 o'clock and 10 minutes p. m., in book 40 of mortgages on pages 112 and 113.

It is provided in said mortgage that if said mortgagors shall fail to pay any part of the sum of money thereby secured at the time and in the manner specified in said mortgage, then upon such default, the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage, may at the option of the mortgagee be declared due and payable, and the said John Milton Oliver, mortgagee, who is now the legal holder of said mortgage and of the notes thereby secured, has elected and does hereby elect and declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage to be due, and there is claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-one and 70-100 dollars ($41.70) and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Wherefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-west quarter (nw¼) of Section twenty-five (25) in Township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of Range forty-five (45) west of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres according to the government survey, in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereto belonging; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said County of Polk, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston in said County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on SATURDAY, THE FOURTEENTH DAY OF MAY, A. D. 1892, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest and taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated at Minneapolis, Minn., this [illegible] day of March, A. D. 1892.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication March 31st, 1892.]
[Last publication May 12th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Nils S. Nilson and Cecilia S. Nilson, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 24th day of December, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of January, A. D. 1889, at 10:45 o'clock a. m., in book 43 of mortgages, on page 455; and

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $22.75 that became due June 24th, 1889, $22.75 that became due December 24th, 1889, $22.75 that became due June 24th, 1890, and $22.75 that became due December 24th, 1890, $22.75 that became due June 24th, 1891, and $22.75 that became due December 24th, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to-wit: eight hundred twenty-one and 71-100 ($821.71) Dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The south half (s½) of the north east quarter (ne¼) and the west half (w½) of south-east quarter (se¼) of Section two (2) Township one hundred and forty-seven (147), Range forty (40), containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof. All of said premises situated and being in the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston in said County and State, on the 15th day of May, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication March 31st, 1892.]
[Last publication May 12th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of Eight and 25-000 dollars ($8.25) which became due on the first day of December, A. D. 1889, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Edward L. Haven, an unmarried man, to John Milton Oliver, bearing date the 11th day of July, A. D. 1888, which mortgage, together with the power of sale therein contained was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the 18th day of July A. D. 1888, at 11 o'clock and 45 minutes a. m., in Book 36 of Mortgages on pages 329 and 330.

It is provided in said mortgage that if said mortgagor shall fail to pay any part of the sum of money thereby secured, at the time and in the manner specified in said mortgage, then upon such default, the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage, may at the option of the mortgagee be declared due and payable; and the said John Milton Oliver, mortgagee, who is now the legal holder of said mortgage and of the notes thereby secured, has elected and does hereby elect and declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage to be due, and there is claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of thirty-five and 84-100 dollars ($35.84) and no action or proceeding has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof;

Wherefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-west quarter (nw¼) of Section number ten (10) in Township number one hundred and forty-nine (149) north, of Range forty-three (43), west of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres according to the government survey, in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereto belonging; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said County of Polk, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on SATURDAY, THE FOURTEENTH DAY OF MAY, A. D. 1892, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of that day at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated at Minneapolis, Minn., this 22d day of March, A. D. 1892.

(Special Correspondence).

WASHINGTON, D. C. April—, 1892.

The public men and politicians of Washington, and all those who come here, are just now most interested in figuring out the probabilities of the two National Conventions and the chances of the election which follows. Within a short time the situation, with reference to both party nominations, has changed somewhat. In the republican ranks the opposition to the renomination of President Harrison, which a few weeks ago seemed sufficiently formidable to make a combination against him possible, is gradually melting away as the convention approaches, and there is now hardly a doubt that he will be renominated on the first ballot, if, indeed, it is not done by acclamation. That at least is the present outlook from this point of observation though of course great changes are always possible in this country, even in the short time that now remains. Mr. Harrison has given the country a wise, safe, and patriotic administration and has won the esteem of all the people. Mr. Blaine aside, there is probably no man in the party who would command a larger vote or whose title to the nomination is better.

In the democratic camp it now looks like Cleveland again. About the time of D. B. Hill's midwinter convention, at Albany, things looked a little squally for "the stuffed prophet," as Brother Dana so playfully terms him but he is, after all, the great brass-mounted idol of the democratic party outside of New York, and Hill having made a dismal failure of his personal hunt for votes it begins to look once more as though his royal obesity would be nominated. Just why the innocent democratic heart out in the rural districts yearns so intensely for Cleveland it would be hard to explain. Those who came most in contact with him while he was President do not admire him and oppose his further aspirations, but it is the rank and file who have never seen him that worship him from afar. Mr. Cleveland is not a great man, except in the sense that he weighs 300 pounds, nor has he any of the elements of a popular man. He has always held himself better than his party—fit only to associate with high-minded and blue-blooded mugwumps—and to-day he believes that he is the only man in the party good enough to be the President; that if they don't take him they are not in it. And some of the party think likewise. If the [illegible] present diagnosis of the situation is [illegible] we shall have the old campaign of Harrison vs. Cleveland [illegible] probably the same [illegible] case of history repeating itself.

The unanimity with which [illegible] Hon. Roger Q. Mills has recovered average health immediately after the vindication he received from the Texas Legislature is one of the most remarkable instances of faith cure of the present decade. When his credentials arrived here he [illegible] marched over to the Senate Chamber like Fitz James on the crags, when seeking the best blood of Roderick Dhu, with step erect and ear awake, as if he had never been sick in his life. Mr. Mills may well thank his lucky stars, if he has any, for being defeated in his attempt to be Speaker. He has now a position better fitted for his peculiar abilities, his temper and his health than he would have had had he been elected Speaker. Sympathy for him in unexpected defeat made him Senator. The idea is still alive in Texas that his defeat was accomplished by a ring—a base combination of Hill, Tammany, Springer, and possibly the arch enemy of human souls. The idea that he lacked a qualification for the position has never grown there. Mill was simply a victim of an outrageous political conspiracy, and senator Hill is held responsible for the defeat, though he had no more to do with it than the Governor of Texas, nor half as much.

Senator Hill now comes into close relations with the man who has long been his mentor, ex-Speaker Carlisle. He may be said to be the discoverer of Mills. He made him chairman of the Ways and Means committee; held the party together for him while he was trying to get his tariff bill through; kept him from flying into a dozen pieces; induced him to take the dodge he did last fall on the matter of free silver; made him a candidate for speaker, and now has him under tutelage. He never can make a statesman of him, but will keep him within bounds if the Lord spares his life.

Not the smallest part of a congressman's duties is answering letters from his constituents. All members of congress in both houses receive a great many letters, but some who are popular and well known get a great many more than others. Ex-speaker Reed has one of the largest mails that comes to the Capitol. People from all over the country write to him on various subjects and every morning an enormous batch of letters and newspapers covers his desk. The majority of congressmen look carefully after their correspondence and answer all letters, especially from their constituents. It will be noted that those who make a special point of that sort of thing are generally popular at home and enjoy a long public service. Chairman Springer of ways and means committee is one of these; so was Sam. Randall and many of the best-known public servents of all times. It's the custom of the big Maine statesman to reach his desk in the House an hour before the session begins and spend the time in carefully sorting over the stack of letters and marked papers. Many ladies write to him for his autograph, and the number of square, scented envelopes received from this source every week would fill a good-sized waste basket. While running over his mail, one day this week, he come across a unique request. It was contained in a prim little note from a western girl and was as follows: "Won't you be kind enough to write upon the enclosed paper your autograph [illegible] the sentiment, 'Righteousness exalteth the Nation.'" The [illegible] smiled and wrote the young lady his autograph minus the sentiment, about which he said he had some doubt.

A Legislative Endorsement.

A law was passed last winter in Minnesota affecting the sale of alum baking powders. The [illegible] interest excited by the bill being proposed led to a long and thorough investigation by a legislative committee of the [illegible] qualities of all the baking powders sold in that State, with the result that the Royal was shown by very positive evidence [illegible] the State Chemist, Dr. Drew, and others, to be the purest, strongest, and in all respects the best baking powder in the market.

Popular Talks On Law.

BY WM. C. SPRAGUE, ESQ.

THE MERCANTILE AGENCIES.

In accordance with the promise in my last article I shall undertake to say a few words in reference to the liability of the mercantile agencies doing a collection business.

In the first place, almost all agencies who do a reporting business also handle collections, it seeming to be almost a necessary part of their business, and as almost every one, at some time in his business career, is tempted to employ an agency in the collection of his claims, a statement with reference to the liability of an agency handling such business will be of general interest.

In the first place, it may be stated as a general rule, that the liability of an agency is governed by the contract made between the agency and the owner of the claim. In most cases, however, the contract is merely an implied contract, no express terms being agreed upon, unless it be as to the rate per cent to be charged by the agency for the work it does. Usually a bare receipt is given for the collection and the liability of the agency in some cases, and in all cases where the terms are not defined, is to be determined from the general law of contracts.

By undertaking to collect an agency does not insure a collection, and early in the history of agencies it was thought that the taking of a claim for collection was an implied agreement upon the part of the agency to forward it to its local correspondent, and to act merely as a forwarder of the claim, and as the agent for the receipt of the money and the turning of it over to the client. That its liability did not extend to the loss of the money by failure of the correspondent to pay it over, and that it was only bound to use ordinary and reasonable diligence in the selection of capable and honest correspondent and reasonable diligence in following up the claim. There can be no doubt that if the terms of the contract expressly state that such is the position of the agency, that is that it shall be the agent merely for the purpose of forwarding a claim, the agency cannot be held responsible after using ordinary and reasonable diligence in performing its duties.

The law in later times, however, is much more severe upon the agencies, where there is no stated contract absolving it from liability. The position of the agency is now said to be the same as that of the attorney doing like work, and the law with reference to it is the same.

In a leading case, Bradstreet v. Everson, 72 Pa. St., 124 a mercantile agency undertook to collect certain claims belonging to their customer, giving the following receipt.

J. M. BRADSTREET & SON.
Improved Mercantile Agency.
PITTSBURGH, June 2, 1862
Received of Messrs. Everson & Co., 4 duplicate acceptances for collection, v. Watt C. Bradford, Memphis, Tenn., amounting to $1,726.37.
(Signed) J. M. BRADSTREET & SON.

In delivering the opinion of the court, the judge observed; "It is argued, notwithstanding the express receipt for collection, that the defendants did not undertake for themselves to collect, but only to submit to a proper and responsible attorney, and made themselves liable only for diligence in correspondence and giving the necessary information to the plaintiffs; or, in briefer terms, that the attorney in Memphis was not their agent for the collection, but that of the plaintiff's only. The current of decision, however, is otherwise as to attoney-at-law sending claims to correspondents for collection, and the reasons for applying the same rules to collection agencies are even stronger. They have their selected agents in every part of the country. From the nature of such ramified institutions, we must conclude that the public impression will be that the agency invites customers on the very ground of its facilities for making distant collections. It will be presumed from its business, collection at remote points and its knoledge of the agents chosen, that the agency intends to undertake the performance of the service which the individual customer is unable to perform for himself. There is good reason, therefore, to hold that such an agency is liable for collections made by its own [illegible] when it undertakes the collection [illegible] express terms of the receipt.

There was [illegible] arising and decided at Philadelphia [illegible] 1870, where the receipt given by the agency read as follows:

For collection according to direction, and proceeds when received by us to be paid over to King & Baird.

Across the face of this was written this:

N. B.—The owner of the within mentioned taking all the risks of the mail, the losses by failure of agents to remit, and also the losses by reason of insurrection or war.

Thus limiting their liability, the agency was decided to have been relieved of the responsibility sought to be charged against it.

Other cases deciding that the attorney undertaking the collection of claims, who fails to limit his liability in the receipt or agreement to make the collection, is liable for losses occurring through the negligence, etc., of his agents may be found in Pennsylvania, Alabama, Indiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, and elsewere.

I will, in my next paper, discuss further the relation of client and attorney in this matter of collections.

Lincoln's Death.

Twenty six years ago day before yesterday, the writer stood on one of the hills about Chattanooga, Tennessee. All around were camps, cannon and soldiers. The camps were gay with flags, the cannon were firing salutes, the soldiers were shouting for joy. Lee had surrendered, the end of the war had come, and home was in sight. The next morning the flags were at half-mast, the cannon were firing minute guns, the soldiers were silent and sad. It was an abrupt transition from wide-spread joy to universal mourning. Our beloved war President, "Old Abe," had been murdered the evening before by a fanatical assassin. Then it seemed as if a new breach had been made between North and South that never would be healed. To-day the whole country is united and loyal, and its people, visiting from one section to another, traveling by the Burlington lines of railroad, are one family again. Sham Economy.

New York Press.

When the late Republican Congress came into power it was compelled to meet over $25,000,000 of pension deficiencies created by the demoratic congress that preceded it. The present democratic congress seems determined to use the Pension Appropriation bill again as a means of making a show of economy. The estimates for pensions have already been cut down nearly $18,000,000 by Judge Holman's committee, and more cutting down is yet to be done on the bill which provides for assistance to disabled veterans of the Union army and their widows and orphans. Yet the River and Harbor Committee in this same democratic congress has reported an appropriation bill which, by fair calculation, is nearly $2,000,000 in excess of the measure reported to the late Republican House and which contains provisions for the making of contracts by which $25,000,000 would necessarily be expended by the government for certain specified purposes within the next ten years. Such is the sham economy by which the democrats hope to deceive the public while really raiding the Treasury.

World's Fair Notes.

The Arkansas World's Fair board has selected ten acres near Little Rock which it will have cultivated with the view of rasing various agricultural products for exhibit at the Exposition. The Board has made arrangements to send to Chicago for the Forestry building specimens of pine, white oak, red oak, sweet gum, cypress and walnut.

The limit of time in which States and territories and foreign countries must accept the sites allotted them on the Exposition grounds has been fixed at June 1st, 1892.

The New South Wales World's Fair Commission is contemplating sending for exhibition at the Exposition copies of the noted aboriginal cave inscriptions of northern Queensland, and also a whole tribe of aborigines.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Crookston, April 14, 1892.

Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 66.
1 Northern 65.
2 Northern 59.
3 Northern 55.

T. H. Bjoin started for Iowa last week after another carload of horses.

The weather for the past week has not been very conducive to an early spring.

H. L. Zutah was down from Red Lake Falls this week, on the lookout for a farm to rent.

Miss Inez McGrew went out to Fosston last week to see about a school for the coming season.

Fred Davis, "our Fred," was down from Euclid last week chatting with friends as lively as a cricket.

M. W. Davis & Son came down from Euclid last week and purchased a pair of fine mares of M. R. Brown.

Jim Bain came up from Fisher on Saturday to buy one of those good solid working teams at M. R. Brown's.

Senator Burkhardt came up from Wabasha County last week to visit with his son Rudy and friends in this city.

A. M. Childs went over to Grand Forks last Friday to attend a banquet given by the N. Y. Life Insurance folks.

H. B. Budd was up from Edna on Thursday last limping around from the effects of a recent injury. He was just as good looking as ever and as jolly.

Rev. R. H. Battey went down to Fertile on Friday evening to deliver a lecture, the proceeds of which goes to aid in building the new Congregational church at Mentor.

M. R. Brown returned on Friday with another carload of fine Iowa mares—which makes the eighth or ninth carload this spring, and if this carload is not enough he will go again. Call and see this lot.

The new hail insurance company, located in the Rickett Block, starts in with bright prospects, having lots of business secured in the outset. It will pay all our friends who contemplate insuring against hail to call and see them.

Dr. M. Leguee has gone to Park Rapids, in Hubbard Co., on professional business to be gone a week or ten days. The doctor is kept busy almost constantly attending to his veterinary work. He has the reputation of being one of the best in the business.

The weather during the past week has April fooled almost everybody on their fuel calculations, and the dealers in wood and coal have reaped the benefit. Wood has been a very scarce article while coal has pursued the even tenor of its way at the same old prices.

Mr. Carpenter, of Larsen, Carpenter & Co., spent a portion of last week interviewing St. Paul and Minneapolis agricultural implement dealers. Says the warehouses are nearly all empty so great has been the demand in this line this spring. L. C. & Co. have sold 100 drills already and could have sold 125 more if they could have got them. Their trade in other lines has also been excellent this spring.

THE JOURNAL regrets to learn of the death of A. H. Baker, which occurred at Grand Rapids, Mich., on March 30th. Mr. Baker was for some time a resident of Norman County and represented this district in the Legislature. Mr. Baker was superintendent of the soldiers' home at Grand Rapids at the time of his death, was 57 years old and had many friends in this community who will regret to learn of his death. He leaves a son and daughter.

Easter services at 11 a. m. and 8 p.m. next Sunday at the Congregational church. Everyone cordially invited. Morning subject: "The Debt of the World to the Resurrected Christ;" evening, "The Battle of Life and Our Resurrection Hopes." Special interest centers in Easter Sabbath and let this joyful occasion find all members and worshipers and their friends present in our sanctuary early to spend the hours of service in joyful praise.

The farmer who sows the White Russian oats has two chances for a market for them. In the first place, if you have a fine sample they can be sold for oat-meal, and if not so good they are all right for feed. Black oats are no good for oat-meal and the ordinary white oats not very much better as they are usually too small. The White Russian comes nearest to filling the bill and as there are plenty for seed in the county every farmer can raise them if he will.

A. E. Brush, of Angus, was in the city last week looking for a hired girl for which he was offering fancy wages. Says he cannot account for the low prices of wheat this spring in view of the prospects for a shortage in spring wheat here and the fact that the winter wheat is almost a failure everywhere. He has recently returned from a trip through some of the principal winter wheat states and says he did not see one good piece on his travels—some of it utterly ruined, and when we come to consider the probability that the Valley will [illegible] raise more than 50 per cent. its usual crop he thinks wheat should be [illegible] much higher, and we coincide [illegible] that view.

Mrs. Geo. W. Tice came down from Mentor on Monday evening.

Governor Merriam has designated Monday, May 2d, as Arbor Day.

Dr. C. E. Dampier was registered at a prominent St. Paul hotel last week.

Do you know that J. W. Wheeler has money to loan at reasonable rates and no long waits for the money to come from some place? He has it on hand ready for delivery as soon as the papers are made out.

Elsewhere we note the organization of the Minnesota Hail association, a home company, with headquarters at Crookston. Later we will take occasion to tell our readers who the incorporators are and what they intend to do.

Marshall County Leader:—A grand encampment of the G. A. R. will be held at Crookston for a week in July. The arrangements are being made on a large scale and it is expected that from ten to fifteen thousand people will be assembled there. Frank Barager commander of the post here, says the boys are all going.

Prof. Carruth informs us that Prof. Kiehle will open a training school for teachers in this city on July 11th, for the instruction of teachers in Marshal, Polk and Norman counties and, he desires us to say that he expects to see every teacher in this county in attendance. The school will be conducted by able instructors and will continue four weeks.

Postmaster Dawley's report to the Postmaster General on Wednesday a. m might have read something like this: "New assistant postmaster for this office—arrived at my house last night—regulation weight—duly registered as second-class male matter—taking my estimate of his value this should entitle this office to all of the privileges of a first-class office."

A St. Vincent special of the 11th inst. says: The Red river is now over the banks and has begun flooding the towns of St. Vincent and Emerson. The river is about 40 feet above low water mark and still rising, and the ice is not yet gone out. A rise of one foot more will cover the town of Emerson. The indications are that the disastrous flood of 1880 will be repeated.

The grand opening of new spring millinery at Mrs. E. E. Bangs' was the delight of the ladies of Crookston and vicinity. Words fail to describe the many attractions of the display, but when we say that Mrs. Bangs had the world we speak literally correct, for she did have it—suspended from a wire in her show window. She has a fine display of millinery, and invites the attention of our lady readers to it.

County Commissioner C. P. DeMers dropped into our den on Friday to assure us that he could not get along without THE JOURNAL and as an evidence put up one-and-one-half simoleons—said to be worth 70 cents on the dollar, but as everything goes with us we did not kick on the extra 30. Mr. DeMers says there is more water in his country this spring than he ever before and he does not think much seeding will be done this month.

Our reporter passed the show window of Veronneau & Adams during the great opening display of spring millinery, and such a crowd of delighted ladies as he saw therein dismayed him—he did not dare to go in and interview the firm on that occasion, but from the display of ribbons, and hats, and trimmings, and flowers that he saw, and the expressions of delight that he heard, he formed the opinion that the display was a very creditable one; afterward we overheard one lady purchaser remark: "How exceedingly cheap those lovely goods are this spring!" The ladies, Miss Veronneau and Mrs. Adams, desire to thank their lady patrons for their liberal patronage so far, and assure them that they will do their best to merit a continuance of the same.

The following brief letter from T. H. Bjoin, from Ridgeway, Iowa, explains itself:

"I will be in Crookston on Thursday evening, April 14th, with a car load of extra heavy work horses and mares. Kindly invite all JOURNAL readers and others who may want good teams, to call and see this lot.

Respectfully yours,
T. H. BJOIN.

The recent advance of 7 cents in the price of wheat in about a week's time was due principally to the unfavorable condition of the weather in the southwestern and some portions of the western states. Winter wheat has been damaged to such an extent in those sections as to insure an appreciable decrease in the wheat yield of the United States for 1892. The weather bureau at Washington has figured out, from the present crop conditions, that the damage already done will decrease the yield at least 200,000,000 bushels. In former years, with similar crop conditions and weather in April as have existed during the present month, the price of wheat has advanced on an average about 11 cents; so it is reasonable to suppose that the top of the market for this spring has not been reached. Over-estimation of the shortage of crops in foreign countries for the past year and an under estimate of the amount of grain produced in the U. S. for the same period were the principal causes which tended to lower and keep prices in this country. But now that the wheat speculators have begun to figure on the crop conditions and probable yield for this year the market has become firm and prices are steadily advancing.

The committee of arrangements for the Grand Army reunion next summer are preparing to raise the amount necessary to carry out the program and every public-spirited citizen should be prepared, when waited upon to cheerfully respond to the call. Aside from other considerations it will be such an advertisement of our city as we have seldom if ever had as, in all probability thousands of strangers will be in attendance during the encampment. There are also other weighty considerations of a financial nature that should be an inducement even if a person should feel no special interest in the welfare of our city. Every citizen of Crookston should lend a cheerful hand in aid of this matter and contribute as liberally as his means will permit.

Frank Bruce was in last week to set that subscription ahead a peg, and told us of his recent loss by fire, reference to which was made in these columns a few weeks since. It seems that he lost everything he had in the house as, by the time the neighbors arrived the fire was so hot nothing could be saved. He was two miles away when he saw the house in flames and hastened home to find that his wife, who had been quite ill for some time, had succeeded in getting safely out. He had his summer's flour, pork and potatoes stored in the house and cellar all of which was totally destroyed except about 10 pounds of pork and that was roasted elegantly. Though the loss was a severe one he does not seem discouraged but is going bravely to work to repair the damages. Says his wife is very much better since the fire and is recovering rapidly. Though severe medicine to take he thinks it was beneficial.

A NEW ELEVATOR COMPANY.

The Farmers' Protective Association has decided to launch a new elevator company and at a recent meeting steps were taken to that end, and after some discussion the following schedule was agreed upon:

1. The name of this corporation shall be The Northwestern Farmers' Protective Elevator Company.

2. The object of the corporation is to erect their own elevator in Duluth or West Superior for storing, shipping, handling or selling grain.

3. The principal place of business of the corporation shall be at Grand Forks, North Dakota.

4. The term for the corportion to exist shall be twenty years.

5. The Number of directors shall be eleven, and the directors now elected to serve until their successors are elected and qualified. They are as follows:

Ole O. Haugerud, Grafton, N. D.
H. H. Storm, Hillsboro, N. D.
Andrew Steenerson, Climax, Minn.
W. J. Anderson, Grand Forks, N. D.
Thos. Ulven, Grand Forks, N. D.
A. O. Heglie, Walcott.
Ole Aune, Fertile Minn.
A. Braseth, Dwight, N. D,
Ole H. Brenna, Grand Forks N. D.
John O. Fadden, Grand Forks, N. D.

6. The capital stock of the company shall be two hundred thousand dollars, divided into shares of twenty-five dollars each. No person can hold more than forty shares.

7. Stock shall be non-assesable and non-transferable, except to members of The Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association.

8. The first general meeting is to be held the last Tuesday in June, 1892.

Assistant Secretary Nettleton, of the treasury department, denies the rumor that he intends to resign his position, and has again resumed his duties after a brief absence from Washington.

The president has issued a proclamation directing to be opened to settlement on April 15, 1892, at 12 o'clock noon, the surplus lands of the Sisseton and Wahpeton reservations in the Dakotas. The lands to be opened aggregate 574,257 acres. Register Potter of the Fargo land office, where a large portion of the lands will be filed on, is very sick at New Orleans and writes President Harrison that he will be unable to be at Fargo by the 15th, which may necessitate the appointment of another register, or the postponement of the opening of the reservation. Large numbers of land-seekers are on the ground awaiting the opening.

Leaders in Low Prices

Very large congregations have attended the Baptist church since the settlement of the new pastor. Next Sunday night the sermon on "The sin of Unbelief" will be illustaated by blackboard and chemical test. Services are changed to following hours: Preaching service Sunday 11 a. m. and 8 p.m., Bible school at 12:15 p.m.; young people's meeting at 7 p.m. Prayer meeting Wednesday 8 p.m.

Subscriptions to stock in the new Farmers' Elevator Company are now being taken and if the business is properly conducted it will we think prove the best investment ever made by the farmers. It will at least settle definitely the question as to where the profits in the wheat raising business have gone during the past years. A line of elevators, owned and controlled by the farmers, would bring the Red River Valley farmer in direct communication with the consumer in England and give the farmer whatever profit there has been in handling his wheat. Under ordinary circumstances and in a competing market the wisdom of this movement might be questioned but under the existing circumstances we believe this movement is a wise one, providing it is properly managed.

Charlie Vine is not doing any bragging but he is just simply selling the choicest cuts in the market. Try him.

Patti Rosa.

The management of the Grand opera house has effected an arrangement with the brilliant comedienne, Patti Rosa, to appear here next Monday night in her comedy, "Dolly Varden." This engagement will afford the chief event of the season here. Patti Rosa is known and admired from one end of the country to the other, and has played successful engagements in England and Australia as well. She has one of the best companies traveling, and the entire performance is spoken of in the highest terms by the critics of Chicago, New York, Boston, San Francisco and other cities. A crowded house should greet this famous star.

A good joke is told on one of our townsmen who went to Maple Lake to fish. Casting his bait he got a bite. Oh! thought he, this fish must be a whale. He pulled and hauled for some time and finally landed his prize on shore. A pretty muddy looking whale this, thought he; but when he got part of the mud and moss cleaned away his whale proved to be Free Grist.

The farmers are anxiously looking for spring for two reasons, fodder is getting short and they think it will be very late before seeding is finished on account of so much water. But, farmers, be ready to commence after the 15th. Spring will come then in earnest.

We were down to Woodside after the snow storm and we found that one foot of mud and eight inches snow does not make the best of wheeling. It is good to have short-horn cattle but not short-legged one in such roads as these.

Harry Klinger shot that wolf that had his eye on their sheep.

Our People's Party meeting of the 29th was a success. W. N. Godfrey was made president, Gilbert Iverson vice president, D. I. Mitchell secretary and P. S. Medchill treasurer.

We have some more important items but are unable to get them in this week.

The material is all on hand for the construction of the new parsonage at the Bay.

The Dugdale boys were down to the Bay fishing to-day. The fish played dodge on the boys a good deal.

We were looking over our seed wheat. It is fine—I mean the pure Scotch Fife that the Hon. Mr. Pilsbury sent out last spring. We got 3 bu. from which we raised 52 bu. that we are going to seed this spring. We say, long live Mr. Pilsbury. We are very grateful for his kindness.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication March 31st, 1892.)
[Last publication May 12th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Jennie Kelly and Alfred D. Kelly, her husband, Mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 25th day of October, A. D. 1886, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 29th day of October, A. D. 1886, at 4:15 o'clock p. m., in book 26 of mortgages, on pages 389 to 392; and

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $25.50 that became due October 25th, 1889; $25.50 that became due April 25th 1890; $25.50 that became due October 25th, 1890; $35.50 that became due April 25th, 1891, and $25.50 that became due October 25th, 1891;

And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare and hereby does declare, the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to-wit: Ten hundred Nine and 60-100 ($1009.60) Dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The north-east quarter (ne¼) of section nineteen (19) Township one hundred forty-nine (149) Range forty-two (42), containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof, all of said premises situated and being in the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

Crookston, April 14, 1892.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 66.
1 Northern 65.
2 Northern 59.
3 Northern 55.

T. H. Bjoin started for Iowa last week after another carload of horses.

The weather for the past week has not been very conducive to an early spring.

H. L. Zutsh was down from Red Lake Falls this week, on the lookout for a farm to rent.

Miss Inez McGrew went out to Fosston last week to see about a school for the coming season.

Fred Davis, "our Fred," was down from Euclid last week chatting with friends as lively as a cricket.

M. W. Davis & Son came down from Euclid last week and purchased a pair of fine mares of M. R. Brown.

Jim Bain came up from Fisher on Saturday to buy one of those good solid working teams at M. R. Brown's.

Senator Burkhardt came up from Wabasha County last week to visit with his son Rudy and friends in this city.

A. M. Childs went over to Grand Forks last Friday to attend a banquet given by the N. Y. Life Insurance folks.

H. B. Budd was up from Edna on Thursday last limping around from the effects of a recent injury. He was just as good looking as ever and as jolly.

Rev. R. H. Battey went down to Fertile on Friday evening to deliver a lecture, the proceeds of which goes to aid in building the new Congregational church at Mentor.

M. R. Brown returned on Friday with another carload of fine Iowa mares—which makes the eighth or ninth carload this spring, and if this carload is not enough he will go again. Call and see this lot.

The new hail insurance company, located in the Rickett Block, starts in with bright prospects, having lots of business secured in the outset. It will pay all our friends who contemplate insuring against hail to call and see them.

Dr. M. Leguee has gone to Park Rapids, in Hubbard Co., on professional business to be gone a week or ten days. The doctor is kept busy almost constantly attending to his veterinary work. He has the reputation of being one of the best in the business.

The weather during the past week has April fooled almost everybody on their fuel calculations, and the dealers in wood and coal have reaped the benefit. Wood has been a very scarce article while coal has pursued the even tenor of its way at the same old prices.

Mr. Carpenter, of Larsen, Carpenter & Co., spent a portion of last week interviewing St. Paul and Minneapolis agricultural implement dealers. Says the warehouses are nearly all empty so great has been the demand in this line this spring. L. C. & Co. have sold 100 drills already and could have sold 125 more if they could have got them. Their trade in other lines has also been excellent this spring.

The Journal regrets to learn of the death of A. H. Baker, which occurred at Grand Rapids, Mich., on March 30th. Mr. Baker was for some time a resident of Norman County and represented this district in the Legislature. Mr. Baker was superintendent of the soldiers' home at Grand Rapids at the time of his death, was 57 years old and had many friends in this community who will regret to learn of his death. He leaves a son and daughter.

Easter services at 11 a. m. and 8 p.m. next Sunday at the Congregational church. Everyone cordially invited. Morning subject: "The Debt of the World to the Resurrected Christ;" evening "The Battle of Life and Our Resurrection Hopes." Special interest centers in Easter Sabbath and let this joyful occasion find all members and worshipers and their friends present in our sanctuary early to spend the hours of service in joyful praise.

The farmer who sows the White Russian oats has two chances for a market for them. In the first place, if you have a fine sample they can be sold for oat meal, and if not so good they are all right for feed. Black oats are no good for oat meal and the ordinary white oats not very much better as they are usually too small. The White Russian comes nearest to filling the bill and as there are plenty for seed in the county every farmer can raise them if he will.

A. E. Brush, of Angus, was in the city last week looking for a hired girl for which he was offering fancy wages. Says he cannot account for the low prices of wheat this spring in view of the prospects for a shortage in spring wheat here and the fact that the winter wheat is almost a failure everywhere. He has recently returned from a trip through some of the principal winter wheat states and says he did not see one good piece on his travels—some of it utterly ruined and when we come to consider the probability that the Valley will not raise more than 50 per cent. its [illegible] crop, he thinks wheat should be [illegible] higher, and we coincide [illegible] this view.

Mrs. Geo. W. Tice came down from Mentor on Monday evening.

Governor Merriam has designated Monday, May 2d, as Arbor Day.

Dr. C. E. Dampier was registered at a prominent St. Paul hotel last week.

Do you know that J. W. Wheeler has money to loan at reasonable rates and no long waits for the money to come from some place? He has it on hand ready for delivery as soon as the papers are made out.

Elsewhere we note the organization of the Minnesota Hail association, a home company, with headquarters at Crookston. Later we will take occasion to tell our readers who the incorporators are and what they intend to do.

Marshall County Leader:—A grand encampment of the G. A. R. will be held at Crookston for a week in July. The arrangements are being made on a large scale and it is expected that from ten to fifteen thousand people will be assembled there. Frank Barager commander of the post here, says the boys are all going.

Prof. Carruth informs us that Prof. Kiehle will open a training school for teachers in this city on July 11th, for the instruction of teachers in Marshal, Polk and Norman counties and, he desires us to say that he expects to see every teacher in this county in attendance. The school will be conducted by able instructors and will continue four weeks.

Postmaster Dawley's report to the Postmaster General on Wednesday a. m might have read something like this: "New assistant postmaster for this office—arrived at my house last night—regulation weight—duly registered as second-class male matter—taking my estimate of his value this should entitle this office to all of the privileges of a first-class office."

A St. Vincent special of the 11th inst. says: The Red river is now over the banks and has begun flooding the towns of St. Vincent and Emerson. The river is about 40 feet above low water mark and still rising, and the ice is not yet gone out. A rise of one foot more will cover the town of Emerson. The indications are that the disastrous flood of 1880 will be repeated.

The grand opening of new spring millinery at Mrs. E. E. Bangs' was the delight of the ladies of Crookston and vicinity. Words fail to describe the many attractions of the display, but when we say that Mrs. Bangs had the world we speak literally correct, for she did have it—suspended from a wire in her show window. She has a fine display of millinery, and invites the attention of our lady readers to it.

County Commissioner C. P. DeMers dropped into our den on Friday to assure us that he could not get along without The Journal and as an evidence put up one-and-one-half simoleons—said to be worth 70 cents on the dollar, but as everything goes with us we did not kick on the extra 30. Mr. DeMers says there is more water in his country this spring than he ever before and he does not think much seeding will be done this month.

Our reporter passed the show window of Veronneau & Adams during the great opening display of spring millinery, and such a crowd of delighted ladies as he saw therein dismayed him—he did not dare to go in and interview the firm on that occasion, but from the display of ribbons, and hats, and trimmings, and flowers that he saw, and the expressions of delight that he heard, he formed the opinion that the display was a very creditable one; afterward we overheard one lady purchaser remark: "How exceedingly cheap those lovely goods are this spring!" The ladies, Miss Veronneau and Mrs. Adams, desire to thank their lady patrons for their liberal patronage so far, and assure them that they will do their best to merit a continuance of the same.

The following brief letter from T. H. Bjoin, from Ridgeway, Iowa, explains itself:

"I will be in Crookston on Thursday evening, April 14th, with a car load of extra heavy work horses and mares. Kindly invite all Journal readers and others who may want good teams, to call and see this lot.

Respectfully yours,
T. H. Bjoin.

The recent advance of 7 cents in the price of wheat in about a week's time was due principally to the unfavorable condition of the weather in the southwestern and some portions of the western states. Winter wheat has been damaged to such an extent in those sections as to insure an appreciable decrease in the wheat yield of the United States for 1892. The weather bureau at Washington has figured out, from the present crop conditions, that the damage already done will decrease the yield at least 200,000,000 bushels. In former years, with similar crop conditions and weather in April as have existed during the present month, the price of wheat has advanced on an average, about 11 cents, so it is reasonable to suppose that the top of the market for this spring has not been reached. Over-estimation of the shortage of crops in foreign countries for the past year, and an under estimate of the amount of grain produced in the U. S. for the same period, were the principal causes which tended to lower and keep prices in this country. But now that the wheat speculators have begun to figure on the crop conditions and probable yield for this year the market has become firm and prices are steadily advancing.

The committee of arrangements for the Grand Army reunion next summer are preparing to raise the amount necessary to carry out the program and every public-spirited citizen should be prepared, when waited upon to cheerfully respond to the call. Aside from other considerations it will be such an advertisement of our city as we have seldom if ever had as, in all probability thousands of strangers will be in attendance during the encampment. There are also other weighty considerations of a financial nature that should be an inducement even if a person should feel no special interest in the welfare of our city. Every citizen of Crookston should lend a cheerful hand in aid of this matter and contribute as liberally as his means will permit.

Frank Bruce was in last week to set that subscription ahead a peg and told us of his recent loss by fire, reference to which was made in these columns a few weeks since. It seems that he lost everything he had in the house as, by the time the neighbors arrived the fire was so hot nothing could be saved. He was two miles away when he saw the house in flames and hastened home to find that his wife, who had been quite ill for some time, had succeeded in getting safely out. He had his summer's flour, pork and potatoes stored in the house and cellar all of which was totally destroyed except about 10 pounds of pork and that was roasted elegantly. Though the loss was a severe one he does not seem discouraged but is going bravely to work to repair the damages. Says his wife is very much better since the fire and is recovering rapidly. Though severe medicine to take he thinks it was beneficial.

A NEW ELEVATOR COMPANY.

The Farmers' Protective Association has decided to launch a new elevator company and at a recent meeting steps were taken to that end, and after some discussion the following schedule was agreed upon:

1. The name of this corporation shall be The Northwestern Farmers' Protective Elevator Company.
2. The object of the corporation is to erect their own elevator in Duluth or West Superior for storing, shipping, handling or selling grain.
3. The principal place of business of the corporation shall be at Grand Forks, North Dakota.
4. The term for the corportion to exist shall be twenty years.
5. The Number of directors shall be eleven, and the directors now elected to serve until their successors are elected and qualified. They are as follows:

Ole O Haugerud, Grafton, N. D.
H. H. Storm, Hillsboro, N. D.
Andrew Steenerson, Climax, Minn.
W. J. Anderson, Grand Forks, N. D.
Thos. Ulven, Grand Forks, N. D.
A. O. Heglie, Walcott.
Ole Aune, Fertile Minn.
A. Braseth, Dwight, N. D.
Ole H. Brenna, Grand Forks N. D.
John O. Fadden, Grand Forks, N. D.

6. The capital stock of the company shall be two hundred thousand dollars, divided into shares of twenty-five dollars each. No person can hold more than forty shares.
7. Stock shall be non-assesable and non-transferable, except to members of The Northwestern Farmers' Protective Association.
8. The first general meeting is to be held the last Tuesday in June, 1892.

Assistant Secretary Nettleton, of the treasury department, denies the rumor that he intends to resign his position, and has again resumed his duties after a brief absence from Washington.

The president has issued a proclamation directing to be opened to settlement on April 15, 1892, at 12 o'clock noon, the surplus lands of the Sisseton and Wahpeton reservations in the Dakotas. The lands to be opened aggregate 574,257 acres. Register Potter of the Fargo land office, where a large portion of the lands will be filed on, is very sick at New Orleans and writes President Harrison that he will be unable to be at Fargo by the 15th, which may necessitate the appointment of another register, or the postponement of the opening of the reservation. Large numbers of land-seekers are on the ground awaiting the opening.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM,
Leaders in Low Prices on Quality.

Very large congregations have attended the Baptist church since the settlement of the new pastor. Next Sunday night the sermon on "The sin of Unbelief," will be illustsated by blackboard and chemical test. Services are changed to following hours: Preaching service Sunday 11 a. m. and 8 p.m.; Bible school at 12:15 p.m.; young people's meeting at 7 p.m. Prayer meeting Wednesday 8 p.m.

Subscriptions to stock in the new Farmers' Elevator Company are now being taken and if the business is properly conducted it will, we think prove the best investment ever made by the farmers. It will at least settle definitely the question as to where the profits in the wheat raising business have gone during the past years. A line of elevators owned and controlled by the farmers would bring the Red River Valley farmer in direct communication with the consumer in England and give the farmer whatever profit there has been in handling his wheat. Under ordinary circumstances and in a competing market the wisdom of this movement might be questioned but under the existing circumstances we believe this movement is a wise one providing it is properly managed.

Charlie Vine is not doing any bragging but he is just simply selling the choicest cuts in the market. Try him.

Home Office,
Minnesota Hail Association,
Crookston, Minn., April 7, 1892

At a meeting of the board of directors consisting of the following named gentlemen—C. H. Warren, Pres.; F. D. Lord, vice-pres., and field manager; C. L. Graber, secretary; L. C. Couverette, F. Bivins and T. J. McAdams, the following business was transacted.

The by-laws governing the association were read by the secretary and after being duly considered were, with a single amendment, adopted. On motion, Mr. Hugh Thompson, of Fisher, was made treasurer of the association, and the Merchant's National Bank of Crookston was made general depository of association funds. The association has taken a lease for a term of 8 months for for office purposes of rooms 23 and 24 in the building known as the Rickett block, corner 2nd and Main st. and as soon as the necessary books and blanks can be printed will be ready for action. There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned to meet again at 7 p. m. [illegible]

Patti Rosa.

The management of the Grand opera house has effected an arrangement with the brilliant comedienne, Patti Rosa, to appear here next Monday night in her comedy, "Dolly Varden." This engagement will afford the chief event of the season here. Patti Rosa is known and admired from one end of the country to the other, and has played successful engagements in England and Australia as well. She has one of the best companies traveling, and the entire performance is spoken of in the highest terms by the critics of Chicago, New York, Boston, San Francisco and other cities. A crowded house should greet this famous star.

A brand new boy arrived at the residence of Mr. Crapo on Monday, 4th.

Mr. Carrol has rented the n. e. ¼ sec. 32, R. 47, Tp. 152, belonging to Robert Casmey.

On the south bound G. N. mixed train near Donladson the other day, a tough was put off the train because he did not have a ticket. He subsequently sued the railroad for $5000 damages and secured $500 and that was $500 more than he ought to have had.

Mr. Easby was in Crookston Monday. When asked about his experieice as a farmer he said: "If I were to farm again I would not plow as deep as I did last year. I believe that the stand of grain will be just as good and am positive that it will get ripe two weeks earlier than otherwise.

E. Taylor & Co. have just received a large stock of ladies' and children's hats. Also a lot of hardware.

Farmers do not think they will begin seeding until May 1st.

Tim Lurusk lost a valuable mare Monday.

Wm. Brandt's Iowa horses are down with distemper.

Wild geese and ducks are very numerous this season.

Fully six inches of snow fell here Monday.

There are a few light fingered and big muscled people about this neighborhood who, if found out, will be very apt to go over the road. Someone broke into Mr. P. Losey's house at the farm on or about March 30th and broke out the window glass, tipped over the cupboard, demolished a stove and chopped and hammered an oil can full of oil, a new dishpan and several other things were demolished. At about the same time someone broke into the old Charley Misner house which was tenanted by Mick Tracey last season and stole a broom, a few lamp chimneys and several other things. A clue has been obtained and if caught the culprits will be severely dealt with.

Harry and Nelly Chapin departed for Crookston Tuesday where they will visit Clide and Grace Chapin for a few days.

The sick are keeping Dr. Chapin hustling while the roads are fit for it.

Fred Hadley is getting there with both feet now-a-days.

Several of the grades are badly washed out making travelling very dangerous.

Miss Nellie McAvoy, of Crookston is about to take the Angus school for the coming term.

Mr. Pyatt is going to make his home in Euclid in a short time he has rented his farm in Michigan. They are coming mainly for the benefit of his wife's health.

Wills Misner made a flying trip to Crookston Friday.

Charley Jose, of Argyle was in the city last week.

Polk County Journal.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

Crookston, April 14, 1892.

MELVIN, April 10th, 1892.

ED. JOURNAL—In looking over the proceedings of the board of County Commissioners one is impressed with the idea of unjust discrimination being practiced between affluence and misfortune, namely: 1st, application of August Munn and M. E. Kirsch for abatement of personal property taxes, granted. 2d, application of the Fairfax hail sufferers for abatement of personal property tax, refused. Application of Louis Fontaine, Wm. Anglim, Max Ericsson, A. J., and A. McKinnon for abatement of personal tax 30 per cent, granted. We notice that those of affluence (and possible influence) are granted their petition, while those who through misfortune lost their crops and have no ready money to pay their tax are held to the rack. We believe that the commissioners owe the voters of this county an explanation of their conduct in regard to this matter. We labor under the impression that if those of the city who are prosperous are allowed an abatement of tax, then, those unfortunate hail sufferers are also entitled to the same favor. We believe that the majority of the tax-payers would approve of those men being released from paying their taxes for the past year, if the law would permit of it, and if it does not in the one case, why does it in the others? If this is a case of discrimination then we wish if possible to gain for those commissioners who are guilty of refusing this petition a notoriety that will debar them from again being elected to positions of public trust.

CRITIC.

Mistakes to be Avoided.

Minneapolis Journal.

There is emphatic need that the Republican league clubs of Minnesota shall take special pains, in the course of their activities, to disseminate exact information touching the practical working of the election law of 1891. That which is a simple process to one man may befog his neighbor. All men have not an intuitive grasp upon the terms of such laws. The change from the old system of voting is a radical one. Voters in many cases need to have definite instruction. This ought to become part of the educational work of the league club. It is fundamental. It must precede other lines of political education.

In Ohio, last fall, there were 80,000 votes cast for Governor while the other candidates on the ballot were left unmarked. There will be a good deal of that kind of thing done in Minnesota at the November election if some good educational work is not done to prevent it. The Republican party of Minnesota must not only turn out every man in its ranks to vote, but must see that he knows how to mark his ticket. And this is the time to begin to make every voter familiar with the new law.

Another matter of great importance is the naming of Republican electors at the May convention. Electors should be qualified [illegible] holding an office of trust or profit under the United States. [illegible] made in [illegible] and [illegible] matter. The Minnesota Republicans must make no mistake of [illegible] this year.

DUNN ON NELSON.

The Princeton Editor's Tribute to the "Little Norwegian."

Minneapolis Journal.

What is the matter with Knute Nelson, anyhow? You city fellows have a shrewd way of booming a man for office. If Mr. Nelson was a rich man one would think he had hired the big dailies of Minneapolis and St. Paul to oppose his candidacy. Seriously, for the life of me, I cannot see why The Journal should go out of the way to misrepresent Mr. Nelson. Your views, Mr. Editor, on the tariff question, as enunciated in your paper, correspond with those held by Mr. Nelson, and surely it is not on account of his vote on the Mills bill—a vote that he has thoroughly and satisfactorily explained in a speech delivered in your own city, that you are "agin" him.

Why dwell on the "West Hotel caucus"? Admitting for the sake of argument that a caucus was held, what of it? Is Mr. Nelson to be held responsible for what every Tom, Dick and Harry says or does? But then, I for one do not believe any such caucus was ever held.

Now, Mr. Editor, I am friendly to Mr. Nelson and I am also a friend of Senator C. K. Davis, and am decidedly of the opinion that he should succeed himself. I have not "hung around the executive office," in fact have not been inside the executive office but once in 18 months, and then only for a few moments—long enough to secure a pardon for a poor boy, the only support of his father and mother, who has been incarcerated in the St. Cloud jail. I am not in the confidence of Gov. Merriam. don't know or don't care what his views or aspirations are. When Gov. Merriam was first nominated the undersigned was one of the little band that went down flying the Gilman colors. I am not a worshipper at Gov. Merriam's shrine, yet I believe he has proved himself to be one of the best executives Minnesota has ever had. He has given the state a good, clean, business-like administration and has sufficient nerve to Tripp up even a Minneapolis charter "woodchuck."

Give the gallant "Little Norwegian" a chance. It is no fault of his that he first saw the light of day in "the land of the midnight sun." If Biblical lore can be relied upon the Savior was born in a manger. No one questions Knute Nelson's stalwart Americanism. In the dark days of the 60's he risked his life in defense of the flag of his adopted country. His public and private life is above reproach. No taint of boodle clings to his skirts. He is a plain man of the people and his sympathies are with the people. He is a clean man, a brainy man and a man with the courage of his convictions. If you are bound to fight him, fight him squarely and above board. Don't couple his name with those of men who are obnoxious to the laboring men of your city and the toiling, sweating masses in the country.

Mr. Nelson is not an aggresive candidate for Governor or anything else. If he is the nominee of the Republican state convention it will be without any personal effort of his own. The nominee of the Republican party, no matter who he may be, will have no picnic this year. Let us save our ammunition for our friends—the enemy. Let the Republican party, in convention assembled decide who shall lead them, and if Honest Knute Nelson is the standard bearer victory will be assured in advance of the conflict at the polls next November.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication March 31st, 1892.]
[Last publication May 12th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of ten and 50-100 dollars ($10.50) which became due on the first day of October A. D. 1890, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Isaie Normandin and Philomene Normandin, his wife, to John Milton Oliver, bearing date the first day of October A. D. 1888, which mortgage together with the power of sale therein contained was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the first day of October A. D. 1888, at 1 o'clock and 10 minutes p. m. in book 40 of mortgages on pages 112 and 113.

It is provided in said mortgage that if said mortgagors shall fail to pay any part of the sum of money thereby secured at the time and in the manner specified in said mortgage, then upon such default the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage may at the option of the mortgagee be declared due and payable, and the said John Milton Oliver, mortgagee, who is now the legal holder of said mortgage and of the notes thereby secured, has elected and does hereby elect and declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage to be due and there is claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-one and 70-100 dollars ($41.70) and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Wherefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-west quarter (nw¼) of section [illegible] in Township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north of Range forty-[illegible] west of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres according to the government survey, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereto belonging, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said County of Polk at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston in said County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on SATURDAY, THE FOURTEENTH DAY OF MAY, A. [Last publication May 12th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of Twelve and 50-100 dollars ($12.50), which became due on the first day of December, 1890, and in the payment of a like and final sum, which became due on the first day of December, 1891, upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by John H. Lien and Ragnhild Lien, his wife, to John Milton Oliver, bearing date the 8th day of November, 1888, which mortgage, together with a power of sale contained therein, was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock and 10 minutes a. m., in Book 40 of mortgages, on pages 497, 498, and 499; which said sums with interest thereon respectively at ten per cent. per annum from the first day of December, 1890, and the 1st day of December, 1891, are the whole sum secured by said mortgage and remaining unpaid. John Milton Oliver, mortgagee, is now the legal holder of said mortgage and of the notes thereby secured; and the amount claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice is twenty seven dollars ($27.00), and no action or proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Wherefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north-west quarter (nw¼) of Section number twenty-two (22) in Township one hundred and forty-eight (148) north of Range number forty-five (45) west of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres according to the government survey, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereto belonging, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said County of Polk, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on SATURDAY, THE FOURTEENTH DAY OF MAY, A. D. 1892, at 11 o'clock of the forenoon of that day, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated at Minneapolis, Minn., this 22d day of March, A. D. 1892.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication March 31st, 1892.]
[Last publication May 12th, 1892.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Nils S. Nilson and Cecilia S. Nilson, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 24th day of December, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of January, A. D. 1889, at 10:45 o'clock a. m., in book 43 of mortgages, on page 455; and

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $22.75 that became due June 24th, 1889, $22.75 that became due December 24th, 1889, $22.75 that became due June 24th, 1890, and $22.75 that became due December 24th, 1890, $22.75 that became due June 24th, 1891, and $22.75 that became due December 24th, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described upon which there is default the following sum, to-wit: eight hundred twenty-one and 71-100 ($821.71) Dollars, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The south half (s½) of the north-east quarter (ne¼) and the west half (w½) of south-east quarter (se¼) of Section two (2) Township one hundred and forty-seven (147) Range forty (40), containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof. All of said premises situated and being in the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston in said County and State, on the 14th day of May, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.
